"The of the line would most likely be limited to $25,000 per mile. The Government would guarantee in proportion to their interests the bonds of the company to the extent of $15,000 per mile. The local Government would give a bonus of 20,000 acres per mile in alternate sections along the route, against which and the railway company would issue second preference bonds to the extent of $15,000 per mile, enough to make up for the discounts on all the issues, and to net $25,000 a mile. The company would take 10,000 or 20,000 able-bodied laborers from the emigration societies, or private sources, subject to approval, and an the following term:—To work for the company 200 consecutive days at 2s. per day and buah fare; and then to receive 100 acres of the company's land and a free grant of 100 acres from the Government, on condition of having fulfilled their contract. The cost of the emigrants' passage at a low fixed ate—say 12 dollars—would be deducted out of the amount paid during his 200 days labor. Legislation in Canada would be necessary to enforce the terms of a contract made in England for labour. There would be no danger of desertion, as it would be practicably impossible, neither could the emigrants make so good a bargain elsewhere. The end sought for was to find the labor in the United Kingdom to build the railway, the product of that labor supplemented by the guarantee and the lands to be the basis of a satisfactory security upon which to 'finance' the Dominion Pacific Railway and vastly to improve the emigrants' position, while adding to the general resources of the Empire. The labor of 20,000 men for £2,000 a day was a better way of financing' than selling £4,000 in bonds for £2,000 in cash."

Monaghan Council.

SPECIAL MEETING.

May 18th, 1870.

In consequence of the report having been published that the Monaghan Gravel Road Company had abdoned the road, a Special meeting of the Council was convened by the Reeve to consider the propriety of forming it into Road Divisions for Statute labor purposes.

All the members present, the Reeve in the chair.

Moved by Mr. G. Tully, seconded by Mr. Birney. That as this Council has not yet been apprized by the "Gravel Road Company" of their having given up the Road, it is not advisedable to take action & expend Statute labor or money, thereon until legal surrender be made.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Laing, and seconded by Mr. Robson, that Mr Birney and Mr. Tully be authorized to have the road leading past Mr. Dobbins, and also the boundary of gravel pit on his farm, surveyed without delay.—Carried.

Councillors Robson and Laing, reported that they had examined the road along the bank of the Otonabee River in the 11th concession, and found that three bridges had been swept away;—that about 1000 feet of plank would be required to cover the bridges. They suggested, that if practicable, one of the spans formerly covered as a bridge as named above, be filled with stone, and covered with earth.

With respect to opening up a drain on the South end of the 10th lot, in the 12th concession, they cannot see that it would be of any service, as the level of the creek is about even with the surface, and therefore the water would stand unless the channel of the creek was sunk, which they consider would be a heavy undertaking for the municipality, in such a large flat swamp.

Moved by Mr. Robson, seconded by Mr. Tully, that an order for $9.60 be given on the Treasurer, to be placed in the hands of Mr. Laing for the purchase of 1600 feet of plank for Boat 25 as above recommended.

A By-law dividing Beat No. 16 was passed. Alfred Crawford, Path Master.

SPECIAL MEETING.

June 4th, 1870.

The Reeve called another Special Meeting for the same object as that named in the last.

Present, the Reeve and Councillors Birney, Robson and Tully.

Peterboro, June 1st, 1870.

JOHN W. GILMOUR Esq.

Sir,—I beg to give you notice that the Peterboro and Monaghan "Gravel Road Company" have abdoned the same road.

Yours truly,
W. Clinton.
President.

A By-law was passed dividing the road into two Beats, One to extend from the Corporation of Peterboro to the quarter line, of which Mr. Robert Eastland was appointed Path Master, the other to extend from thence to Scott's Tavern, Mr. John Fowler Path Master.—Con.

The Latest From Red River.

St. Paul, Minn, June 10—The Press publishes a letter from Pembina, dated the 30th May, which states the Indians are concentrating in the vicinity of the Lake of the Woods, for the purpose of giving the Canadians a brush, should they penetrate the swamps. Riel is throwing out a picket line that extends from Lake of the Woods to Pembina mountain. Capt. Heap, of the United States Engineer Corps, has established the boundary line, 5,963 feet north of the old post of Lieut. Long. This transfers Hudson Bay Co's fort, near Pembina, to Dakotah Territory.

The New Nation of the 27th contains but little news of importance. It publishes the Manitoba Bill, and an editorial on this subject says the passage of the bill in its present state has been a complete defeat again to Mr. Macdougall and his friends of the Opposition, and also to those who may be called his hangers-on. Major-General Lindsay, a very distinguished British officer, will, in all probability, act as Administrator to the Government here until the appointment of a Civil Governor, probably Judge Black.

The delegates are expected home from Ottawa by the next arrival of the boat from Georgetown.

Colonel-Commandant Gay had a portion of his cavalry troops out exercising on the 26th.

The New Nation says:—Near Fort Garry a course was marked out half a mile long, with targets erected thirty yards apart, and at these the cavalry fired, discharging their pieces while riding their horses at a gallop. The firing was very satisfactory, and the New Nation hints that these would be splendid troops for guerilla warfare.

May 24 was observed as a general holiday all over the settlement, shops were closed in the village, and the day spent in races and other amusements, and in the evening a very successful concert was given to a crowded house.

The New Nation quotes from the Governer General's prorogation speech, in which he says "the Manitoba Bill cannot fail to remove every trace of misapprehension which unhappily existed," and prints in capitals the words "Her Majesty's troops go forth on an errand of peace," and also the words, "The people of the Northwest may rely on the impartial protection of the British Empire." Nothing is said in the papers of Riel or his intentions.

BRAZILIAN LADIES' BLESSINGS

[Extracts from a letter of a distinguished gentleman in Rio de Janeiro]

Radway's Ready Relief, Renovating Resolvent, and Regulating Pills.

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 24, 1869.

DOCTOR RADWAY & Co.:

DEAR FRIENDS:— * * * My wife blesses these preparations, when she thinks that after three nights and days of suffering of violent pains in the stomach, brought on by overdoses of Quinine, by the use of four drops of "Ready Relief" in some water, she was able to sleep tranquil all night, and the next day she was completely re-established. I have also cured a slave from heart disease with "Ready Relief" and "Pills," and have also cured sore throat, rheumatic pains, toothache, headache, &c With the "Resolvent", have cured Erysipelas Skin diseases, &c.

It is my full impression that the "Pills" are the best purgative that can be found, not alone for the facility with which they can be taken, but also as they do not cause griping or make you feel sick.

I have a son of five years old now, who took the "Ready Relief" when 4 months old, as he suffered from some irregularity in the bladder, preventing him from making urine. The following was the treatment: 20 drops of "Relief" in a cup of water, and divide into portions of a tablespoon, which he took every ten minutes which cured him. He has ever since had solic, which I treated in the same way, and also rub the stomach with it (pure.)

Major Joaquim Vieira do Silva Pinto, proprietor, in the Cidade Leopoldina, can prove that after more than ten years suffering from Paralysis, through the medium of your remedies he obtained that which he had been deprived, and thought at the time that he would never be able to get, and that was the use of his legs.

You can fully believe that there are a great many people in this vast empire who truly confess that they owe their life to the use in time of your precious medicines. You can make use of this as you think proper.

I remain, dear friend,
Your obedient, &c.,
Signed SIAMO DE SAMPAIO LEITE

HIDE BOUND HORSES.

A horse is said to be hide-bound when his skin will not slip under the pressure of the hand, but sticks as if it was glued, which condition is always dependent on a deranged state of the stomach and digestive organs—by correcting which, and giving to them a healthy tone and condition, the disease or complaint will disappear. Experience has proved that the means best adapted to this end is "Darleys Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy." It has been used in numerous cases with complete success, generally affecting a cure in a few days. It is the best condition medicine known, and may be given with perfect safety at all times, and does not require that the horse be kept from work. Remember the name and see that the signature of Hurd & Co., is on each package. Northrop & Lyman, Newcastle, Ont., Proprietors for Canada. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

Over-Exertion, either of the body or mind produces debility and disease. The usual remedy is to take some stimulant, the effect of which is the same as giving a tired horse the whip instead of oats. The true way is to fortify the system with a permanten tonic like the Peruvian Syrup (a protoxide of iron), which gives strength and vigor to the whole system.

A Corn is a disease as much as a decayed tooth is, but skilful dentists are universally employed and respected, and surgeon chiropodists are now earning a similar claim for the respect and confidence of the community. It is needless to say that the success which Dr. Briggs has achieved in his profession as a surgeon chiropodist has been unparalleled in this city; many of our most estimable and worthy citizens, ladies as well as gentlemen, have been relieved from corns, bunions, club and inverted nails, without the slightest pain or uneasiness, and doubtless many more would, had they an adequate appreciation and knowledge of his ability. Few individuals are aware that the disease of the feet, if not fatal to one's life are certainly as annoying as can be, and the remedy is simple and sure; the corn, bunion, or inverted nail must be skilfully and carefully treated, and the pain entirely ceases. The best way to obtain this relief is to purchase a box of Briggs' Modern Curative, which you can obtain at any Druggist's or Country Merchant's throughout the country, and we will warrant you will find it the most reliable and and efficacious Remedy in the known world; we only ask you to give it a trial. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, No. 208 Broadway, N. Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

Two Follies.—First; to eat a hearty supper for the pleasure experienced during the brief time it is passing down the throat, at the expence of a whole night of disturbed sleep, and a weary waking in the morning. Second, to try all the remedies in existence for rheumatism pains in the back and sides, coughs, colds, cramps, sprains, bruises, &c., before trying the "Canadian Pain Destroyer." Sold by all Medicine dealers at 25 cts per bottle.

It is an Established Fact, that consumption can be cured; but it is far better to prevent the cruel disease from fastening itself on the system, by the timely use of a remedy like Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. This standard preparation will speedily cure a cough or cold, and even Consumption often yields to its great power.

Nothing knows equals Dr. J. Briggs' Modern Curative for Corns, Bunions, Bad Nails, Frosted Feet, Chilblains, &c. Many have tried it, and rejoice in its beneficial use. If you would enjoy a rural walk or fashionable promenade, these lovely days, treat your feet kindly, and cure your corns with Dr. J. Briggs' Modern Curative. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Bryan's Wafers, (The great public Remedy) have now been in use over twenty years, hence cannot be said that they are on trial. They have been throughly tried, and pronounced (on the authority of those whose lives and health they have preserved) to be a cure, harmless and eminently salutary preparation, and if taken in season will invariably cure colds, coughs, sore throat, and all Bronchial affections One fair trial will convince the most skeptical. Sold by all medicine dealers, at 25cts. per box

In one of Doct. Ayer's lectures he states that Chemistry confers more practical benefit on mankind, than any other science, yet from no other source could more be so easily obtained. The arts and economies which chemistry would teach, if more thoroughly and generally studied would speedily exercise a most beneficient influence. He freely confesses that he is indebted to this science for the virtues of his remedies, and advises, that the practical application of chemistry to medicine, the arts, manufactures, and agriculture be enjoined upon our colleges and schools: (Wrightsville, Pa., Star.

Is health worth having? If it is protect it,—it is a jewel as easily lost as virtue,) and in many cases as difficult to recover. In this climate, and more particularly at this season of the year, people are apt to take cold and suffer from sore throat, cough, spitting of blood and pulmonary complaints generally, which if not checked immediately lead to serious consequences. The question arises—which is the quickest and most effectual remedy? Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers have been before the public for twenty years, and have given perfect satisfaction, and invariably effect permanent cures when taken in season. Sold by all medicine dealers and country stores generally throughout the province, at 25cts per box.

Two Follies.—First, to eat a hearty supper for the pleasure experienced during the brief time it is passing down the throat, at the expense of a whole night of disturbed sleep, and a weary waking in the morning. Second, to try all the remedies in existence for rheumatism, pains in the back and sides, coughs, colds, cramps, sprains, bruises, &c., before trying the "Canadian Pain Destroyer." Sold by all Medicine dealers, at 25 cts. per bottle.

Dr. Wistar's Wild Cherry Balsam.—This Balsamic compound has become a fixture. Let all who suffer, and have in vain attempted to cure their coughs, colds, bronchial or pulmonary complaints, make use of this unequaled remedy. It can be relied upon, the mass of testimony that has been published since its introduction, being ample proof of its efficacy.

The Most Unhappy Person in the world is the Dyspeptic. Everything looks dark and gloomy; he feels "out of sorts" with himself and everybody else. Life is a burden to him. This can all be changed by taking Peruvian Syrup (a protoxide of Iron). Cases of 27 years' standing have been cured by it.

Briggs Modern Curative, the only reliable and most efficacious Remedy in the world for the speedy cure of Corns, Bunions, Club and Inverted Nails, &c. Sold by Druggists and Country Merchants generall. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, No. 208 Broadway, N. Y. and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

Save your Doctor's Bills.—When Dr Wister Balsam of Wild Cherry will cure coughs, cold bleeding at the lungs, and arrests the fell de stroyer, Consumption, it does more than most physicians can do. The use of a single bottle costing one dollar, will satisfy the incredulous that they need look no further for the rebuired aid.

IMMIGRATION.

To Farmers, Manufacturers and Others in quest of Ordinary or Skilled Labour.

The Immigration Society of Peterborough, desirous of securing Immigration to this portion of the Province, and supplying whatever demands there may be for the various descriptions of labour, hereby give notice to all who may be desirous of procuring labour—male or female—and to the various municipalities in the County, that James Edwards, Esq., Clerk of the Town of Peterborough, has been appointed the Registrar of the Society, and that as such Registrar Mr. Edwards will preserve a record of the different descriptions of labour that may be applyed for to him. From the information thus supplied the Society hopes to induce an immigration that will at least equal the demand for labour, if not assist very materially in settling much of the at present unproductive land in the County.

A registrar of lands for sale or to lease will also be preserved by the Registrar; and those giving information of lands for sale or to lease will have the advantage of having their lands placed prominently in the market, and brought under the especial notice of those who may desire to settle upon improved or partially improved lands.

Emigrants are now on their way from the Old Country, and many have already arrived. In order, therefore, that the efforts of the Society may be productive of benefit to the community, it is essential that information be at once given to Mr. Edwards, verbally or by letter, of the labour required, lands for sale or to lease, &c.

Those making application to the Registrar will be supplied with labourers at the earliest opportunity, and will be promptly notified of their arrival.

I.—The whole of the Fertile Belt, and those parts of Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Dacota through which the waggon roads pass to Fort Garry.

II.—The actual survey of the Selkirk Settlement, with all the roads, churches, &c., including the New Government Road from Fort William to Fort Garry.

III.—The Canoe Route from Fort William to Fort Garry.

IV.—A Sectional Map giving all the Railway or Steamboat Routes by which St. Cloud can be reached—(St. Cloud is the present terminus of railway travel).

Newspaper readers will find it an invaluable aid to a proper understanding of the news from that interesting region.

The Skylark.

Bird of the wilderness,
Blithesome and cumberless,
Sweet be thy matin o'er moorland and lea;
Emblem of happiness,
Blest is thy dwelling place
Oh! to abide in the desert with thee.
Wild is thy lay and loud,
Far in the downy cloud,
Love gives it energy, love gives it birth.
Where on thy dewy wing,
Where art thou journeying?
Thy lay is in heaven, thy love is on earth.

O'er fell and fountain sheen,
O'er moor and mountain green,
O'er the red streamer that heroldz the day,
Over the clouded dim
Over the rainbows rim.
Musical cherub, soar singing away.
Then when the gloaming comes,
Low is the heather blooms,
Sweet will thy welcome and bed of love be.
Emblem of happiness,
Blest is thy dwelling place,
Oh! to abide in the desert with thee.

The Cocoa-nut Tree.

The cocoa-nut is very extensively cultivated in Ceylon; indeed nearly the whole island is engirdled with this useful and productive tree, which may be justly designated the summum bonum of the native population. The cultivation of it is rapidly increasing; for it is found to be a most valuable and safe investment of property, as it requires a trivial outlay, and little further care than the planting, except protection from cattle during the first two years, thriving as it does most luxuriantly in sandy soil, and bearing fruit in the fifth year. The estimated value of the produce of a single tree is six dollars per annum. This tree frequently exceeds one hundred feet in height, and there is no part of it which is unproductive to the owner. From the flour he obtains toddy, from which arrack is distilled, and from which is also prepared a coarse-grained brown sugar, called by the natives jaggery, and an excellent description of vinegar. The green fruit yields a delicious cooling beverage to the weary traveler, and a vegetable pulp highly esteemed by tee natives. The ripened fruit is also used as food, or oil is extracted from it, which is now manufactured into candles and soap, and the refuse, or oil-cake, is used for feeding cattle, while the external husks after long soaking, are beaten into coir, which is now well known in England, and is used for stuffing mattresses, &c., and from which cordage and matting are manufactured. The leaves, when interwoven, are called cajan, and make excellent thatch and protection from the sun's rays, or when burned, are converted into an alkali; the young leaves are used by the natives for a variety of useful and ornamental purposes, particularly the latter on joyous and festive occasions, when bamboo arches are decorated with them, and brooms and mats are made from the young pine. A medicinal oil is extracted from the bark, which the native practitioners use as an efficacious remedy in cutaneous diseases; and its elastic fibres are woven into strainers for liquids, while the timber may be used in building, or converted into beautiful articles of furniture. But it would be endless to describe the various additional uses to which every portion of this valuable tree is convertible which are said to be upwards of one hundred, and have formed a theme of native poets.

How The Spaniards Make War on Women in Cuba.

From the Havana correspondence of the Diario Cubano, of this city, we translate the following:—

Among the passengers by the steamer Cienfuegos, who arrived here on Tuesday last, were many prisoners, male and female.

As an extra insult, each of them was linked to a negro, as if this were not an honor to every Cuban. Among the female prisoners were the misses Hidalgo, young ladies of from 16 to 20 years of age, who are both beautiful and elegant. They walked out of the station of Villa Nueva handcuffed, which was apparent enough in spite of their long kid gloves.

To-day Misses Hidalgo are in the House of Refuge of fallen women! Other young ladies in the same house are from Santiago De Cuba. Some who arrived from Trinidad had the small-pox, and they have been sent to the hospital.

These young lads sent a servant to buy some blue ribbon. It appears that she denounced them, and stated that her mistresses wanted the ribbons to make up into an insurgent flag, which was to be taken out to the Cuban camp by their father.

This statement sufficed to condemn the father to three years' chain gang, which sentence he is now undergoing in the streets of Trinidad. His wife is kept in prison there, and the young ladies are sent on here to be disposed of as the Captain-General may determine.

On Monday last the wife of Dr. Clarence Tinker, an American citizen, was taken from on board a steamer about to leave for Key West. She was in prison two days. On being searched, nothing but some of her husbands letters was found upon her. Nevertheless she has been prohibited from leaving Havana, and a passport is refused her, on the ground that she must await the issue of a trial for having endeavored to leave Cuba without a passport, and because it is known that her husband has left Key West with a quantity of arms.

The Prince of Schleswig-Holstein, on his return from a scientific voyage which had lasted for several years, found his library in a state of great disorder. He asked his steward to recommend one who could rearrange it, and the latter replied that the only person he was acquainted with was a young lady who acted as companion to his wife. This young person, Mlle. Carmelia Eisenblatt, is the daughter of a merchant at Calcutta, who was formerly in wealthy circumstances, but on his meeting with a reverse of fortune the children were obliged to earn their own living, and the young lady in question had even appeared on the stage. She accepted the proposals made to her, and on entering upon her duties the Prince found her so well educated and so intelligent that he was quiet charmed and at last made her an offer of marriage. The union is to take place in a few days, and the bridegroom has applied to the King of Prussia for permission to lay aside his present rank and assume the title of Count de Boer, so that the marriage shall not be a morganatic one.

There are 1,123 members of a Temperance Society in Lindsay. Each member is an agent, and works for the interest of the Society. There is no pledge or promise binding for any specified time—the only condition for withdrawal is notice to the Secretary to take the name off the roll.

The Society began to be organised in May, 1869, by the Rev. Mr. Stafford, and has done much good.—Globe

STOP AND SEE!
THE following remarks on Testimonials of most wonderful and extraordinary cures in Canada by the GREAT INDIAN REMEDY. They are stern, undeniable and incontestable facts, sufficient to convince the most skeptical that the Great Medicinal Compound yearned after for ages is now accessible in the Great Shoshonees Remedy.
For Diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Liver, Digestive Organs, Kidneys, &c., as well as Scrofula, the various Skin Diseases, Humors and all diseases arising from impurities of the blood, we boldly state that this great remedy has NEVER BEEN EQUALLED. Where was there ever such a cure as that in the person of Wilson Storms, of Brighton, Ontario, of Consumption; or that of Peter C. V. Miller, of Ernestown, Ontario, of Consumption; or that of Ambrose Wood, of Consecon, Ontario, of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint; or that of John Roxey, of Napanee, Ontario, of Rheumatism, who had actually been on crutches for years, in spite of all treatment heretofore, and is now well. Scores of such cases might be mentioned had we space.

Poetry.

There's Another Soul Gone.

BY ELLA WHEELER.

There's another grand soul
Cut down by the scythe that King Alcobo swings,
And the Send of the Bowl
A song of rejoicing and merriment sings.

Such a masterful mind;
To be drowned and dishonored by the demon "drink's" hand.
No wonder,—o wind!
That your song is a wail, as you speed o'er the land.

A king of the earth,
But his masterful intellect crowned him,—not man.
Do you know his mind's worth?
Then behold it, and show me his peer if you can.

Poet, satirist, wit,—
Three gems from the crown that his intellect made.
God formed him to sit
On the high mountain tops where but few feet have strayed.

Was there no hand to save?
Was there no one to lift up this beautiful soul
From the gloom of the grave,
And defeat the dark fiend of the maddening bowl.

O woman! O men!
Can we sit idly down and let this work go on?
Up soldiers, again!
Hear you not the war-cry "THERE'S ANOTHER SOUL GONE!"

Never Plough Wet Soil.

We have often urged the attention of the farmers to this subject as one of great importance. Any traveller in our farming districts can see large tracts of land that have been plowed when yet wet, and unfit to be worked, by observing large heavy clods of earth, which in the hot season become like heated brick, burning all the roots of the grain and other products near to it.

Besides this evil, no seed can vegetate and grow well upon soil thus cultivated, nor can that soil give back as much nutrition as if plowed when in right condition, and upon a warm and sunny day when light and warmth can penetrate into the soil, and thus greatly benefit it.

We are confident the farmers lose from ten to forty per cent of their crop by inattention to this matter. By a little care at the proper time to plow, by examining the soil will send up its voice in a halo of dew-drop clouds that will wreathe the plowman with its approval of his good sense.

As with farms, so with orchards, vineyards and gardens. No soil should be worked when wet and soggy. If the soil continues wet long, drain it well, and so on it will be in working order, but never attempt to plough, spade or work it unless it is in good condition.

Mrs. Partington on Weddings.

"I like to attend weddings," said Mrs. Partington, as she came back from one in church, hung her shawl up, and replaced the black bonnet in a long preserved bandbox; "I like to see young people come together with the promise of love—cherish and nourish each other. But what a solemn thing is matrimony—a very solemn thing, where the minister comes into chancery with a surplus, and goes through the ceremony of making them man and wife. It ought to be husband and wife, for it isn't every husband that turns out to be a man. I declare I shall never forget when Paul put the nuptial ring on my finger, and said, "with all my worldly goods I thee endow." He used to keep a dry goods store then, and I thought he was going to give me the whole there was in it. I was young and simple then, and did not know till afterwards that it meant one calico gown a year. It is a lovely sight to see young people "plighting their troth," as the song says, and coming up to consume their vows.

The Tribune's Washington special says there was a full attendance at the Cabinet Session yesterday, San Domingo and Samana Bay matters were under consideration. It is understood that the Cabinet are unanimous in urging upon the Senate the adoption of the treaty. The President announced his intention to be absent from the city for a few days next week.

The President, in his message to the Senate upon the annexation of San Domingo, refers to a Foreign power that is ready to purchase the territory at two million dollars if we fail to ratify a treaty of annexation in addition to this information is received that an English company of commercial men have made a proposition to pay all the expenses of the Government of San Domingo, and to take charge of the exports and imports, they having the right to fix the rate of duties, &c., thus getting control of the commerce of that territory. It is found that the Senate will probably amend the treaty pending, in various matters, but generally comfortable to the suggestions contained in the President's message so that treaty will have to go back to the San Domingo Government for concurrence

SYMPTOMS OF CONSUMPTION.—The general symptoms of this disease are an habitual cough morbid expectoration, pains in the breast, casual flush or feverish heat in the hands, feet, and cheeks, change of voice thin fingers, and nose, bent or crooked nails, falling of the hair &c. This disease has been divided into three four, and even five stages by medical writers, but, for practical purposes, three stages will be found best adapted to the course of the disease. To entirely cure this cough, eradicate all the early symptoms of this fatal malady Dr. J. Briggs' Renovator, the Great Throat and Lung Healer, is thoroughly adequate and sure. It is not unpleasant to the palate, and its properties are all of a healing and purifying nature. After once having used it, no person would hesitate to acknowledge its superior efficacy in shaying the hand of that fell destroyer, Consumption. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway, N. Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

Who would not be beautiful? Who would not add to their beauty? What gives that marble purity and distinguo appearance we observe upon the stage, and in the city belle? It is no longer a secret. They use Hagans Magnolia Balm. Its continued use removes tan, freckles, pimples and roughness, from the face and hands, and leaves the complexion smooth transparent, blooming and ravishing. Unlike many cosmetics, it contains no material injurious to the skin. Any Druggists will order it for you, if not on hand, at 50 cts. per bottle.

The efficacy of Bryan's Pulmodic wafers in curing Coughs, Colds, and all Bronchial affections, and cheering the afflicted, has passed into a proverb. In the United States, where these marvellous Wafers are known, they bear down all opposition and eclipse all rivalry; the demand for them has steadily increased for the last twenty years, until now the sales average over one hundred thousand boxes a year. Eminent members of the medical profession without number admit that they know of no preparation such beneficial results as these wafers. When taken in season they effect a permanent cure. Sold by every druggist and most of the respectable stores throughout the Province, at 25 cents per box.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly miraculous. Inveterate cases of scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, it is unseen and quick tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed life from throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or all or of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tubors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional need of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla in advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous system.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for restoring the system to healthy action after any mineral poison. But long contained use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Tumors, Cancers or White Swellings, Ulcerations, and Tumefie Diseases, are commonly much relieved and ultimately cured by its use. Female Complaints are also greatly benefited by these invigorating and purifying effects. Many cases of Barrenness are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by a scrofulous state of the system, yield speedily to it, as also Liver Complaints, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising from the same cause. In the resulting poisons in the blood, THIS SARSAPARILLA is a great remedy, purifying and vivifying the system. Pimples, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, or any of the effects of Impurities of the blood, will find in it a powerful antidote. Those who are troubled with Nervous Headache, Nervous Debility, or any of the effects of Dyspepsia, will find in it a reliable remedy. Those who are troubled with Nervous Headache, Nervous Debility, or any of the effects of Dyspepsia, will find in it a reliable remedy.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to the severe forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a preparation against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,
For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it is spotless injurious to the patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed. Unacclimated persons, either visiting or residing in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. AYER & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all round the world.

SUCCESS begets envy. Hence the efforts of certain venders of Liniment to decry Jacobs' RHEUMATIC LIQUID. Wherever introduced, it drives all others from the market. HEALTH! BEAUTY!!
Strong, Pure and Rich Blood — Increase of Flesh and Weight — Clear Skin and Beautiful Complexion, Secured to ALL.
RADWAY'S
SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT
has made the most astonishing cures. So quick, so rapid are the changes the body undergoes under the influence of this truly WONDERFUL MEDICINE, that Every Day an Increase in Flesh and Weight is Seen and Felt.
Scrofulous, Consumption, Syphilitic, uncured and badly treated Venereal, in its many forms, Glandular disease, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth, Tumors, Boils in the Glands, and other parts of the system, Sore Eyes, Strumous Discharges from the Ears, Eruptive Diseases of the Eyes, Nose, Mouth, and the worst forms of Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Fever Sores, Scald Head, Ring Worms, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Acne, Black Spots, Worms in the Flesh, Tumors, Cancers in the Womb, and all Weakening and Painful Discharges, Night Sweats, Loss of Sperm and all wastes of the Life principles are within the curative range of Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent, and a few days' use will prove to any person using it for either of these forms of disease, its potent power to cure them.
Not only does the Sarsaparillian Resolvent excel all known remedial agents, in the cure of Chronic, Scrofulous, Constitutional Skin and Syphiloid diseases, but it is the only positive remedy for Kidney, Bladder, Urinary and Womb diseases, Gravel, Diabetes, Dropsy, Stoppage of Water, Incontinence of Urine, Bright's disease, Albuminuria, and in all cases where there are Brick dust deposits, or the water is thick, cloudy, mixed with substances like the white of an egg, or threads like white silk, or there is a morbid dark, bilious appearance, and white bone dust deposits, and where there is a pricking, burning sensation when passing water, and pain in the Small of the Back, and along the Loins. In all these conditions Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent, aided by the application of Radway's Ready Relief to the Spine and Small of the Back, and the Bowels regulated with one or two of Radway's Regulating Pills per day, will soon make a complete cure. In a few days, the patient will be enabled to hold and discharge his water naturally without pain, and the Urine will be restored to its natural clear, and amber or sherry color.
THE WASTES OF THE BODY
are supplied with new, healthy and vigorous blood, that furnishes sound structure. Hence all suffering from WEAKENING DISCHARGES, either MALE or FEMALE, of the Womb, Uterus, or other organs, whether Leucorrhea, Sperm, or Eruptive discharges of every kind, or from violence of "Self-abuse," from the Genital Glands, or Venereal discharges, or Ulcers, or sores, through the separative process of Radway's Sarsaparillian, are arrested, and the ruptured organs healed.
THE TRUE THEORY OF CURE.
Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent supplies the system through the blood, urine, sweat, and structure-making constituents, with Tissue-making, Flesh-making, Heat or Force, and Fat-making elements. All of its constituents are repairing, purifying, and strengthening. It Renews, Heals, Restores, and draws out of the body the products of Decay and Corruption. CONSUMPTION, WHITE SWELLING, DROPSY, SYPHILIS, CANCERS, TUMORS, &c., are all of a scrofulous diathesis, and as such are within the curative range of the Sarsaparillian Resolvent!
That Scrofula, by whatever name designated, is the result of deposits from the blood, hardened or caused by Chronic inflammation. That these deposits take place when the blood is poor, weak, watery, and incapable of holding in solution its proper constituents, or from the presence of some virus or poison in the blood, as Mercury, Calomel, Corrosive Sublimate, which is the Corrosive Chlorides of Mercury, or other agents given in medicines and which enter largely in the common advertised Sarsaparillas, NOT ASSORBED OR CHANGED FROM THEIR NATURAL CONDITION.
2. That unless the repairs or nutriments are greater than the wastes, that decomposition and decay will supervene, and the powers of life become exhausted.
3. That the dying body cannot be sustained on any treatment of medication that exhausts the system, or fails to nourish the blood, the only medium through which the vital forces are preserved, and on which the growth of the body depends.
4. That Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent supplies a want never before possessed or known to exist in medicine; that this new tonic principle in Chemical science, which has been brought to such a perfect system of cure, is exhibited as follows:
1. Its great power in assimilating the food in its first stage of distillation in the process of digestion, as chyme and chyle with the nourishing elements of blood, separating from these liquids refuse and inert qualities before they are taken up by the lacteals and are formed into blood. Here we see that by its wonderful power it charges the system with the very essence or principle that forms the vital powers of the body, and its chemical action on the blood in its primitive and complete condition, separates every atom of refuse material or element, out of which the virus of disease is formed.
2. That the blood thus prepared, and supplied with these nourishing properties, becomes strong, rich and healthy and holds in solution its proper constituents, through the Sarsaparillian Resolvent, and repairs the wastes of the body with sound and healthy structures. Such is the wonderful power the Sarsaparillian Resolvent exerts on the blood and juices of the system, that no virulent humors or poisons will exist by which deposits are made.
3. The rapidity which the Sarsaparillian enters the circulation, and communicates its curative powers through the Blood, Sweat, Urine, and other fluids, secures the constituent secretion of each respective organ, establishing functional harmony throughout the system; through its action and power over the Secretions, the Liver secretes its natural or proper allotment of bile; the Skin sweat; the Kidneys urea; and the Lungs carbon; so that this wonderful medicine not only establishes health in the sick body, but preserves the system in health.
As we have shown the principle on which disease is formed, as well as the only sensible theory of cure, we claim that the range of cure of the Sarsaparillian Resolvent is unlimited, and that every disease that is of a Chronic, Scrofulous or Organic Diathesis, is properly within its special range.
in this Medicine consists in the selection of ingredients containing curative and nourishing properties that supply the blood and general system with such constituents which, in a condition of disease and depravity, it is deficient of, together with the combination of the several ingredients that form the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT.
If the constituent of Oxygen was exhausted from the atmospheric air, life would become extinct. So, when the blood becomes exhausted of its vital constituents, it deposits its tubercles and diseased humors in the body, and the elements of decay and decomposition supervene. Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent is

To MESSRS. CHAMBERLAIN & SILLS, Conway P.O County of Lennox, Ontario, Canada.
KADOC, County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th., 1869.
This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ancles, which gradually during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on up to my hips, and I became so weak that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two years, while this weakness was coming on me, and afterwards, I sought medical advice, employing, at different times, three doctors, and medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, but of no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoshoness Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had begun to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshoness Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was not a private one, but known to all my neighbors and friends; and to any one afflicted as I was, I have only to say try the Shoshoness Remedy; I believe it will cure you,
MARY ANN DOUGHTY.

I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshoness Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.

Isle of Man.

Lines to the Isle of Man, and its Inhabitants, by JOHN KINDRED, Otonabee.

Praying God's blessing to rest, on the land of his birth,
And upon his brethren still living on earth.

Beloved Isle, my native home
Why did I ever from thee roam?
What in my heart Isle, against thee,
That made me cross the raging sea.
Against thee nothing had I ever,
To cause you and me to sever,
In my heart I love thee still,
Beloved Isle, and ever will.
Separation seems my destined fate,
For nothing in thee do I hate;
Tears down my cheek's hath gushed free
For friends I left behind in thee.
Who now are dead, since breathed their last,
Who now the shores of time have passed;
Friends whom on earth no more I'll see,
Parents that dearly loved me.
They are dead, while I still live on,
Here on earth, they are in Heaven;
In Glory, where I hope to be
With them, through all eternity.
In answer to their earnest prayer,
I hope at last with them to share
With the redeem'd with joy to see
My Saviour, Lord, who died for me.
Island, surrounded by the sea,
Once more on thee I long to be;
In me, hope often heaves a sigh
To see thee yet before I die.
No change would I expect to see
On natural scenery on thee;
But among old folks that I knew,
In health and life, there would be few.
And schoolmates, now are old and grey,
With whom I used to run and play,
Some of them in the grave do lie,
And gone to their reward on High.
Not one face now there would I know,
Were I back to thy shores to go;
May all His blessings on thee rest,
Who the believing soul's bath blest.
Within thy sea-girt island be,
Where the gospel's preached free,
May He, who bade the sea be still,
Who can break down man's stubborn will,
May He, within thy mid'st be known,
Who Heaven and Earth claims for His own.
Again I may ne'er tread thy sod,
And view in thee the works of God;
Again thy sea-lash'd shore not see,
But still will I remember thee.
In spirit, Island friends, we may
At throne of grace be when we pray,
God's grace rest on you every one,
Wisheth a son of Isle of Man.
Otonabee, April, 1870. A. G.

JEAN.

"Ah how pretty she is!" he said. "Was there ever such a pretty lass, d'ye think, Jean?"

"Perhaps not," said Jean; and she took her milking pails, and followed Hulda going on before with a light step and a gay song toward the meadow where the cows browsed. But when she was quite out of hearing of Ned Welton, sitting perched upon the stile, she muttered to herself, "Pretty! pretty! pretty! Ah, they ring the changes upon that, these men! as the old bell-ringer that knew but his one tune used to, down in the church tower. Pretty! pretty! pretty! It's never 'good;' it's never 'honest;' it's never 'true.' It's always 'pretty.'" Then she stopped and looked up, and said, with a quiver of passionate grief in her voice: "Oh, I'd give the world—I'd give half the shortest life that I could have—I'd give half an hour, if that was all I had to live, just to hear Ned Welton call me pretty! What a fool I am! what a fool I am! what a fool I am!" and she went on with her pails toward the cows—Brown Bess and Lily White and Pretty Polly.

Certainly she was not pretty; and what there was in her face the man on the stile would have been the last to see. Had she been a queen, many would have seen something strangely fair and regular in her face. Had she been only a rich gentleman's daughter, some one might have dreamed of those deep eyes and that pure brow of hers! but red and white, and fat and dimples were the recognized beauties there, as indeed they are all over the world, to such folk as her lot was cast among, and she was spoken of as "plain." Two years before she had taken into her foolish head to like Ned Welton very much! and he, the farmer's son, had thought well enough of the dainty-maid to say some very pleasant things to her. She had a sweet dream, but Hulda Britton's coming broke it. Her beauty was very bright and rare, and Ned forgot the nice girl he had been so fond of chatting with, for the pretty one who smiled and glanced at him.

She was not so good as Jean! she had not half her earnestness and constancy; but the face was all to Ned. So Hulda Britton wore a little plain gold ring that he had given her, and had promised to be his wife in mid-summer; and Jean knew it, and outwardly gave no sign that she suffered—only now and then, as at this moment when Ned bade her notice Hulda's beauty—as at the moment when she paused, meadow midst, and said to herself that she would give half of her life, were it but an hour, to hear Ned Wilson call her pretty.

They lived upon the coast of Lincolnshire, and it was years ago. None of them knew how to write more than their names. The farmer's deepest lore was the market price of grain. Outside of them, the great world of letters—great, at that day, as perhaps it never has been at any other time—rolled on without giving them any sign of its existence. And none of them had ever read a novel or a poem, or seen a play. But they acted out the drama just as well, and Ned loved Hulda and cared nothing for Jean loved Ned and hated Hulda. And Hulda knew the whole, and triumphed over Jean, and cared a little for Ned because of his broad shoulders and bronze curls, but not over-much; and many a novelist would have given much to have had the little plot of their daily lives, to touch up and make pretty with his pen.

The girls slept together in an upper room of the house, and on her wedding eve Hulda spread out gown and shoes and cheap white veil, and dancing about them, boasted that when the morrow's sun set she should be mistress of the house, and Jean her servant. And Jean, thinking of the old grandmother who had begged her not to lose so good a place, said nothing, but stood silent, white-faced and wan, and felt a bitter hate rising in her heart. Ned was away at the town, and would not be back until next morning, the morning of his wedding. The old folks were asleep below. How easy it would be, in the dead of night, to do this beautiful boasting creature some harm—to mar her beauty, or even to end her life.

The thoughts grew so, and were so horrible, that she could not be sure of herself. Hulda, watching her, saw only a deadly whiteness creep over her lips, and with the first touch of pity in her heart, folded her veil away, and said, unwisely enough, but meaning it kindly:

"No doubt, the next wedding will be yours, Jean."

Then Jean, without a look, turned from her and left the room. She sought to be safe from herself, for fiendish thoughts possessed her; and a longing for solitude and quiet, she climbed a ladder that led to the tiled roof, and seeking the shelter of the great chimney, sat down in its shadow and looked up at the sky. It was calm and full of stars. Its peacefulness had an instant influence on her. Repentant tears began to flow. She prayed as simple children pray: "Please make me good!" And all the hate for Hulda left her heart, and her love for Ned—her yearning, aching love for him—softened into a sort of tender memory. She was still sad. A painful humility crushed her heart; a longing for love oppressed her; but when she had prayed for herself, when she had striven with herself, the evil spirit had departed. Soon, with her white, well developed milk-maid's arm under her head, she slept upon the mossy roof, under the canopy of the stars.

At last she began to dream. They were going to church—Hulda and Ned—and she heard the wedding bells; but going in at the door she saw, instead of gayly dressed guests, mourners all in black and a coffin before the altar, and gave a scream and wakened. Bells were ringing, but not wedding bells—the bells that tolled it there were any need of the men of the place—it fire broke out, or robbers were heard of, or there were any rioting in the town. What could it mean?

Jean listened. A strange sobbing, surging sound fell upon her ears. Lights gleamed in all the houses of the town. The truth flashed upon her. Years before, her old grandmother had told her how the old sea wall had been washed away, and a tide had risen and swept in upon them on that wild coast of Lincolnshire, carrying with it, as it went out, kine and flocks and little dwellings, and even land itself; and how there was mourning throughout the land for those that it had done to death—men and women and children, young and old—so that many a household long remembered it with woe. This had happened again. The sea wall was down, the floods were sweeping in. The bells were ringing as they had rung before in the ears of those who lay in their graves—ringing to tell the same tale to those who were then unborn.

The house in which she dwelt was old, and near the sea; far from all human aid too; and its occupants two very old people and two girls. The only one who could aid them was far away. But for this Jean could have thanked heaven, for he was safe, and the waters were rising even now above the windows of the lower rooms. She could see the starlight reflected in it in gleams and sparkles, and she knew that the old people must be drowned in their beds if she did not waken them. She went down into the room where they slept, and cried out, as she shook them, "The sea has risen again! The tide has risen again! Hear the bells!"

Then she led them, trembling and weeping in their helpless old-age, to the roof, and found Hulda already crouched there. She was crying also, and she turned to Jean and clutched her arm.

"Will the water rise so far?" she asked. "Will I be drowned? I who was to be married to-morrow? Oh, it can't be, Jean.

"Others will go with you, if your are," said Jean. "There are four of us."

"But no other, besides I would have been so happy and proud to-morrow," said Hulda, and bemoaned herself. The old people shook and prayed, and cried soft'y.

Jean, calm and silent, kept watch. The lights floating about told that the boats were out. Help might come even yet, but the water was creeping up. It filled the house. It lapped the very eaves. Still it rose, higher and higher. Those upon the roof climbed to the very apex of its slope, and clung there, but the water reached their feet, and Hulda was quite mad with terror, when a light glimered close before them, and a voice cried out:

"Good folks, there's room for some here. How many of you are there?"

"Four," said Jean.

"We've room for three," said a voice. "Is it Welron's folk?"

"Yes," said Jean.

Then a stout fellow strode over the roof and carried away the old woman, and then the old man, and came back.

"We'll return for the other as soon as we can," said he; "keep courage;" and seized Jean's arm. "In with you," he cried. "There's little time to spare."

And Hulda gave a scream, and cried, "Don't leave me! don't leave me!"

Then Jean, in whose heart jealousy had lighted the fires of hell but an hour or so before, felt that the angels had quenched it with the waters of love. She wrenched her strong, white arm from the grasp of the man who held it.

"Leave me, and take her," she said. "I'm not afraid. I'm able to bear more. And she is to be Ned Welton's wife to-morrow. Save her for his sake."

She commanded; she did not implore, or to speak from duty. The man who listened hardly thought of her sacrifice. He obeyed. Hulda was in the boat.

"Keep courage until we come back," he shouted, and rowed away.

Jean clung to the chimney side, and kept her feet firm on the roof; but they were ank'e deep now.

The water was rising still. She knew that there was little hope, but she was very happy.

"Oh, dear old fellow—dear, dear Ned," she said aloud, for there were none to hear her, "there'll be no blight, for you know you'll have your love safe and sound to-morrow. What's plain Jean to any one? Who'll miss her but a poor old woman who will follow her soon? But she, Hulda, is half your life, Ned. Oh, God be thanked that I can give myself for Hulda, for your sake!"

And in the starlight her face shone, calm and sweet and happy, with more than martyr's happiness, as the water arose toward it.

And at last her feet lost their hold, and her strength was gone. She was lifted and whirled away; the long brown hair, unloosened, swept far behind her; the marble face gleamed through rings of water that the starlight made a halo of. A voice sobbing through it said: "Ned! Ned! darling Ned, good-bye!" and there was nothing to be seen but the flood still rising, and the sky spread out above it.

On the morrow Jean Abbot's body was found lying close to the old church, whence by that time the water had retreated. And Ned and Hulda, among others, came to see it. Hulda wept. Ned stood quiet, but with a strange regret in his blue eyes. The story of her sacrifice had thrilled his heart. He looked down at her face, on which the beauty of her beautiful love and unselfishness had rested in her dying moments, leaving an angelic smile upon the marble lips, and said in a dreamy way.

"Hulda, she was pretty. I never knew Jean Abbot was pretty before."

And then he kissed her.

Extraordinary Conduct of a British Captain.

The British ship William Wilson, Captain Melburn, was seized last Saturday by order of Judge Hoffman, of the United States District Court, and placed in the care of a United States Deputy Marshal. A sailor had brought suit against the vessel for wages alleged to be due him, and on this the seizure was made. Between 4 and 5 o'clock on Saturday evening, Mr. A. C. Taylor, United States Deputy Marshal, armed with the order of the Court, and accompanied by Mr. Stephen S. Balk, also a Deputy Marshal, took a boat and went ont to the William Wilson, which was lying in the stream. On going alongside they asked for a line, stating that they were United States Marshals, which was refused by the mate. The officers finally clambered on the vessel and read their warrant, and told the mate that by virtue of the order of the Court they seized the ship in the name of the United States. Mr. Balk was left in charge, and Mr. Taylor returned to the city to make his report of the seizure.

Between 12 and 1 o'clock a.m on Sunday morning, Capt. Milburn came alongside in a Whitehall boat, accompanied by his wife and children. When he came aboard Mr. Balk read him the warrant, and called his attention to the face that he was a United States Marshal, and had possession of the ship. The Captain replied that he did not care for the warrant, and that he would take the ship to sea in defiance of it. He said he knew he was violating the law, but he cared nothing for our laws, and for the Marshal to help himself if he could. Mr. Balk paid no attention to these threats, as the ship was at anchor, and no effort was made to weigh anchor, and set sail.

The steam-tug Lookout approached the vessel between 4 and 5 o'clock a.m. Mr. Balk attempted to make signal to those on the tug, when he was set upon by the crew and violently thrown upon the deck. He then went upon the topgallant forecastle and called out to those on the tug, and waved his handkerchief to attract their attention. The crew were then weiging anchor, and the Marshal determined to call the tug-boat to his aid. The mate, accompanied by several of the crew, again assaulted Mr. Balk, and attempted to take the handkerchief from him. He held to it, and it was torn in two. He waved the fragments retained and called loudly for help. The mate now came up and dealt him a powerful blow in the face, and the men kicked and beat him in a brutal manner, blackening one of his eyes and kicking one of his double teeth completely out of his jaw. He was also severely bruised on the body and arms. The ruffians now seized the Marshal and threw him to the deck, a distance of about seven feet, when he was held down by the men until the anchor was weighed, and the ship was being towed out to sea.

Marshal Blake says there was a special officer on board, but as soon as the difficulty occurred, he made himself scarce. The crew of the Whitehall boat, which brought the Captain and his family on board, asked the Captain for their pay, as they wanted to go ashore. He told them to wait, as he had business for them. This was before the tug came up.

Marshal Blake was taken out nearly to the Farallones, and then placed in the Whitehall boat and ordered to be taken to the tug. As soon as he set foot on lookout a line was attached and the Whitehall boat fell back to the stern in tow. He stated his case to the captain of the lookout, and asked him if he did not hear his calls and see his signals. The captain said he did not, but that he saw the trouble on board. He thought nothing of this, as such difficulties frequently occur between the officers and crews while weighing anchor. The tug arrived at the city front about 10½ o'clock on Sunday morning, and Mr. Blake asked that he be allowed to communicate with the men in the Whitehall boat, as he was confident they were in the plot. This request was not granted, and when opposite North Point the Whitehall boat cut loose and went ashore.

As soon as he landed, Marshall Blake reported to his superior officer, and then went to his home. He has been confined to his room ever since from the effects of the injuries received. The above facts were given us by Mr. Blake himself, and he still bears the marks of the kicks and blows received in the encounter.

Last evening the revenue-cutter Lincoln slipped out of the harbour very slyly, and it is supposed that she has gone in pursuit of the William Wilson.

A Drunken Man sent up in a Baloon.

The baloon ascension last evening caused a large crowd of people to assemble in the vicinity of the open lot adjoining the Baptist Church. It was to have transpired at half-past 1 o'clock in the afternoon, but, owing to the high wind, was deferred. One of the poles that sustained the baloon broke before the performance began, and a new pole had to be substituted. This delayed the ascension until sundown. A furnace to convey hot air to the baloon had been built, and a great wood fire was roaring underneath. The baloon began to fill, and soon rounded itself into an immense oval.

A dish of alcohol was placed underneath and the smoke burned out, and everything was ready to "let go." The baloon was a patched up affair of hemp linen, and the basket, little larger than a market hand-basket, was fastened to it by small ropes. When everything was at last in readiness, a bustling tall, thin man, with a blonde moustache, who was the proprietor of the ballon, as we learned, and who was supervising the affair walked to the lot and said, "Come on, Bill," and a wretched blear-eyed, drunken man came staggering up, his hair and garments dripping with the water that had been dashed upon him to wake him from his drunken torpor, and he mechanically came forward, as one whose ideas were greatly confused, and, staggering up to the basket, put one foot in it. The word was given, the ropes were loosened, the poles dropped, and the baloon shot into the air, and the drunken man, standing up and clinging to the ropes, waved his handkerchief to the lessening world below.

As it was a hot-air baloon of small dimensions, it took its own course, and came down anywhere as soon as the hot-air that upheld it was cool and exhausted. Everybody expected him to drop into the river, but it sailed over and beyond it, and when it reached the Davenport Bluff it began to descend quite fast, and just grazed the roof of Otto King's house. When over Mr. Clausson's premises, Western avenue and Seventh street, near Mr. King's, the baloonist, who was hanging to the netting, let go, and fell a distance of 30 feet; in his fall breaking through the roof of Mr. E. Clausson's summer-house, and very badly injuring himself. No bones were broken, but he was hurt internally, and may possibly die of the injuries received.

Harper's Bazaar has some reputation in the fashionable world, and is free from the charge of prudery. Yet this fashionable authority thus denounces the display of dress that is so common in our houses of worship: "The best people of every Christian country but America, avoid all personal display when engaged in worship and prayer. Our churches, on the contrary, are made places for the exhibition of fine apparel and other costly and flattering compliances with fashion by those who boast of superior wealth and manners. We shall leave our gewgawed devotees to reconcile humiliation in worship

W. Fairweather, & Co., advertize cheap sales of new and fashionable goods. Commencing to-day.

The Canada Farmer has been received. This one of the best agricultural papers, and should be in every farmers' family.

W. G. Thompson, & Co., commence on Saturday to clear out their remaining stock of summer dress goods, prints and parasols, at and under cost.

All military stores are being removed from Kingston. The garrison was to be formally closed on the 22nd inst, yesterday. One officer and 12 men only are to remain in care of the place.

The Press Excursion will take place on the 19th and following days of July. The meeting will be at Brantford, whence they will proceed to Buffalo, Cleveland, Port Stanley, London Ont. &c.

MR. CLUXTON'S SALE.—We invite attention to the cheap sale of goods at Mr. Cluxton's. Mr. Cluxton is retiring from business, and is now selling off his large stock by private sale, at the first cost of the goods.

Wheat rose to $1.20 per bushel during this week, yesterday there was a downward tendency. Good White wheat brings $1.30 to $1.35 in Toronto. There is not much fear of any decline in the grain market. The dry season forebodes short crops.

EXCURSION AND REGATTA ON DOMINION DAY.—The Steamer Enterprise will make an Excursion to Campbelltown, and return on Dominion Day, and we understand that there will be a regatta at the place. There will be music provided for the occasion. Mr. Jayes will furnish refreshments.

LOVELL'S DOMINION DIRECTORY.—Messrs. Lovell and Antrobus are at present canvassing this County, for the above directory, and we have no doubt that they will be kindly received, and every necessary information courteously given them.

John A. Macdonald's health is improving. It is confidently believed that he will be able to attend to his business soon. If he values his health, and an extension of his earthly probation, he should retire from politics and old habits, at once.

PROMENADE CONCERT.—The promenade concert to come off in the drill shed, is postponed to Tuesday evening next on account of Cool Burges Troupe performing in the Music Hall on Friday evening. The citizens of Peterboro will be glad to learn that Mr. Rackett, our popular Band Master, is to remain with us, and we have no doubt but that a call to supply funds for the purpose will be warmly responded to.

The Otonabee Bridge was discovered on fire yesterday, Mrs. Reynolds, who saw it, threw several pails of water on it, and left it supposing it extinguished. The fire however had got into the trasselwork and revived unseen, untill men from Mr. Mowry's foundry perceiving it, came and cut away part of the boarding, and put it entirely out. It caught from a burning match thrown away carlessly by some one after lighting his pipe. Had the fire got headway, this smoke would have been a costly one to the county.

On Thursday last, Mr. George Hughes, Son of the late Richard Hughes, was coming from New York, accompanied by his mother, and just as they was nearing Cobourg Mr. Hughes jumped over board. He refused to take hold of a rope to save himself, and before he could be reached by by other means he sank to rise no more. Mental ailments induced by ill health for sometime, caused him to do what he did. Mrs. Hughes has the deep sympathy of all who know her.

Hearth & Home for this week (dated June 25th) contains the first of a series of sketches entitled Jethro Throop's Night Thoughts, by John Thomas, who is no other than PETROLEUM V. NASBY. The great humorist will take an honest country boy to the city, conduct him through the usual experience, and restore him to his home a sadder and wiser boy, satisfied that the peaceful, honest, and temperate life of the farmer is the best and safest life that can be lived. This is a lesson greatly needed at this time, and NASBY is the man to teach it.

EAST RIDING AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—In consequence of the Directors of the Warsaw and Douro Agricultural Society having decided not to amalgamate with the East Riding Agricultural Society, for the purpose of holding the Show Fair at Warsaw this present year, the Directors of the East Riding Agricultural Society met at Westwood on Tuesday, the 14th inst., and agreed to hold the Society's next annual Exhibition at Norwood, on Monday and Tuesday, the 10th and 11th days of October next.

FIRE COMPANY.—A special meeting of Protection Fire Company No. 1 of Peterborough, will be held in the Firemen's Hall, on Monday evening next, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of making final arrangements for the excursion to Lindsay July 1st to assist in celebrating Dominion Day. The Company will assemble at 5 a. m. sharp, and march to the Depot, headed by the 57th Battalion Band. Every member of the Company is requested to be present at the meeting, when full information will be given. The Fire Bell will be rung at 4 a. m. July 1st.

Treated Meanly.

At the Wesleyan Methodist Conference lately held, Dr. Ryerson expressed himself in a series of very strong resolutions, condemnatory of the action of the Government in not permitting a minister of the methodist denomination, to accompany the Expedition to Red River, while the Catholic church and the Episcopal church are both represented. The insult is still the greater, when we consider that the denomination proposed paying their own Chaplain, whereas the other two are paid by the government.

It is also well known that a large number of the volunteers are either members of the Methodist Church, or adherents, and it is also well known that the body is very influential both in regard to wealth and numbers.

No man in Canada did more than Dr. Ryerson to continue the rule of the very men whom he now condemns. During the last election contest, his pamphlet in the interest of the coalition and combination had its effect in inducing, at least a few, to vote for the present government. The love of casual advantages may have actuated the Dr. and the desire to be on friendly terms with the powers that be for the sake of Victoria College induced others who had been previously found voting on the side of reform.

They have now got their reward. The Dr. may have been more fortunate, but with this we have now nothing to do.

We cannot help thinking that Sir George Cartier has poorly repaid Dr. Ryerson and his co-religionists for their support, and when we consider that He would have been in the cold shades of opposition but for those votes, it must be more galling to those who then recorded them in favor of men who now treat them with perfect indifference.

The disrespectful treatment of the methodist body deserves the censure of the Conference. As the Dr. says, nine tenths of the Red River Expedition are members or adherents of the Wesleyan church. The Wesleyan people too are loyal to the core, their ministers also are loyal, as much as can reasonably be said of some who have their chaplains, yet the one tenth have two chaplains, while the nine tenths are not permitted to enjoy the teaching of their own church. The bed however is of their own making, and in it they must lie.

Will the members of the Church eat the leek and continue to support those men who have treated them so? Has Dr. Ryerson come to his right mind, and does he now see what the wages of political sins are! and will he as strenously strive to remove Cartier & Co. from offices they do not know how to fill respectfully, as he did to induce his people to retain them, although for 14 years they had caused a blight upon everything they touched!!

What have they gained by supporting those men! simply nothing but contempt at the hands of Cartier, and not a cent for their College.

Their votes too returned Mr. J. Carnegie. What has he done for them! where is the vote he has recorded in favour of their College? did he not promise, and reiterate those false promises that he would be a friend to their College! but Cartier like, he cast them off, and voted with John Sandfield. We trust the following words of the Dr. will be remembered at the next election.

"He hoped the Methodist community would rise as one man in defence of those rights and liberties, and not suffer the supremacy of the Roman Catholic religion in the new territory of Manitobah. He spoke not as a politician but as a patriot. He had little faith in the partisanship of political strife, but great faith in the eternal principal of right and justice, and in the integrity, intelligence and justice and loyalty of the people of Upper Canada. He had great respect for British institutions, but none for the pretensions of upstart politicans and their bastard imitations of imperial despotism. (Prolonged applause.)

T. Coughlan Esq.

At a meeting of the inhabitants of Hastings, held at the Royal Hotel on the evening of the 13th instant,—Jas. S. Fowlds, Esq., Reeve of Percy, in the Chair—the following preamble and resolutions were moved by Mr. Blacklock, seconded by Mr. Whitehead, and carried unanimously:—

Whereas, there appeared in the Toronto Leader, Telegraph and Globe of the 10th inst., a Telegram, to the effect that certain Fenian papers were found on the body of the late Thomas Rahall, killed by lightning recently near Westwood, said papers implicating amongst others Timothy Coughlin, Esq., Reeve of Asphodel, and Whereas the Coroner of the District distinctly states that no Fenian papers were found on the body of the said Thomas Rahall, and that Mr. Coughlin's name did not appear on any kind of document whatever in the possession of deceased at the time of the accident—and further, that this meeting has no reason to believe that said Rahall had any Fenian proclivities.

Therefore be it resolved,—That many of us here having known Mr. Timothy Coughlin for a number of years, can bear good testimony to his unswerving loyalty, and unhesitatingly say that the foul slanders published concerning him by the Toronto papers of the 10th inst., are false and untrue in every particular, and have no foundation in fact.

Moved by Dr. Stevenson of Norwood, Coroner of the District, seconded by Mr. H. M. Fowlds, and Carried,

That the Secretary send copies of these resolutions to the Toronto Globe, Leader and Telegraph, to the Peterborough Review and Examiner, and to the Belleville Intelligencer.

Lecture.

James Stratton, Esq., County Superintendent, delivered a Lecture at the new Brick School House, No. 4, S. S. Smith, on the evening of Friday, the 10th inst., at 7½ o'clock. Subject—"Education, and the duties of Trustees, Parents and Teachers." It occupied over an hour in delivery and contained much valuable information, which, it is hoped, will have a good effect. The discrimination of such practical information cannot but produce fruit in due season.

Mr. John Bell proposed, and Mr. Hugh Davidson seconded, a vote of thanks to Mr. Stratton, for his instructive lecture.

The Rev. Mr. McDonald, of Peterboro, has very kindly consented to give a Lecture on next FRIDAY evening, and Principal Dixon on the Friday following.

A rare opportunity is now presented of hearing learned gentlemen of acknowledged ability, which we feel certain will be taken advantage of by large audiences.—Admittance free.—COM.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MR. EDITOR,

I beg of you to allow me space enough in your valuable columns to expose a nuisance of the most disagreeable and disgusting nature. I refer to the existence of a slaughter house and butcher's shop, in the very heart of the Town, on the West side of George Street. Fortunately for his own comfort, our worthy Health Inspector does not reside in the neighbourhood of this nuisance, but I hope this will be sufficient to draw his attention to the fact that such a thing exists.

I have now stood it some time, and I hope this will be sufficient warning to the parties concerned, and that they will not in future permit starving sheep and cattle, to make night hideous with their unearthly yells.

I was at first inclined to treat the matter as a joke, but it has continued so long, and my rest, and that of my family has been so much disturbed by it lately, that it is now past endurance.

Surely this butcher shop is not kept open on account of its convenience to any one, as it is so near the market, where there is room enough for all. Let him go there, and his friends, if he has any, will soon find him out.

I remain, &c.
HYDRARGYUM.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR:—Last winter a number of persons in Peterboro, subscribed a little towards sending me on a prospecting expedition, but as I did not get enough to enable me to explore all summer, I thought it best to select those months in which the flies are the leats troublesome, therefore I do not intend to start until about the first of July. No money is collected as yet, as I did not wish to receive any until I knew whether I could get enough, except what an old Australian whom I know in the mines, and an individual sent me by mail.

No doubt some will say, it is useless sending out a prospecting party, when the Government of the Dominion pays nearly $40,000 a year to a Geological Staff, to search for minerals. I have nothing to say against Geologists, it is all right and proper to have a Geogolical survey of the Country, but they are not miners, and know nothing about it, neither have I ever heard of any mines being discovered by them.

Gold was first discovered in Australia, by a returned Californian. It seems to me, that in this country we put the cart before the horse, by sending out geologist before miners, to prospect the country. Geology is a beautiful and instructive science, and is well worthy of the attention of all who have time to study it. But if we want to find gold or silver mines, we must send out rough hardy miners in advance of geologists. In proof of what I say, I have copied an article from an Australian paper:

The Melbourne Illustrated News for January says, a few years back, the Government of South Australia imported at a great price a real live geologist, who received a handsome recompense, and who was engaged to inform us whether South Australia was a gold bearing Country. The geologist went from Dan to Beersheba, and pronounced the Country an unmitigated Copper land with lead, and some Silver perhaps, but not a single piece of trap rock, hence no gold. Now, during the last five or six weeks, 700 tons of crushing stuff, at the Barossa gold diggings, within 25 miles of Adelaide, produced 100 tons of pure gold, of the first quality. So much for the Geologist, and the deductions of science. Only last week we were favoured with the sight of between £6,000 and £7,000 worth of gold, the produce of this Colony, collected within a few weeks by the Banks. The quantity was something over 1,600 ounces, from six or seven different localities.

At Blumbery, about 30 miles N. E. of Adelaide, some most startling discoveries of gold have been made. Lumps of stone, with pieces of gold, and other specimens of the very richest character indicating extraordinary gold deposits, in the face of these golden facts, Geologists must acknowledge that they know nothing about gold-bearing countries, or gold producing.

It is my intention to start on this contemplated expedition if I have only money sufficient to pay the wages of one man, or if I cannot raise enough for this, I would like to get an amateur explorer, who will go for the pleasure of the trip, and share in any mines that may be discovered. Every man who wishes to live under the old flag, it seems to me, won't like to see the resources of the country developed, and that soon: for our neighbours the Yankees, are anything but friendly to us, and our only chance of being at peace or on friendly terms with them for any length of time, is for us to become a strong and powerful nation. Americans as individuals are first-rate fellows, although nationally they are very grasping.

SAMUEL FOWLIS.

EXTRACT.—I obtained a bottle of FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES, and took it until it made a permanent cure of Bronchitis, from which I had suffered nearly two years.

Economy in Health and Physic were important as in business, and we know of no cheaper, better, or surer means of preserving health through the medium of Dr. Radway's famous medicines. We present a case in point:

CASE 1. 238.—Marcus W. Mount, long a sufferer from liver complaints, has paid, he says, at different times, about $250 to physicians, and he thinks as much more for medicines. Is induced to try Radway's Pills, with occasional doses of the Renovating Resolvent, to assist in removing from his system the effects of the mercurial treatment to which he has been subjected. Soon feels the best fit of the change Takes, in all, five boxes of the Pills and three bottles Resolvent, at $1 each, $3—(disease removed) 4 25

Balance in favor of the REGULATING PILLS and RESOLVENT $495 75

R. R. R. Remedies sold by Druggists and Country Merchants. See Dr. Radway's Almanac, 1870.

If a person faints place him instantly flat on the floor, or bed on his back, and let him lay quietly for ten minutes or so, it is simply a fainting fit, and the blood flowing as a level will re-adily equalize itself through the system. If you are troubled with rheumatism, pleurisy, pain in the side or back, cramps in the stomach, sores, frost-bites, &c., procure at once a bottle of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer" which is a certain cure for all such complaints. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

VERY NATURAL.

When a person has proved an article and found it good, and answering the purpose for which it is intended, he will not readily abdon it for one of doubtful reputation, or concerning which he knows nothing. We are led to make these remarks owing to the course always pursued by those who have used that celebrated and truly valuable horse-medicine known as "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy." All are so well pleased with it that they will not use any other; many have waited several weeks until the agent could obtain a new supply. There is nothing equal to it as a condition medicine, or for any complaint affecting the wind of horses. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hurd & Co., is on each pake age. Northrop & Lyman, Newcastle, Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

HEALTH IS STRENGTH.—To prevent or conquer disease is one of the grandest attainments ever aimed at by man; and Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers will as surely cure coughs, colds, tickling in the throat and pulmonary complaints, as war and pestilence will destroy. Severe colds if not attended to sooner or later lead to incurable consumption, and the strength of the strongest soon fails if neglected. The readiest and best means known for the cure of these complaints is "Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers," which have been thoroughly tried for the last twenty years, and have never been known to fail. Singers and public speakers will also derive great benefit from the use of them. Sold by all medicine dealers, at 25cts. per box

FOUND AT LAST! A remedy that not only relieves, but cures that enemy of mankind, Consumption, as well as the numerous satellites which revolve around it in the shape of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, Influenza, &c. The remedy we allude to is Dr. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERR, prepared by Seth W. Fowle & Son, Boston.

CAUTION. Purchasers of the Peruvian Syrup (a protected solution of the protoxied of Iron) are cautioned against being deceived by any of the preparations of Peruvian Bark, or Bark and Iron, which may be offered them. Every bottle of genuine has PERUVIAN SYRUP (not Peruvian Bark) blown in the glass. EXAMINE THE BOTTLE BEFORE PURCHASING.

CORNS, CALLOSITIES, OR CLAVUS need no description; they are produced by pressure or friction of some hard substance on certain parts, as from boots, shoes, pressure of the toes on each other, pressure of scissors, or other tools on the fingers or hands, and on the knees by much kneeling. There are three kinds of corns, viz: the laminated corn in which the hardened epidermis exists in layers: the fibrous corn, in which fibres appear to pass through it, giving rise to the idea that the corn has a corn and root, but which are really elongated papillæ; and the soft corn, which is very painful and troublesome, and sometimes occasions ulcers. For each and all of these tempertrying afflictions, Dr. J. Brigg's Curative will be found a most certain and efficacious remedy. Sold by Druggists and all Country Dealers. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors. Office, 208 Broadway, N. Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

Who would not be beautiful? Who would not add to their beauty? What gives that marble purity and distinqe appearance we observe upon the stage, and in the city belle? It is no longer a secret. They use Ragan's Magnolia Balm. Its continued use removes tan, freckles, pimples and roughness, from the face and hands, and leaves the complexion smooth, transparent, blooming and ravishing. Unlike many cosmetics it contains no material injurious to the skin. Any Druggists will order it for you, if not on hand, at 50 cts. per bottle.

W. E. HAGAN, Troy, N. Y., Chemist.

DEMAS BARNES & Co.,
Wholesale Agents, N. Y.

The efficacy of Bryan's Pulmonic wafers in curing Coughs, Colds, and all Bronchial affections, and cheering the afflicted, has passed into a proverb. In the United States, where these marvellous Wafers are known, they bear down all opposition and eclipse all rivalry; the demand for them has a steadily increased for the last twenty years, until now the sales average over one hundred thousand boxes a year. Eminent members of the medical profession without number of the medical profession without number admit that they know of no preparation such beneficial results as these wafers When taken in season they effect a permanent cure. Sold by every druggist and most of the respectable stores throughout the Province, at 25 cents per box.

WILD CHERRY BALSAM.—The memory of Dr. Wistar is enshrined in the hearts of thousands whom his Balsam of Wild Cherry has cured o coughs, colds, consumption, or some other form of Pulmonary disease. It is now over forty years since this preparation was brough before the public, and yet the demand for it s constantly increasing.

The fact that the Canada has a larger amount of Investments and of Assurance business in the Dominion than any of the British or American Companies, sufficiently attests the preference of the public of Canada for a well conducted Canadian Institution, and its rapid progress is satisfactory evidence of the popularity of its principles and practice.

IMMIGRATION.

To Farmers, Manufacturers and Others in quest of Ordinary or Skilled Labour.

The Immigration Society of Peterborough, desirous of securing immigration to this portion of the Province, and supplying whatever demands there may be for the various descriptions of labour, hereby give notice to all who may be desirous of procuring labour—male or female—and to the various municipalities in the County, that James Edward, Esq., Clerk of the Town of Peterborough, has been appointed the Registrar of the Society, and that as such Registrar Mr. Edwards will preserve a record of the different descriptions of labour that may be applyed for to him. From the information thus supplied the Society hopes to induce an immigration that will at least equal the demand for labour, if not assist very materially in settling much of the at present unproductive land in the County.

A registry of lands for sale or to lease will also be preserved by the Registrar; and those giving information of lands for sale or to lease will have the advantage of having their lands placed prominently in the market, and brought under the especial notice of those who may desire to settle upon improved or partially improved lands.

Emigrants are now on their way from the Old Country, and many have already arrived. In order, therefore, that the efforts of the Society may be productive of benefit to the community, it is essential that information be at once given to Mr Edwards, verbally or by letter, of the labour required, lands for sale or to lease, &c.

Those making application to the Registrar will be supplied with labourers at the earliest opportunity, and will be promptly notified of their arrival.

The Beggar at the Swing.

BY C. D. GARDETTE.

'Twas where a great catalpa
Its broad-leaves shadow flings.
That I hung, for a little maiden,
The airiest of swings.

And the music of her laughter
Went gladdening all the air,
As, with tireless arm, I swung her.
At twilight merrily there.

"Oh, higher!" ever, "higher!"
Was my little maiden's cry;
Until, with the lengthening shadows,
A beggar-child stood nigh.

"Give me a penny," she muttered
In a melancholy whine.
"And why do you want a penny?"
Asked this little maiden of mine;

"And why do you speak so queerly?
My mother is sick," she said,
"And sent me to beg a penny
To buy her a loaf of bread."

Then my little maid cried, "stop me!"
And swift to the house she sped,
And swifter still returned she
With a great brown loaf of bread.

"Take this instead of a penny,
And if you will laugh," quoth she,
"And promise to cry no longer,
You shall swing in the swing with me!"

So I swung them both together
In the great catalpa's shade,
And I heard the mingled laughter
Of the beggar and my little maid;

And I know not which the sweeter
Rang out through the twilight air;—
For I could not see their faces
As ther swung together there;—

Till my darling cried:—"Dear brother,
Stop swinging, and let us die!"
Then she clasped the hand of the beggar,
And kissed the child "good bye!"

I have read Life's gravest pages
And this was a little thing;
Yet I learned a godly lesson
Of my little maid at the swing!

Elder Knapp on Swearing.

Elder Knapp is not averse to having it understood that he may be regarded as a sort of consulting physician for sick souls, when the original family doctor finds that his pharmacy has lost its efficacy. In one of his recent raids on the arch enemy of souls he selected, as being especially fit subject for animadversion the profane swearers, and this is the way he "went" for them:—

"I will give you, my dear friends, a picture from a scene in hell. The devil is sitting in his private office, receiving the souls as they are brought to him from the upper world. An infernal attendant comes in bringing a soul with him condemned to everlasting flames. "Who are you?" asks the devil, as the culprit was brought to where he was sitting. "Secretary Benjamin, of the Confederate Cabinet," was the reply. "Oh, yes, I knew you were coming," said the devil, as he turned the leaves of his ledger and made an entry of the secretary's name. "I always show consideration to those that have showed it to me. I've got to take you in, but I'll try and make you as comfortable as possible." To the attendant:—"Show Mr. Benjamin to a place as near as you can get him to a current of air." The next arrival was a man who had killed his mother-in-law. He was hung in Cincinnati. "Take him away," said the devil, "but treat him kindly."—The chances are two to one that he isn't much to blame. I remember his case. His mother-in-law came here three weeks ago. She looked as though she wanted killing. She's over in No. 63. Put him there and set the old woman in front of the furnace. No. 63 is too cool for her. Pretty soon another victim arrives.—What has brought you here?" asks the devil. "My case is a hard one," was the reply, "I am here just because I swore." "Just because you swore?" asked the devil, rising angrily from his chair.—"Yes, that's all the sin I ever did." "All the sin!" re-echoed the devil, all the sin! Why you mean, despicable, contemptible, low-lived vagabond,' said the devil, as he bro't his fist down on the table, "there isn't a corner here that's hot enough for you." Of all the sixty thousand preachers that spend their Sundays in black-guarding me, not one of them ever yet accused me of swearing. Blaspheme your maker, did you? Profaned the holy name of your Saviour, that forgave his enemies on the cross, and died to save you from here? You did this, did you? The trembling culprit made no reply. "Why," continued the devil, whose voice arose as his wrath intensified.—"Why, there's no excuse for you." A man by an unlucky blow may kill another one. In pressing temptation a man may steal; he may lie to save his neck or to cheat his neighbor. There is some excuse for him. The profane swearer has no excuse! Attendant, take this accursed scoundrel out of my sight. Put him up to his neck where the coals are the hottest, and then put somebody to sit on his accursed head."—Editor's Drawer.

How Noted Men became Rich by Chance.

Many years ago a young Scotch emigrant arrived in New York penniless. He was a mechanic, and labored at his trade without getting more than a living. One day he saw a man selling flowers in the market, and being passionately fond of them he bought a pot for a trifle and trudged home with it. A gentleman who met him was attracted by the beauty of the flower and asked its price. The mechanic named a small advance, and the gentleman at once purchased it. This trifling incident led the mechanic to the flower trade, and he became a florist, and founded a seed and gardening establishment, which has been kept up for sixty years. Those who are acquainted with his history will recognise in the humble individual referred to no less a personage than Grant Thornburn. These instances are not confined to New York.

Fairbanks, when keeping a country store, was obliged to tinker his scales in order to get a correct balance, and this led to making a new one of his own invention.

From this beginning has grown up the great establishment at St. Johnsbury, which now furnishes a large part of the country with the implement.

To come back to this city. John Jacob Astor was led in a similar way to that specialty which made him rich. He was selling toys when he met a man who had some very fine furs. His attention was arrested by this article, and he learned that they could be purchased of the Indians at a low rate. He knew their value in London, and soon commenced dealing in furs, which he continued until he controled the market on both sides of the ocean.

Had John Jacob Astor followed the predilections of most of his countrymen, he would have opened a corner grocery and sold sugar and soap.

STOP AND SEE!
THE following remarks on Testimonials of most wonderful and extraordinary cures in Canada by the GREAT INDIAN REMEDY. They are stern, undeniable and incontestible facts, sufficient to convince the most skeptical that the Great Medicinal Compound yet in use after for ages is now accessible in the Great Shoshonees Remedy.
For Diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Liver, Digestive Organs, Kidneys, &c., as well as Scrofula, the various Skin Diseases, Humors and all diseases arising from impurities of the blood, we boldly state that this great remedy has NEVER BEEN EQUALLED. Where was there ever such a cure as that in the person of Wilson Storms, of Brighton, ontario, of Consumption: or that of Peter C. V. Miller, of Ernestown, Ontario, of Consumption; or that of Ambrose Wood, of Consecon, Ontario, of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint; or that of John Hosey, of Fapanee, Ontario, of Rheumatism, who had actually been on crutches for years, in spite of all treatment heretofore, and is now well? Scores of such cases might be mentioned had we space.

Epistle for the "Examiner."

MR. EDITOR,—
The following lines excuse,
Through principle you can't refuse,
What is plain and honest truth
Altho' it somewhat be uncouth.
Your principles sober are, and good
As yet they've unimpeach'd stood,
Your paper column's ever open
To the truth, whatever happen;
An advocate for temperance strong,
An envying to all that's wrong.
Evils through which intemperance flow
You try to let the public know,
The spirit traffic's blightening curse
That ruins man, body, soul and purse.
Was there to come a foreign foe
And curse the half amount of woe,
Our Volunteers, would on them fall,
Destroy them! be the cry of all;
There would not be an Irish knot,
Nor yet a single canny Scot,
Nor Englishman, nor high nor low
But would be up and face the foe;
Yea, with the old ancestrial will
There would be spirit, if not skill;
To death or victory they would go,
To lay the vile usurper low.
Our Parliamenters would be scanning,
For the Country's welfare planning;
No opposition would there be,
The people from the foe to free;
Too friendly they are with the foe,
To plan for him the deadly blow;
War to the fallen is a curse,
To fall by drunkenness is worse;
Souls from the body war may sever,
Souls slain by strong drinks lost forever;
Records in Heaven, only can tell
How the traffic bath peopl'd Hell.
Houses in our midst, it's sad to know,
They savour of the pit below;
Our youth's within them, are drawn in
These training schools, to vice and sin.
The colour'd cup is sparkling here,
With many an inticing snare.
In profane jest, in fiendish mirth
They blaspheme God, who gave them birth,
They think not on life's shorten'd space,
That very God soon they must face.
Vendors, also, but little think
Of evils caused by strong drink;
Before God, too, they must appear
To tell what they've been doing here;
To ruin man, soul and body, they
Made it the business of their day.
Fathers there are in Christendom,
Seemingly care not what become
Of their beloved children dear
Or they would from the traffic clear.
What Father, he, would like to have
His son to fill a drunkard's grave?
Some father's, seem, care not a dot
Their children get to Heaven or not.
The liquor traffic ever stood
A barrier against all that's good;
When youthful days in vice are spent
Seldom or never age repent.
An old man now more than fourscore,
Whose head with age is silver'd o'er,
In youth the habit did acquire,
To drink the burning liquid fire;
The habit still in him remain
In spite of either shame or pain,
Friends they have tried, but tried, in vain,
That he from drinking would refrain;
Told him as plain as they could tell
The drunkard's portion, it is Hell!
Nothing they've said yet seem to fright him,
He'll drink, altho' the De'el should get him.
Among professors such a case,
Christians have need to cry alas!
Achats, within the camp there be
From which the churches should be free.
As long as Elders take their glass,
And Deacons to their lips it press,
Minister wink, them not to see,
Example such the drunkard's plea.
Excuse the diction of this letter,
The next, I'll try and write it better;
For printing it is poorly dressed,
Tho' sometimes odd things take the best,
I remain, sir, yours, ever true,
A friend to temperance and to you.

Training Tomato Vines.

A writer to the "Rural New Yorker" says that the best method of growing the tomato is to plant them three feet apart each way, and drive a stout, six feet high, stake to each plant. When the plants are a foot high take a ball of twine, such as is used for tying wool, pass it around the vine close under a leaf, and tie it to the stake. When the first blossoms appear, pinch out every branch that has started below the blossoms, and as the plants grow in height, keep tying them up until they reach the top of the stake, then pinch off the top of the vine. Keep the side branches pinched off as fast as they appear, leaving only the main stalk, which will be a perfect mass of fruit from the ground to the top of the stake. This method of training will ensure ripe fruit earlier, in the opinion of this correspondent, than the usual method of allowing the vines to run over the ground.

To Destroy the Currant Worm.

James M. Wardner writes to the Essex Co. "Republican" that he saves his currant bushes in the following manner, which we can heartily recommend:

"Keep close watch of the bushes after they are fully leaved out, examining very closely the lower leaves on the new shoots, and as soon as you see one that is perforated with small holes, pick it up and drop it into an old pail, and so go over all the the bushes carefully every other day, as long as the worms continue to hatch, which will be about two or three weeks, and burning the leaves plucked. Be sure and pick each time going over the bush every leaf gnawed by the worms. I have about seventy-five or one hundred bushes as you often see, while most of the currant bushes in this vicinity are entirely destroyed, I have had to be vigilant and persevering, but I have conquered so far, which is some satisfaction, as well as the pleasure of having all the nice currants I want to use."

Life in the North of Ireland.—The following is an extract from a private letter; "On returning from the ball I passed by the residence of Mr.—, whose life has been threatened, and who was once shot at some time ago, when his poor unoffending coachman was shot instead of himself. In consequence of this, his house is now garrisoned by a dozen constabulary, and is barricaded from top to bottom. I happened to come across the old gentleman going out for a constitutional, and a pretty sight it was in a civilized land. First came a brace of policemen armed with carbines, and who kept a sharp look out round all hedges and other places that might hide a murderer in them; at a distance of some twenty yards or so the old gentleman and his son, each with a double barrelled gun over his shoulder, and flanked by other policemen, with two more in the rear. Nobody dared to step at his house from the ball, least they should be shot at in passing to and fro."

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,
For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thus within those thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cases are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and constitutions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them always fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

As occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,
For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a
HAIR DRESSING,
nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

CONCENTRATION the great principle. The system of infinitesimal doses of medicine diffused in gallons of injurious stimulants exploded. All useless material discarded. The active principle only of the most powerful and efficient remedies known, concentrated in a small, convenient form (Hamilton's CONCENTRATION CURES). All diseases of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels, permanently relieved by using Dr. Colby's ANTI-COSTIVE AND TONIC PILLS, Sugar-Coated. Recommended by the Medicine Profession.

GLAD TIDINGS FOR ALL.—Those who have no hair may have it.—Those who have plenty, may preserve and beautify it. Those who are losing it may have its loss arrested. The hair strengthened, beautified, restored, by using HENT'S EXTRACT HAIR GLOSS, cheapest, cleanest, best. Don't rest till you have tried a bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

SUCCESS begets envy. Hence the efforts of certain vendors of Liniment to decry JACOBS' RHEUMATIC LIQUID. Wherever introduced, it drives all others from the market. Pain positively annihilated by its use. We have not room to enumerate the virtues accorded to it by the thousands who have used it. No medicine ever invented is capable of more extended application. It has hundreds of imitators, but not one RIVAL. Beware of Counterfeits.

MANUFACTURERS OF THE CELEBRATED
LOCKMAN SEWING MACHINE,
Take pleasure in announcing that the popularity of the Sewing Machine manufactured by them is still on the increase. They are now turning them out at the rate of 600 per month, and yet have been compelled within the last two weeks to increase their facilities to a capacity of one thousand per month.
The Lockman Machine, from its capacity to sew the heaviest fabrics with linen thread, as well as the finest cambrics with No. 150 Cotton, is pre-eminently the Farmer's Favorite Family Friend.
It is so exceedingly simple in its parts, and so strongly and durably made, that it does not require a mechanical genius for its management.
The manufacturers challenge the world to produce its equal, and yet its price is from Forty to Fifty per cent. lower than that of any other first-class Shuttle Lock-stitch Sewing Machine.
EVERY MACHINE IS WARRANTED.

SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT.
NEW PRINCIPLES OF CURE
Of all Wasting, Scrofulous, and Eruptive Diseases of the Eyes, Nose, Mouth, Throat, Ears, Head, LUNGS, Kidneys, Bladder.
THE SKIN MADE PURE, CLEAR, SMOOTH, AND BEAUTIFUL.
Dr. Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent establishes a new principle of Cure of all Chronic diseases, and proves to the medical world that Consumption and other Scrofulous diseases are curable. This fact has been demonstrated in over One Hundred Cases of Confirmed Consumption, where one lung is over seventy cases were destroyed and dried up, and in over 500 CASES OF SUSPECTED CONSUMPTION
Dr. Radway, three years since, published to the world his analysis of the Blood in the several stages of Consumption, showing in every case, that where tubercles become deposited in the Lungs and other organs, as in the Kidneys, Liver, Spleen, Bronchial Glands, Intestines, establishing Consumption of these organs. The Blood is thin, weak, pale, watery, and in deficient of such constituents as fibrin, Albumen, Phosphorus, and the rich life-giving discs of the Blood Corpuscles. In the absence of these constituents in the Blood, the blood possesses no strength and nourishment, and wherever there is inflammation it deposits tubercles and diseased composition, it has not the power to build up and sustain its natural constituents, and Ulcers, Scrofula, Tumors, Cancers, and Virulent Humors are formed, the presence of which causes inflammation, gathering, and consequent suppuration.
This leads us to the true cause of the formation of Tubercles and Consumption. Dr. Radway was the first to advance this theory of the cause of Consumption and its kindred diseases, and proposed the Radway's Resolvent to supply the Blood with such constituents it was deficient of, in those conditions of system, and to give it the nourishment and strength to hold its natural constituents in solution. Dr. Radway's theory was published in England, France, Germany, and America, and was seized upon by the scientific men of both hemispheres. From his text medical books have been a new published by medical writers, claiming to have discovered the cause of Consumption, but have failed to produce the remedy to cure. Dr. Radway was the first to advance this theory, and the first and only discoverer of a medicine that will cure. In Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent the public have a remedial agent that will cure Consumption and all diseases of the Lungs, Bronchial, Kidneys, Bladder, Womb, Throat, Glands, and Urinary Organs.
In all Wasting Discharges, such as Involuntary Loss of Sperm, Emissions, Weakness of the Genital Glands, Leucorrhea, and all Uterine difficulties, Gravel, Lime stone, Brick Dust, Uric Acid, and Calculous Concretions, the Sarsaparillian Resolvent is a positive cure. In Dropsy, Diabetes, uncured Venereal, Syphilis in its many forms, it cures when all other medicines fail.
EVERY DAY
an increase of flesh, weight, and strength is experienced. It is Fat-tissue, Caloric or Heat-making. It is to the blood what oxygen is to the atmosphere air—it supplies the life principle. It swiftly removes from the surface all Spots, Blemishes, Pustules, Tetters, Rash, Pimples, Worms, Sores, &c., imparting a Clear & Beautiful Complexion to all.
CERTIFICATE OF BEAUTY.
The following letter is from a highly-gifted lady, well known in the "circles of our best society:"
Lowerwood, Feb 28, 1870
I had not much confidence in your SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT. Having been disfigured for the last four months with BLOTCHES and PIMPLES, I resolved, as all creams, &c., had failed, to try your SARSAPARILLIAN. Upon them a day, or thereabout. To be sure I was not disappointed by its use, for by that time I was a BLOTCH, spot, blemish, or defacement of any kind on my person.—SARAH E. TREADWAY, Jersey City P.O.

MADOC, County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th, 1869.
This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ankles, which gradually during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on up to my hips, and I became so weak that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two years, while this weakness was coming on me, and subsequently, I sought medical advice, employing, at different times, three doctors, and medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, but of no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoshonees Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had begun to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshonees Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was not a private one, but known to all my neighbors and friends; and to any one afflicted as I was, I have only to say try the Shoshonees Remedy; I believe it will cure you,
MARY ANN DOUGHTY.
Sworn to before me at Madoc, County of Hastings, this ninth day of February, 1869.
A. F. WOOD, J. P. &c.
I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshonees Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.

Hurrying On.

Hurrying on in the midst of excitement,
Pushing extravagant projects through,
Few of us know, or pause ever to question,
Even to ask where we're hurrying to;
Hurrying on over blessings unheeded,
Casting some joy, like the butterfly, gone,
What is the good of our wonderful frenzy
What is the use of our hurrying on?

We have been hurrying on from our cradles
What but its shadows have we for the past?
We are still hurrying on as expectant—
What shall we get for our harry at last?
Graves are so thick that we cannot well miss them,
Going with only the clothes we shall wear;
Where shall be, then, all we're hurrying after?
What shall we have with our hurry when there?

Hurrying on in the wake of the phantoms,
Conjured alone in the fever of haste,
Hurrying on with extravagant projects,
Little we reck of the treasures we waste,
Little we think of the diamond moments,
Wealth or eternity planted in time,
The soil for its seed growing barren as ashes,
While we are yet hurrying out of its clime.

God works but slowly—but slowly my brothers—
Not hurrying onward in passion and strife,
Works for love only, and only for others,
Not for himself in the green fields of Life.
Let us sit down and be calm and be thoughtful
Lifting our hearts to Eternity's brink—
Let us cease living alone for the present,
Let us cease hurrying—what do you think?

Literature.

Jennie Blair's Maundering.

There's naething gies me greater pleasure than to hae a crack aboot the bit bodies o' ministers I used to gang an' hear langsyne. Mony a pow that wagsit in a pulpit lies low enough the day that I mind o'; an' a grand thing it was to gang on the Sunday nichts wi' my Jock, an' hae a cozy seat in the gallery, gey far back, wi' his arm round my waist in a very innocent manner, an' me sookin awa at a sugar-doodle, nae mim an' bashfu' like, as if butter couldna melt in my mouth. An' what a weary thocht it was when the last psalm was sung, an' we gaed into the open air, kennin' as muckle aboot the sermon as the seven sleepers o' Jerusalem.

But it wasna aye that way. For sometimes, when the minister had ony peculiarity aboot him, I listened in spite o' mysel'; although I'll no deny that I likit a' the better, bear what was said when Jock's arm was round me; an' that I did. Puir Jock! hinny, me had a quarrel aboot a lassie that had been watchin' us very earnestly in the Kirk.

When I taxed Jock aboot kennin' mair aboot her than he likit to tell, he denied it black to my face. But I wasna to be made a gowk o', I left his company; an' the next news that I heard o' Jock was that he broke his heart owre a bowl o' pease-soup in the lassie's mither's shop. She keepit an eatin'-house; an' she had wiled awa Jock to her mither's, an' feasted him on windy-watchers, pottit-heid, an' fried haddies, to catch his innocent heart. Goodness knows he was gluttonous enough; I kent that, an' so did my mither. But I never thocht he likit me ase weel as to groan his last for me. His last words were—'Gie that to Jenny Blair!" pointing to something rowled in paper. This was duly delivered into my hand by his affiicted mither, an' when I opened it oot I discovered a pokefu' of sugar-doodles, that I keepit in my drawer for a fortnicht, till I couldna resist the temptation to eat them a' for his sake.

But about the minister bodies. There was wee Duffy, o' the Ceogate kirk; an' a famous preacher he was. You couldna get a seat in the kirk when he was at the hicht o' his glory. But he was sadly bathered wi' his flock. As day he was preachin' on Job. "My brethren," says he, "Job, in the first place, was a fairly tried man; Job in the second place, was an uncommonly patient man; Job, in the third place, never preached in the Congate; fourthly and lastly, had Job preached there, God help his patience!"

At anither time, before the service began, when there was a great noise o' folk gaun into their seats, he got up in the pulpit, an' cried oot—"O that I could hear the pence birlin, in the plate at the door wi' half the noise ye mak wi' yer cheapin' shoon! Oh that Paul had been here wi' a lang wudden ladle; for yer coppers are strangers in a far country; an' yer silver an' gold's the Lord knows where!"

Yae nicht he was at a weddin'; an' a tough hen was set down before him to carve. But he couldna mak a job o't. "That's an ancient hen," says he to the bride's mither. "What d'ye mean?" says she, in a terrible passion. "Mean," says he, "there's nae mortal man can cut that up." "What way?" says she,—"What way?" "Ou, d'ye no ken that's the mither o' the cock that crawed to Peter?"

An' there was Deddy Weston, wha began yin o' his sermons in this manner—"My brethern, I'll divide my sermon the day into three heids. First, I'll tell ye something that I ken, an' you dinna ken. Second, I'll tell ye something that you ken, an' I dinna ken. Third, I'll tell ye something that neither you nor me ken.

"Firstly. Comin' owre a stile this mornin', I tore my breeks. That's something that I ken, an' you dinna ken.

"Secondly. What you're gaun to gie Charlie Waddie, the tailor, for mendin' my breeks, is what you ken, an' I dinna ken.

"Thirdly. What Charlie Waddie's to tak' for mendin' my breeks, is what he kens, an' what neither me nor you ken.

'Lastly. Hand round the plate.'

An' there was Doctor Dabster, that could pit a boutle or twa under his belt, an' neither was up nor doun. But an unco bitter man was he when there was a sma' collection. Yae day a' the siller gathered was only twa-an-ninepence; an' he could never get this oot o' his heid through the hale o' his sermon. It was aye spunkin' oot now an' then. "It's the land o' Canaan ye'er thrang strivin' after," says he; "the lond o' Canaan eh!—twa-an-ninepence?—yes! ye'er sure to gang there! I think I see ye! Nae doot ye'll think yersels on the richt road for't. Ask yer conscience, an' see what they'll say. Ask them, an' what will they say? I'll tell ye: "Twa dirty shillings and ninepence is puir passage money for sic a long journey!" Twa-an'-ninepence as wee, naight a coo gang up a tree! Ha! ha! ha! formost an' whustle like a superannuated mavis, as gat to Canaan for that!"

But he played the Earl o' Airlie an fine a trick as ever'l heard o' The doctor was preachin' at the time o' this anecdote in the High Kirk; an' the Earl was Lord High Commissioner o' the General Assembly a' the time. A week yae Saturday nicht, Doctor Dabster was doun at Holyrood dining wi' his Lordship; an' the twa fell on the crack the gither till it was far on in Sunday morn in'. Now the Earl was a practial joker, an kept thrang playing the Doctor wi' brandy punch, hopin' to prevent him frae preachin that day. But the Doctor was as wideawake as the Earl; for when he filled the glass, he empied it as quickly under the table; altho' he gied twa-three drunken hiccups to make the Earl think the punch was takin' effect.

At last the Doctor rose to gang awa', an' shakin hands wi' the Earl, he said he wad see him by-an'-by, and took his leave, pretending to stagger gey eair as he gaed oot at the door, the Earl chucklin' as the prospect o' seeing a fu' kirk, the bells rung in, and nae monster there. S'an, as the time drew nigh, up gaed the Earl o' Airlie in his ringe and [illegible] the bells were rin[illegible] escorted by the horse sodgers frae Jock Lodge. An' in he gaed to the royal front seat in the gallery, lookin' intently at the empty pulpit. At last the bells were nagg in' syne the precenter gaid into the desk; an' syne strangest o' a', up gaid Doctor Dabster to the pulpit, as fresh an' caller as a Babbeaton apple. After the psalm an' the prayer, he took his text frae Joshua, an' an' glancin' ower at the Earl, he cried oot the words: "And the Lord shall reward them right early!" An' sic a rattlin' sermon hadna been heard in the High Kirk for mony a lang year. An' aye, as he thundered an' declaimed, he cam' oot wi' the words: "And the Lord shall reward them right early," wi' a glance o' triumph at the mortified an' indignant Earl, that said, as plain as words could say't: "Whether's yer lordship or me the greatest gowk noo?"

Puir Doctor Dabster! he's died mony a year sin', but wi' a' his bit failings, there was mony a maur; an' that's true.—"Jennie Blair" in North Britton.

Hand-Shaking.

In the last number of All the Year Round we find the following:

"How did people first get into the habit of shaking hands? The answer is now for us to seek. In early and barbarous times, when every savage or semi-savage was his own law-giver, judge, soldier, and policeman, and had to watch over his own safety, in default of all other protection, two friends or acquaintances, or two strangers desiring to be friends or acquaintences when they chanced to meet, offered each to the other the right hand—the hand alike of offence or defence, the hand that yields the sword, the dagger, the club, the tomahawk, or other weapon of war. Each did this to show that the hand was empty, and that neither war nor treachery was intended. A man cannot well stab another while he is ingaged in shaking hands with him, unless he be a double-died traitor and villian and strives to aim a cowardly blow with the left, while giving the right and pretending to be on good terms with his victim. The custom of hand-shaking prevails more or less, among all civilized nations, and is the tacit avowal of friendship and good-will, just as the kiss is of warm passion.

"Ladies as every one must have remarked, seldom or never shake hands with the cordiality of gentlemen; unless it be with each other. The reason is obvious. They cannot be expected to show to persons of the other sex a warmth of greeting which might be misinterpreted; unless such persons are very closely related to them by family or affection, in which case hand-shaking is not needed, and the lips do more agreeable duty.

"Every man shakes hands according to his nature, whether it be timid or aggressive, proud or humble, courteous or churlish vulgar or refined, sincere or hypocritical, enthusiastic or indifferent. The nicest refinements and idiosyncrasies of character may not perhaps be discoverable in this fashion, but the more salient points of temperaments and individuality may doubtless be made clear to the understanding of most people by a better study of what I shall call the physiology or the philosophy of hand-shaking.

"Some people are too 'robustious, to be altogether pleasant. They take the offered hand with the grasp of a vice, and as if they had, with malice propense resolved to squeeze all the delicate little bones of your knuckles into a pulp or minced meat. And while the tears of agony come into your eyes and run down your cheeks they smile at you benignantly. The gentle giants unconscious of their strength, and of the tyranny with whom they exercise it.

"To shake hands without removing the glove is an act of discourtesy, which, if unintentional and thoughtless, requires an apology for the hurry or inadvertance which led to it. This idea would also seem to be an occult remnant of the old notion that the glove might conceal a weapon. Hence true courtesy and friendship required that the hand should be naked as a proof of bona fides.

To refuse pointedly to shake hands with one who offers you the opportunity in a friendly manner amounts to a declaration of hostility. And after a quarrel—or act of hostility—the acceptance of the hand offered is like the sign and the ratification of peace.'

True and Obedient.

"Charlie! Charlie!" Clear and sweet as a note struck from a silver bell, the voice rippled over the common.

"That's mother," cried one of the boys, and he instantly threw down his bat and picked up his Jacket and cap.

"don't go yet!" Have it out!"

"Finish this game." "Try it again!" cried the players, in a noisy chorus.

"I must go—right off—this very minute. I told her I'd come whenever she called," Make believe you didn't hear!" they all exclaimed.

"But I did hear!"

"She won't know you did."

"But I know it, and—"

"Let him go," said a bystander.

"You can't do anything with him, he's tied to his mother's apron strings."

"That's so!" said Charlie; "and it's to that every boy ought to be tied; and in a hard knot too."

"But I wouldn't be such a baby as to run the minute she called," said one.

"I don't call it babyish to keep one's word to his mother," answered the obedient, a beautiful light glowing in his blue eyes. "I call that manly; and the boy who don't keep his word to her will never keep it to any else—you see if he does!" and he hurried away to his cottage home.

Thirty years have passed since those boys played on the common. Charles Grey is now a prosperous business man in a great city, and his merchantile friends say of him that "his word is a bond." We asked him once how he acquired such a reputation.

"I never broke my word when a boy, no matter How great the temptation, and the habits formed then have clung to me through life."—Child's Delight.

Paddle Your Own Canoe.

Judge S. gave his son a thousand dollars, telling him to go to college and graduate. The son returned at the end of the Freshman year without a dollar and with several ugly habits. About the close of the vacation the Judge said to his son:

"Well, William, are you going to college this year?"

"Have no money, father."

"But I gave you a thousand dollars to graduate on."

"It's all gone, father."

"Very well, my son; it was all I could give you. You can't stay here; you must now pay your own way in the world.

A new light broke upon the astonished visions of the young man. He accommodated himself to the situation; left home, made his way to the college, graduated at the head of his class, studied law, became governor of the State of New York, entered the cabinet of the President of the United States, and has made a record for himself that will not soon lie, being none other than William H. Seward.

"I want no more money," said a gentleman, the other day, who had retired from business, on the application of a friend to to join in what promised to be a profitable investment. In answer to a look of surprise he continued:

"I have three sons, I gave them all a classical education. One became a merchant, another a lawyer, the third a physician. I gave them all a fair start, and they have all come home to live on me. The doctor had no patients, the lawyer no clients, and the merchant no customers. They say to me "Father, it's no use for us to work; you have plenty, and we will have more than we can spend." Why now should I want any more money? What I had has made my sons useless to themselves, useless to society and to the world. Had they been compelled, as I was, to start out in life on nothing, and "paddle their own canoe," they might have been a credit to themselves and to me, instead of being as they are now, a disgrace to my family name.

The more a thriftless child is helped, the more he has to be helped ever after. As it is in the moral world, so it is in the physical as pertaining to the health of our bodies, and millions die prematurely from not recognizing this principal in reference to bodily habits and functions.

Anecdote of Sheridan.

A certain wealthy nobleman invited the the dramist to visit him during the shooting season, at his country seat. Sheridan went, but being no sportsman found it rather dull work. At length, finding himself alone, he took a gun, (and fixing,) and try his luck. An attentive game-keeper proffered his services as attendant, which were peremptorily declined, determined that his want of skill should not be made the subject of remark in the servant's hall. The result of this tramp might be anticipated, and he found himself returning home without even a feather for a trophy, convinced of one of two things, to wit: either that the gun was a very poor one, or that he did not understand its use.

Crossing a field, in the centre of which was a pond, and around which was gathered a large flock of geese, ducks, hens, &c., he noticed the farmer leaning upon the fence, watching their gambols; and was seized with an irresistable desire to try his skill upon the feathered objects of his attention. Accordingly he marched up to "Hodge," who seemed quite indifferent as to his approach, and thus accosted him:—

"My friend, what shall I give you for permission to discharge both barrels in the midst of that flock?"

"Wull," answered the north countryman, "ai dun know, art thou mooch iv or shot?"

"Much of Shot Oh, (slightly embarrassed) middling, only middling."

"How far? Oh, say about twenty yards."

"Wull, ai shood think thou migh'st giv I half a guiny."

"Half a guinea? Pretty good price; however I'll do it."

Accordingly the ground was measured, Sheridan took his stand, and, with deliberate aim, discharged both barrels, killing and wounding many more than even he had anticipated.

"Ha! ha! (he laughed gathering up the spoils, and approaching the old farmer, who seemed quite undisturbed by the result,) you did'nt expect I should kill so many did you?"

"Wull noa! I carnt say as I did, but still yer knaw It's nathing to I, you knaw, becas they're not mine."

After the "shock" was over, the wit gave him an extra, "half" for his shrewdness, and a five pound note not to mention it, and treating the matter as unintentional, he paid the owner, and returned home with a "new wrinkle."

Horse Gear.

There is a great deal in gearing a horse or mule so as to enable an animal to work easy, and use a certain amount of power with comparatively small animal force. Much depends on long or short leverage. The draft may be too nigh or too low; the one will draw too heavy on the top of the neck, the other will choke the animal. The may be too large or too small—either of which will cause sore shoulders. A tender-mouthed horse should have a larges, smooth bit and not to be reined up too tight, or the mouth will become so sore as to its sensitiveness to a gentle draw of the rein. Every part of the harness should be as complete a fit as a dandy's coat, touching everywhere and pinching nowhere.

The harness should be kept clean and soft. There are several preparations made and sold for this purpose, but the mistortune is, they are too little used. The money paid for, and labor spent in using, is not spent in vain. When the harness gets wet, as it sometimes will, by being caught out in the rain, straighten it out to dry before it is hung up or it will curl out of shape. It should be put through a course of greasing and handling before using again. Examine the face of the collar every time it is used before putting on—see that it is clean and smooth.—Stock Journal.

How To Secure Good Oats For Seed.

A correspondent of the Country Gentleman says:—"Place your oats in a heap in the middle of the threshing floor, on the end that the wind blows to. Get you a milking stool and a small scoop—your wife's flour scoop will do—and throw the oats with a light turn of the wrist, to the other end of the floor, against a gentle wind. A little practice will soon enable you to throw in a half circle and at the same distance. Sweep off now and then if you have much, the utmost circle for seeds, the light oats for feed, and the weed seed to burn. You will now have seed oats worthy to sow, without buying at $5 per bushel. I have seen oats grow in Sweden until I was 60 years old, but I never saw a heavy crop where the seed was not selected as above."

John Howard.

The celebrated philanthropist, was born in 1726, at Hackney, and was bound apprentice to a grocer by his guardians: but being possessed of a fortune, he purchased his indentures, and made two tours on the continent; one of them for the purpose of viewing the ruins of Lisbon. Hearing that his first wife, who was much older than himself, and whom he married out of gratitude for her attention during sickness, he had made a second choice in 1765.—For several years he resided on his estate at Cardington, near Bedford, occupied in educating his son, and in executing plans to render comfortable the situation of his tenants and laborers. Nor was his kindness limited to worldly benefits; it extended to eternity; watching over their [illegible] and inculcating the principals of vital Christianity in their hearts; in short he was a universal blessing. He had already obtained experimentally some knowledge of a prison, having been captured on his return to Lisbon, and confined in France but his appointment in 1773

The West Riding fall show will be held on the last day of September and the first day of October next, if arrangement be not yet made to hold a County show in Ashburnham.

The weather has been very hot and dry for about three weeks. There has been rain all round us, but none here. A good shower would cool the earth, atmosphere and heated imaginations very much.

Mr John Lillico, North Monaghan, cut clover on the 20th May, measuring 2 feet 1½ inches, and the second crop on the 19th instant which measured 4 feet 4½ inches. Beat that who can.

It is understood that the terms of the annexation of British Columbia to Canada are agreed on. They have only to be submitted to Governor Musgrave. One of the terms is the early construction of a railway through British territory to the Pacific.

A Mr. Anderson and a Mr. Sprague are the candidates in the room of Mr. Chamberlin, appointed to the ofice of Queen's Printer, instead of Mr. Romaine, who, it is said, will be appointed under Mr. Chamberlin. Can these reports be true?

In the Anglican Synod on Monday, a resolution was carried to the effect that the Synod express it as their solemn conviction that it is desirable that marriages may not be solemnized except in churches, nor between parties who are, either one or both, unbaptized. What nonsense.

THE DOMINION MONTHLY for July is received. It contains a cut of Diaraeli, and one of Asa Westover and General Lindsay on the Frontispiece. The ready matter is:—"Scenes in the life of a Canadian Pioneer"; "Whence and Why"; "The fond recollections of a Sewing Machine"; "The Lonely Hours"; "Mahone Bay"; "An Indian Legend"; "The Age of Light"; "A Trip to Anticosti"; "Apparent Death"; "Talk for Young Folks"; "Recipes and Music."

DOMINION DAY.—There will be abundant opportunity for pleasure seekers enjoying themselves to-morrow. The Steamer "Enterprise" will run to Campbelltown and back, and at Campbelltown there will be a regatta. The "Ogemah" will run to Lindsay, and return, affording an opportunity to visit the Back Lakes. None need stay at home. There is no fear of an Invasion. On that all our Citizens can heartily unite in keeping New Dominion Day, the only Canadian day we celebrate. St. Patrick's, St. Andrew's, St. George's or King William's, what are they compared to Dominion Day? At any rate let them be forgotten for a week or two, so as to celebrate the birth of our Young Dominion.

The North-West.

Up to the present, the whole Red River affair has been a series of blunders on the part of the Canadian Government. Not even their friends can point to a single act that could merit the approbation of the public. They first blundered in sending a Lieut.-Governor before they had got possession of the territory. They have shown a weak and vacillating policy instead of a firm and decided stand against the claims of a few haughty half-breeds. Instead of telling Scott and Richot that they could not receive men who had, in cold blood, been the murderers of an innocent man, because he was a Canadian, our government took Richot into their favor and granted him more than he ever asked or thought of.

When the troubles arose, instead of sending out, at once, a sufficient force to quell the disturbance and compel respect to their authority, they telegraphed for a priest to come home and proceed to Fort Garry, to sow the seeds of rebellion more abundantly and deeply, and now by granting the malcontents more than they asked, they have offered a premium for rebellion. They sent the arch-traitor, Jos. Howe, to give lessons of how he sold himself to John A. and Cartier, and to tell them of the hundreds of thousands of dollars he thus made by the sale of himself, and by the abandonment of his principles. He went to tell them that John A. and Cartier would grant them all their desires rather than arouse the ire of a single Lower Canada Cure.

Our government have established a French-Canadian colony, or province, not as large as the County of Peterborough; they have given about one half the lands of the little parish to the church; and although the whole has met the disapproval of every right thinking man, yet it was passed at the nod of Cartier, who reckons Upper Canadians no better than so many codfish in Gaspe Bay.

They got boats built for the expedition that were found leaky and useless when tried, and one Col. Boulton, by their authority, hired every American vessel he could get at $400 a day, and the vessels were kept at Collingwood doing nothing. Was there ever such mismanagement and reckless disregard of economy, or of waste of time? The expedition is, to a great degree, under the control of Mr. Cartier, who does not wish a volunteer from Ontario to enter the Nor-west territory, and who hopes by delays and mismanagement to have them recalled before winter, that thus he may hand over to Bishop Tache the Parish of Manitoba.

To crown their degrading acts they have refused a Protestant missionary to accompany the expedition. They sneer at the Methodist denomination; they treat most discourteously the President of their conference, and even Dr. Ryerson, who spent his valuable time in writing them into office, is despised and rejected.

Was there ever such a disregard for the feelings of the people of Ontario by any government? Could the Kings of the Cannibal Islands be less careful for the religious instruction of their subjects than Cartier is for the instruction of nine-tenths of the volunteers in the expedition? Are the people of Ontario? are the people of Peterboro? are the Protestants of Canada, or the great Methodist body of the Dominion to support the little haughty Frenchman who rules us with a rod of iron? who laughs at our servility in supporting a few sycophants from Ontario who bind the chain of slavery to Lower Canada on us strongly because we quietly permit them.

And who are they who do these things? Such men as Mr. Burton of Durham, an Orangeman; John Hilliard Cameron, their Grand Master for years; the member for Peterboro East and the member for Peterboro West. Mr. Burton has had his reward in pickings to the tune of thousands of dollars out of the Ottawa buildings, and again, it is said, out of the Governor's residence in Toronto; and the others are seeking the reward of their servility. We are far from asking that the rights of Catholics should be interfered with; by all means let them have their chaplain, but we declare most emphatically for equal rights for all denominations, and we ask the people to consider what they are doing in sending men who sell Ontario to Lower Canada for the mere hope of office.

We are getting Locks built at Youngs Point, to keep the saw logs and square timber from rushing madly from Lake Katchewanuk into Stoney Lake. Perhaps we are astray, if so, for what else will they serve? Like the Town Locks, they can crumble down, without a vessel ever passing through them. Stoney Lake is to be a great throughfare, some one says for canoes, and the locks are to enable lazy loafers or pleasure seekers to paddle their own canoe from Lakefield to Stoney Lake, rather than carry the craft around Youngs' dam. Taking this view of it, our government is very considerate for loafers—few else will ever use them. In a few years, gateless locks, dilapidated mason work, and a dry canal, will remain as mementoes of the short sightedness of the Great Local Member who advised an outlay of about $30,000, where it will be entirely useless. We have not yet heard of even a single canoe on the stocks for the Stoney Lake trade.

The Weekly "Times" is the name of a new paper published in Montreal, and intended to advocate the interest and rights of Irishman in Canada. The "Times" is neatly printed, and its articles and selections will be found palatable to Irishmen, We hope it will steer clear of religious bickerings, and that in its advocacy of what it believes right, it will embrace all Irishmen, although Canada needs Canadians more than she does either Irish, English or Scotchmen. We wish the "Times" success in its mission.

FIRE.—On Tuesday, about 9 a. m., the old wooden building on Simcoe Street, directly West of W. Fairweather, & Co's Dry Goods Store, caught fire, and was consumed. The Firemen were called out, but their first attempt only delayed its destruction, as after they left it caught again, and after burning slowly two or three hours was completely destroyed. Owing to the exceedingly dry weather a fire at present is fraught with danger to all around where it is, and should not be left smouldering.

A Well-Merited Tribute.

Mr. Wm. Johnston being about to remove from Peterborough to Ottawa, having obtained the Agency of the Canada Life Assurance Company, for that District.—The Choir of the Canada Presbyterian Church, among whom Mr. Johnston has laboured for many years, determined not to allow him to depart without testifying to him the esteem they entertained towards him, for the long and determined stand he has always taken not only to do what he could for the singing in said Congregation, but also in his unwearied efforts in assisting the Leader to keep the Choir together.

They accordingly invited him on Monday evening last, to a very handsome entertainment in the basement of the Church, prepared by the ladies of the Choir.

Mr. Millar, Precentor of the Church, and Leader of the Choir, presided; and in the name of the Choir presented Mr. Johnston with a beautiful double inkstand, gold pen and pencil and holder.

In making the presentation, Mr. Millar said he did so under feelings of regret at the prospect of so soon losing the fellowship of one with whom he had so long and so pleasantly associated; it was also with feelings of apprehension of a personal nature, which might be almost considered selfish; for he could assure Mr. Johnston, (and all the Choir would bear him out in the expression,) that in the discharge of his (Mr. Millar's) duties in this house from Sabbath to Sabbath, he would then more especially miss his (at all times) willing and helping voice.

Mr. Millar referred them to the difficulty of keeping a Choir together, in harmony, but in doing this in the past he had great pleasure in testifying to the fact that he had always received the very highest respect from every member of the Choir, and he knew that even the old and tried member now about to leave was not the least gratified at this. Mr. Millar concluded his remarks by wishing Mr. Johnston every success in his new sphere.

Mr. Johnston replied briefly, stating that the entertainment had taken him by surprise, but the presentation was a still greater surprise to him. It had been his lot to be connected with a great many public bodies, having often acted as Secretary for four or five different societies at the same time, yet this was the first present he ever received for any public duty he had performed. He only made these remarks to shew the ladies and gentlemen of the Choir how high, (he might say in a double sense,) he would value the handsome gift. Whenever he looked on the beautiful gold pen, he would be reminded of the Choir of the Canada Presbyterian Church in Peterborough, if ever he let such out of his mind. It was only a meeting of the Choir, and therefore he would refrain from referring to the history of the congregation. He was pleased that his humble services had been of so much service to the Choir as to induce a full attendance, as no member he believed was absent, he could go away from Peterboro gratified, knowing that he had always tried to do his duty to the Choir, and to the congregation, and knowing that such efforts were appreciated by the Choir among whom he had so long labored—and he had never seen the Choir so efficient as at the present time. He again thanked them for the entertainment, and especially for the beautiful present.

The members of the Choir then sat down to a splendid tea—Mr. Millar in the chair.

After tea, a few of their favourite tunes were sung, and while wishing Mr J. goodnight, the following words were sung to the tune of Desert:

Good night dear friend, adieu, adieu!
Still in truth's way delight;
May grace and peace remain with you,
Good night, dear friend, good night.

Promenade Concert.

The Drill Shed was pretty well filled on Tuesday evening. Three or four hundred at least attended, and enjoyed themselves well, if we can judge from appearances.—The Port Hope band was present, and played some beautiful pieces. We are almost inclined to think that our band must look to their laurels.

Between the first and second parts, a presentation of a beautiful Watch and Gold Chain was presented to Mr. Wm. Johnston, on the occasion of his leaving for Ottawa.

Lieut. Col. Poole read the address, after a few remarks, as follows;

To ENSIGN WILLIAM JOHNSTON,
No 1 Co'y 57th Battalion,

DEAR SIR,—

It is with sincere regret that we learn that you are about to leave us, and have resigned your commission as Ensign in No 1 company.

We cannot allow you to leave without expressing the regret we feel and our esteem for you as an officer and a man.

The desire to testify to your earnest and unwearying labours in connection with the Volunteers Force, whith which you have been connected for the past fourteen years.

We beg to present you with the accompanying watch and chain as a slight testimonial of our esteem.

In whatever position of life you may be, you have our best wishes for your success and prosperity.

Signed on behalf of the Officers and N. C. officers of the 27th Battalion.

E. POOLE, Lt.-Colonel.
H. C. ROGERS, Captain.
J. C. KENNEDY, Captain.
W. J. CREENE, Captain.
J. BURNHAM, Lieutenant.
T. BURKE, Sergant Major.
J. IRWIN, Colonel Sergant.

Dated at Peterborough, the 28th day of June 1870.

MR. JOHNSTON'S REPLY.

Lieut-Col. Poole, Officers and Non-Commissioned Officers of the 57th Battalion,

GENTLEMEN,—I feel it very difficult to find language sufficiently expressive of my thanks to you for the valuable token of your esteem, and I assure you I shall treasure it up as long as I live in grateful remembrance of your kindness, and of the years I spent among you in the Volunteer Force of Peterborough.

In taking the present step towards bettering my conditions through the remaining years of my life, I am forced to sever the ties which have bound me to Peterborough, and among all the other associations which have endeared the place and the people to me, not the least is the Volunteer force. Through the past 14 years, in all difficulties and discouragements, you have battled it out, and still kept up the organization with unswerving perseverance which speaks well for the stability of the force in the years to come.

It is on the spirit thus shown by such men as you, that our beloved Canada may rely with confidence if ever invaders again dare [illegible] soil for [illegible] I may be far removed from the 57th Battalion, and my name remain on the [illegible] with the [illegible] of efficient officers, [illegible] will ever be [illegible] I remain, thank you for your kindness, not only on this occasion, but through all my past career in No. 1 Company; and my earnest wish is, that prosperity may attend you one and all—and may the 57th Batt. and its very efficient Band, in which I have always taken a great delight, long remain among the treasured institutions of the Town and County of Peterboro, is the parting wish of,

Gentlemen,
Your Grateful
WM. JOHNSTON,
Late Ensign of No. 1 Company. 57th Batt.
Peterboro.

The watch had Mr. Johnston's name neatly engraved in it, and is certainly a very nice present. Dr. Kinnaird occupied the stand with Lieut-Col. Poole, during the presentation.

School Pic-Nic.

On Friday last, there was a union Pic-Nic of the children and friends of Sections No 10 and 16 in the Township of Otonabee. The gathering was in the beautiful woods belonging to Mr. Donnelly, just beside Miss Ray's School House. There were not less than 400 people and children present.

On the previous evening, several young men had met and erected a platform for the children, made tables and put up swings, for the amusement of the children old and young—for both classes seemed to enjoy themselves.

About 2 o'clock, p. m., the children of Miss Ray's School, and their teacher, and Miss Potter and her children took possession of the platform. One of the boys acted as Chairman.

Several pieces were then recited in a clear and intelligent manner. We are sorry we cannot give the names of those who acted their parts so well, and who did so much to contribute to the pleasantness of the afternoon.

At the close of the recitations and singing, Rev. Mr. Butcher, Bible Christian Minister, made a pleasant and encouraging speech to the teacher, children and people, in which he spoke very favorably of the pupils, and the manner in which they had performed their part, and of the teachers, and the admirable manner in which they had prepared the children.

All the children assisted by Miss Ray, then sung our National Anthem.

The recitations, singing and speech being concluded, a bell was rung, when all gathered around the tables. These were literally groaning under the superabundance of dainties provided by the good people of the neighborhood. Although about 400 sat down, and gave satisfactory proof of healthy appetites, yet there was enough left to supply 200 more. They had left ample margin for profit and loss account, caused by innumerable visitors from town, North Monaghan, Smith and Ashburnham

There could not be a nicer place for a Pic-Nic than Mr. Donnelly's woods, and it would be difficult to find a more sociable and pleasant assembly of people than were present on Friday. The Lady show was on a grand scale, and there were not a few who seemed earnestly to admire them.

After spending the afternoon in chit-chat, games and amusements till about 7 o'clock, all separated, satisfied that a Pic-Nic in Otonabee is a splendid affair, and not a few satisfied that separation is not a pleasant word to carry into effect.

Union School Examination.

The half yearly examination of the pupil's of the Grammer and Union School, took place on Thursday and Friday last. The number of visitors was not equal to what might reasonably be expected on such an occasion, nevertheless, in the afternoon of both days, a good many parents and others visited the rooms.

We believe we may safely say, that at no time hitherto has the school been in a more prosperous state. All the departments are full, and there is a daily cry for more room, which the board is preparing to meet as soon as possible.

The pupils in the different rooms acquitted themselves well. In the grammar school proper, Master's Sawyers, Beak and King, read essays which showed considerable research and independence of thought for boys. Master Beck's essay and delivery was very good, and Master King's would certainly pass for original. All the essays were attentively listened to.

The girls of the fourth division presented Miss Beatty, their teacher, with a handsome cake basket worth about $7, with her initials neatly engraven on it. The address was read by Miss Richardson, and the presentation made by Miss Brownlee, Miss Beatty replied extempore in a very suitable manner.

On Friday Miss Borrowman received a handsome present from her pupils in the shape of a beautiful album. The Principal speaks favorable of all the departments. The attendance at the north-ward school was greater than has been for some time before.

Town Council.

The Council met on Monday evening.

Present.—The Mayor, and Messrs. Toole, Edmison, Stevenson, Doharty, Helm, Dennistoun, Lunday, English, Smith, and O'Biarne.

The Minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Communications were received and read from E. Pearse, Esq., County Clerk, acquainting the Council that the County Council had appointed S. S. Peck, Esq., arbitrator, on behalf of the County to consider the amount to be paid by the corporation of the Town of Peterboro to the County, for the administration of Justice, and other matter from J. Wilson, Esq., of Kingston, to the Clerk, stating that he would not consent to his plans for the water works being retained and opened, unless he be allowed to compete on equal terms with others.

From J. Kennedy, Esq., of Owen Sound, to the Clerk, asking what steps the Council had taken in reference to the plans for the water works, and intimating that he was intitled to the bonus offered by the Council.

A petition from Robert Hamilton and Robert Patterson, asking the Council to make repairs on the sidewalk on the north side of Sherbrook street, was read, and on motion was referred to the street Inspector.

Moved by Mr. Dennistoun, seconded by Mr. Helm,—That Messrs. O'Beirne, Smith, Toole, Lunday, Stevenson and the Mover, be a committee to collect all the information they can with reference to water works for the Town of Peterboro, and to report the result of their enquiries to the Council as soon as may be convenient, and at the same time to consider the advisability of introducing steam fire engines into the town.

Moved by Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Edmison,—That the Clerk be instructed to return the plans of Mr. Wilson, without delay.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Dennistoun, seconded by Mr. Lundy,—that whereas the Town Council of the Town of Peterborough have been informed that the Unit Board of Grammar and Common Schools, intend forthwith to erect a new building, which it appears has become necessary for the accommodation of pupils, and have determined to put up such a building as may hereafter be suitable for a teacher's residence, when Ward Schools shall have been established.

And whereas the said United Board have determined with a commendable view toward economy to erect such new building upon the school grounds, and have determined to place the same on the South side of said school grounds.

And whereas, in the opinion of the said Town Council, great care should be taken with reference to the permanent occupation of any part of the South part of the said school grounds, either by the erection of a new School House or teacher's residence thereon, as any such permanent occupation would detract from the appearance of the present handsome school building, and would encroach largely upon the grounds now used and required as a play ground in connection with the said school; and would interfere with the beauty and sufficiency of the school and grounds.

And whereas, in the opinion of the said Town Council a sufficient quantity of room could be better afforded on the North front of the said school grounds, directly opposite Harvey Street, for the erection of a new building to be used in the meantime as a School, and ultimately as a teacher's residence, and would be for many reasons more convenient and desirable than any situation on the South part of the said grounds.

Be it therefore resolved, that this Council respectfully request the said united School Board to reconsider their determination above recited, and that the Mayor, Mr. Smith, Mr. Edmison, and the Mover, be a committee to wait upon the said Board and represent to them the views of the Council; and further, that the Town Clerk forthwith transmit a copy of this resolution and preamble thereto, to the Secretary of the said United Board.—Carried

On motion Mr. O'Beirne, seconded by Mr. Smith, the Treasurer was instructed to remit Mr. Kennedy the $100 to which he is entitled, as a bonus for his plans for the proposed Water Works.

Mr. O'Beirne read and submitted a report of the Finance Committee to the following effect:

That the committee had inquired into the petition of F. Lemay, and that they could not recommend the Council to satisfy his claim, and in regard to Mr. Stethem's claim for damaged powder, that they did not feel themselves warranted in recommending a settlement of his claim.

The report recommended payment of Mr. Edwards as returning officer, $2; R. White, two teams $3; W. Tierney, 1 do $2; D. Henthorn, 1 do, $4.

The report further recommends that Mr. Howden's engagement as constable terminate, his services being unnecessary.

On motion of Mr. Doherty, seconded by Mr. Helm,—The street Inspector was instructed to examine the bridge on Hunter street, near Doherty's shop, and report to the Council as to necessary repairs and cost.

On motion of Mr. Edmison, seconded by Mr. Toole, the street Inspector was director to call the President of the Midland Railway Company to comply with the requirement of the statute in reference to fencing Railway lands, and in the event of the company not doing so in one month to report to this council.

The Council adjourned for two weeks.

IMMIGRATION.—About 12 families, consisting of 60 persons, arrived here yesterday by the noon train. They are partly English, and partly Irish. One half of them are small children. Mr. John Galvin took a man and his wife and three children.—Mr. Samuel Manning, a young man. Mrs. Stone, Buckhorn, a young woman. There were plenty of applicants for them, but they are all from English towns, and are not fit for farm work. They really require a gentle application of Arran yarn. They are hardly the right kind of Emigrants for Canada, but by industry they may succeed very well.

We have to apologise to our readers for the delay in this issue. Owing to some mismanagement at the Grand Trunk, paper ordered sometime, and of which we had received the invoice and account of shipment on Saturday last, did not reach here yet, and in consequence we had to telegraph for paper, and wait its arrival.

President Grant has determined to carry out his peace policy in reference to Cuba, and Congress has passed a resolution to that effect. He proposed to remonstrate against Cubanites and to seek the aid of other nations, if necessary, to prevent them. The object of the resolution is to strengthen his hands in dealing with filibusterers.

A very extensive fire took place in Montreal since our last. $200,000 or $300,000 of property was destroyed. The reflection was distinctly seen on the United States frontier.

A NEW PAPER ON POULTRY.—We have received the first number of the Canadian Poultry Chronicle, published in Toronto, in the interest of improvement of Poultry in the Dominion. It is neatly got up, and will be of service to the farmer, fancier and breeder, who wish to improve in this line The cost is $1.50 per annum.

Brigham Young writes to announce that he has only 16 wives and 45 children living. Few would desire his position, although, perhaps, unlike Brigham, they have concubines or paramours equal to the number of his wives and children.

The Fenians taken by the United States authorities have been brought before the Courts, but no bills found against them.

No change in the Markets since our last.

Sudden Death.

Mr. R. B. Palmer, of Peterboro, had been staying at Mr. James McKibbins, Smith, attending a horse for the past four weeks, occasionally he would go into the garden, or adjoining field to hoe some vegetables. He made a hearty dinner on Tuesday and appeared in excellent health and spirits.

About 2 o'clock he went out to the field and shortly afterwards Mr. McK. noticed him walking in a stooping posture towards the fence, where he observed him falling, and hastening there, found him lying with his face downwards, quite motionless and insensible. Happening to have a pail of fresh drawn water at hand, he at once applied some to his wrists and head, had him conveyed to the house, and continued using the cold water.

Dr. G. Burnham, Jr., was sent for in haste, and promptly attended, when he said the attack was Congestion of the Brain, caused by sun-stroke. Although he pronounced the case hopeless he thought it best to administer the remedies resorted to under such circumstances. All was of no avail, he never returned to consciousness, and died at 2½ o'clock the same night. During the day the thermometer stood at 96° in the shade, and 108° in the sun.—Com.

Galway.

Dear Examiner.—

In my rambles through Galway, I see that the hay crops will be light this year. The Fall crops look very thin on thr ground, but yet seem healthy. Spring crops look well so far. We had a fine shower last Sunday, which will help the crops very much, before the shower every thing looked dry and parched. I was at Kinmount yesterday, everything is quiet there, James Aitkes, Esq., has opened a new store there, and seems to be doing a fair business, I trust he will obtain a reasonable share of the trade of the locality. I observe that the heat there, yesterday, was 90° in his shop. I perceive, through struggling, Victoria Council has granted an equivalent to Peterboro on the Bobcaygeon Road. The great bear was, it will benefit Peterboro. Short-sighted—very. What quantity of sawed lumber goes from the County of Peterboro yearly to Lindsay, for shipment, and certainly for the benefit of that town? Trusting in my next to be able to chronicle the commencement of the work on the road,

I remain, &c.,

London.

London is five times more populous than New York, four times more populous than St. Petersburg, twice as populous as Constantinople: there are nearly two-thirds more people in it than Paris, and one-fourth more population than Pekin. It contains as many people as Scotland, twice as many as Denmark, and three times the number of Greece. Every eight minutes, night and day, one person dies; every five minutes, one is born. Eight hundred thousand have been added to its population since 1851. Only half a million of all this population attend public worship, and there are a million of absentees, who if inclined to come would require to have 808 new places of worship built for them. A hundred thousand people work on Sundays; there are 150,000 habitual gin drinkers; 100,000 intoxicated people taken every year off the streets; 100,000 fallen women, 10,000 professional gamblers, 20,000 children trained in crime; 20,000 thieves and receivers of stolen goods. RADWAY'S READY RELIEF is a household medicine, which no prudent family, that understands its value will ever be without. It instantly arrests pain, and its effects, as a diffusive stimulant, anodyne, nervine in cholera, cholera morbus, bilious choleic spasms, &c., malarious diseases, &c., transcends those of any other preparation known. As an external application for burns, bruises, wounds, scalds, &c., it has no equal. Pain or

IMMIGRATION.

To Farmers, Manufacturers and Others in quest of Ordinary or Skilled Labour.

The Immigration Society of Peterborough, desirous of securing immig ation to this portion of the Province, and supplying whatever demands there may be for the various descriptions of labour, hereby give notice to all who may be desirous of procuring labour—male or female—and to the various municipalities in the County, that James Edwards, Esq., Clerk of the Town of Peterborough, has been appointed the Registrar of the Society, and that as such Registrar Mr. Edwards will preserve a record of the different descriptions of labour that may be applyed for to him. From the information thus supplied the Society hopes to induce an immigration that will at least equal the demand for labour, if not assist very materially in settling much of the at present unproductive land in the County.

A registrar of lands for sale or to lease will also be preserved by the Registrar; and those giving information of lands for sale or to lease will have the advantage of having their lands placed prominently in the market, and brought under the especial notice of those who may desire to settle upon improved or partially improved lands.

Emigrants are now on their way from the Old Country, and many have already arrived. In order, therefore, that the efforts of the Society may be productive of benefit to the community, it is essential that information be at once given to Mr. Edwards, verbally or by letter, of the labour required, lands for sale or to lease, &c.

Those making application to the Registrar will be supplied with labourers at the earliest opportunity, and will be promptly notified of their arrival.

How merciless War went abroad in the land,
And instead of the sunshine and dew
Young dying men drave, mixed, blood on the soil,
Where the corn, the good yellow corn grew.
For yonder away where the Cumberland rolls,
Was daughter a twelve-month ago.
And Death, dragging men through the stalks of the corn,
Your babes and green pennons low.

Then silver-winged Peace in the still, solemn night,
Bid Alchemy work with its might,
And dowring from dark'ning shadows of life
Make blood help the good army still.

And health to thee, Corn! dew-drops to thy leaf.
Each holding its miniature sun,
And air to thy crest, warm rain to thy root,
Till the full-burdened seed-time has come.

Then brown, willing hands, that were strong at the plough,
Are clasping a gun far away;
And eyes open Ho, never shutting again,
Idle hands, till the Great Harvest-Day.

The women, black-robed, are waiting for thee,
And Autumn, to bring bread again.
Arise, Corn! and grow strong with the life at thy root,
The blood of our lost heroes slain.

And then in the voice of the September wind
We shall hear what the sleeping ones say,
And go, like the lark to the light in the sky,
Thanking God for the dawn of the day.

THE following remarks on Testimonials of most wonderful and extraordinary cures in Canada by the GREAT INDIAN REMEDY. They are stern, undeniable and incontestable facts, sufficient to convince the most skeptical that the Great Medicinal Compound prepared after for ages is now accessible in the Great Shoshonees Remedy.

For Diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Liver, Digestive Organs, Kidneys, &c., as well as Scrofula, the various Skin Diseases, Humors, and all diseases arising from impurities of the blood, we boldly state that this great remedy has NEVER BEEN EQUALLED. Where was there ever such a cure as that in the person of Wilson Storms, of Brighton, Ontario, of Consumption; or that of Peter C. V. Miller, of Evanstown, Ontario, of Consumption; or that of Ambrose Wood, of Cameron, Ontario, of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint; or that of John Hoey, of Papanee, Ontario, of Rheumatism, who had actually been on crutches for years, in spite of all treatment heretofore, and is now well. Scores of such cases might be mentioned had we space.

Poetry.

Archy Skellton's Account of Himself.

[Sometimes called the Apostate's Palinode.]

BY A. GRAHAM.

When I was a dabbling, the truth I tell you,
I never felt happy, but when I was fu';
My mind was confused, my feelings were hard,
My hand's were ape ready, come can fur to Cord'
I accounted them friends, who loved the glass,
The friendship was shallow, to you I confess.
Twas whisky we wanted, to friend or foe in
The truth our love was, the was drap in our Fu.
For oft when we had got a bumper or two,
Strife would then begin, and a quarrel ensue;
For the drink made us mad, our brains it did
fire,
Oh fighting like tigers among dirt and mire.
If there was a mad hole when fighting alang by,
Its deepness we often were made for to try;
And often on all fours did splatter about,
A sad looking picture when we did get out.
Thirty years serving Satan through alcohol,
In that time I gagvid many a mad hole,
And he'd strip those who offended him of their clothes,
[he called that carding them]
Had it not been for those men called the Temperance Band,
I still would have been under the Devil's command;
Thank God, I am now free from the foul fiends control,
Drink shall not enable him to ruin my soul.
God help ing me I receive no more to taste,
No more shall drink bring me below the brute beast;
Bumpers and crosses, they not us me strong,
Saying I will not keep to the pledge very long.
How out of their clothes, I hope I shall keep,
They laugh at me now, but I fear they shall weep:
At the day of judging, I hope to get free,
With the penitent thief a saved one to be.
When drinking, I durst not look into God's word,
Since sober, I've given my heart to the Lord;
The temperance sword it did me defend,
To temperance instructions an ear I did lend.
They told me to fight for it was a good cause,
The Ruler o'er all, I found gave them their laws;
I've fought myself out from the drunkard's sad course,
My health it is better, and so is my purse.
I now can love all men, I am happy and free,
Bad roads I now shun, and the mud holes I see,
Praying for living grace to keep me aye so,
That I like a wise man in future may go.

Weeding Potatoes.

It may not be known to farmers in general that it is a common practice in some of the potato-growing districts to turn a flock of sheep into the potato field for the purpose of eating down the weeds. The sheep will not touch the potato vine. This pasturing with sheep is very advantageous when the crop is a late planted one, so that the hoeing cannot be completed until the haying or harvesting is finished. At the growing season it is the farmer's aim to keep down the grass and the weeds so that they may be covered by the cultivator and hoe, when these are used. Pasturing with sheep will obtain this object. Early planted crops, the cultivation of which is completed in the early part of the summer, frequently becomes grassy and weedy before the time of digging, when the nice of the tops precludo cultivation. In this stage the sheep are economical weeders. It is hardly necessary to mention that the feed thus given to the sheep makes a double profit, inasmuch as it costs absolutely nothing, while labor is saved and weeds prevented from seeding.—"Farmer and Fireside."

To Stop Potatoes Rotting.

An experienced agriculturist informs us that about four years ago he applied lime to potatoes that had commenced to rot, and that it immediately arrested the decay. Since then he had made it a common practice to apply slacked lime to his potatoes as he takes them up. He puts a thin layer of lime upon the floor where the potatoes are to be laid, and sprinkles some of it over them about every ten inches, as they are put down. He considers this as perfectly protecting them from rotting, as he has never had a rotten potatoe since he has practised it and he believes, also, that potatoes thus stored are rendered better by the action of the lime. We advise farmers to try this plan, if they have any kind of potatoe that is liable to decay in the bin, as the lime can generally be had by them all.

"Is that marble?" said a gentleman pointing to a bust of Kentucky's great statesman, recently in a New York store. "No, sir; that's Clay," replied the dealer.

Stores, dwellings, railroad cars, steamboats, etc., should be furnished with Johnston's Patent air-tight Weather Fenders, placed around doors and windows they effectually exclude wind, dust, rain, frost or snow, and render perfect ventilation easy of accomplishment. The rooms used by invalids should certainly have this protection —Try them—cheap useful and ornamental. Real, genuine live men liberally dealt with as agents. Were awarded Extra Prizes at the Provincial Exhibition, 1869. For circular address—J. Johnston & Co., Lindsay, Ont., Manufacturers Agents.

4 25 vs. $500 00.

Economy in Health and Physic is as important as in business, and we know of no cheaper, better, or surer means of preserving health and divesting the sick of their infirmities, than through the medium of Dr. Radway's famous medicines. We present a case in point:

Case 1, 226.—Marcus W. Mount, long a sufferer from liver complaints, has paid, he says, at different times, about $250 to physicians, and he thinks as much more for medicines. Is induced to try Radway's Pills, with occasional doses of the Renovating Resolvent, to assist in removing from his system the effects of the mercurial treatment to which he has been subjected. Soon feels the benefit of the change Takes, in all, five boxes of the Pills and three bottles of the Resolvent, and at the end of the course is "as well as ever he was in his life."

Bills for medical attendance, $250; outlay for prescriptions, $250.....$500 00
Five boxes of Radways Pills, $3 25; three bottles Resolvent, at $1 each, $3—(disease removed).....4 25
Balance in favor of the REGULATING PILLS and RESOLVENT.....$495 75

R. R. R. Remedies sold by Druggists and Country Merchants. See Dr. Radway's Almanac, 1870.

If a pensive chintz pines him instantly fat on the floor, or bust on his back, and let him lay quietly for ten minutes or so, it is simply a fainting fit, and the blood flowing on a level will speedily equalize itself through the system. If you are troubled with rheumatism, pleurisy, pain in the side or back, cramps in the stomach bowels, frost-bites, &c., procure at once a bottle of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer" which is a certain cure for all such complaints. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine has any remedy won so universal confidence in any community as this CHERRY PECTORAL has in this. Having been long employed by our own physicians in their practice, and having been used in the hospitals of this city, it is at the same time the most extensively known and the most reliable remedy for the various pulmonary complaints of the human family that has ever been given to the world. While it is the safest and best remedy for children to take, and is used as such by many of the most eminent physicians of the country, it is also the most effectual that can be employed for the cure of the dangerous diseases of the throat and lungs. As a protection against sudden attacks, it should be in every family, and those who have once used it will never be without it. In all the various affections of the throat and lungs for which it is recommended, it will be found to produce the prompt and happy effect which all similar preparations fail to give, because they do not contain the curative properties of this. Public confidence in its virtues is unbounded, and it is the duty of every one to know that this confidence is entirely justified by its effects. As a protection against the first approach of disease, and for the cure of the early stages of pulmonary complaints, it is unequalled, and, when taken according to the directions, which have been carefully prepared, will soon restore the patient to perfect health. Many of the most eminent members of the profession, in every part of the country, have given their certificates to the Cherry Pectoral, and it is now the only medicine of the kind which can be relied on. Many of these certificates have been published in this country, and the reader can satisfy himself of the truth of what we say by examining them. Let no one neglect a cough or cold, however slight, while it is within the power of the Cherry Pectoral to cure it so easily and speedily. Even when consumption has fastened its fangs upon the victim, and the insidious disease is sapping the springs of life, this remedy will be found to afford the patient great relief, and counteract the progress of the disease. Thousands have been saved by it, who, in the last stages of pulmonary consumption, were pronounced incurable by their physicians, and given over by their friends. Prepared by

Ayer's Ague Cure,
For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Autumnal Fever, Chills and Fever, Periodical or Bilious Fever, Remittent Fever, Marsh Fever, or Miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does "Cure." It does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Mercury, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in no case injures any patient. The number and importance of the cures in the super-abundant districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicines. Our pride is perhaps pardonable, when we show that we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed. Unacclimated persons, either residents in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Bilious Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy action.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. AYER & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all round the world.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of scrofulous disease, where life appeared sustained scarcely by hope, have been entirely cured, and their original health restored, by its use. Cases of this character, which were regarded as incurable, are publicly known in every community. Indeed, there is hardly a family in the land that has not been benefited by its virtues, or that does not know of some wonderful cure of scrofula, in its various forms, either on the surface or deep seated. Its power over this terrible disease arises from the fact that it expels the foul humors which breed and feed it, and then purifies, invigorates, and gives new life to the blood and the whole system. While it is the most powerful blood purifier yet discovered, it is at the same time the safest alterative and tonic that can be employed for the cure of chronic diseases. It is the greatest antagonist of scrofula, and will expel it from the system, however long it may have been there, or however much it may have become aggravated by neglect or by the use of inferior remedies. Under its influence, the foul corruptions which breed in the blood and develop in such fearful forms on the surface, are purified and disappear, and the vital organs are renovated and built up. Hence the unparalleled cures it has made of Tetter, Salt Rheum, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions and visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in those more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Pleurisy, Jaundice, and the various Uterine affections of the female and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will expel the last vestige of Mercury or Mineral Poison from the system, and all the Venereal Symptoms, such as Ulcerations, and Pustular Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising as they often do, from the resulting poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Feeble, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

HEALTH! BEAUTY!!

Strong, Pure and Rich Blood—Increase of Flesh and Weight—Clear Skin and Beautiful Complexion, Secured to ALL.

RADWAY'S
SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT

has made the most astonishing cures. So quick, so rapid are the changes effected by the wonderful influence of this truly WONDERFUL MEDICINE, that

Every Day an Increase in Flesh and Weight is Seen and Felt.

Scrofulous Constitutions, Syphilitic, engendered and badly treated Mercurial Diseases, the sad victims of Quacks, Poisons, Minerals, Impure Blood, and all complaints arising from Vitiated Humors in the Blood, are within the curative range of Radway's Sarsaparilla Resolvent. Even in the last stages of these fearful diseases, when the system is literally rotten with corruption, and all wasted away by the destroying agents, Mercury, Minerals, Poisons, Vitiated Humors in the Blood, Scrofula, Consumption, Glandular Affections, Ulcers, Old Sores, Skin Diseases, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, Rheumatism, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Pimples on the Face, Blotches, Blackheads, Worms, Scurvy, Itch, Mange, Discases of the Bladder, Kidneys, Liver, Stomach, Bowels, Blood, Heart, Lungs, Nervous Debility, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness, Fever and Ague, Inflammations, Congestions, Ulceration of the Throat, Lungs, Kidneys, Bladder, Female Complaints, Leucorrhœa, Gravel, Dropsy, Pains in the Back, Loins and Kidneys, Sciatica, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Female Weakness, Involuntary Discharges, Spermatorrhœa, Impotency, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Want of Confidence, Lassitude, Nervous Prostration, Hysteria, Fits, Epilepsy, Paralysis, Diseases of the Nerves, Organic Weakness, Diseases of the Urinary Organs, Female Irregularities, Suppressions, Whites, Ulceration of the Uterus, Pain in the Side, Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising as they often do, from the resulting poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLIAN is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Feeble, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

THE WASTES OF THE BODY

are supplied with new, healthy and vigorous blood, that furnishes sound structure. Hence all restorations of Wasted Structure, either in MALE or FEMALE, of the Womb, Uterus, or other organs, whether Locomotive, Glands, or Muscles discharges of every kind from the organs of Self-Abuse, from the Genital Glands, or Venereal discharges, or Ulcers, or Sores, through the rapeseed process of Radway's Renovating Resolvent, are ascertained, and the rapeseed process learned.

THE TRUE THEORY OF CURE.

Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent rapidly purifies the system, through the blood, urine, sweat and bowels, and expels the poisons, or waste matter making Flesh-making, Bone or Chloric and Fat-making elements. All of its constituents are separating, purifying, strengthening, giving vitality, firmness, and power and of the best products of Roots, Herbs, Barks, Gums, Resins, Buds and Flowers, as Sarsaparilla, Yellow Dock, Stillingia, Mezereon, Guaiac, Cocculus Indicus, Wild Cherry, Prickly Ash, Poke, Dandelion, Burdock, Blue Flag, Sarsaparilla, Queen's Delight, Mandrake, Dandelion, Juniper Berries, Sulphur, Iodine, Bromine, Iron, Manganese, Lobelia, Gentian, Wormwood, Arsenic, Antimony, Nitrate of Potash, Hydriodate of Potash, Sulphate of Magnesia, Sulphate of Soda, Muriate of Soda, Muriate of Ammonia, Carbonate of Ammonia, Hydrochlorate of Ammonia, Colchicum, Hellebore, Colchicum, Sanguinaria, Cinchona, Cinchonia, Quinia, Saline, Mercurial, Vegetable, Animal, Acids, Alkalies, Extracts, Essences, Salts, Resins, Gums, Oils

KADEC, County of Hastings,
Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th., 1869.
This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ankles, which gradually during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on up to my hips, and I became so weak that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two years, while this weakness was coming on me, and afterwards, I sought medical advice, employing, at different times, three doctors, and medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, but of no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoshonees Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had begun to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshonees Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was not a private one, but known to all my neighbors and friends; and to any one afflicted as I was, I have only to say try the Shoshonees Remedy; I believe it will cure you,
MARY ANN DOUGHTY.

I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshonees Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.

THE FENIAN INVASION.

A Parody on "The Charge of the Light Brigade."
(NOT BY TENNYSON.)

A little way, a little way,
A little way over
Into the lion's mouth
Went the Fenian few hundred.
"Forward," ye Irish now for a raid,
"And Canada is yours, be japers!" he said,
Into the lion's mouth
Went the few hundred.

"Forward," said O'Neill, altho' I'm afraid
"The Fenian army is sorely dismayed."
For then the madman knew
That they had blundered;
Theirs not to reason why,
There not to fight or die,
Theirs but to run and hoot and cry;
So out of danger's way
Ran the few hundred.

Breech-loaders to right of them,
Breech-loaders to left of them,
Artillery around them,
Volleyed and thundered.
Stormed at and fired at well,
They gave a horrid Irish yell,
As into the jaws of Death,
Into the lion's mouth they fell,
Some of the few hundred.

Fluttered their coat tails high in air,
Fluttered as they ran with fear,
Making a noble prince cheer;
Throwing their arms all away,
While Pigeon Hill wondered.
Stifled with British powder and smoke,
Back across the lines they broke,
The wretches reeling as they went,
Drunken and hungered!
Then they went home;
But not, not all the few hundred.

Breech-loaders to right of them,
Breech-loaders to left of them,
Artillery around them,
Volleyed and thundered.
Stormed at and fired at well,
They gave an Irish-Fenian yell,
They who had ran so well,
Came thro' the jaws of death,
Back from Pigeon Hill,
All that was left of them—
Left of a few hundred.

When shall their glory fade?
Oh! what a fine retreat they made,
And nothing they have plundered.
Honor to the retreat they made,
Remember the Irish-Fenian raid,
And the ragged few hundred.

A Safe Investment.

In the second year of the late civil war I was married, and went to live with my husband in a small village on the Hudson, some fifty or sixty miles from New York.—The house we occupied was a large, rambling mansion, of considerable antiquity for this country, and stood a little apart from the rest of the village, surrounded by broad fields, and commanding a glorious view of the river and the hills of the Highlands. It had been built before the Revolution, by my husband's great grandfather, and, though destitute of many "modern improvements," was still a comfortable and pleasant residence.

My husband was a lawyer and a large real-estate owner in the neighborhood, and, at the period of which I write, was greatly perplexed, like many other persons in the North, by the perilous state of the times, and especially about the safe investment of his funds, as the suspension of specie payments, the great rise in gold, and the military disasters in Virginia, made it almost impossible to tell where it would be safe to deposit or use one's money in any large amount.

In the course of his transactions in real-estate, it happened one day, that he received, what was for us then a large sum of money, about ten thousand dollars, which he brought home and placed in my charge, telling me at the same time that he should have to be absent during the evening, attending to some business on the other side of the river, and should not be at home till about midnight.

"You can place the money in the safe, dear," he said, as he gave it to me, "and to-morrow I will try and find some way to invest it securely."

So saying, he stepped into the buggy, which was standing at the door, and drove away, taking with him our hired man, Silas, and leaving me with no one in the house but Dinah, an old colored woman, who fulfilled in our modest household the functions of cook and maid-of-all-work, as she had long done in the family of my own parents, who, on my marriage, had yielded her to me as a valuable part of my dower.

Dinah was indeed a character. She was tall and very stout, weighing she would never tell how much, more than 200 pounds She was very black, and as lazy as she was black. I do not think any one could move more deliberately than Dinah did, that is, to move at all. And, by a wonderful dispensation, she seemed to feel that whatever her faults might be, she was strong on the point of locomotion. For when she had been moving with a ponderous slowness, almost maddening to a person of ordinary quickness, one of her favorite expressions was, "Well, Miss Cillie, what shall I fly unto next?" How she accomplished all she did, the brownies only know. We used sometimes almost to tremble when there was any special hurry about our domestic arrangements, and yet Dinah always managed to bring affairs to a consumation just when a minute more would have ruined everything; and with undisturbed front would slowly enunciate: "Well, Miss, what shall I fly onto next?"

It was nearly dark when my husband departed, and, after giving my orders to Dinah, or rather my suggestions, I left her, and made the tour of the house, to see that all was safe, and properly locked up. This duty attended to, I went to my bed-room, intending to pass the time in reading till my husband should return.

It was a large room on the ground floor with two French windows opening on a broad verandah. The windows were draped with long yellow-silk curtains, between which the moonlight faintly entered, dimmed by the shadow of the roof of the piazza and partly intercepted by the fringe of woodbine which hung from it. My bed stood with its head about half a yard from the wall. It was an old-fashioned structure, hung with yellow silk like the windows, but I slept with the hangings drawn back and fastened to the head-board. The bed was so large that no one ever thought of moving it, except in those seasons of household panic called house-cleanings, when the combined strength of three or four men was called into requisition to draw it into the middle of the room. So elaborately carved was it that it went by the name of Westminster Abbey in the family. At one end of the room, at no great distance from the bed, was a large safe, built into the huge chimney of the mansion, with a door high enough for a person to enter standing upright. Here I was accustomed to place, every evening, our silver plate on shelves which extended around the sides, on which also were placed boxes containing papers and other valuables. Opposite the foot of the bedstead, between the windows, was a mirror, running from the floor almost to the ceiling. Like all the other furniture in the room, it was old and handsome. How many happy scenes it had reflected in the hundred years it had stood there!

The night was exceedingly hot, and I therefore left the windows open, though I drew the curtains before I seated myself at the table in the centre of the room, lighted the candles, and began to read, in order to pass the heavy time before the return of my husband.

After a while, I heard the clock strike nine, at which hour Dinah always went to bed. Her chamber was the attic in the third story of the house. Remembering some household matter about which I wished to speak to her, I started hurriedly up, and went into the entry to intercept her before she got up stairs. I had to wait about a minute before she came, and our colloquy continued three or four minutes more.

When I returned to my bed-room, feeling somewhat tired, I resolved to go to bed, as, at that late hour in the country, it was quite certain that no visitors would call, and my husband could let himself in with the latch key, which he always carried. I thought, however, I would try to keep awake by reading, and accordingly placed a light-stand and the candles at the head of my bed. I then closed and fastened the windows, undressed, and got into bed. The key of the safe I had placed, as usual, under my pillow.

After reading perhaps half an hour, I grew weary of the book, and, quietly laying it down, remained some minutes meditating with my eyes fixed on the mirror opposite the foot of the bed, in which I could see myself reflected, together with the yellow silk curtains behind my head. I was thinking, not unnaturally, how pretty I looked, and how happy I was with such a loving husband, and such a large sum of money secure in our safe, when suddenly I saw in the mirror a sight that made my heart stand still. A hand appeared between the curtains drawing them slowly apart, and grasping cautiously the head-board. It was a man's hand, large and coarse and dark, as if belonging to a mulatto, or to one greatly tanned by exposure to the weather.

My first impulse was to start from the bed and scream for help. I repressed it by a strong effort of will, and lay perfectly motionless, except that I partially closed my eyes, keeping them only sufficiently open to watch the mirror. As quick as lightening my mind took in the situation. In the few minutes of my absence from the room, while talking to Dinah in the entry, a thief, a robber, a possible murderer, had stolen in by the piazza-windows, and had hidden either under the bed or behind its draped head. He was doubtless armed; and, if I cried out, and attempted to escape from the room, he could easily reach the door before I could, and for his own security would probably put me to death. Dinah was too distant, and too feeble and clumsy, to afford me any assistance, and besides was by this time fast asleep in the third story. The man doubtless knew that my husband had that day received a large sum of money, and had gone across the river, leaving me alone or nearly alone in the house. He had entered caring only for the money, and anxious above all things to escape undetected and unrecognized. If I let him know that I was aware of his presence, I should expose myself to murder, and perhaps to outrage worse than murder. My obvious policy was to keep quiet and to feign sleep. I thought also of the money, and was not altogether willing to resign that without an effort to save it, and to have at least something to the identity of the thief. I confess, however, that this last consideration was not a very strong one, and am afraid that, if I could have seen my way clear to an escape from the room and the house, I should have fled incontinently, without waiting to see more than that terrible hand.

A moment which seemed an hour passed while these thoughts rushed through my mind. I lay perfectly still, with my half closed eyes watching the mirror, and he glared at me with fierce yet wary eyes. The man was a mulatto, very dark, with passion written in every lineament. I could scarcely refrain from shuddering at the sight of his hateful visage, and speedily closed my eyes to shut it out.

I was not yet quite ready for the ordeal through which I must soon pass.

I wanted to move my light stand a little out of the way, and to so arrange the bed-clothes that I could spring from the bed without impediment. I therefore gave a little sigh, and moved, as if about to wake, slightly opening my eyes at the same time. The head and the hand instantly disappeared. I then composedly made the desired changes in the position of the stand and the arrangement of the clothes, put my watch with the safe key under my pillow—so near the edge that they could be easily taken out, as I knew they would be—extinguished one of my candles, said my prayers, and closing my eyes, resigned myself to my fate, with no very sanguine or definite hope of extrication from my perilous position.

I made my breathing regular, and a little louder than when I was awake, and lay with my cheek on my hand, counterfeiting sleep. At last the stillness became more terrible than even my first agony of fear. Several times I fancied that I heard a soft step approach from the place of concealment. As often I was deceived. Then again that dreadful stillness, in which I counted the ticking of the watch through the pillow! It was a positive relief when out from behind the curtain, stepped at the table, and stood looking at me, as I was well aware, though my eyes were closed. I forced myself to breath regularly and audibly. He came closer; he bent over me. He passed the lighted candle slowly before my face two or three times. I felt the heat, and saw the light through my closed lids, which must have quivered, though he did not seem to observe their motion. Heaven gave me strength not to move or cry out. Satisfied, apparently, he put back the candlestick on the stand, and his hand crept slowly over and softly under the pillow, and one by one he removed my watch and the key of the safe. He stood so long looking me that I felt impelled to open my eyes suddenly upon him.

As he walked softly towards the safe, I did partly open them, and cautiously watched him through my eyelashes. I heard him fumbling with the lock, and once he looked over towards the bed.—My eyes were wide open, but I closed them in time not to be detected. Watching him stealthily, I saw him open the door of the safe, go back to the stand for the candle, and return to the safe, which he entered without withdrawing the key from the lock.

Here was the opportunity for which I waited and watched. I sprang lightly from the bed, with one bound reached the safe, dashed the door to, turned the key, and with one loud and long shriek fell prostrate and senseless on the floor of the dark room.

How long I lay upon the floor I do not know—probably a few minutes only—but as I was unconscious, it seemed, when I came to myself, as if the interval had been a long one. I was aroused by his blows on the iron door, and found myself weak after a long nervous tension, but still calm. I remembered the satisfaction with which I thought, while I lay there before rising, that he could not escape, mingled with a vague and foolish dread that he might in his rage burn the valuable contents of the safe. He pounded desperately on the door, and swore fearfully at finding himself entrapped. But as I took no notice of his oaths, he soon grew quiet.

Presently I rose, and lighting a candle, dressed myself with all possible haste and with trembling fingers, turning very often to look at the safe, from under the closed door of which I more than half expected to see blood trickling—why, I cannot tell, except that my mind was full of images of horror. I was soon in readiness. I had no means of ascertaining the time, as he had my watch in his pocket, and there was no clock in the room. Taking my candle, I hastened to arouse Dinah, who, as I shook her, slowly opened her eyes, and with scarcely any more than her usual slowness, pronounced her formula:

"Well, Miss Lillie, what shall I fly—Lord a massy! what's de matter wid de child? You ain't seen a ghost—have you, honey?"

"No, Dinah; but I've seen something worse than a ghost. I've caught a robber, and he's in the safe. What time is it?" and looking at the clock, that ticked slowly and deliberately—as how could Dinah's clock help doing?—I saw to my great relief that it was nearly midnight.

We had scarcely got down stairs when I heard the sound of wheels. A moment more and my husband was in my arms, listening with amazement to a rapid narrative of my singular adventure. I would not suffer him to open the safe until Silas had summoned assistance from the neighboring houses. I feared that my desperate prisoner might still escape. When the safe was opened, there sat my burglar on the trunk, half stupefied for want of air, a knife in one hand, the package of money in the other, and the burnt out candle at his feet. He was recognised as an old offender, who had not been long out of the State Prison, to which, in due course of law, he was sent back for a term of years, which, I devoutly hope may last as long as he lives; for I confess I should not feel easy to hear that he was again at large. The look of rage he gave me on coming out of the safe will not soon be obliterated from my memory.

My husband, I need hardly say, was greatly pleased with my safe investment, and complimented me highly on the courage and coolness which had doubtless saved my life as well as our money. The love and pride with which he regarded me, and with which he always, to this day, rehearses my exploit, were of themselves a sufficient compensation for the horror and the agony of that long summer night.

Another Tragedy.

A murder, equaling the Traupman crime in cold-blooded, calculating atrocity, was committed recently in a London suburb.—A London newspaper says: On Wednesday night a man identified as Walter Mellar, aged 35, a plasterer, living at 29 Seymour place, Brampton, called upon Henry Piper, a van-proprietor, of Marlborough road, and requested him to send to 15 Paulton square to remove some goods. Piper went himself with one of his vans, and Mellar called him down stairs to help to take up a box. Mellar then proceeded to cord the box, but on doing it in an awkward manner, Piper took the cord from him, upon putting it under the box, cipped his hand in a pool of blood. Upon being questioned, Mellar endeavored to escape, but he was handed over to the police, and the box was found to contain the body of Annie Boss, aged forty years, housekeeper to Mr. Huelin, of 15 Paulton square. On the way to the police station Mellar took a dose of poison, but being taken to a doctor's an emetic was given. He is too ill however, to be taken before the magistrate, and is at present in St. George's Hospital.

Search was made for Mr. Huelin, and in consequence of some further information they had received, the police yesterday afternoon had holes dug in the garden, at the back of No. 24, Wellington Square, and lifted up a large stone flag in the water closet at the back of the house, after doing which they dug to the depth of three feet eight inches. They then discovered an archway of bricks and fresh mortar. Upon removing the bricks one of the officers discovered the right arm of a man. He caught hold of the arm and pulled up the hand, upon which was a mitten and a glove.—There was a small quantity of earth between the bricks and the body. Upon removing the earth, Mr. Huelin was discovered in his shirt-sleeves. His head was laying in a hole. Dr. Turner was sent for, and he discovered a rope round the neck of the deceased. He, however, gave it as his opinion that death had not resulted from strangulation, but from a blow inflicted with a spade on the left side of the head, and the wound corresponded with the mark on the sides of the deceased's hat, which was found the day before. The doctor believed the rope had been thrown over Mr. Huelin's neck after death had taken place. In the hole under the foundation of the house, and where the head of the deceased man had been found resting, his coat was found folded up in a small parcel. The rope that had been thrown over his neck was in a slip noose, and the knot has been tightly pulled under the left ear. It is supposed that Mr. Huelin was murdered in the front kitchen, for upon the floor, near the window, there are stains of blood; and chemicals have evidently been used with the view of obliterating the marks. The police, on examining the house of the prisoner, Mellar, discovered the will of the Rev. Mr. Huelin, as well as several title deeds relating to his property.

Mr. Huelin, who was a retired French Protestant clergyman, 80 years of age, owned the small house in which he lived, and also that where his body was found. He employed Mellar to do some plastering, who was heard by a painter, named James Smith, to say that Mr. Huelin and the housekeeper had a great deal of money, and that he wished he could do for them both, get their money, and go to America. To effect his purpose he represented himself to some parties as Mr. Huelin's nephew, dressing in character, and speaking broken English; and in this character he employed a respectable woman named Harriet Middleton, to take care of the house in Paulton Square. His design was to pass himself off as the nephew, and in this character to dispose of all the property. Mr. Huelin's will, and various articles recognized as his property, were found in Mellar's lodgings. He might have escaped for some time, if blood had not so unexpectedly flowed from the body of the strangled housekeeper.

Ask me Not.

Ask me not why smiles no longer,
Wreathe my lips as once of yore,
Nor why joyous measures quicken,
Not the heart throbs as before.

Ah! all flowers from me are fallen,
Ere the fruit hung on the tree;
Many a hope has dawned and faded—
Leaving only dreams to me!

What my courage oft had builded,
With the strength of many years,
Fate with sudden blow hath shattered—
Mocking all my pleas and tears.

Still can I the time remember,
(Morning time, how far away!)
When my confident strong spirit
Hailed the dawn of each new day.

But that spring time world has vanished,
Sunk as in the ocean's bed;
While each wave to fancy mirrors
Forms of loved ones long since dead.

And the world that's now unfolded,
All unveiled and real lies;
Human hearts are hourly breaking—
Frowns are on the frosty skies.

Few the joys this clouded earth-life,
To the wintry soul would bring.
Were there not the sterling promise
Of a glad immortal spring.

Then ask me not while smiles no longer,
Wreathe my pale lips as once of yore,
Nor why joyous music does not quicken,
Not the heart thro

BARLEY.—Mr. James Jack, of Smith showed us some Barley cut on Thursday last, it is quite ripe and appears to be of the very best quality. If all the barley shown in these parts equals Mr. Jack's, beer drinkers will not be at a loss for their beverage.

Dominion Day in Peterboro was unusually quiet this year. Some were at Lindsay; about 120 went to Campbelltown on the Enterprize; probably as many more went on the Ogemah to the Back Lakes; and a large number went to private picnic parties.

In the Imperial Parliament, two amendments to the Irish Education Bill, to permit religious teachings in School, were defeated by large majorities. The principal that a secular education should be now sectarian is right, but it is a principle that will never conciliate the Irish people.—They cannot, nor will they ever be reconciled to British Rule!

JULY 12, 1870.—The different lodges in town, and the lodges of Cavan intend going to Lindsay on Tuesday the 12 inst. The Keene and Allandale lodges will have an excursion on Rice Lake. The lodges near Norwood will celebrate the day by assembling in that Village, we understand.

THE GRAND JUNCTION RAILWAY.—There was a meeting of the provisional directors in Belleville, on Tuesday last. Mr. Kelso was elected President; Mayor Scott of Peterboro, Vice President; and Mayor Robertson, of Belleville, Secretary. It was agreed to locate the route, prepare a scheme of bonuses to lay before the Municipalities interested, and make an effort towards its construction. There will be another meeting in about a month.

MONUMENT TO THE VOLUNTEERS WHO FELL AT RIDGEWAY.—On the first day of this month, the Governor General unveiled a monument at Toronto, in honor of the valiant young men who fell at Ridgeway, in 1866. There was a great gathering on the occasion, and several speeches. Sir John Young, made a very sensible one, in which he referred to the troubles of Ireland, and their continuance, notwithstanding all that was being done to remove abuses, both secular and religious. Mr. Cameron and Dr. McCaul also delivered addresses.

AN ENGLISH WILL CASE.—A man named Moreton, a Catholic, lately died in Liverpool, worth £15,000. On the day of his decease, at noon, he made a will, leaving all this property to the R. C. Bishop of Liverpool. The Doctor who saw Moreton at ten o'clock, 2 hours before his death, says he was insensible then. Canon Fisher, Vicar to the Bishop, drew the will, and testified to Moreton signing it, by the aid of holding him up in bed. The Court pronounced against the validity, on the grounds that the will was not the voluntary act of the dying man.

The Firemen had a gala day in Lindsay, on the 1st instant. Lindsay was dressed in her finest. Everything was done to make the day pleasant, and the people of our sister town succeeded. The Company returned home about 3 o'clock next morning, too early an hour to receive the greetings of the citizens or friends.

The Peterborough men were very handsomely treated by their brother firemen of Lindsay. This interchange of sociality will tend to draw the two towns closer together, and to strengthen the bonds of brotherly kindness, if not of trade.

DROWNED.—On Sabbath evening, two girls, daughters of Mrs. Hefner, were walking on the boom timbers above Dickson's dam, near Judge Dennistoun residence, one of them fell off, when the other attempting to save the first, fell in and was drowned. Strange to say the one that fell in first was saved. The body was found after about an hour and a half search. The girl was about 16 years of age and was of great service in aiding the mother to support a family of 6 children. This melancholy accident should be a warning to the numerous persons that are so often seen around the river on logs and booms sporting themselves, yet not knowing the moment that a false step may bring them to a watery grave.

SQUARE TIMBER.—During a flying visit to Port Hope last week, we noticed our townsman M. P. Jordan, Esq., was busy rafting a large quantity of square timber brought over the Midland Railway, to be rafted on Lake Ontario. This is owing to the damage to the works on the Otonabee and Trent waters, by the Spring floods.—Mr. Jordan has about 200,000 feet of timber in the Port Hope harbor, and one dram of it equals, if not surpasses any thing taken out of the woods for many years. The dram contains about 40,000 feet, and it averages 112 feet. Timber promises to do well this year—hence Mr. Jordan is in for good luck again.

The Pic-Nic at Campbelltown on Dominion Day, was a very pleasant affair we believe, we understand that a very large number went to Rice Lake, and spent a part of the day there. About 120 left town on the Enterprise, and all enjoyed the days fun and sail.

The Excursion on the Ogemah on the Back Lakes to Lindsay and return, was also a very pleasant trip. The day was beautiful, and the gentle refreshing breeze on the lakes charming. Capt. Wallis did all in his power to make all happy, and succeeded admirably—as the excursionists were pleased with the day's sail, the visit to Lindsay, and the treatment and attention they received.

On Tuesday week, Mr. Cartwright, Member for Lennox and Addington, addressed a large number of his constituents in Napanee. The Policy of the Government of the Dominion, was the subject of his remarks. Mr. Cartwright remarked, that he had been a staunch advocate of Confederation, and when elected, felt it his duty to give a reasonable support and indulgence to the Government, to further the interests thereof—and to give the existing Ministry a full and generous support.

Mr. C. went on to say, that it was now four years, reckoning from the last session of the Parliament of the two Canadas, since they had been brought face to face with their new duties, and the country had good right to look for a clear and decided policy at their hands.

In regard to Mr. Hincks—He had always regarded Sir John A. McDonald's early connection with that gentleman as a grave political error, and the source of much if not all the mistakes and extravagance which had disfigured Sir John A. McDonald's career up to 1862. He looked on the selection of Sir F. Hincks as an insult, alike to Reformers and Conservatives, and as a virtual proclamation, so far as Sir John A. McDonald was concerned, that he was determined to have recourse to the old, reckless, make-shift policy which had caused so much injury to the country in the decade from 1850 to 1860, the results of which were still pressing most heavily upon us.

Having always held Sir F. Hincks primarily responsible for these errors, he (Mr. C.) could not with any shadow of consistency act as a supporter of the ministry in which he held office; and he felt bound to add that the financial policy of Sir F. had more than justified his worst anticipations.

Mr. C. dwelt strongly on the inherent danger (particularly in a young country) of borrowing large sums repayable at call or on short notice, and also on the temptation to extravagance when money was obtained in this fashion instead of by means of ordinary loans or direct taxation, called attention to the position of the Ministry, and to the tasks imposed on them, contending that although they had partially succeeded in the first, i. e. in starting the system of confederated, Governments they had displayed much weakness and lack of judgment in the measures adopted for extending and developing its resources.—He thought the Ministry had shown much carelessness in the choice of their subordinates, and had neglected repeated warnings.

As to their policy in respect to the various important schemes of improvement now pending it did not appear to him to have been at all carefully considered.—Looking at their enormous parliamentary majority and bearing in mind that a great proportion of their former duties had been transferred to the local legislatures they ought in all conscience to have been prepared to come down with a clear, well digested scheme on this subject. Advances could not be utilized as they ought for lack of some essential link or further development. Hence we found ourselves at a disadvantage in many ways, and especially in dealing with the United States on questions of reciprocity, and so forth.

Mr. Cartwright has seen the absence of any fixed policy, the mistake of taking Sir F. Hincks into the Ministry, and "the reckless make-ship policy" which is causing so much injury to the country. He declares he can no longer support them, or be a party to their errors and inconsistencies.

How unlike our members Mr. Cariwright is! He boldly and openly avows his dissatisfaction with the reckless policy of Sir John A. McDonald, Hincks and Cartier. He declares they are unworthy of his support any longer. But these know all the errors, and back up all the wrongs, vote for all the extravagance, all the borrowing and all the corruption; in hopes of making a haul themselves. Looking for office as the reward of their support in Parliament, they dare not vote against the grossest corruption lest they might thereby loose the faint hope of some quiet office, or some pickings in some Government Jobs. They can even bear the insults offered to Ontario, and they can wink at the mismanagement of Red River affairs without a rebuke; and these are the men who represent us! Men who have for four years supported the do-nothing-policy of McDonald, Cartier, & Co., and never raised their voices against their inactness. Men who are ready to go back to parliament and continue those men in office although they are squandering the people's money—buying support with the funds that should be spent in building the Intercolonial Railway—forcing the Canadian farmer and artizan to give the last five cent piece he has, by forced loan on a mere promise to pay—and all to continue in power men whom the wise and thoughtful of the land would honestly reject.

There is but one Session more of the misrule, until they must appear before the Electors and render an account of their actions, and we ask the people of these Ridings to note their conduct, and at the proper time bring them to account, and send men who will be more likely to see after the people's interest, and think less about their own.

BANK CHANGES.—We understand that R. Richardson, Esq., manager of the Montreal Bank, here, is about to be promoted to Belleville, to which place he will remove in a few days. Mr. R. has been in Peterboro about 5 years, during which time he has managed the affairs of his bank in a very satisfactory manner, and to the advantage of the institution, which is acknowledged by his promotion. During his stay here Mr. Richardson's kind and courteous conduct has made him a host of warm friends whose best wishes accompany him and his family to their new sphere. H. E. Knowles Esq., of the Cornwall branch is to succeed Mr. R., and will be here by the 15th inst.

More Emigrants.

On Friday last, about 20 more emigrants landed here. They are principally English and Irish, although they all sailed from English ports. They are all mechanics to a and know literally nothing about farm labor. some few of them seem to have plied the hod in the cities and towns of Great Britain. Nearly two-thirds of all who have come here are small children, only one girl fit for service has arrived here yet. The able bodied men and boys were picked up before they reached Port Hope. Farmers from Scarborough met them at the stations and secured them, and we have to be satisfied with what is left.

Many of them are respectable looking and will be able to get on in Canada, others are quite saucy and know how to apply the tongue to those who do not appear willing to gratify every wish. One man, a blacksmith, would not stay in Peterboro and take $1.50 a day, he would go west. He declared he would not work in a shop unless there were 500 hands in it. He had learned to swear exceedingly well too.

Another individual exhibited his religious idiosyncracies by refusing to go to work for a minister of the episcipal persuasion, as he had to see to the interest of his soul as well as body, and prefered, for that end, to work for a Wesleyan Methodist. They must be very pious where this man came from.

They are all getting employment however, and if they were accustomed to farm labor, six-times as many would find immediate work and good pay. One hundred good servant girls would find immediate employment in this County in less than a week, and at as much per month as would be paid in the country they have left for six months service.

It is a great mistake however, sending so many mechanics to this new Country. It is farm labor that is required most, and that will be most required for many years to come.

As an instance of the way they have been paid in England, one young man, a bricklayer, remarked that at home he was accustomed to receive 5s. 10d. to 6s. 6d. but that this was not steady work, perhaps only for a week or two at a time, and then twice as long idle, so that their average wages is very small indeed.

If the governments of Great Britain and Canada would induce young men and young women to come to this Country, they would be doing the emigrants and both Countries good service; for by sending away laborers they would make room for others who stay at home to take their places, and thus afford employment for many that are now idle.

Those who come to this Country would be suited to the work required, and thus Canada would receive her reward for the money spent to induce immigration, and the emigrant would soon find that here he could be independent, could make a home for himself and be ten-times better off than many of his former employers in Britain and Ireland.

But so long as the emigrant gets a start at home remains in the towns and cities, nothing but those who are from the towns will reach us, and while the present system is carried on we must make up our minds to bear with it and make the best of it.

PROTECTION FIRE COMPANY.—At the last regular meeting of Protection Fire Co. No. 1, held in the Fireman's Hall on Tuesday evening July 5th, 1870, it was moved by captain Gibbs, seconded by lieutenant Johnston, and unanimously resolved, that this company tender a vote of thanks to Mr. Dickson, for the sum of Ten Dollars for their services at the late fire on Simcoe street.

CANADIAN SILVER.—The advertisement of Mr. Thos. Menzies deserves attention. He has procured a quantity of Canadian Silver, which he is prepared to exchange for American Silver at the usual discount. Mr. Menzies is agent for the Cunard and Anchor Line of Steamships, and sells drafts on almost every Country in Europe. Read his advertisement in this issue.

Mr. W. Fairweather, also advertizes cheap goods. The Dry Goods men appear determined to give the people cheap goods in exchange for part of the abundance of money in the country.

The European Circus will be in Peterboro on the 14th instant. The performances are highly spoken of, and to those who are fond of this kind of amusement, this will afford an opportunity to gratify their tastes.

Yankee Robinson's great Circus and Menagerie will visit Canada this summer. A menagerie is always a source of great attraction, and deservedly so.

Mr. T. Bradburn's motto is, "never give up business." Nevertheless, he is selling off his goods cheap for cash, and solicits a call.

Minden.

DOMINION DAY. At the little village of Minden was kept this year with unusual hilarity. The whole day was given up to holiday sports, the people from the real bush coming in at quite early hours to observe the anniversary of the birth-day of our new country. The youth of the locality were entertained by the older folks at horse racing, foot racing, walking a pole over the river, boating, and such like games. More flags than ever were displayed from every store, and dwelling-house, from one mile north, and two miles south of the village, quite a merry appearance was put on for the day, including the sound of drums and fifes. The weather was suspicious, heavy rain having fallen the day before.

The Church of England Sunday School was invited to take tea with their Clergyman at the Parsonage at four p.m. many amusements of a quiet, yet stirring nature, whiled away, almost too quickly, the remainder of the day, which concluded with the ever new strain of God save the Queen.—Com.

Galway July 5th, 1870.

DEAR EXAMINER:—

Since my last we have had some excessively hot weather, yet during the week we have been favored with refreshing showers. Last night we had a heavy rain, to-day it is again very hot, accompanied with now and then a pleasant breeze. There has been during the week, several cases of sickness in the neighborhood, (cammon cholera). The missionary student sent here by the Canada Presbyterian Church, has been confined to his room all week by that disease, and has had to send to Bobcaygeon for a physician, he is now somewhat better, but yet weak. One of our oldest settlers, in the female line, left this township rather suddenly, a few days since, to be an ornament to the household of a young man in the neighboring County, and with her goes the entire well wishes of the community among whom she resided, and I can assure you, had the departure been known a good many old boots would have accompanied her for luck.

Haying has now partially commenced here. In my next I will be able to give you some idea of the quality and quantity saved, and of crop prospects generally.

Yours &c.

NOT QUITE SO.

"It is among the most savage and debased trib s only that the condition and comfort of the have been neglected," but we believe there are many in civilized countries who are guilty of the same neglect, and without the excuse of the former; here all may avail themselves of the use of an article which has done more than anything else heretofore known to improve the condition and relieve the suffering of the horse. Those who will not use it will be the losers, their horses the sufferers: to avoid both use "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy," and you will be satisfied with the result. DYSPEPSIA is one of the most frequent diseases with which the physician meets; it is found in every country, at every season of the year, and among all classes of society, and is more generally a malady of middle age, young persons being, as a rule, exempt from it. It usually commences gradually, and in a very insidious manner, producing more or less, distress, and in many instances rendering life a burden. Dr J. Briggs' Alexantor, used according to directions for Dyspepsia, has been proved to be a very superior remedy, and those who use it will not be disappointed in the result. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J. Briggs' & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway, N. Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

Why bears her face the marks of pain?
Why heedless of the song?
Has he, whom she so fondly loves,
Left her young heart forlorn?
More poignant are the pangs she feels;
She suffers from a — corn.

DYSPEPSIA IS A HYDRA-HEADED MONSTER from which nearly all the ills of human flesh is heir to, originate. The Peruvian syrup, a protected solution of the protoxide of iron, is a long-tried and well established remedy for this distressing complaint: it has cured thousands where other remedies have failed.

The efficacy of Bryan's Pulmonic wafers in curing Coughs, Colds, and all Bronchial affections, and cheering the afflicted, has passed into a proverb. In the United States, where those marvellous Wafers are known, they bear down all opposition and eclipse all rivalry; the demand for them has steadily increased for the last twenty years, until now the sale average over one hundred thousand boxes a year. Eminent members of the medical profession without number admit that they know of no preparation producing such beneficial results as these wafers. When taken in season they effect a permanent cure. Sold by every druggist and most of the respectable stores throughout the Province, at 25 cents per box.

The importation of rags from the Mediterranean, hides from Brazil, and other commodities from the tropics, is known to bring the germs of disease, chiefly fevers, which are sometimes very afflicting and fatal. AYER'S AGUE CURE stimulates the Liver to excrete these germs from the system as effectually as it does the miasmatic poison of our ague districts.—Consequently it affords invaluable protection to stevedores and others whose occupations expose them to these dangerous infections: and we hope to render them a valuable service in giving them this information [New York Despatch.

Poetry.

Donning the Motley.

Feeble father talk to little boys
Of life and life's conditions,
And ask what most of all employs
Their juvenile ambitions.
Some answer money, some renown;
My own desires were humble—
I had a wish to be a clown,
To paint my face and tumble.

I carried in my early day
That rough but ready joker,
Who drives the world at large away
Before a reddened poker.
With such a lot in life, said I,
Could mortal ever grumble?
What happiness, was all my cry,
To paint my face and tumble.

But years have given me, I think,
A little more discretion;
If there's a trade from which I shrink
It is a clown's profession.
The paths in life are manifold,
And life itself a jumble;
I should not care, when growing old,
To paint my face and tumble.

And yet my own career, it seems,
Has little more of clover;
I'm waking from Ambition's dreams,
My lover's dreams are over.
My castles in the air decay,
Their walls begin to crumble,
Fate says, be funny; write away—
Come, paint your face and tumble.

How an old Slave Calculated his Age.

The Petersburg (Va.) papers relate the following registration incident in that city:—

An aged colored man came to this voting place upon crutches, seemingly with great difficulty. The rescribed formula, "How old are you?" was asked, when the old man was thrown into much perplexity. Recovering himself, however, he muttered:

"Well, how ole is my ole massa?"

It happened that a gentleman was standing by, well acquainted with him, who promptly answered:

"Your old master is about forty-five years of age."

"Well how ole is missus?"

"She is about forty-five years old."

"Au' Miss Sally?"

"Thirty-five, perhaps, next fall."

"An young missus?"

"Nineteen this coming August."

"Well, I'se older den dey all put together; for I knows when day all was born."

It is needless that the old man was passed amid the good feelings of all present.

Culture of Raspberries.—A prominent cause of failure in the culture of the raspberry is the allowing of the plants to bear fruit the first year. This so weakens them that they make feeble roots, and do not recover afterwards. It is much better to secure small, well-rooted canes for planting than to take strong canes with but a small amount of root, and, in either case, the canes should be cut back nearly to the ground, and then a strong and vigorous growth of canes for the next year's bearing will be secured, with robust healthy plants for the future. The best mode of planting is in rows, three feet apart, the roots one foot from each other, with a stout post at either end of the rows, and strong wires running through, to which the canes should be tied. This is the simplest and neatest mode of training them.

Ashes for Fruit Trees.—We have known quite a number of instances—indeed, so often as to make it quite a rule—that old orchards apparently dying out have been brought back to fruitfulness by the liberal use of wood-ashes; also stirring the soil. Potash is the most important element in the successful growth of all kinds of fruit trees. An old gentleman told a club, not long ago, that he had known a man to make and preserve an orchard of apple trees in a flourishing and productive condition, originally placed on very poor ground, by sprinkling every year around each tree to the circumference of the extent of its branches, half a bushel of ashes. We consider this a very important item.

An Irishman asked a gentleman to write a letter for him. The substance of it was advice to his friend, Tim O'Brien, to come out to America. "Tell him, yer honor," said Patrick, "that we have mate twice a week here." "You know very well that you get it every day," interrupted the amanuensis. "Troth, an' I do; but he would think I was foolin' him.—Sure, he'd not believe me." The letter was ordered to end as follows: "I send you twenty pounds with this, to bring you out here. If you're alive, Tim, you're welcome to it; but if you're dead, you'll just send it back at cost."

An Ill-Fated family.—Mrs. John Alack her brother Richard Delong, and her sister Martha Delong, residing near each other in the township of Kimball and St. Clair, all died of consumption between May 20th and the 3rd of June, a period of only twelve days. In the same family there is only one child living out of fourteen.

A young gentleman recently found himself in company with three young ladies, and generously divided an orange between them. "You will rob yourself," exclaimed one of the damsels. "Not at all," replied the innocent; "I have three or four more in my pocket!"

A lady in Michigan has recently recovered her reason after being insane 23 years. The interval has been a blank, but she remembers vividly whatever occurred before it, and sadly puzzles her new friends by her stories of "what occurred a few weeks ago."

That was an apt reply of the lady, who, at a charity fair, offered the plate to a rich man well known for his stinginess. "I have nothing" was the curt reply. "Then take something, sir," she answered; "you know I am begging for the poor."

A would-be wit asked his old uncle if the telling of a ball did not put him in mind of his latter end. "No sir," he replied, "but the rope puts me in mind of yours."

A gentleman who suicided a few days ago left a note to the landlady, apologizing for making so much trouble, but stating that he must have "some place to die."

A hardy seaman, who had escaped a great shipwreck, was asked by a good lady how he felt when the waves broke over him. He replied, "wet, ma'am, very wet."

An Irishman who was very near-sighted, about to fight a duel, insisted that he should stand six feet nearer his antagonist than the other did to him.

"A real gentleman," said an Irishman one day, "is one that never earned a beporth for himself or anyone belonging to him."

A young lady being asked by a rich old bachelor, "If not yourself, who would you rather be?" replied sweetly and modestly "Yours truly."

STOP AND SEE!

THE following remarks on Testimonials of most wonderful and extraordinary cures in Canada by the GREAT INDIAN REMEDY. They are stern, undeniable and incontestable facts, sufficient to convince the most skeptical that the Great Medicinal Compound yearned after for ages is now accessible in the Great Shoshonees Remedy.

For Diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Liver, Digestive Organs, Kidneys, &c., as well as Scrofula, the various Skin Diseases, Humors, and all diseases arising from impurities of the blood, we boldly state that this great remedy has NEVER BEEN EQUALLED. Where was there ever such a cure as that in the person of Wilson Storms, of Brighton, Ontario, of Consumption; or that of Peter C. V. Miller, of Erneatown, Ontario, of Consumption; or that of Ambrose Wood, of Consecon, Ontario, of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint; or that of John Hosey, of Fapance, Ontario, of Rheumatism, who had actually been on crutches for years, in spite of all treatment heretofore, and is now well. Scores of such cases might be mentioned had we space.

4 25 vs. $500 00.

Economy in Health and Physic is as important as in business, and we know of no cheaper, better, or surer means of preserving health and divesting the sick of their infirmities, than through the medium of Dr. Radway's famous medicines. We present a case in point:

CASE 1, 236.—Marcus W. Mount, long a sufferer from liver complaints, has paid, he says, at different times, about $250 to physicians, and he thinks as much more for medicines. Is induced to try Radway's Pills, with occasional doses of the Renovating Resolvent, to assist in removing from his system the effects of the mercurial treatment to which he has been subjected. Soon feels the benefit of the change Takes, in all, five boxes of the Pills and three bottles of the Resolvent, and at the end of the course is "as well as ever he was in his life."

Glance at the account current here below:

Bills for medical attendance, $250; outlay for prescriptions, $250	$500,00
Five boxes of Radways Pills, $3 25; three bottles Resolvent, at $1 each, $3—(disease removed)	4 25
Balance in favor of the REGULATING PILLS and RESOLVENT	$495 75

R. R. R. Remedies sold by Druggists and Country Merchants. See Dr. Radway's Almanac, 1870.

If a person faints place him instantly flat on the floor, or bed on his back, and let him lay quietly for ten minutes or so. It is simply a fainting fit, and the blood flowing on a level will speedily equalize itself through the system. If you are troubled with rheumatism, pleurisy, pain in the side or back, cramps in the stomach burns, frost-bites, &c., procure at once a bottle of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer" which is a certain cure for all such complaints. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any believe so universally in by adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have used it know that it cures their neighbors and friends. All know that when it does cure it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

Their operation by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements are one the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it promotes the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels miserably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the glow and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

CONCENTRATION the great principle. The system of infinitesimal doses of medicine diffused in gallons of injurious stimulants exploded. All useless material discarded. The active principle only of the most powerful and efficient remedies known, concentrated in a small, convenient form HABITUAL CONSTIPATION CURED. All diseases of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels, permanently relieved by using Dr. Colby's ANTI-COSTIVE AND TONIC PILLS, Sugar-Coated. Recommended by the Medicine Profession.

GLAD TIDINGS FOR ALL.—Those who have no hair may have it.—Those woo have plenty, may preserve and beautify it. Those who are losing it may have its loss arrested. The hair strengthened, beautified, restored, by using HUFF'S EMPIRE HAIR GLOSS, cheapest, cleanest, best. Don't rest till you have tried a bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

SUCCESS begets envy. Hence the efforts of certain vendors of Liniment to decry JACOBS' RHEUMATIC LIQUID. Wherever introduced, it drives all others from the market. Pain positively annihilated by its use. We have not room to enumerate the virtues accorded to it by the thousands who have used it. No medicine ever invented is capable of more extended application. It has hundreds of imitators, but not one RIVAL. Beware of Counterfeits.

WILSON, BOWMAN & CO.,

Hamilton, Ontario,

MANUFACTURERS OF THE CELEBRATED

LOCKMAN SEWING MACHINE,

Take pleasure in announcing that the popularity of the Sewing Machine manufactured by them is still on the increase. They are now turning them out at the rate of 600 per month, and yet have been compelled within the last two weeks to increase their facilities to a capacity of one thousand per month.

The Lockman Machine, from its capacity to sew the heaviest fabrics with linen thread, as well as the finest cambrics with No. 150 Cotton, is pre-eminently the Farmer's Favorite Family Friend.

It is so exceedingly simple in its parts, and so strongly and durably made, that it does not require a mechanical genius for its management.

The manufacturers challenge the world to produce its equal, and yet its price is from Forty to Fifty per cent. Lower than that of any other first-class Shuttle Lock-stitch Sewing Machine.

EVERY MACHINE IS WARRANTED.

Select Poetry.

I'll Think No More of Thee.

Thy smiles are bright as sunbeams;
But ah! as sunbeams fall
Alike on all the scum of earth,
So beams thy smile on all
Thou beat no brightest smiles for me—
I'll think no more of thee.

For though thou art so lovely
As the first day we met,
I would that day had never dawn'd,
Or that I might forget;
I'll hush the voice of Memory,
And think no more of thee.

Thy love was once my load-star,
My farthest goal of bliss—
I look'd not for another world,
My Eden bloom'd in this:
It was a foolish phantasy—
I'll think no more of thee.

But can I thus forget thee?
Can thought be lull'd by Time?
Ah no! when tides forget to roll,
The ivy-green to climb,
When rivers flow not to the sea,
I'll think no more of thee!

MY UNCLE'S GIG.

BY GEORGE AUGUSTUS SALA.

A warmer-hearted, more generous and upright fellow than my uncle Fred never existed, or travelled in the wholesale pickles, sauces and preserved fruit line. He was extremely charitable; a fast friend to all commercial travellers—in my uncle Fred's day commercial gents were sometimes called bagmen—fallen upon evil days; he was a sound church and state man, a Mason, a member of a Glee and Chat club—the 'Jolly Blind Man Association,' indeed; and a capital judge of old port. But for my being always on the wing" my uncle Fred was accustomed to say. "I don't see why I shouldn't be church-warden, of my parish. Not rectors church-warden, mind; I'm not quite moral enough for that.

Pickles, sauce and preserves were, as I have said, the articles in which my uncle did business, and a capital man of business he was, too. He throve and throve more every year, and his friends often wondered that he should be content to remain a merbag man—I beg pardon, a commercial gent. He had saved enough to give up traveling, or to become a junior partner in the house he represented, or to start in business on his own account, years ago; but my uncle continued to explore the three kingdoms at given times of the year in quest of orders; and moreover, proclaimed his intention of persisting in this course until he was old and infirm, and laid on the shelf. "I like the road," said my uncle Fred, "and the road likes me; and I mean to stick to it" So he pocketed four or five thousand pounds—into Stumpy and Leathy's house; and not only let it lie there at good interest, but was evidently admitted in modified participation in the profits of the firm.

At the time to which my story refers, he was just a little on the sunny side of forty—about thirty nine, eleven months, and a few weeks, I should say; he was rather a good-looking fellow with a bright eye, a fresh complexion, a capital set of teeth, and a formidable pair of bushy, black whiskers. He told a story excellently, and sang a capital song. He was a dead hand at cribbage, and not an unskilful whist player. He played a little on the key-bugle, and made wonderful salmon flies. He was a good shot, and a crack whip. He had a comfortable cottage, handsomely furnished, at Edgeware. His digestion was unimpaired, and as yet he had never experienced a single twinge of the gout. Finally he was a bachelor. Surely he had ought to have been one of the happiest of mortals. Well, so he might have been; but the drawback, as I have already hinted, was that my uncle Fred was so dencedly gay.

"Tis woman that seduces all mankind," the old song says; and since the days of Mrs. Eve and her apple, this indictment has gone forth against the fair sex, and has been declared a true bill by innumerable and unanimous grand juries of men.

My uncle was quite correct in declaring that he liked the road, and that the road liked him; but the worst of it was, that he liked so many people on the road who belonged to the fairer portion of humanity. I don't know how many thousands of miles my uncle traversed during his business journeys in the course of every year; but I don't think I am overshooting the mark when I may say that he must have made love to at least one comely damsel for every ten miles he drove. There were no railways, you see, in those times; so that my uncle's flirtations, if measured by distances, were many and not far between.

He was a non-criminal Lovelace—a Don Giovanni without guile; so he said. The women asseverated that he was a monster, a betrayer, a wretch, a vile creature, a cruel and pitiless deceiver; but they continued to return my uncle Fred's winks by encouraging smiles, and he grew gayer than ever. The only thing that gave him concern was the apprehension that, irritated by this incurable inconstancy, a compact organization of buxom widows and old maids should be formed to seize upon my uncle Fred, and marry him by force.

But this kind of thing cannot go on forever. My uncle Fred was destined to be cured, and in a very strange manner, of his addictedness to promiscuous gayety; and the manner in which his reformation was brought about, I shall now briefly narrate.

The roads surrounding London were at this time of the day left entirely without protection, and the footpads consequently availed themselves unsparingly of the tempting opportunity. The era of the great European wars was as yet too recent for the metropolis to have become free from swarms of reprobates, who, in the days before Waterloo, might have enlisted in the army, or, to the joy of honest folks, been seized by press-gangs; and the scene of emigration was in its infancy in 1828. Besides footpads, the neighborhood of the capital was infested with gipsies, beggars and tramps, and by even a more dangerous and despicable race of villians, the body-snatchers, or 'resurrection men,' who prowled about suburban church yards on the evening of funerals, and were beginning to add the hideous crimes of 'burking' to their predatory misdeeds.

It chanced one very cold and rainy morning, in the spring of 1828, that my uncle Fred, having just completed one of his business journeys to the West of England, was enjoying a fortnight's leisure, which he spent with tolerable impartiality between his cottages at Edgeware—which was guarded during his absence by a deaf old housekeeper, regarding whom no scandal could possibly be whispered—and the 'Old Hummums' in Covent Garden. My uncle Fred had been spending a very pleasant time. He had been in Drury Lane Playhouse once or twice. He had made a bet of a rump and a dozen with Tom Archdale, of the Stock Exchange, and won it—I think the bet was about Mme. Vestris' ankle—and the rump and the dozen, together with sundry mighty bowls of arrack-punch to follow, had been royally consumed at the 'Old Angel Inn,' in the Strand. My uncle was a very steady drinker, and boasted that he could put away two bottles 'without turning a hair.' I don't know the precise amount of liquid which he put away on the night of the rump and dozen—perhaps the arrack-punch didn't count—but he owned that he felt rather feverish by the time the party broke up, and then emerged from the old 'Angel' into the street. Soda water was not an article of general consumption in 1828, so my uncle took a tolerable large bumper of brandy and water, cold, at the bar, to allay his feverishness. There was a remarkable plump young lady, with cherry-colored ribbons in her cap, behind the bar of the 'Angel,' and if the parting salutation of the young lady to my uncle Fred did not consist of a slap—quite in fun, you know—administered to one of his black whiskers, and giggling exclamation of 'Go along with you, impertinence,' all I can say is, that the narrator of this has been greatly misinformed. Tom Archdale, with two or three other choice spirits, proposed a visit to the English Opera House, to see 'Der-Freischutz,' but my uncle Fred said he had seen enough life for that evening, and announced his intention of having his mare put to, and of driving home to Edgeware. So he bade his friends good night; saw the mare harnessed, and, calling at the 'Old Hummums' for his white topcoat with three capes—one of the neatest things in the way of a coat you could wish to see—drove through the West End to Tyburn Gate, and so, by the Edgeware road, toward home.

It behooves me, as an impartial historian, to admit that when my uncle Fred announced his determination to quit the choice spirits who had partaken of the rump and dozen, he happened to remember that at the 'Fortune of War' Inn, Cricklewood, there was an exceedingly well-flavored landlady, with whom he was on excellent terms, and who would gladly give him a cup of tea and a steaming bumper of punch afterwards. So he pulled up the mare at Cricklewood, and had her rubbed down, and then betook himself to the bar-parlor, where the well-favored landlady was overjoyed to see him—it is true that she addressed him as a 'dreadful, naughty, wicked man,' but that was only her fun, you know, and then she made a capital dish of tea, with a round of buttered toast, and a slice of broiled ham—what appetites they had forty years ago!—and subsequently served that steaming bumper of punch of which I spoke anon.

My uncle Fred was getting on very comfortably; and, I must say, that his invariable habit was to get on, under any and all circumstances as ever he possibly could! "We must grease the wheels of life; we must take things easily!" he was wont to say when he stretched his legs after dinner, and held up a glass of right old porter to the light. It was about eleven o'clock and my uncle was finishing his punch, and beginning to think that it was about time to have the mare put to, and resume his journey in a chaise ont side, and they wanted two nine penn'orths of brandy and water, hot, strong and sweet, directly.

"Why not three nine penn'orths?" the well favored landlady, who had a keen eye to business, said, as she bustled about, making the necessary preparations.

"Perhaps number three's a Methodist, and thinks it sinful to drink brandy and water?" my uncle Fred suggested jocosely. Teetotalers were only just begining to be heard of five and forty years ago.

"I think number three's had enough of summat, whatever it is," the ostler interposed with a grin that had an admixture of uneasiness in it.

The landlady, a notable woman for pleasing her customers, high and low, insisted on carrying the brandy and water to the door herself. My uncle gallant as usual, insisted on accompanying her; besides, had he not his mare to see to? The ostler followed in their wake with a lantern.

"The tall gent says the 'orse is shittish, and that's why he can't get out," he remarked as the procession crossed the threshold.

There was need for a light, for it was a very black, moonless night, and the rain was coming down heavily. As the ostler held up the lantern my uncle saw, sitting in a roomy chaise three men. One was short and round shouldered; the man on the off side was a tall, burly, surly looking fellow, who, with his big black whiskers and white hat, and generally swaggering air, might have passed, to a superficial observer, for a vulgarized copy of my uncle Fred himself. The third man, who was sitting between the two others, was clad in a long white waterproof coat, which shone in the lamp light strangely. He was sitting bolt upright, but his head kept downwards, and his hat, which was very broadbrimmed was so slouched over his eyes, as, with the large silk scarf which enwrapped him, entirely to conceal his face.

The brandy and water was handed to the two men, and they speedily emptied the tumblers and returned them to the landlady, who, curtseying asked whether the gentleman in the middle wouldn't take some.

"Not he,' answered the short, thick set man with a coarse laugh; "his head could not stand it. He's had rather too much tonight."

"Will you have a cigar?" the tall man on the other side suddenly exclaimed, in a loud voice, as though desirous of changing the conversation. He was addressing my uncle Fred.

"Thank you, I never smoke," quoth my une'e. Indulging in tobacco was not a customary element in gay manners forty years ago.

"Well, then, ostler, hand us a light," the tall man went on. As opened the door of the lamp to light his cigar, my uncle marked his florid, impudent countenance and his bushy whiskers—they were red, and my uncle's were black—very distinctly. The tall man flung the ostler a shilling, and handed half a crown to the landlady, bidding her to keep the change. Then he cracked his whip, and the chaise, with its three occupants, went splashing into the dark, rainy night.

"Curious people," the landlady murmured thoughtfully, as she put down the empty glasses on the bar counter."

"A bad lot, my dear madam—a bad lot!" my uncle chimed in convulsively. But for the presence of the ostler, my uncle might have said "my dear" without the "madam." But he never compromised people, if he could help it.

"They're after no good, I'll go bail," he answered, "with their nasty, filthy habit of smoking. No gentleman smokes. I should not wonder if they were housebreakers, or something of that sort."

"They're wuss, or I am a Dutchman!" the ostler, in a low, ominous tone, broke in.

"What do you mean, Sam?" the landlady exclaimed, trembling.

"I mean what I says, I means," the ostler, with some circumlocution, returned. Maybe you have heard of body snatchers. I have. If these two parties ain't been a resurrecting somebody in Wilsden church-yard I'd eat a yard and a half of gig harness that's all!"

"And the third man"—my uncle was beginning.

"The third man's cold meat sir!" the ostler said, in a voice of awful significance. He's a stiff un, if ever there was one. The 'orse reared jest as I 'anded up the lantern, and I see the third man's face just underneath his hat, and it was ghastly pale, and as fixed like a stone."

Months rolled on after this adventure, and in the pleasureable excitement of scouring the three kingdoms, making money, and flirting with every wearer of a petticoat that came in his way—for it was one of the peculiarities of his gayety, that he could make desperate love to ugly women—uncle Fred forgot all about the dark, wet night at Cricklewood, and the three men in the chaise, who only had two ninepenny worths of brandy between them. Sweet summer time came, and about the middle of August he found that another fortnight's holiday was at his disposal.

One magnificent evening, about a quarter past seven o'clock, my uncle was driving home, when suddenly he saw, walking along the footpath, a lady clad in the extremity of the then fashion. She was a tall lady, and walked with much dignity and majesty. My uncle Fred at once set her down as a "clipper." She wore a rich lavender silk dress and a very large hat and feather, from the pendant a thick low veil. She carried a white pocket handkerchief in one hand, and in the other a blue velvet reticule embroidered with steel beads.

My uncle, to use a commercial phrase "took stock" of the lady on the footpath, as he drove slowly along. "It's very hot—it's very dusty," my gay relative reasoned with himself. "Very likely she's tired, and her pretty feet will be swelled to the size of pumpkins by the time she gets home. Now, what harm can there be in offering her a lift. If she turns crusty, she can but tell I am an impudent fellow. Now I've been told that before, more than once. Here goes!"

"Faint heart never won a fair lady," was a maxim on which my uncle Fred most persistently acted. The worst that could happen to him, as he argued, was to be chidden for his impertinence, and told to go about his business. But, on the other hand; his advances might be favorably received, and another victorious achievement added to the chronicle of his gay triumphs. He artfully edged his vehicle toward the side of the road on which the lady was walking; drew up as noiselessly as he could, and, in the most insinuating tone, inquired whether the lady didn't feel fatigued this oppressively warm evening. The lady, who was evidently bashful, started, and drew her veil more closely over her face; but she ultimately, in a subdued tone, replied that she was very tired indeed; that she had missed the half past seven stage at Kilburn, and that her home was three miles further on towards Edgeware. 'Here's a chance—here's an adventure!' thought my gay uncle. He entreated the lady to allow him to offer her some slight and harmless courtesy. He might, although alone, he added, look upon himself somewhat in the light of a neighbor. The lady who accounted for her subdued accents by saying that she had a very bad cold, showed at first considerable reluctance to yield to my uncle's entreaties in behalf of her home, and that he would make no efforts to learn her name, she consented to allow him to assist her into the gig, and settled herself, in her flowing lavender silk raiment, by his side. My uncle Fred touched up the mare cleverly under the ear, and they went, in grand style, toward Edgeware.

My uncle exerted his conversational powers to the utmost to ingratiate himself with the lady in lavender, and rattled on, in, as he thought, his most sparkling style on the chief topics of town talk then occupying the public attention. But the lady only answered in monosyllables, and in the same subdued undertone; and to my uncle's pressing entreaties that she would take off her veil, to enjoy the cool evening breeze which was just beginning to blow, she returned a decided negative. "She must be very nervous," thought my uncle Fred! "She's desperately afraid." poor little thing—to my uncle the entire sex was diminutive and he would have spoken of the Queen of the Amazons as a "poor little thing!" "She doesn't know what a harmless fellow I am," he went on mentally. "Perhaps it's that cold in her head which makes her so silent. She's a fine woman, any way. Married or single, I wonder?" He glanced at the lady's wedding-ring hand; but it was clad, like its fellow, in a tightly fitting glove of primrose kid. It was rather a large hand, however, my uncle thought for a lady.

As they drove on my uncle had occasion for his handkerchief, and sought for it in the side pocket of his coat. Accidentally, his hand came in contact with the lady's reticule, which laid beside her, and as accidentally he found that the bag contained something very hard. He increased his pressure; he felt the hard object beneath the velvet. His fingers at last closed round it; he would guess at its nature.

"By jingo!" said my uncle Fred to himself, rather astonished, "if that isn't the look of a pistol, I'm very much mistaken."

Now, my uncle, although a gay man, was also a very courageous one, and was gifted, besides with that inestimable quality known as presence of mind. He saw at once that a crisis, a very terrible crisis it might be—was at hand, and that it must be met promptly and boldly. As though by accident, he dropped his whip on the high road.

"Excuse me, madam,' he said in his very politest tone, "I have to beg ten thousand pardons for troubling you; but this plaguey mare of mine is such a vixenish, skittish animal, that if I were to give her head for a moment, or ask you to hold the reins, she'd be off in a trice, and dash the gig to pieces before we knew where we were. Now, madam, do you mind just for a moment to pick up my whip?"

The lady, evidently unconscious of the discovery my uncle had made in her reticule, said she would be delighted to render him the slight service he requested. So my uncle, bidding her to be very careful indeed, gallantly helped her out of the gig. No sooner, however, had she set foot on the ground, and stooped to pick up the whip, than my uncle, quick as thought, forced open the reticule, drew out the pistol, and levelled it at the lady's head, while with the other hand he made a desperate snatch at her head gear.

Off came the tall lady's hat and feathers; when, terrible to relate, there appeared above the habit skirt of the lavender silk dress, the countenance, now crimson with fury, of a brawny ruffian, with bushy red whiskers. My uncle had been gallivanting with a footpad in female attire.

"You infernal villain!" shouted Messrs. Stump & Leathy's traveller, covering the robber well with his pistol. "You cut and run scoundrel! But one step and I'll blow your rascally brains out! I won't stop to take you now—you'll be caught soon enough before you're many hours older. Sit, shy girl—hi! get on I say!"

This last was to the skittish mare. My uncle shook the reins, and again roused her with his voice; and away she went at the rate of nine miles an hour, her driver standing sideways in the gig, still keeping himself

Editorial Items

We are compelled to omit references to council matters until next week.

Messrs. T. & R. White have sold out the Spectator, and are going to Montreal to publish the Gazette.

LONDON SOCIETY FOR JULY has been received from Messrs. Copp & Clark, Toronto. It can be procured at Mr. Kidd's Bookstore, or from Mr. Menzies.

The police court paid well on Monday. Constable Howden brought up two parties for being drunk on Saturday. On Monday morning they paid $20 and $20 respectively and costs, and went off wiser we hope.

We invite attention to the Report of the Bank of Commerce, in another column. This is one of the safest banks in Canada. The branch just opened here, J. A. Hall, Esq., Manager, will no doubt do much for business men, and is safe for depositors.

FLAX.—Farmers having Flax sown will be glad to hear that Mr. Calcutt has received his machine for pulling. This is the first one introduced to this part of Canada, and we hope it will add an impetus to the flax trade, which, if encouraged by our farmers, will add materially to the prosperity of this County and Town.

The friends of Dr. Benjamin Davis, formerly of the Baptist College in Montreal, now of the Baptist College, Regent's Park, London, will be gratified to learn that the Committee of Convocation have associated him with the company of scholars for the revision of the Old Testament.

Dr. Davis is a brother of Lewis Davis, Esq., of Smith: ED.-Ex.

ACCIDENT.—A man named—Heriott was severally hurt on Tuesday evening at the station here, after the train had returned from Lakefield, after dark. He was drunk and fell asleep on the track; while some cars were being backed up slowly he was caught by the under part, and severely injured. His left arm is broken in two or three places and his head hurt. It is a miracle that he came out alive. Dr. Burritt is attending him. There is hope of his recovery.

The war cloud seems to hang heavily over Europe at present. Spain has nominated a Prince of the House of Hohen Zollern to the crown of Spain. France dissents and accuses Prussia of complicity in the nomination. Prussia pleads innocence, yet active preparations for war are being made by both powers. Spain refuses to accept the terms of Napoleon, and thus matters stand. We think war need not be feared, still we know not what a day may bring forth.

[illegible] ST. H. TRAILL, son of Mrs. Traill of Lakefield, was murdered on Friday last, at Kingston. Mr. Traill was a keeper in the Penitentiary, and was left in charge of two men, who were burning lime on the farm, about half a mile distant from the prison. The two convicts, named John Smith and Daniel Mann, took advantage of the absence of the other guards at dinner, and murdered Mr. Traill, and escaped. They gagged him, bound his arms, gave him a dreadful wound on the forehead with a crowbar and beat him to death. It is believed that they took his revolvers as they are missing also. Mr. Traill leaves a wife and four children. Our deepest sympathies are with the friends in the sad affair.

THE 12TH OF JULY AT NORWOOD.—Several lodges celebrated the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne at Norwood, on Tuesday. The day was pleasant; there was a large crowd of loyal men and ladies. Rev. Messrs. Godfrey and Pattyson, W. H. Stephenson, Esq., County Master and Mr. Brown, Deputy Reeve of Asphodel, all addressed the brotherhood. We learn that the day passed off to the satisfaction of all.

The Twelfth of July was duly celebrated here by the brethren. The lodges met at an early hour and proceeded to Lindsay, where they had a gala day. They returned in the evening in the most orderly manner.

The Keene lodge had an excursion to Rice Lake, to Roche's point. About 400 men, women and children availed themselves of the opportunity, and spent a very pleasant day. The Rev. Mr. Baker, of Campbellford, was present, and delivered an excellent address. The party afterwards presented Mr. Baker with a purse containing $15.

A Mutual Insurance Company for the County.

According to public notice, a meeting was held at the Council Chamber, Peterboro, at 11 o'clock, a. m., (Saturday) for the purpose of organizing a "Mutual Fire Insurance Company," for the County of Peterboro' when upwards of forty Freeholders of the County were present.

Geo. Read, Esq., M. P. P., occupied the Chair.

Mr. William Wood, acted Sec'y.

The Chairman stated the object of the meeting, and called upon Mayor Scott, who briefly addressed the gentlemen present, and read from the Statutes such portions as bore on the subject.

The following resolutions were carried unanimously.

Moved by Sheriff Hall, seconded by Mr. P. Pearce,—That in the opinion of this meeting it is desirable to form a Mutual Fire Insurance Company for the County of Peterboro.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Gilmour, seconded by Mr. Morrow,—That Messrs. Geo. Read, Esq., M. P. P., John Walton, Esq., and Edg. Pearce, Esq., being present at this meeting, be nominated to open and keep a book in which all Freeholders may sign their names and enter the sums for which they respectively bind themselves to effect insurance with the proposed,—The Mutual Fire Insurance Company of the Municipality of the County of Peterborough.

Water Works.

Certain interested parties in Town are very active in their advocacy of water works, and are willing to sacrifice justice and moderation at the shrine of filthy lucre. It is no difference to these men that the proposed system of water works only provides for works for George street and a few yards on each side of it. Still the cry is Water for George street. The reports of two Engineers have been obtained, and both of them declare that $80,000 is the minimum cost of providing water for George street and two branches, one on Hunter street and one on Simcoe street, for a few rods.

The first Engineer declares there is not a place about the town except Armour's hill sufficiently elevated to afford fire pressure, and the distance and the crossing of the river adds so to the cost as at present to render it useless to talk about that hill.

The elevation at Mr. Hilliard's, the first report says, is not sufficient to secure a fire pressure of any elevation of sufficient height to be used at fires, as a great allowance must be made for friction. Mr. Kennedy's report, and it undoubtedly is the most reliable, says, "The elevation at Hilliard's hill is not sufficient, after deduction for friction in pipes, to make it really efficient as a reservoir in case of fires in any but the lower parts of the town." Mr. Wilson says "his plans, &c., are not working plans and specifications," and of course cannot be relied upon either in theory or practice; either as to cost or the pressure that would be secured. They are not working plans, he declares. The fact is, they are plans procured at the instigation of Mr. Romaine, and worded so as not to compromise Mr. Wilson's engineering skill, but so as to inveigle the town into the outlay,—for the gain of a few to the loss of the many who must foot the bill in heavy taxes for all time, and yet receive nothing for their money.

Mr. Kennedy says:—"The capacity and efficiency of the pumping machinery would really have to be the same as if the reservoir were not in existence," as it (the reservoir) would be useless except as an inferior substitute during the failure of the pumps and main." Mr. Wilson put the probable cost of an undefined something at $30,596. If his undefined plans should be adopted, and the wishes of the Council provided for, the increased cost would become unlimited also, and then $60,000 to $75,000, perhaps $100,000 would be nearer the entire outlay, and all this for water works for George street only.—What security would this provide for other parts of the town? If a fire occurred at the Catholic or Episcopal churches, or at the Court House or Union School, where would machinery and water be found to extinguish it? And if water works to reach these and other important points are to be constructed, let the people know it, and let their cost also be known. We may as well allow our property to be consumed by fire as consumed by a heavy tax, that the poor are not able to bear, and for which they would never receive any return.

Another important question in a system of water works is: How much of the money is to be spent in buying up support and advocacy to carry all the consequent jobs [illegible] for gas works, $2,000 or twenty per cent had to be given to Messrs. Romaine & Carnegie the younger, for the moral (!) support and advocacy of gas.

These same gentlemen have now ague impurus on the brain. May the ratepayers not ask what per cent they hope to obtain for their advocacy of water works. Twenty per cent will equal $12,000 to $20,000.—In our railroad affairs we had jobbery enough, and the Review was the loud-mouthed advocate of it all.

Are our water works to be like railway matters and gas works, a system of corruption from beginning to end?

Are the ratepayers of Peterboro' prepared to squander $10,000 to $20,000 in bribery and corruption, and that to get water works for a dozen individuals, while the cost will have to be borne by every tax payer, even though he lives at the utmost extremity of the town limits.

Water works, too, will cause fire engines to be neglected, and yet these are the only protection to buildings away from the centre of business. Insur. Co's would soon find that the town, except perhaps George Street, might be consumed, as there would be no means of extinguishing fire, except on that street, and immediately the rate of insurance would advance, except on George Street. An Insurance Agent assures us that all the water works proposed, would not induce solvent companies to reduce their present rates, and we have every reason to believe him, for he hopes for no gain or reward for his opinion.

The town, the whole town, requires protection against fire, and the important question is,—how shall it be secured at the lowest possible outlay? The committee of the Council in their wisdom of course, report only on water works, while they were instructed to consider the advisability of steam engines, also. What power or influence induced them to depart from their instructions? We would be sorry to accuse any member of the Council of being a party to intrigues and corruption, but then the gas company is staring us in the face, and if with increased light there has come increased darkness or corruption, we have reason to put all on their guard, as a bribe doth blind the eyes of the wise, and consequent cunningly devised argument might pervert the understanding of even the otherwise prudent. Let us have all these things plainly understood. By corruption in railway matters, $44,000 were lost to the town and pocketed by interested parties, and ever since the town is at the mercy of the road and its friends. Gas has followed in the wake. And shall water, the pure gift of Heaven, become impure, before it reaches us, through the touch of unholy hands?

Gas, Gas, Gas, in the Police Court.

Some time ago, as our readers are aware, a company was formed in this town for the purpose of supplying gas to those who had not enough of the article themselves.—Messrs. R. Romaine, J. Carnegie, the younger, Stephen Balmer, and W. E. Sherwood, of the Town of Peterboro, and James Perry of the City of Ottawa, formed the nominal company; and through the political influence of Mr. Carnegie and a few others, got an illegal By-law legalized by act of parliament, and forced upon the ratepayers of Peterboro, the most wicked and unjust principle of taxing the whole town to pay for gas for a few on George street and its vicinity.

Rumors of a Hinch's Grand Trunk paid up stock and other damaging hints were thrown out at the time in reference to the complicity of the proprietor of our neighbor the Review, and of the youngster Carnegie insinuating that they had each obtained $1,000 paid up stock in the company, or rather that they had subscribed $1,000 each, and had obtained a counter receipt for the valuable consideration of their influence in getting an illegal By-law passed and the town forced to pay enormous rates for 25 lamps and posts.

We endeavoured to prevent the passing of the By-law, but our efforts were in vain, simply because of stock and jobbery at the bottom of the affair; and of course we had no reward to offer to prevent it; but we did offer sound reasons why the town should have nothing to do with the company other than give the right to use the streets for their purpose. Mr. James Perry, of the City of Ottawa, accordingly erected gas works, laid down some pipes, and furnished gas to a few of the stores.

But now comes the revelation. The old proverb says, "When rogues fall out, honest people get their dues," and so it has come to pass. The company, or Messrs. Romaine and Carnegie, have fallen foul of Mr. Jas. Perry, a member of said company, and have taken steps to prevent his having anything more to do with gas here; Messrs. R. and C. thinking they can supply gas enough for the town. On Monday morning the trio were before the Mayor—Mr. Perry charged with trespassing on the property of the company of which he declares he is a member, and he also declares that he is the rightful owner of the whole.

Mr. Perry now reveals the whole secrets. He informs several and sundry persons, magistrates, lawyers and private individuals that Messrs. Romaine and Carnegie have the profits and emoluments of $1,000 stock each, for which they never gave money considerations, merely their influence in Council, in Parliament, and in the town. He further insinuates that now they wish to turn him adrift without any right to do so, but simply because they were elected President and Secretary on the stock that he gave them.

The quarrel of the gas company concerns the public very little, but the charges of Mr. Perry vs. Romaine and Carnegie concern our citizens very much in the matter of their taxes and justice to all the ratepayers.

If they are true, then Messrs. Romaine and Carnegie sold the best interests of the [illegible] then Mr. Carnegie took a bribe of $1,000 stock in the gas company for his influence in parliament, to get an illegal By-law of the town legalized; if they are true, then Mr. Carnegie has prostituted his position as representative of the people of Peterboro, for gain to himself, to the detriment of those who elected him; if they are true, then Mr. Carnegie is unworthy of the confidence of the people and should at once resign his seat in parliament, lest some more corrupt job, if possible, should be foisted on us, on the County, or on the Province during the next session of the Legislature; for if he has taken $1,000 bribe for his influence in the gas affair, what right have we to believe anything else than that he will do so again under like circumstances. If these charges of Mr. Perry are true, then we declare most emphatically that there is good ground to hold that there are douceurs in view in Mr. Romaine's advocacy of "water works," and we ask the people to keep a sharp look out that we be not entrapped into an expenditure of $60,000 to $75,000 for water works, Mr. anybody receiving some thousands of it to blind our eyes and lead us astray, while they pocket the hard earned money of the dupes.

In the meantime it becomes Mr. Carnegie to clear this matter up, and satisfy the public that the rumours are not true, for if true they must forever damn him in the town, in the community, in the county, and in the country. We wish it to be expressly understood that these rumors are not of our own making. They are current everywhere, and are now in everybody's mouth. The question is, are they true? The course of the "Review", in matters of railway and gas jobs, is long well known.

Obituary.

Again we are called to chronicle the demise of one of our old and respected pioneers, Andrew Tully, Esq. Mr. Tully was born August 13th, 1780, in the parish of Hutton, Berwickshire, Scotland, and was trained up as a farm servant, for 22 years. It then fell to his lot to defend his country against invasion, when Napoleon became the terror of all Europe, and he served 5 years in the Dumfrieshire Militia under Lord Dalkeith, from 1802, till 1807, when he again resumed his former calling, and for 17 years was farm steward, until he emigrated to Canada in 1829. On coming to Canada, he chose a spot in the comparative wilderness of North Monaghan, on which he resided for nearly 41 years, till his decease, and where he saw the forest converted into fruitful fields. He was 53 years married, and survived his beloved partner 7 years. He was much respected in the neighbourhood for his integrity and worth; was much given to reading, and devoted the latter part of his life in a quiet and retired way, away from the world.—He fell asleep in Jesus on the 5th inst. in his 90th year; like as a shock of corn cometh in his season. His remains were followed to their last resting place by a large concourse of friends and acquaintances on Wednesday last. He leaves six sons and one daughter to survive him, all of whom are well and favorably known and highly respected in the community. Two of his sons are Ministers of the Presbyterian Church, and are stationed in the United States. One of these, the younger, was deputation from the general assembly of the United States to the first general assembly of the Canada Presbyterian Church, this year.

The other sons are all well-to-do farmers. Mrs. Hugh McFee, of Dummer, is the only surviving daughter.

The very dear, meek, sweet tempered, obliging, humble and learned Editor of our Contemporary, has found a plaything in the person of some one, if possible more ignorant than himself, but whom many are foolish enough to believe no other than our very erudite J. C., Jr. M. P. P. In innocence of their ignorance, they (he) have thought fit to enforce if not establish the truth of the proverb, that—"A little learning is a dangerous thing," by their vulgar attempt at criticism.

But, John, criticism is not in your line; let it alone; don't meddle with it; you are not a Critic; never will be; simply because you don't know enough to be one. You do not know enough to write plain English; and after your silly criticism on two latin words, some one who is your friend, should advise you never to attempt latin again. Perhaps our learned factitious Critic will be a B. A. some day, however. But, seriously, should he not invest a dime in an old Lennie, and study Modern English before undertaking the dead languages. For the benefit of the unwashed—we advise them to borrow a Latin-English Dictionary, (he never possessed one we feel certain.) Anthon's is cheap, and will serve the double purpose of affording a lesson during the holidays, and of being taken to school when it opens. From Anthon, he will learn that Aquæ, plural, means a bath—something that the unwashed Critic never indulged in. For our part, we never imagined that a single application of water would remove half the filth to which we referred. If a single reference to the unwashed Critic does not produce a healthy tone in our neighbour, perhaps a second may.

In addition to Anthon, perhaps he could get cleaner hands than his to turn up "Ainsworth," where he will find again that Aquæ was used by the Ancient writers to mean a bath. And if a certain learned Ex-Dr. who never was very noted for a superabundance of brains or common sense, will but attend to his pill-making—and the lawful sale of the Extract of Cedar, and not trouble with Latin, now in his old age, in his youth he knew little about it, he may yet be considered as having obtained some little sense ere he casts off his mortal coil. We have no desire to disturb the repose of our neighbour, the younger, but if induced to do so, he may find, that like two of his predecessors, he stands on a slippery place. An insertion of one-half of the letters now in our pigeon holes, relative to John's English, would astonish him.

The Protestant Home.

We lately made a visit to the new Home provided for those who require the charitable attention of the good people of this town, and we are glad to be able to say it will soon be fit for their reception. The new building is neatly and comfortably fitted up with all the necessary accomodations for the comfort of its inmates. Well, cisterns, woodsheds &c., are conveniently placed, and the rooms for those to be maintained in it, are neat and as airy as possible. A neat verandah has been placed along the east side, that will afford a comfortable and pleasant resort in the cool of the summer evenings. Taking it all and all, it is, perhaps the best that could [illegible]

The Building and Lot cost	$1067 00
Contract for repairs and sundries	570 99½
Fencing, painting, pumps, cisterns and leveling	120 47
	$1758 46½

Of this the following sums have been paid:

For the House and Lot	1067 00
On Contract	425 15
Total paid	$1493 15
Leaving a balance to be paid of	$265 25

To meet the expenses the following sums have been received:

A donation and interest	$1080 00
From County Council	100 00
" Concert and Social	160 68
" Subscriptions	144 00
" Jurymen	19 30
" Interest on back account	1 97
Total received	$1558 15

It will therefore be seen that the committee require $252.25 to meet the present outlay on the building and lot and repairs. We feel satisfied, however, that this sum will be easily realized when a call is made on the liberality of the good people of the town.

The Home is an institution of which our town should feel proud, and the ladies, who have managed it deserve the thanks of all our citizens. It has been in operation 5 years and 3 months, during which time it has afforded aid to a great many, over 200 outsiders have also received weekly donations; as many as 25 have been in the Home; this year, 17 have been in, at one time. There are only 8 inmates at present, but there are 6 families outside, consisting of 29 persons now receiving assistance.

On Monday next the new Home will be opened, and we trust a good attendance and liberal offerings will strengthen the hands of the good ladies who are engaged in the good work.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of the Peterboro Examiner,

Vernlam, July 9th, 1870.

DEAR SIR.—

As an old subscriber to your valuable paper, I take the liberty to solicit the insertion of a few lines, in order to return my sincere thanks to certain parties who deserve them for their kind and tender treatment to me. During a visit to Lindsay, last month, on business, I became suddenly and dangerously ill, and was compelled to call in medical advice. I wish, however, to pass over the course pursued by the first physician who came at my request, and to refer especialy to that of the second, Dr. Herman, to whose unremitting care and skilful treatment, in the providence of God, I enjoy my present state of health. The first physician told me he could do nothing more for me, if the medicine administered failed, and he even refused to do anything more for me. But Dr. Herman took my case and after 14 or 15 visits succeeded in restoring me to my wonted health; his charges for all his trouble and medicine being only $6. I wish also to return my sincere thanks to Mr. Bowen and family, at whose hotel I stopped, for their unremitting attention during my illness, and to Mr. H. and Mr. J. Dunsford, for their kindness in waiting upon me, when my friends were absent and knew not of my illness.

I feel that these remarks are due to Mr. Bowen, and to Dr. Herman, and to the public, that they may know on whom to call if placed in such circumstances as I was.

I remain,
yours truly,
W. HUNTER.

The Rev. Mr. McDonnell, of Peterboro, gave a very interesting address—he will not allow us to call it a lecture—at No. 4, S. S. Smith, on Friday evening. Subject—"Books."

Mr. John Bell occupied the Chair, and in a few well chosen remarks introduced Mr. McD., who on rising was warmly applauded.

Mr. McD. took a survey of Books from the earliest times down to the present, and noticed how much we are indebted to the monks of the middle ages for their assiduity in this way. To those possessing means it is now a matter of very great importance to make a good selection from the multiplicity of books published.

He thought it might be considered a fundamental rule for persons first of all not only to read but to study carefully and make themselves thoroughly acquainted with those works which treated on their own business or avocation in life, and especially might farmers be benefited by doing so. As a Christian community, he need scarcely remind them that the study of the Bible was of paramount importance. To discard in toto the reading of works of fiction would be to deprive us of Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, a work so universally read and acknowledged for good, besides the still higher writings contained in the Parables of the Saviour. Sir Walter Scott's works received a favourable review and also David Copperfield, and other works of the late Chas. Dickens, wherein the benefits aimed at, and in some instances effected by the authors were clearly pointed out. At the same time, he considered that it required the nicest discrimination, and that such reading should always be rather in the way of relaxtion than otherwise.

Many useful hints and valuable suggestions were made which it is utterly impossible to give in a mere sketch of what occupied an hour in delivery. Mr. McDonnell concluded an eloquent address by reading the following extract from a lecture delivered by the Hon. T. D. McGee, on the "Mental Outfit of the New Dominion:

"For my own part, though no enemy to a good novel, I feel that I would fail of my duty if I did not raise a warning voice against the promiscuous and exclusive reading of sensational and sensual books, many of them written by women, who are the disgrace of their sex, and read with avidity by those who want only the opportunity equally to disgrace it. We must battle bad books with good books. As our young people in this material age will hunger and thirst for romantic relations, there is no better corrective for an excess of imaginative reading than the lives and books of travel of such men as Hodson, Burton, Speke, Kane, Du Chaillu, Hue and Livingstone. These books lead us through strange scenes, among strange people, are full of genuine romance, proving the aphorism "truth is strange—stranger than fiction." But these are books which enlarge our sympathies and do not pervert them, which excite our curiosity and satisfy it, but not at the expense of morals; which give certainty and population to the geographical and historical dreams of our youthful days; which build up the gaps and spaces in our knowledge with new truths, certain to harmonize speedily with all old truths, instead of filling our minds with vain, or perplexing, or atrocious images, as the common run of novelists are every day doing. Then, there is always as a corrective to diseased imaginations, the Book of books itself—the Bible. I do not speak of its perusal [illegible] tions; it is not my place to inculcate religious duties; but I speak of it here as a family book, mainly; and I say that it is well for our New Dominion that within the reach of every one who has learned to read, lies this one book—the rarest and most unequalled as to matter, the cheapest of books as to cost, the most readable as to arrangement.

If we wish our younger generation to catch the inspiration of the highest eloquence, where else will they find it? If we wish to teach them lessons of patriotism, can we show it to them under nobler forms than in the maiden deliverer who smote the tyrant in the valley of Bethulia? or in the grief of Esdras, as he poured the foreign king his wine, at Susa? or in the sadness beyond the solace of song which bowed down the exiles by the waters of Babylon? Every species of composition, and the highest kind in each species, is found in these wondrous two Testaments. We have the epic of Job; the idyl of Ruth; the elegies of Jeremias; the didactics of Solomon; the sacred song of David; the sermons of the greater and lesser Prophets; the legislation of Moses; the parables of the Gospel; the travels of St. Paul; the first chapters of the history of the Church. Not only as the spiritual corrective of all vicious reading, but as the highest of histories, the truest of philosophies, and the most eloquent utterance of human organs. The Bible should be read for the young and by the young, at all convenient seasons."

A vote of thanks was presented to Mr McD. and the proceedings terminated.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce.

Proceedings of the Third Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders, held at the Banking House, Toronto, on Tuesday, 12 July, 1870.

The chair was taken at noon by the President, the Hon. Wm. McMaster, whereupon it was moved by George Snider, Esq., M. P., of Owen Sound, seconded by James Young, Esq., of Toronto, "That the Cashier, H. S. Strathy, Esq., be requested to act as Secretary."

The Secretary then read the following

REPORT.

In conformity with the requirements of the Charter, the Directors submit this their Third Annual Report, with a statement of the affairs of the Bank, showing the result of the year's business, ending 30th June, which they flatter themselves cannot be otherwise than satisfactory to the Shareholders.

The net available profits of the year amount to		$236,986 99
To which add balance at credit of profit and loss account from last year		3,476 71
		$240,463 70
From which has been taken:
Dividend No. 5, of 4 per cent, payable 2nd January last	$80,284 82
Dividend No. 6, of 4 per cent, payable 2nd July, instant	80,769 34
Transferred to Rest account	100,000 00
Reserved for rebate of interest on Current Discounts	30,409 81
		292,770 02
Leaving balance at credit of Profit and Loss account of		$19,393 68

It will be observed that after providing out of the profits of the year a Dividend of 8 per cent., and appropriating $35,482 51 as a rebate of interest on notes under discount, $150,000 has been carried to "Rest" account, making that fund $250,000, and the remaining $13,235 93 is at the credit of Profit and Loss account.

Besides the usual inspection of the entire assets and accounts of the Bank, by an officer appointed for that purpose, a personal examination of all the Branches has been recently made by the President and Vice-President.

The Directors are pleased to report that the losses during the last twelve months have been small, and in accordance with the usual practice of the Bank, they have been written off, so that every item contained in the Assets may be regarded as perfectly good.

The agreement entered into for the amalgamation of the Gore Bank and the Canadian Bank of Commerce has been confirmed by an Act passed for that purpose by the Dominion Parliament. The greater part of the Assets of the Gore bank is already realized. That portion of them which consisted of real estate is nearly all disposed of and rendered productive, except that the Banking Premises in Hamilton, which are required for the use of the Institution in conducting our business there. The conditions of the agreement were faithfully observed by the contracting parties, and the results have fully borne out the careful calculations made by your Directors.

The Capital authorized by the Amended Charter is $6,000,000 of which $2,998,765 has been paid up, but the power to increase being permissive, need not be used unless additional means can be profitably employed. The Board have determined to occupy a few new points in Ontario, for which the Bank is in a position to furnish the necessary funds; but in view of the expansion that usually takes place in the autumn, the Directors recommend their successors to offer $300,000 new stock to the Shareholders, on terms which will give them a substantial advantage, and at the same time contribute to increase the reserve; the premium to be paid when the allotment is made on the 1st September, and the Stock called in by instalments, except in the case of those who may desire to pay a considerable portion at once, with whom special arrangements can be made.

The large number of produce and other transactions passing through the Bank, which terminate at Montreal, has for some time past pointed to the necessity of opening a Branch there, for the protection of our business, and the Directors having decided to do so, an office is engaged, and the services of an experienced Manager secured for that point.

In addition to the foregoing simple statement of facts, the Directors would mention that from the commencment of the Bank, they have kept two objects steadily in view—the first of which has been to make the Stock a perfectly safe and reasonably profitable investment for the Shareholders; the second, to do all that was possible, consistently with that consideration, to aid in moving the crops and facilitating the legitimate business of the country.

At the last session of the Dominion Parliament, an Act was passed respecting "Banks and Banking," whereby the Shareholders may, at a general meeting called for the purpose, authorize an application to the Minister of Finance for an extension of their Charter embodying the provisions of said Act. They have therefore been specially summoned to attend the present annual meeting. A resolution providing for such extension will be submitted, and as the Directors believe that a safe and profitable business can be conducted under the new Banking Law, they recommend its acceptance.

The Directors have pleasure in bearing testimony to the zeal and ability with which the Cashier, Managers, and other officers of the Bank have discharged their respective duties. All of which is respectfully submitted.

(Signed) WM. McMASTER, President.

FIRE.—Last night about 12 o'clock, the Soap Factory of Mr. J. W. Green, on Simcoe street, was consumed by fire. It was first discovered by a man at the gas house, who gave the alarm, but even then it was too far advanced to save anything. The fire originated near the furnace in the centre of the building below. They had been working at potash till late. The building belonged to Mr. Jas. Chalmers, and was entirely destroyed. Loss about $1,000 to $1,200, and we regret that there was no insurance. Mr. Green's loss must be above $2,000, and no insurance, we are sorry to learn.

Through the earnest efforts of the Firemen, the fire was confined to the factory. The stables and buildings near it were several times in danger, but were saved. The late rain, too, prevented the rapid extension of fire in any direction. Onlookers were very unwilling to lend a helping hand.

THE USE OF FELLOWS COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES will enable the mind to sustain a greater strain unfettered by conflicting thoughts and unwearied by continued study. It imparts power of concentration. What before seemed difficult of solution becomes comparatively easy, and the body is physically stronger under its use.

Price $1 50 a bottle; 6 for $7 50. Sold by apothecaries and by F. Cundill & Co., wholesale agents, Montreal.

BRAZILIAN LADIES' BLESSINGS

[Extracts from a letter of a distinguished gentleman in Rio de Janeiro]

Radway's Ready Relief, Renovating Resolvent, and Regulating Pills.

Rio de Janeiro March 24, 1866.

Doctor Radway & Co.:

Dear Friends:— . . . My wife blesses these preparations, when she thinks that after three nights and days of suffering of violent pains in the stomach, brought on by operations at Quitaine, by the use of four drops of "Ready Relief" in some water, she was able to sleep tranquil all night, and the next day she was completely re-established. I have also cured a slave from heart disease with "Ready Relief" and "Pills," and have also cured sore throat, rheumatic pains, toothache, headache, &c. With the "Resolvent" I have cured Erysipelas Skin diseases, &c.

It is my full impression that the "Pills" are the best purgative that can be had, and, not alone for the facility with which they can be taken, but also as they do not cause griping or make you feel sick.

I have a son of five years old now, who took the "Ready Relief" when 4 months old, as he suffered from some irregularity in the bladder, preventing him from making urine. The following was the treatment: 20 drops of "Relief" in a cup of water, and divide into portions of a tablespoon, which he took every ten minutes which cured him. He has since had colic, which I treated in the same way, and also rub the stomach with it (pure.)

Major Joaquem Vieira de Silva Pinto, proprietor, in the Cidade Leopoldina, can prove that after more than ten years suffering from Paralysis, through the medium of your remedies he obtained that which he had been deprived, and thought at the time that he would never be able to get, and that was the use of his legs.

You can fully believe that there are a great many people in this vast empire who truly confess that to-day owe their life to the use in time of your precious medicines. You can make use of this as you think proper.

I remain, dear friend,
Your obedient, &c.,
Signed PEDRO DE SANPAYO LEITE

On inquiring for these Remedies ask for Radway's, as the country is flooded with imitations. Sold by Druggists and Country Merchants.

See Radway's Almanac for 1870.

Is health worth having? If it is protect it—It is a jewel so easily lost as virtue, and in many cases as difficult to recover. In this climate, and more particularly at this season of the year, people are very apt to take cold and suffer from sore throat, cough, spitting of blood and pulmonary complaints generally, which if not checked immediately lead to serious consequences. The question arises—which is the quickest and most effectual remedy? Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers have been before the public for twenty years, and have always given perfect satisfaction, and inveriably effect permanent cures when taken in season. Sold by medicine dealers and country stores generally throughout the Province, at 25c per box.

PHYSICING HORSES.

Many persons physic their horses frequently—especially every spring. This is a great error, and one which has caused the loss of many valuable horses, as physic as it is usually given, often produces inflammation of the bowels which generally proves fatal; it also weakens the horse and thus renders him him more liable to disease, or less able to throw it off—what is required is a medicine which will operate gently upon the bowels, and act upon the liver and lungs, removing all obstructions therefrom, purifying the blood and enabling all the organs to do their work without overtaxing any, which is accomplished by the use of "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy"—it is always safe and certain. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hurd & Co., is on each package. Northrop & Lyman, Newcastle, Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

That the said Debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half-yearly, on the Twenty-First Day of June and the Twenty-first Day of December, in each year, at the Office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

5. That for the purpose of forming a Sinking Fund for the payment of the said Debentures, and the interest at the rate aforesaid, to become due thereon, an equal special rate of nine twenty-fifths of a mill in the dollar, shall, in addition to all other rates be raised, levied and collected in each year upon all the ratable property in the said Municipality, during the continuance of the said Debentures, or any of them.

6. That this By-law shall take effect, and come into operation upon the 19th DAY OF OCTOBER, ONE THOUSAND EIGHT HUNDRED AND SEVENTY.

IMMIGRATION.

To Farmers, Manufacturers and Others in quest of Ordinary or Skilled Labour.

The Immigration Society of Peterborough, desirous of securing Immigration to this portion of the Province, and supplying whatever demands there may be for the various descriptions of labour, hereby give notice to all who may be desirous of procuring labour—male or female—and to the various municipalities in the County, that James Edwards, Esq., Clerk of the Town of Peterborough, has been appointed the Registrar of the Society, and that as such Registrar Mr. Edwards will preserve a record of the different descriptions of labour that may be applyed for to him. From the information thus supplied the Society hopes to induce an Immigration that will at least equal the demand for labour, if not assist very materially in settling much of the at present unproductive land in the County.

A registrar of lands for sale or to lease will also be preserved by the Registrar; and those giving information of lands for sale or to lease will have the advantage of having their lands placed prominently in the market, and brought under the especial notice of those who may desire to settle upon improved or partially improved lands.

Emigrants are now on their way from the Old Country, and many have already arrived. In order, therefore, that the efforts of the Society may be productive of benefit to the community, it is essential that information be at once given to Mr. Edwards, verbally or by letter, of the labour required, lands for sale or to lease, &c.

Those making application to the Registrar will be supplied with labourers at the earliest opportunity, and will be promptly notified of their arrival.

J. CARNEGIE, Secretary,
W. H. SCOTT, Chairman.

WILSON, BOWMAN & CO.,
Hamilton, Ontario,
MANUFACTURERS OF THE CELEBRATED
LOCKMAN SEWING MACHINE,

Take pleasure in announcing that the popularity of the Sewing Machine manufactured by them is still on the increase. They are now turning them out at the rate of 600 per month, and yet have been compelled within the last two weeks to increase their facilities to a capacity of one thousand per month.

The Lockman Machine, from its capacity to sew the heaviest fabrics with linen thread, as well as the finest cambries with No. 150 Cotton, is pre-eminently the Farmer's Favorite Family Friend.

It is so exceedingly simple in its parts, and so strongly and durably made, that it does not require a mechanical genius for its management.

The manufacturers challenge the world to produce its equal, and yet its price is from Forty to Fifty per cent. Lower than that of any other first-class Shuttle Lock-stitch Sewing Machine.

EVERY MACHINE IS WARRANTED.

MADOC, County of Hastings,
Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th., 1869.

This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ancles, which gradually during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on up to my hips, and I became so weak that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two years, while this weakness was coming on me, and afterwards, I sought medical advice, employing, at different times, three doctors, and medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, but of no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoshonees Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had begun to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshonees Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was not a private one, but known to all my neighbors and friends; and to any one afflicted as I was, I have only to say try the Shoshonees Remedy; I believe it will cure you,

MARY ANN DOUGHTY.

Sworn to before me at Madoc, County of Hastings, this ninth day of February, 1869.

A. F. WOOD, J. P. &c.

I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshonees Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.

A Laughable Incident.

A few days since a colored lad entered a drug store in Portland with what he described as an "awful felling in de stomach, just like it war full of fish hooks and angle worms," and demanded a "better powder," as he had been advised that would give relief. Accordingly the Seidlitz powders were dissolved in separate glasses as usual, and placed before him, with instructions to pour one into the other and drink while effervescing. But the sable youth did nothing of the sort. Instead of following the directions he hastily drank off the contents of one glass and immediately swallowed the other. The effect may be imagined, but not described. The effervescence which should have taken place in the glass before it was drunk, took place in the bewildered darkey's stomach, sending streams of the frothy liquid from mouth, nose, eyes and ears. As soon as the poor fellow could recover breath, he cried out in frightened tones:—"My stomach has busted; I can't live a minute!" In a few moments, however, he felt better, and turning to depart, he said: "Dat stiff may work well nuf on de white trash—but it's sure def on a nigger."

Papal Infallibility.—At last we have the news by cable that the Dogma of Infallibility is carried, and that all who object to the possession of this divine attribute by a poor, weak old man at Rome, are accursed. This caps the climax of presumption, and, as it appears to us, accomplishes a remarkable prophecy of the Apostle Paul. That great instructor of the Church, who was certainly divinely inspired, told the Thessalonian Christians plainly that they were not to expect the coming of Christ till a certain system, called the Mystery of Iniquity, which already was beginning to work, had culminated. This system is identfied with an individual representative called the man of Sin, and its culmination is described in the following remarkable words:—"So that he as God sitteth in the Temple of God, shewing himself that he is God." Hitherto, with all the assumptions of the Popes, no one has authoritatively claimed infallibility—an attribute which belongs exclusively to God. But Pius Ninth is about to proclaim this awful dogma after the vote in its favor of a majority of the Accumenical Council.

Early Potatoes.—Mr. Martin Strachan farmer of Pittsburgh, brought to market on Saturday about two bushels of Potatoes which he had raised this year in the open air. The Potatoes were of an average size, and readily sold at a York Shilling a quart. The way that Mr. M. Strachan raised these Potatoes is this:—he planted the seed in September last, and when the plant put up its head, he covered it over with manure well, which in the early Spring he removed, and the Potatoes then grew apace. This mode of raising early Potatoes is original, and Mr. M. Strachan deserves credit for his method.

The Battle of Waterloo, took place on the 18th of June 1815. According to Alison, the battle was fought by 80, 000 French and 250 guns, against 67,000 English, Hanoverians, Belgians, &c., with 156 guns, to which were subsequently added certain large bodies of Prussians who came in time to assist in gaining the day. There were strictly but 22,000 British troops on the field, of whom the total number killed was 1,417, and wounded 4,923. The total loss of the allied forces on that bloody day was 32,378, of whom there were killed 4,172. It was considered for that time a very sanguinary conflict, but "The glory ends not, and the pain is past."

Strawberries.—It does not seemto be generally understood that strawberry plants have a season's growth before they will bear. Plants are best in the spring the earlier the better, unless one strikes layers in pots, in which case they may be set at any time. Where the beds have been covered with straw, this is parted the plants and left on till after fruiting. What weeds make their way through the straw may be pulled. Beds that have not been mulched should be thoroughly hoed over and mulch put on before the fruit attains much size. Liquid maure and wash from the house will increase the size of the fruit.

Pruning Tomato Vines.—As the greater part of the fruit on the tomato vine is borne near the ground it will be found that the shortening of the vines will cause nutrition to flow to fruit instead of making branches. Don't be afraid to cut out all suckers and non-bearing branches, and to shorten those that wander. The advantages of pruning are questioned by some, but it has been shown by experience, whatever may be the rational of the matter, the results are in favour of rather severe pruning.

"Putting Your Foot In It."—The term "putting your foot in it," is of legitimate origin. According to the "Asiatic Researches," a very curious mode as trying the title to land is practised in Hindostan. Two holes are dug in the disputed spot, in each of which the lawyers on either side put one of their legs, and remain there until one of them is tired, or, being stung by insects, is compelled to yield, in which case his client is defeated. In this country it is too generally the client, and not the lawyer, who "puts his foot in it."

Mr Spurgeon is about forty six years old, and preached 4,000 sermons before he was twenty-one. For the last five years 25,000 copies a week of his sermons been sold. Not less than 14,000,000 copies have been sold in England, besides 3,000 in America. From one to three volumes, have been published in Welsh, German French, Swedish, Dutch and Italian besides seperate sermons in Gaelic, Tamiled Matanbeori language of New Zealand.

Still Increasing.—The Grand Trunk traffic and passenger receipts from the 1st January to the 2nd April amounted to $332,298, an increase compared with last year of $27,932.

"I wish, Sally," said Jonathan, that you were locked up in my arms and the key lost.

The importation of rags from the Mediterranean, hides from Brazil, and other commodities from the tropics, is known to bring the germs of disease, chiefly fevers, which are sometimes very afflicting and fatal. Ayer's Ague Cure stimulates the Liver to excrete these germs from the system as effectually as it does the miasmatic poison of our ague districts.—Consequently it affords invaluable protection to stevedores and others whose occupations expose them to these dangerous infections: and we hope to render them a valuable service in giving them this information. Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Systems tainted with the various diseases of scrofulous character, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully fleshly, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous person is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Unless, this poison and unfit taint of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites death, it only results in humiliating, and sometimes loathsome and disgusting or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or brain, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its pale cast by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this EXTRACT:—Rheumatism, Scrofula, Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Pile, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the combined. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaint, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Invalid and Infirm, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections peculiar to Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could cover them, under the *Cherry Pect

Reasons Appeal to Man.

Art thou a man? then show the cup,
Stand up erect, on earth's dark clod;
Resist the demon drink,—look up!
Abstain! and please thy trust in God.
Oh! pause, reflect, why wilt thou give
Thy place, to orgies fool of shame,
Where e'en your reason their thee live
A man, in deed, no wrld do name?

Why kneel thus abjectly to drink?
Man! is thy soul so firmly wed
To dark pollution's horrid sink
That thou must bow a slavish head?
Up pale, O sorrow, and the grave,
Our life's dark path, the demon fell
Will drag thee, craven, shrinking slave,
To death, to judgment, and to hell!

Abstain, the coward fiend will fly!
Be firm, be flesh with the rest,
This monster with the evil eye,
Is but a brave at the best;
Oh! who would in the light of day
Abjectly tremble at his frown,
Bend to the drink fiend's awful sway?
Not I! for kingly robe or crown.

No! I will hold through sorrow's night,
Through perils dark, and scenes of sin,
Through storms of fate, in darkest night,
My pledge secure, my soul within;
There it shall be,—whilst I have life
To guard me from the demon's claws,
In vast, I'll keep it through the strife,
My pledge unto the Temperance cause.

Do thou the same; man, in the fight
Of life; be ever firm and strong,—
Resist the ghastly fiend of night,
Defy this giant monster wrong;
Resist, but for a little while,
Though dark may seem thy path in life,
Be firm, and soon, oh! see of toil,—
Thou'lt stand a victor in the strife.

Aye, Victor! raise but thou thine hand,
Dash down you goblet in the dust,
Join thou our noble sober band,
Abstain and place in God thy trust.
Oh! thou wast made for nobler deeds,
For purer thoughts thy mind was fram'd,
Than thus to bend to slavish greeds,
Ad kneel, man! Art thou not asham'd.

To proffer homage thus to one
Who spreads around dismay and woe,
And devastates beneath the sun
All scenes, where peace alone should flow?
Is it to him (could he live a slave?
To him? He'll steep thee, man, in sin;
At thy feet he will dig a grave
And sink thy slavish soul within.

Oh, man! have faith! try! persevere!
Exert thy strength to rend his chains,
Burst from his reign of shame and fear,
Peace—honour—love—shall be thy gains;
Cast from thee every thought of sin;
From slavish lift up thy timid soul
Have faith, man! and thou yet shall win
The Robe, and Crown, at Heaven's goal.

The Bridal Wine-Cup.

A THRILLING SCENE.

"Pledge with wine, pledge with wine!" cried the young and thoughtless Harvey Wood; "pledge with wine," ran through the bridal party.

The beautiful bride grew pale—the decisive hour had come. She pressed her white hands together, and the leaves of the bridal wreath trembled on her brow: her breath came quicker and her heart beat wilder.

"Yes, Marion, lay aside your scruples for this once," said the judge, in a low tone, going towards his daughter; "the company expect it. Do not seriously infringe upon the rules of etiquette; in your own house do as you please; but in mine, for this once, please me."

Every eye turned towards the bridal pair. Marion's principles were well known. Henry had been a convivialist, but of late his friends noticed the change in his manners, the difference in his habits; and to-night they watched him to see, as they sneeringly said, if he was tied down to a woman's opinion so soon.

Pouring a brimming cup, they held it with tempting smiles toward Marion. She was very pale, though more composed; and her hand shook not as, smiling back, she gracefully accepted the crystal tempter and raised it to her lips. But she scarcely had done so when every hand was arrested by her piercing exclamation of, "Oh, how terrible!"

"What is it?" cried one and all, thronging together, for she had slowly carried the glass at arm's length, and was fixedly regarding it though it were some hideous object.

"Wait," she answered, while a light, which seemed inspired, shone from her dark eyes; "wait and I will tell you. I see," she added slowly pointing one jeweled finger at the sparkling ruby liquid—"a sight that beggars all description; and yet listen—I will paint it for you if I can. It is a lovely spot; tall mountains crowned with verdure rise in awful sublimity around; a river runs through, and bright flowers grow to the water's edge. There is a thick, warm mist, that the sun seeks vainly to pierce. Trees, lofty and beautiful, wave to to the airy motion of the birds; but there—a group of Indians gather; they flit to and fro, with something like sorrow upon their dark brows. And in their midst lies a manly form; but his cheek, how deathly, his eyes wild with the fitful fire of fever. One friend stands beside him; nay, I should say kneels; for see, he is pillowing that poor head upon his breast.

"Genius in ruins—Oh! the high, holy looking brow! Why should death mark it, and he so young? Look how he throws back the damp curls! see him clasp his hands! hear his thrilling shrieks for life! mark how he clutches at the form of his companion, imploring to be saved. Oh! hear him piteously call his father's name—see him twine his fingers together as he shrieks for his sister—his only sister—the twin of his soul—weeping for him in his distant native land.

"See!" she exclaimed, while the bridal party shrank back, the untasted wine trembling in their faltering grasp, and the judge fell overpowered upon his seat—"see! he arms are lifted to heaven—he prays, how wildly, for mercy! but fever rushes through his veins. The friend beside him is weeping; awe-stricken, the dark men move silently away, and leave the living and the dying together."

There was a hush in that princely parlor, broken only by what seemed a smothered sob from some manly bosom. The bride stood yet upright, with quivering lip, and tears stealing to the outward edge of her lashes. Her beautiful arm had lost its tension, and the glass, with its little, troubled, red waves, came slowly toward the the range of her vision. She spoke again; every lip was mute. Her voice was low, faint, yet awfully distinct; she still fixed her sorrowful glance upon the wine-cup.

"I see evening now; the great, white moon is coming up, and her beams lie gently on his forehead. He moves not: his eyes are in their sockets; dim are their piercing glances; in vain his friends whisper the name of father and sister; death is there. Death, and no soft hand, no gentle voice to bless and soothe him. His head sinks back! one convulsive shudder! he is dead!"

A groan ran through the assembly; so vivid was her description, so unearthly her look, so inspired her manner, that what she described seemed actually to have taken place then and there. They noticed, also, that the bridegroom had his face in his hands, and was weeping.

"Dead!" she repeated again, her lips quivering, larger and clearer, and her voice more and more broken; "and there they scoop him a grave in that damp, reeking clime. The only son of a proud father, the only idolized brother of a fond sister. And he sleeps to-day in that distant country, with no stone to mark the spot. There he has—my father's son, my own twin brother, a victim to this deadly poison. Father," she exclaimed, turning suddenly, while the tears ran down her beautiful cheeks, "father, shall I drink it now?"

The form of the old judge was convulsed in agony. He raised not his head, but in a smothered voice he faltered: "No, no, my child; no!"

She lifted the glittering goblet, and, letting it suddenly fall to the floor, it was dashed to pieces. Many a tear-al eye watched her movements, and, instantaneously, every wine-glass was transferred to the marble table on which it had been prepared. Then as she looked at the fragments of crystal, she turned to the company saying: "Let no friend, hereafter who loves me, tempt me to peril my soul for wine. Not former are the everlasting hills, than my resolve—God helping me—never to touch or taste the pluke cup. And, he to whom I have given my hand, that watched over my brother's dying form, in that last solemn hour, and buried the dear wanderer there by the river, in that land of gold will, I trust, sustain me in that resolve. Will you not, my husband."

His glistening eyes, his sad, sweet smile were her answer. The judge left the room, and when, an hour after, he returned, and with a more subdued manner, took part in the entertainment of the bridal guests, no one could fail to see that he, too, had determined to banish the enemy at once and forever from his princely home.

Those who were present at that wedding can never forget the impression so solemnly made. Many from that hour renounced forever the social glass.

An Allegory.

"Once upon a time" there was a King. His authority extended further and embraced more subjects, and his power was less limited than can be said of any King that ever reigned on Earth. He was a smiling, jolly, rollicking fellow. He was a harsh, austere, unfeeling fellow. In certain conditions of things he was the first and in other conditions he was the second. The condition that called forth the exhibition of first named disposition was that in which he sought to win over new recruits to his almost innumerable hosts, which it was his ambition to swell until the entire human race acknowledged his sovereignty, and, towards these, when first they yielded to him, his most attractive beguilements were practised; he had them soothed to repose by slumberous songs; he had every passion ministered to and every sense fascinated. But a certain state being reached, when entire confidence in his control over his victims was gained, then he cast aside all amiable delusion and revealed a heartless tyrant. Slaves were his subjects! aye, slaves to a degree which admits of no comparison with any other form of slavery that humanity has ever been afflicted with. Not only did the mere physical man become his most abject slave but the highest, holiest, best attributes and elements of the mind and intellect vied with each other as to which should sink into the most profound depths of abasement before him. The christain who, before, amid the beatitudes of nature, or in the calm retirement of his home, had read, worshipped and communed with the GREAT I AM, now tore from his heart the blessed memories and sacred influences of that better time, and prostrated himself before the self-elected God. And, this tyrant, it was his wont to provoke his followers to every system of vice and to the very dregs of blackest crime, often tearing asunder the remnant veil of reason and setting up in its gibing and raving idiocy and madness. Seeing that women and children possessed more tender sensibilities and were more susceptible of souls suffering than men, it was a source of rarest delight for him to see them shiver and starve and agonise, their own husbands, fathers, sons and brothers being the instruments in his hands of these tortures.—Hell with all its concentrated malignity expressed no such demoniac joy over lost souls that sought its confines as did he, in the high revelry held over property misused, virtue tripping, hearts breaking, hopes crushed and reputations blasted. He made the very food, on which he caused them to feed, and the drink they drank, the fell instruments of their bad appetities and the ministers to the horrors they endured, He saw the good Creator had widely spread o'er earth in rich abundance fruits herbs and grains; healthful sources of supply for man's necessities and comforts. He saw the golden grain wave luxuriously in the plains and adora, like banners of the reign of plenty, the hill side; he saw the vast clusters of the purple grape hang in rich drapery athwart the vine; he saw the peach and apple blush in ripened beauty.—And he laughed in his frightful merriment as he said "These be all the good creatures of God," but I will improve upon the maker's handiwork and serve them up to my own subjects, in a more dainty form than he presents them." Then he had the fields reaped, and the fruits gathered, and from them he had the juice extracted and then, by tedious and strange processes, unknown to nature in her usual laws, he extracted from the air and the sun-light and from herbs, not as doth the bee, an odorous and wholesome sweet, a subtle, poison, and then, commingling all, he had prepared a beverage of which while his subjects drank their thirst increased, which combined in its effects the most contrarywise results—but at last made them as unlike their formerselves when they illustrated the divine lineaments of their creator, as the poisonous and vile extracts were unlike the 'good creatures' of God's munificence.

And so the King had reigned; and such the nature of his rule, from far away back, amid the misty ages, the records of which only illumine the dread unknown, in spaces here and there, as given in the Bible, like the blue flecks of the upper sky amid the overspreading darkness of the storm cloud. But even amid these records are the indications of King's reign. Here we learn that one of greatest men who lived in all the past or left impress upon futurity, himself now, and the patriarch, of whom he was who outlived the deluge and reared the first altar to the true God on the post-Adamian world—that he became an alien from his first allegiance, a worshipper and the first high priest at the shrine of the King of whom this writing. And down through all the ages conquerors—earth's mightiest conquer-

Who can afford to Drink

If we take a candid view of the matter, how many persons are there who can afford to drink? Not more than one in three, more. Can the farmer, the mechanic, the merchant, the lawyer, the laboring man? Most of them have little more money than will supply their indispensible, physical, intellectual and moral wants. If it is so, then, they cannot become consumers of strong drink, without curtailing their necessary supplies of food, raiment, intellectual refreshments and other necessaries. Who then can afford to drink? Say you, "the rich?" So he or can, so far as money is concerned. But is money the only thing expended by the drinker? Ah, no! He alone ought to drink from the ruinous fact who can afford to incur its moral and physical penalties—can afford to ruin his character and soul—to impoverish himself and make desolate and cheerless his fireside—to give shame and sorrow to his father, his mother, his brothers, his sisters, and his children—and finally to cover himself into an untimely and dishonored grave. Who is rich enough, and heaven-forsaken enough, to do and to give all these in exchange for draughts at the bar of the rumseller? If any, let them drink,—let them stand as the body-guards of the rumseller before the community, and as baleful spectacles of that degradation which is consequent on, born and nurtured in the grog-shop. Who can afford to drink? should be sounded through the land as with a trumpet! Can you, young man? Can you, a father and husband? If any are tempted to enter the temple of Bacchus, let them enquire of the monitor within his bosom—"Who can afford to drink?"—Riverside Echo.

The Path of the Just.

His glory is from within. It is a radiation. Put him where you will, he shines and cannot but shine. God made him to shine. For instance: imprison Joseph, and he will shine out on all Egypt, aloud less as the sky where rain never falls. Imprison Daniel, and the dazzled lions will retire to their lairs and the King compelled to worship at his risking, exclaim, "Babylon blesses the beauty of the Brightest and better day. Imprison Peter, and, with the angel for an harbinger star, he will swell his aurora from the fountains of Jordan to the walls of Beersheba, and break like the morning over mountain and sea. Imprison Paul, and there will be as light from over all the Roman Empire. Imprison John, and the Isle of Ægean and all the oceans around will kindle with the sunset visions too gorgeous to be described, but never to be forgotten; a boundless panorama of prophecy gliding from sky to sky, and enchanting the nations with openings in heaven, transits of angels, and the ultimate glory of the city and kingdom of God. Not only so, for modern times have similar examples—examples in the Church and examples in the State. For instance bury Luther in the depths of the Black Forest, and the "angel that dwelt in the bush" will honor him there; the trees around him will turn like shafts of ruby, and his glowing orbs lume up again, around and clear as the light of all Europe. Thrust Bunyan into the gloom of Bedford jail—and as he leans his head on his hand, the murky horizon of Britain will flame with fiery symbols—"delectable mountains" and celestial mansions, with holy pilgrims grouped on the golden hills, and bands of bliss, from the gates of peril, hastening to welcome him home.—The Rev. Dr. T. H. Stocton.

Another Victim to Strong Drink.

Last week two men were drowned in Lake Lamond, who were known to have drunk freely before going on the waters of the Lake and having a bottle of liquor with them! A shoemaker, an excellent workman, when last seen was very drunk, and his body was found in the harbour at Reed's Point, and now we have another similar case at St. Stephens. A telegram from that town to the Daily Telegraph and Journal, last evening, says:—

"A young man named John Toomey, of Milltown, was found dead on Water Street at two o'clock this morning. The verdict rendered at the Coroner's inquest was, "Died by the visitation of God while in a fit induced from the "effects of intoxication."

ANOTHER SAD CASE.—Robert Milliken, recently city editor of the Troy Whig, was killed on Tuesday night by falling through a railroad bridge in the southern part of that city. He was intoxicated at the time, and for a long time previously had led a dissipated life.—Daily Telegraph.

The Fast Man of the Period

The fast young man of the period, if weighed in the balances of purity and justice will be found wanting. Catch one of these unthinking, untrained creatures of custom and appetite, and put him into the scale, and you will be astonished to find how light he is; he is lighter than vanity. His head is light, for he has put nothing in it; his heart is light, for it is hollow; his pockets are light, for he has spent his money for liquor and tobacco. The heaviest part of his person is his stomach; that is capacious, and crammed with food which digests slowly because it is pickled in whiskey. Analyze him. A fine hat fit for a better head. (see hatter's account;) a fashionable suit of clothes, (not paid for;) a neck-tie, (not of hemp;) hair oiled and perfumed by the barber, (who is shaved by his customer,) mouth filled with a large quid of tobacco, (for which he has not paid a quid pro quo;) a body saturated with alcohol. Who will copy such a mollo, made up of whiskey and tobacco? Foul breath coined into foul speech, diseased body dressed at other people's cost in the highest style of fashion. He is not a temperance man; he can hardly become a man until he becomes temperate.—Temperance Advocate.

THE GREAT MYSTERY.—The body is to die; so much is certain. What lies beyond? No one who passes the charmed boundary comes back to tell. The imagination visits the realm of shadows—sent out from some window in the soul over life's restless waters but wings its way wearily back, with an olive leaf in its beak as a token of emerging life beyond the closely bending horizon. The great sun comes and goes in the heaven, yet breathes no secret of the ethereal wilderness; the crescent moon cleaves her nightly passage across the upper deep, but tosses overboard no message, and displays no signals. The sentinel stars challenges each other as they walk their nightly rounds, but we catch no syllable of their countersign which gives passage to the heavenly camp. Between this and the other life is a great gulf fixed across which mortal eyes can not can travel.—The gentle friend, whose eyes we closed in their last sleep long years ago, died with rapture in her wonder-stricken eyes, a smile of ineffable joy upon her lips, and hands folded over a crapphant heart, but her lips were then dumb, and intimated nothing of the vision that enthralled her.—"J. C. Holland."

The Lindsay Lodge of Good Templars held the first series of open meetings on Monday of last week. The Port Hope Templars evening last, and the Lodges were here arrayed in their regalia. The evening was spent in singing, speaking, &c., and was enjoyed by all present. The next meeting will be held on the first Monday in July

No fighting has been reported up to our going to press.

MASONIC GRAND LODGE OF CANADA.—We notice by the Toronto papers that Dr. R. Kincaid of this Town, had the honor of being elected D. D. Grand Master, Ontario District. We congratulate the Dr. on his being elected to so high a position in the Masonic World.

EUROPEAN WAR.—War has been declared by France, and ere this reaches our readers the conflict may have commenced. It is sure to be a severe struggle, but it is idle to speculate on results. We give the latest telegrams, which contains about all we have yet received.

RIOT IN NEW YORK.—On the 12th instant there was a row in the city of New York. The Roman Catholic labourers attacked the Protestants, who were holding a pic-nic with their wives and children. Six were killed, and thirty wounded on both sides. It was a most unprovoked attack, as their was no procession.

At a late meeting of the 57th Batt. Band, the following motion was carried unanimously:—That the members of the 57th Batt. Band, have great pleasure in returning their hearty thanks to the Peterboro' Firemen, for the very handsome sum of $45.00 presented to them, in remuneration for their services at Lindsay, on Dominion Day.

MAN DROWNED.—On Thursday two men named Young and Shears, or Shearer, respectively, were on Stony Lake in a canoe. Young not returning home, suspicions were aroused of his being drowned, and some individual hearing talk towards the water, reported, and search was made, and the body found. Our informant says that there were marks on the neck of Young as if he had been choked, and in consequence the man who had been with him was taken before a magistrate, but we have not learned the result.

Since writing the above we learn that Thomas Shearer is the name of the party accused of murdering Young. It is believed that he first killed him and afterwards dragged the body to the water and threw it in. A warrant is issued for his arrest, and a constable was yesterday sent to take him.

Young's hat was found close to where the parties were heard talking. They had both been drinking, we believe, and Shearer took whisky with him to Mr. White's.

FORGED BILLS ON THE BANK OF ONTARIO.—On Saturday last a man named J. McLeod, a school teacher, was brought before the Mayor, charged by Mr. Lipsett, grocer, with attempting to pass forged bills. The bill was a five dollar one purporting to be issued in Peterboro, but when examined was easily discovered to be a counterfeit. It is on stronger paper than the good bills, has a very glazed appearance, and like as if photographed, and the counterfeit part on the back is easily detected, being neither so good a color nor so legible as the true bill, yet it would be readily taken by the careless observer. Mr. McLeod said he obtained it in getting change for a ten dollar bill, but he cannot now tell in what store. The case was brought up on Wednesday again, and Mr McLeod bearing a good character, it was remanded for a week, to enable him to see if he can explain the manner in which the bill came into his possession. His own recognizance was taken for two hundred dollars, and that of Mr. G. Hoosy for $100, for his appearance on the 27th instant. It would be unfair to make any comments on the case at present, but inasmuch as at least another counterfeit five was passed on Mr. Glass, Grocer, lately, there must be more than one afloat. All would do well to keep a sharp look out for them. The query is, who has photographed them? This should be ferreted out if possible.

PERSONAL.—As intimated last week, Robert Richardson, Esq., of the Montreal Bank has removed to Belleville. The day before his departure, Judge Dennistoun, Wm. Hall, and Jas. Stevenson, Esqr's. waited upon him at his residence, and presented him with the following address: Judge Dennistoun read it. It was largely signed by all the business men of the town, who joined heartily in their well wishes for Mr. Richardson and family.

Mr. R. was ever foremost in every good word and work, and as a business man, is kind, obliging and courteous.

To ROBERT RICHARDSON, Esq., Manager of the Bank of Montreal, Peterboro.

DEAR SIR,—

As customers of the Bank of Montreal, and citizens of Peterborough, we desire before your removal, to express the very high respect which we entertain for yourself and your estimable family.

We feel that by your removal, the town will lose a gentleman, whose consistency of life has exerted a happy influence in the community, and a Bank Manager, who, while exhibiting at all times an untiring zeal for the welfare of his Bank Institution, did all in his power to make the intercourse between the bank and its customers both pleasing and satisfactory; and by his uniform courtesy and affability, has been the means of allaying and removing an asperity of feeling, which from various causes was circulated here against the Bank of Montreal.

We cannot refrain from expressing the regret which we all felt when it was announced that you were to be removed to Belleville, to take charge of the bank business there; but at the same time we were gratified that the Bank had recognised your faithful services by giving you a better position and a wider field for advancing its interests by your business talents.

Now, that you are about to leave us, your family with yourself having earned the respect due to them, we heartily pray that a kind Providence will vouchsafe to you and yours long and happy lives.

Water Works.

A meeting was held yesterday evening in the Council Chamber to consider the advisability of forming a company to supply water for the town, on the terms proposed by the committee of the Council, viz: for the sum of $1,500 a year.

Mayor Scott was called to the Chair, and Mr. Carnegie acted as Secretary.

J. F. Dennistoun, Esq., explained at some length the system of Water Works contemplated, and the formation of a company.

Mr. Rosanbe followed in support of Mr. Dennistoun's remarks, and of Mr. Wilson's plans, which appear to provide Water Works for George Street only.

Mr. Stratton asked how far on the side streets it was proposed to lay down pipes, and was the sum proposed, $1,500 yearly, merely for water for George street.

Mr. Dennistoun thought that the question of what streets would be provided for, and the scheme which should be laid before Council was premature. He thought the parties interested on George street should subscribe the stock required.

Mr. Toole explained the comparative costs of engines and Water Works, and said, it would require $1650 a year, interest and expense, to provide engines, but he proposed that George street be taxed for that amount, and that the balance be paid by the whole, and that each street pay at same rate for what water and water may be petitioned for by those living on the street.

Mr. Tanner supported this view, and Mr. Stratton remarked that if George street should be taxed to pay the $1650, the town might be asked to pay $300 or $400 towards main piping, but there should be some definite scheme, as this thing of going to Parliament to get their errors legalised was not desirable, we have had enough of that lately.

Mr. D. Brook proposed to supply the water for the whole town for $9000 a year, with a pressure of 50 pounds to the square inch.

On motion of Mr. Dennistoun, Messrs. Stevenson, Toole, Carnegie and Hilliard were appointed a committee to canvass George street. The names of the Mayor and the mover were afterwards added.

We have no room for comment this week.

Stray Notes.

During a short visit to the enterprising Village of Bobcaygeon this week, we noticed the very great improvement in the appearance of the place, in a very short time. Several new brick stores, erected within a year or so, now grace the main street, and the business appears to be concentrating, as Messrs. Bradfield & Cluxton are now south of the canal in the vicinity of Mr. Dyke's store. The village can also boast of a very neat drug store, kept by Messrs. Tupper & Thompson, who are prepared to supply remedies for the various ailments to which the surrounding people may be subject.

One of the great works of improvement now going on is a new stone building for Mr. Alex. Orr, of the Temperance House. Mr. Orr, it is well known, has kept a temperance house in the village of Bobcaygeon for several years, and in connection with it a general provision and grocery store, and he is now compelled to enlarge his quarters to meet the requirements of his business and the wants of the travelling public who call on him. The new building is 79 feet long by 34 feet in part, and the remainder is 52 feet broad. It is of stone, for which the place is somewhat noted, and the workmanship would do credit to any of our cities. When finished it will be equivalent to 4 storeys in height, and will most undoubtedly be a credit to Bobcaygeon. Mr. Orr has also splendid stabling, and as all know, he is ever ready to meet the wants of all who stop with him.

We noticed, too, that the Independent still flourishes, but we had not an opportunity of making an acquaintance with its proprietor, Mr. Hand. The citizens, too, have quite an interest in this paper, and all express their intention of granting it all the support they can. We can assure them that advertising and paying cash for their work is the sure way to ensure the prosperity of the Independent.

Our old friend Simpson is still attending to the wants of the guests of the Forest House, and is doing an active business.

Mr. Boyd, too, is building a new saw mill on the Little Bob.

A very neat church (wooden) is in the course of erection for Episcopalian services, and beside it is a commodious parsonage, so that very soon all the leading denominations of the surrounding country will be able to find a Sabbath resting place at Caygeon.

During our short stay we also found P. Pearce, Esq., stopping at Mr. Orr's. He is in good health. He is on a visit to that district to help them to mend their ways, in which we hope he will be successful. The County Council of Peterboro' made an appropriation for the repairs of the road from Pigeon Creek Bridge towards Bobcaygeon, and Mr. Pearce was appointed, in connection with his work on the bridge and road through Ennismore, to repair the road northward to the village. Already some of the crossways is made passable by him, and in a few days the rough places will be made even, we trust.

Mr. Pearce made a good job of the road between the bridges. A very little more will make the whole road through Ennismore equal to some of our best roads. A large portion is now gravelled, several of the hills cut down, and all the road is neatly graded.

The approaches to the bridges need a little dressing off, especially the Ennismore approaches. At present it is no small penalce to drive on to the bridge portion on account of huge bolders that really require the softening influence of the hammer applied to them.

We do not profess to know whether the bridges are completed according to plans and specifications; the committee will see to that part of their duty. They are passable at any rate, and if not now completed, will very soon be, and the fact that you can leave the village in the morning and take your breakfast at 8 o'clock in Peterboro, shows that already the benefit of these improvements are being felt. The outlay is great, but we look for a corresponding gain.

Bobcaygeon is talking of a wooden rail road are long. We hope the talk may soon be a reality. In the mean time we advise them to cross the bridge and come to Peterboro for their goods. It is only a few hours drive, and our merchants are prepared to supply their wants on liberal terms.

A cricket match on a few days the Wesleys, of S. Dub, Esq., hoped to have arrangements completed for opening 66 feet on the Galway road, north of Chapman, so that south of us a general system of macadam ways progresses just now. If the settler gets a good road it will tend to remove some of the other disappointments he has to experience in going "back."

CRICKET.—A cricket match was played on Monday afternoon, between the Peterborough Cricket Club and the "Maple Leaf Cricket Club" of Peterborough, on the grounds of the former. The match was a very closely contested one, and good play was made on both sides. The Peterborough Club went in first and scored 66 runs. The Maple Leaf then took the bat and scored 36 runs. The P. C. scored 69 runs in their second innings, leaving the Maple Leaf 99 runs to win. The fielding of the Peterboro' Club was not so good as in the 1st innings, and the batting of the Maple Leaf in the second innings was much better than in their first. At dark, when the stumps were drawn, they had scored 67 runs, leaving only 29 runs to make, to win, and 3 men to go in. The following is the scores:—

Mr. Jas. Hunter, of Verulam, died on Monday, his remains were interred in the Bobcaygeon burying ground on Tuesday evening.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Galway, July 13th, 1870,

DEAR EXAMINER,—

We are progressing here. There can be no doubt to the enquiring mind that we are not to have any of the woe pronounced on him that is alone when he falleth.

We had a wedding on Wednesday last, Mr. Saml. Falconer, courted and won the eldest daughter of our worthy Reeve, John Hunter, Esq. They were united in holy matrimony on the day above written. Two of Mr. Hunter's daughters have thus entered a state of bliss since January. And yet, despite the stingy Crown Land policy, Galway may be settled from within.

I almost forgot to tell you that at the Wedding Celebration the Clergyman, the Rev. Mr. Patterson, of Verulam, forgot not (I am told) to bring forcibly before his audience, the duty of the wife to the husband, in the matter of obedience, &c. which I trust may bring forth fruits worthy of being reported at some future time.

Mr. Isadore Trudo's house and barn were consumed by fire in the early part of the summer.

On Wednesday he raised a fine log barn to meet the abundant fruits of the coming harvest.

I once thought of advising the lumbermen, through your columns, to cut all the beaver hay possible, but the necessity for this is past. The late rains have worked wonders on the spring crops. Every man you meet from Kinmount is the bearer of some harvest tools preparing for the harvest.

On the 12th, in company with many of my friends, I made my way to Kinmount. I saw that several arches had been erected by the villagers, and great preparations made for the reception of the brethren from Minden. One lodge from Minden and one from Snowdon arrived. They walked through the village to the sound of the fife and drum, their different banners and streamers flying. All marched to the Round River Hotel, kept by mine host Mr. Stranker, where justice was done to the good things under which the tables groaned. The Rev. Mr. Smart and Rev. Mr. Ryckman addressed the assembled multitude, considered as it would be the members of the different lodges, with their wives and sweethearts; and after the addresses were concluded and pull stopped up and were, according to custom, made into one dash by the Rev. Mr. Burt. The day was very unfavourable—at times stubborn shivers marred the enjoyment. We noticed a bountiful supply of sweets in the hands of the ladies—a sure sign of more engagements soon to take place. Notwithstanding the showers, everything passed off very equitably, and all returned to their homes seemingly pleased.

In that procession could be seen old men with streaming colors, young men adorned by the fair fingers of their lovers with sashes and ribbons of orange, of blue and of purple, and one arrayed in scarlet, seemingly the admired of the ladies. There followed a crowd of youths trotting every event, and no doubt envying those who walked before and hoping to be able one day to share the pleasures.

We noticed that some of the assembled multitude had seemingly partook of anything in the way of spirits, as all appeared sober,—which is a great blessing in any community. A ball followed in the evening, but I cannot give you any account of that to-day,—I may at some future time.

A young widow, who owns and personally farms a free grant in Galway, imagined that the neighbours had no business with her, and had less to do with anything of hers or any one she admired. She therefore went before T. Probert, Esq., J. P., and made her complaint. A few days afterwards a constable was seen wending his way from house to house in the vicinity of her lonely dwelling. The trial as appointed came off before the J. P. aforesaid, but ended where it began; the case was dismissed, and the widow pays the costs. Too bad, says the unlearned,—as one sheep will scarcely suffice.

The little "Independent" came to us last week containing a rather singular record. It is dated at Bobcaygeon, July 2nd, and gives a notice of the demise of John Devit on the 3rd instant. It is perhaps well that no penalty against people who are gifted with the power of forstalling future events does now exist.

Yours, GALWAY.

Douro Council.

THE EUROPEAN WAR.

GREAT BRITAIN AND THE WAR.

LONDON, July 18.—Despatches report that Prussia has received the formal declaration of war from France.

The city of Strasburg has been placed under martial law.

Eloquent addresses to the Crown are received at Berlin from the municipalities of the Kingdom. The Bavarian Chambers have granted the Government a credit of twenty-seven florins.

MIDNIGHT.—In the House of Lords Earl Russel enquired what were the views and purposes of the Government in the present situation on the Continent; and Lord Cairns asked especially if steps had been taken to enforce the neutrality laws. Earl Granville promised that the documents concerning the war would be laid before the House as soon as they were copied.

After the dispatch of some local business the House adjourned.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Harcourt made enquiry touching measures for the preservation of English neutrality. Mr. Gladstone said that such enquiry was premature, coming as it did before the declaration of war had been made. While the Premier was thus speaking, a despatch from Lord Lyons was handed to him, announcing that the formal declaration of war had been sent by the French Government to Berlin. Mr. Gladstone then replied that all the papers would be submitted as soon as possible, and that a measure looking to the preservation of neutrality was in preparation. Particular attention would be paid in that measure to the status of belligerent ships in British Ports. After a discussion on the strength of the army, during which Mr. Osborne asserted that the Government was unable to put fifty thousand men in the field, the Commons adjourned.

A rumour of Russia's participation in the war caused an agitation, from which the stock market had not recovered at the close of the day. The report is not yet confirmed.

LONDON, July 19, 3 a.m.—The French iron-clads are cruising on the Upper Rhine, in the North Sea, to pick up German vessels.

HOMBURG, July 19.—It is denied that Count Granville has communicated with Prussia.

PARIS, July 19.—The steamship Westphalia, from New York, arrived here this morning. It is not yet decided whether she will attempt to run the blockade.

LONDON, July 19.—The Bourse closed firmer five to ten centimes on German shipping.

The Times in an editorial abandons the hope of mediation. The crowd must now decide.

The London Post in spiritual touching the news received from France and Prussia. It ascribes the bulk of the disposition to speculation.

LONDON, July 19, 5 p. m.—Talbot dull.

The panic which commenced in the markets here and at Liverpool yesterday continues to-day, and was increased by a rumour, to which some credit is given, that there is an understanding between France and Austria.

FRENCH WAR REPORTS.

PARIS, July 19.—The morning journals say the Prussians now in France will not be expelled from the country as long as they observe a strict neutrality.

PARIS, July 19.—It is announced that no diplomatic or other foreigner will be allowed in the French camp.

La Liberte (organ of the Thiers party) gives the following as the programme of the French:—The army will first enter Rhone in order to neutralize the Southern States of Germany. They will then occupy and fortify the city of Frankfort; from this point they will be able to sweep all the Prussian territory to the left of the Rhine, and will then enter Prussia by way of Westphalia, and a reconstruction of the Rhenish confederation will follow.

PARIS, July 19.—The Patrie this morning says the Prussian Ambassador at Vienna started from here last night for Berlin with an official declaration of war.

The Journal du Soir has information, which it believes to be reliable, that Mr. Washburne, the American Minister, has agreed to protect the Prussian subjects now in France. The Journal adds that Mr. Washburne has certainly not made such a promise without first having obtained the consent of the French Government.

PARIS, July 19.—The Emperor yesterday received a deputation of officers of the National Guards of Paris. In response to their congratulations, the Emperor said he relied on the National Guards, for upon them devolved the protection of the Capital during the war.

The Minister of war has asked the Corps Legislatif for an increase of the military class of 1870, from 90,000 to 140,000 men, and that this contingent may be called out to serve till January 1st, 1871. The corps will vote this project to-day, together with several others submitted by the Government for the prosecution of war.

Napoleon's address to the people will not be published, says the Patrie, until the Emperor has departed for the front.

PARIS, July 19.—The Journal Officiel announces that the Emperor has decided not to received, either in the Imperial quarters, or the quarters of general officers, any volunteers, or any foreign officer, or any one not belonging to the French army.

M. Theirs publishes an indignant denial of having received, as stated by the Figaro, a letter from the King of Prussia, thanking him for his speech against the war.

When the Emperor quitted the Tuileries to-day to return to St. Cloud, he was loudly cheered by the people.

Prince Napoleon is expected here tomorrow. It is said he will have a command.

PARIS, July 19.—Don Carlos, the Spanish agitator, is in Paris.

PARIS, July 19.—In the High Court of Justice, yesterday, at the commencement of the proceedings, M. Arago arose and moved that in view of the approach of war and the consequent agitation of the country, the trial of the persons accused of conspiracy be postponed. The Court, after consideration, denied the motion, and the trial was proceeded with. Baron Rotheschild, who was drawn as a member of the jury of the High Court, did not attend, and has been fined 5,000 francs.

PARIS, 3:10 p.m.—Up to this time not even a skirmish has occured.

There is nothing certain yet about the departure of the Emperor for the seat of war. It is not likely he will set out for the front until everything is ready there for active operations. No battle expected for some days.

The Journal Official has a significant article on the attitude of Holland, with which it professes to be pleased, and continues:—"But no one can ignore the ambitious designs of Prussia against the independence of Holland. Bismark wished to make Holland a naval state of the north German confederation, and under the pretext of establishing closer commercial relations, tried to place Prussian custom officers at Amsterdam. The patriotic emotions aroused in the Netherlands at the time of the Luxemburg affair will also be remembered; nor will it be forgotten that without the firm stand taken by France the Prussian policy would have had results fatal to the Netherlands. The Cabinet of the Hague is on its guard, and will not fail to maintain the real interests of the country."

The same paper has the following on the relation of Switzerland to France:—"We learn from Several Swiss Cantons, and particularly from Neufchatel, that the military measures of the Federal Government are not directed against France, but are inspired by a friendly neutrality.—Switzerland knows she has nothing to fear from France, her natural ally and firm friend. The measures taken by Switzerland to secure the respect of Prussia for her neutrality are in our favour, as by her geographical position she protects an important portion of our frontier." The friendly feeling of the Spanish people towards France is also pointed out by the Journal, which says: "We hear from Spain that all notice how carefully in the present conflict our Government and Chambers had avoided an act or expression of unfriendliness toward that power. This results from the feelings of sympathy between the two nations."

The Empress has sent 50,000 francs to the society—aid for the wounded.

PARIS, July 19, p. m.—The Emperor held another Council of Ministers to-day.

Prince Napoleon has arrived, and had a long interview with the Emperor. It is understood that the corps d'armee will be immediately organized and placed under the command of the Prince. A grand dinner was given by the Emperor at St. Cloud yesterday, after the Council of War. The principal officers of the regiments of the line and of the Imperial Guard, who are on the eve of leaving Paris, were present. They testified in the most enthusiastic manner their devotion to the Emperor.—The band played the Marseillaise.

The Corps Legislatif yesterday adopted the project of law submitted and urgently asked by the Government, and to-day the Senate concurred in the action of the Corps.

Many journals protest against the law for the regulation of the press in the time of war.

There are rumours that Denmark is giving way to the influence of England.

Russia so far has shown no signs of swerving from her attitude of neutrality.

It is reported that the Ambassadors of Baden, Saxony, Bavaria, Wurtemburg have taken leave of the King of Paris.

La Liberte says the official declaration of war will not be presented to the Chambers until its delivery to the Government of from Prussia, the Cabinet of Berlin having received notification of the declaration.

HOMBURG, July 19.—It is denied that Count Granville has communicated with Prussia.

We refer the reader to the following testimony in favor of Dr. Radway's Remedies, from gentlemen of high character in Israel. Persons doubting the genuineness of the same are requested to write to the parties, also to the U. S. Consul at Sinc, as to the correctness of the statements and status of the writers. For every word not true the sum of one hundred dollars will be paid!

Sinc on Jaffnah, March 22nd, 1869.

Messrs. Radway & Co.:

Gentlemen:—In answer to your favor of 20th instant, asking my opinion in regard to the efficacy of Dr. Radway & Co's preparations I am happy to say that I consider the Relief and Pills the best remedies ever known, and to form such an opinion I am obliged to prove it, which I will do willingly, viz: I suffered so much from "colic" that when I was attacked in January me so much that I preferred death to such sufferings. I took everything that was recommended, but it was of no use; at last I took 6 of Radway's Pills, after which the pains were very moderate, and then I thought that I was cured, but the pains were still more violent (which I attribute to the negligence in my part in not following it up as directed,) that I was obliged to give into my friends request to take some "Relief" which he gave me in a dose of ten tablespoons in a tumbler of water. In the interval of these minutes I felt relieved immediately, and fifteen minutes after the pain stopped. It is three months since I had an attack, and should I feel any symptoms of it I take the "Relief." I will do all in my power to convince the Doctors of the good results of these medicaments, so that they may prescribe them.

I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant

A Distressing Cough causes the friends of the sufferer almost as much pain as the sufferer himself, and should receive immediate attention. Dr Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry speedily cures coughs colds, influenza, sore throat, &c It will always relieve consumption, and in many well attested cases it has effected a perfect cure.

OWNERS OF HORSES REJOICING.

And why not? and who knows but what their horses are rejoicing as well; who can prove the contrary? But their owners rejoice because of the astonishing and almost miraculous effects on their horses of "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Peace Remedy." Some were lean and poor having no appetite, others would devour their food ravenously, yet derive no benefit from it; some were hide-bound, with rough and shaggy hair; others had severe cough and colds; many had the heaves and other complaints peculiar to horses; on all it operated as a charm, the disease or complaint was speedily removed, the appetite and digestive organs corrected, the skin softened and a sleek and shining appearance given to the coat all without any danger to, or preventing the horse being used—Remember the name, and see that the signature of Heard & Co., is on each package. PRINCE OF WALES.—The Prince of Wales will now, thanks to the skillful and vigilant management of his father, enter into an enjoyment of an income of $350,000 a year, and a half million of ready money from the revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall.

this a nice little sum of money for an annual dividend, but with all this vast amount of money which will be under his control, it will not go so far to relieve rheumatism, pains in the side and back, tooth ache, burns, bruises, frost-bites, &c., as a bottle of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," which is sold by all Medicine Dealers at the very price of 25 cts. per bottle.

TWO QUESTIONS EASILY ANSWERED.—Why should men wear beards? Because they are a great protection to throat and lungs, and add much to their personal appearance. Why should we use "Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers?" Because when used for coughs, colds, tickling in the throat, Hoarseness &c., they act like a charm. Ministers and Lawyers use them, physicians recommend them, and singers and public speakers say they are the very best medicine in existence for the cure of such complaints. Sold by all medicine dealers, at 25cts per box.

And whereas the amount of the whole rateable property the said Municipality of the said County of Peterborough, irrespective of any future increase of the same, and also irrespective of any income to be derived from the temporary investments of the Sinking Fund hereinafter mentioned, or any part thereof, according to the last revised Assessment Rolls of the said Municipality, is the sum of $2,511,651.

And whereas the existing debt of the said Municipality of the County of Peterborough is Twenty Seven Thousand Dollars for Principal money, and Nine Thousand Eight Hundred and Ten Dollars for interest, and there is nothing in arrear on account of said Principal or Interest.

And whereas, for paying the interest, and creating an equal yearly Sinking Fund for paying the said principal sum of $10,000 as hereinafter mentioned. It will require an equal annual special rate of nine twenty-fifths of a mill in the dollar, in addition to all rates to be levied in each year.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough—

1. That it shall be lawful for the Warden of the said County to raise by way of loan, from any person, or persons, body, or bodies corporate, who may be willing to advance the same, upon the credit of the Debentures hereinafter mentioned, a sum of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars, and to cause the same to be paid into the hands of the Treasurer of the said County of Peterborough, for the purposes, and with the objects above recited.

2. That it shall be lawful for the said Warden to cause any number of debentures to be made, for such sums of money as may be required, not less than $100 each, and not to exceed in the whole the said sum of $10,000; and that the said Debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Municipal Council, and be signed by the said Warden, and countersigned by the Treasurer of said County

3, That said Debentures shall be made payable in 20 years, at furthest, from the day hereinafter mentioned for this By-law to take effect at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality, and shall have attached to them coupons, for the payment of interest.

4. That the said Debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half-yearly, on the Twenty-First Day of June and the Twenty-first Day of December, in each year, at the Office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

5, That for the purpose of forming a Sinking Fund for the payment of the said Debentures, and the interest at the rate aforesaid, to become due thereon, an equal special rate of nine twenty-fifths of a mill in the dollar, shall, in addition to all other rates be raised, levied and collected in each year upon all the ratable property in the said Municipality, during the continuance of the said Debentures, or any of them.

6. That this By-law shall take effect, and come into operation upon the 19th DAY OF OCTOBER, ONE THOUSAND EIGHT HUNDRED AND SEVENTY.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-law to be taken into consideration by the Municipal Council of the

COUNTY OF PETERBOROUGH,

In Peterborough, in the said County, on the Twelfth Day of October, 1870,

IMMIGRATION.

To Farmers, Manufacturers and Others in quest of Ordinary or Skilled Labour.

The Immigration Society of Peterborough, desirous of securing immigration to this portion of the Province, and supplying whatever demands there may be for the various descriptions of labour, hereby give notice to all who may be desirous of procuring labour—male or female—and to the various municipalities in the County, that James Edwards, Esq, Clerk of the Town of Peterborough, has been appointed the Registrar of the Society, and that as such registrar Mr. Edwards will preserve a record of the different descriptions of labour that may be applyed for to him. From the information thus supplied the Society hopes to induce an immigration that will at least equal the demand for labour, if not assist very materially in settling much of the at present unproductive land in the County.

A registrar of lands for sale or to lease will also be preserved by the Registrar; and those giving information of lands for sale or to lease will have the advantage of having their lands placed prominently in the market, and brought under the especial notice of those who may desire to settle upon improved or partially improved lands.

Emigrants are now on their way from the Old Country, and many have already arrived. In order, therefore, that the efforts of the Society may be productive of benefit to the community, it is essential that information be at once given to Mr. Edwards, verbally or by letter, of the labour required, lands for sale or to lease, &c.

Those making application to the Registrar will be supplied with labourers at the earliest opportunity, and will be promptly notified of their arrival.

WILSON, BOWMAN & CO.,
Hamilton, Ontario,
MANUFACTURERS OF THE CELEBRATED
LOCKMAN SEWING MACHINE,

Take pleasure in announcing that the popularity of the Sewing Machine manufactured by them is still on the increase. They are now turning them out at the rate of 600 per month, and yet have been compelled within the last two weeks to increase their facilities to a capacity of one thousand per month.

The Lockman Machine, from its capacity to sew the heaviest fabrics with linen thread, as well as the finest cambrics with No. 150 Cotton, is pre-eminently the Farmer's Favorite Family Friend.

It is so exceedingly simple in its parts, and so strongly and durably made, that it does not require a mechanical genius for its management.

The manufacturers challenge the world to produce its equal, and yet its price is from Forty to Fifty per cent. Lower than that of any other first-class Shuttle Lock-stitch Sewing Machine.

EVERY MACHINE IS WARRANTED.

To Messrs. CHAMBERLAIN & SELLS, Conway P.O County of Lennox, Ontario, Canada.

MADOC, County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th., 1869

This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ankles, which gradually during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on up to my hips, and I became so weak that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two years, while this weakness was coming on me, and afterwards, I sought medical advice, employing, at different times, three doctors, and medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, but of no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoshonees Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had begun to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshonees Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was not a private one, but knows to all my neighbors and friends; and to any one afflicted as I was, I have only to say try the Shoshonees Remedy; I believe it will cure you,

MARY ANN DOUGHTY.

Sworn to before me at Madoc, County of Hastings, this ninth day of February, 1869.

A. F. WOOD, J. P. &c.

I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshonees Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.

Men Wanted.

"The world wants—men, large hearted, manly men;
Men who shall join its chorus, and prolong
The psalm of labor and the psalm of love
The time wants scholars—scholars who shall shape
The doubtful destinies of dubious years,
And lead the ark that bears our countries good
Forth on some peaceful Ararat at last.
The age wants heroes—heroes who shall dare
Discouragie in the solid rock of truth;
To clutch the monster error by the throat;
To bear opinion to a loftier seat;
To blot the sin of oppression out,
And lead a universal freedom in.
And heaven wants souls—fresh and capacious souls;
To taste its raptures, and expand, like flowers,
Beneath the glory of its central sun.
It wants fresh souls—not lean and shriveled ones;
It wants fresh souls. My brother, give it thine.
If thou indeed will be what scholars should;
If thou will be a hero, and will strive
To help thy fellow and exalt thyself,
Thy feet, at last, shall stand on jasper floors;
Thy heart, at last, shall seem a thousand hearts—
Each single heart with myriad raptures filled—
While thou shalt sit with princes and with kings,
Rich in the jewel of a ransomed soul."

Hereditary Intemperance.

Mr. Day, of the Binghamton Inebriate Asylum, after mature consideration and careful analysis, has come to the conclusion that no more than five per cent of the cases of hereditary intemperance seek for shelter and aim at reformation in the associations formed and in the asylums provided for the victims of drunkenness. The great majority have their names registered on the calendar of crime, and their asylums are charity hospitals and State prisons. If parents would only put on their drinking cups before taking their accustomed drams, there would be an unpleasant taste and an unsavory odor about their beverage which might result in the abandonment of their dangerous and pernicious practice at the bar. Those fathers and mothers who love their children should be careful not to endow them with a deceased appetite, which will grow with their growth and strengthen with their weakness, and become more powerful as they become feebler, and which, if not cured by total abstinence, will make life a burden; a season of pain and sorrow, and perhaps crime. Could these parents look through a mental telescope into the future, and see their sons and grandsons reeling along the down hill road of vice and drunkenness in company with the outcasts and ruffians of society, and see the dreadful temptation on the highroads and the fearful inception of the foul disease of drunkenness upon the faces of their children, would not their cheeks pale with apprehension and fear? Those who drink intoxicating liquors not only injure themselves physically, morally, and mentally, but they injure their descendents, also, and bequeath to them the inheritance of an appetite which will endanger their health and happiness; which tends to the commission of crimes and is pretty sure to make them paupers and prison birds. Will the children of such parents "rise up and call them blessed?" Will the memory of such ancestors be sweet and pleasant? The sin of drunkenness is visited upon the children, even to the third and fourth generations of those who drink intoxicating liquors.—National Temperance Advocate.

The Abiding Word.

No army ever survived so many battles as the Bible; no citadel ever stood so many sieges; no rock was ever battered by so many hurricanes and swept by storms. And yet it stands. It has seen the rise and downfall of Daniel's four empires. Assyria bequeaths a few mutilated figures to the riches of the British Museum. Media and Persia, like Babylon, which they conquered, have been weighed in the balance and long ago wanting. Greece's family survives in its historic name, "Ye living Greeces no more;" and the iron dome of the Cæsars is held in precarious occupation by a feeble hand. And yet the book that foretells all this survives. While nations, Kings, philosophers, systems, institutions, have died away, the Bible now exercises man's deepest thoughts, is examined by the keenest intellects, stands revered before the highest tribunals, is more read, and sifted, and debated, more devotedly loved, and more vehemently assailed, more defended, and more denied, more industriously translated and freely given to the world, more honored and abused, than other book the world ever saw. It survives all changes, itself unchanged; it sees all things decay, itself incorruptable; it sees myriads of other books engulfed in the stream of time, yet it is borne along triumphantly on the wave; and it will be borne along, until the mystic angel shall plant his foot upon the sea, and swear by Him that liveth forever and ever, that time shall be no longer. "For all flesh is as grass. The grass withereth and the flower therefore falleth away; but the word of the Lord enlighteneth forever."

Be careful of your companions. If your company won't suit them unless you drink with them—why then, the sooner you separate the better. Don't make any false excuses for not drinking. Tell them plainly and openly that you have taken the pledge, and would rather die than break it. Keep away from places where liquors is sold. There's danger there. People get together in these places to chat and talk, and that makes attraction for a man in the evening when his work is over. I know it does, but that is an attraction which you must resist. How much better to spend your evenings at home! How happy you would make your wife by doing this, and what a benefit it would be to your children! Ah! there is no place like home for true happiness, when love lights and spreads the board. The first society that God made was the Family, and He gave it His blessing.

SMOKING AND DRINKING.—Rev. J. D. Fulton gives the following incident, which, to make an adaption from the same given to the narrative of another unfortunate, might be entitled "Our Poor Boy; the story of a Thousand:"—"A young man came from a little village up among the hills of New Hampshire to Boston. We welcomed him to the house of God; he joined the Bible class, and for a time attended upon the means of Grace. His employers trusted him. Friends gathered about him. A companion invited him to call at his room on Sabbath, He went. He was welcomed by other companions. He was invited to try a cigar. He yielded, and for the first time attempted to smoke. It sickened him. He was ashamed. Believing it manly to smoke, he conquered his repugnance. He went again and again. From tobacco he went to beer, and afterward to wine.—He forsook the house of God, neglected his mother, his Bible class, his soul. He is now an infidel, a swearer, and a drunkard. Thousands have followed his steps and have reached the terrible goal."

A cunning toper being out of money and out of credit, devised the following scheme to get his "bitters." He took a four-quart jug and filled it half-full of water, and then directed his steps to Mr. Murray's store, and ordered two quarts of rum. His order being honored, the grocer handed out the jug, and asked for the price of the rum.

"I haven't got any money," said the toper.

"Then hand me the jug, and I will pour the sum back into the barrel."

"Well, Mr. Murray, dont pour more than half, because there were two quarts in before I came here," exclaimed the "rummy."

Mr. Murray poured out the two quarts, leaving two quarts of rum and water remaining there.

The Rum Maniac.

The following lines convey but a faint idea of the frightful ravings of a poor inebriate, who died of delirium tremens, in an Asylum to which he had been removed. He laboured under the delusion that he was sane, and that his friends and all the world besides were mad. —

THE MAD HOUSE.

"Why am I here?" the maniac cried,
"Confined, 'mid crazy people? Why?
I am not mad,—knave, stand aside!
I'll have my freedom, or I'll die;
It's not for cure, that here I've come,—
I tell thee—all I want is rum;"
"I must have rum."

"Sane? yes and have been all the while;
Why then tormented thus? 'Tis sad,
Why chained, and held in durance vile?
The man who brought me here was mad;
I will not stay where spectres come,
Let me go home: I must have rum,
I must have rum."

HIS FATHER APPEARS.

'Tis he! 'tis he! my aged sire!
What has disturbed thee in thy grave?
Why bend on me those eyes of fire?
Why torment, since thou can't not save?
"Back to the Church-yard whence you've come
Return, return, but send me rum!
Oh! send me rum."

HIS MOTHER.

Why is my mother musing there?
On that same consecrated spot,
Where once she taught me words of prayer:
But now she hears,—she heeds me not,
Mute in her winding sheet she stands,—
Cold, cold; I feel her icy hands—
Her icy hands."

HIS WIFE.

"She's vanished: but a dearer friend,
I know her by her angel smile,
Has come—her partner to attend,
His hours of misery to beguile;
"Haste, haste, my loved one,—set me free;
'Twere Heaven, to 'scape from hence to thee,
From hence to thee."

She does not hear; away she flies,
Regardless of the chains I wear,
Back to her mansion in the skies,
To dwell with kindred spirits there.
Why has she gone? why did she come?
O, God, I'm ruined! give me rum!
Oh give me rum."

THE GAMBLER.

"I stake again? not I!—no more,
Heartless, accursed gamester! No!
I staked with thee, my all before
And from thy den—a beggar go,
Go where?—a suicide to hell!
And leave my orphan children here,
In rags and wretchedness to dwell—
A doom their father cannot bear."

POVERTY,

Hark! hark! for bread my children cry,
A cry that drinks my spirit up;
But 'tis in vain,—in vain to try—
O give me back the drunkard's cup.
My lips are parched, my heart is sad,—
This cursed chain! 'twill drive me mad!
'Twill drive me mad.

Guard! guard these windows—bar that door,
Yonder, I armed banditti see;
They've robbed my house of all its store
And now return to murder me;
They're breaking in, don't let them come!
Drive,—drive them hence,—but give me rum.
O! give me rum.

THE MURDER.

'Twas there I heard his piteous cry,
And saw his last imploring look;
But steeled my heart, and bade him die,—
Then from him golden treasures took.
Accursed treasure,—stinted sum—
Reware of guilt!—give, give me rum.
O, give me rum.

Hark! still I hear that piteous wail,
Before my eyes his spectre stands,
And when it frowns on me, I quail;
Oh! I would fly to other lands!
But that pursuing—there t'would come
There's no escape! but give me rum.
O, give me rum.

It won't wash out,—that crimson stain!
I've scoured these spots, and made them white—
Blood reappears—again—again—
Soon as morning brings the light!
When from my sleepless couch I come
To see,—to feel,—O! give me rum.
I must have rum.

THE HARLOT.

Thou painted harlot, come not here!
I know thee, by thy lech'rous look,
I know that silvery voice—I hear—
Go home and read God's holy book.
For thee there's mercy, not for me—
I'm damned already,—words can't tell
What sounds I hear,—what sights I see!
I'm sure it can't be worse in hell!
Be worse in hell.

THE MINISTER.

Will no one pity? no one come?—
Not thou! O! come not man of prayer!
Shut that dread volume in thy hand.
To me—damnation's written there
No drunkard can in judgment stand!
Talk not of pardon there revealed—
No,—not to me—it is too late,—
My sentence is already sealed,
Years cannot blot the book of fate.
Too late! too late, these tidings come
There is no hope! O, give me rum.
I must have rum.

DELIRIUM TREMENS.

See'st thou that rag these reptiles roll!
They're crawling o'er me in my bed!
I feel their clammy snakey coil—
On every limb,—around my head.—
With forked tongues I see them play!
I hear them hiss;—tear them away.
Tear them away.

THE FIEND.

"A fiend! a fiend! (with many a dart,)
Glares on me with his bloodshot eye,
And aims his missiles at my heart,—
Oh! whither, whither! shall I fly?
Fly! no! it is no time for flight!
I know thy hellish purpose well—
Avaunt! avaunt! thou hated sprite
And his thee to thy native hell.
Thy native hell."

"He's gone, he's gone! and I am free,
He's gone, the faithless braggart liar,—
He said he'd come to summon me—
See there again—my bed's on fire!
Fire! water! help! oh, haste! I die!
The flames are kindling round my head!
This smoke—I'm strangling!—cannot fly—
O, snatch me from this burning bed.
This burning bed."

But, see! again that demon's there—
Crouching to make a fresh attack!
See how his flaming eye-balls glare—
Thou fiend of fiends! what's brought thee back?
Back in thy car—for whom?—for whom!—
He smiles—he beckons me to come
What are these words he's written there?
"In hell we never want for rum,"

"Not want for rum!—read that again—
I feel the spell!—haste drive me down—
Where rum is free—where revellers reign,
And I can wear the drunkard's crown.
Accept thy proffer!—fiend! I will—
And to thy drunken banquet come,
Fill the great cauldron from thy still,
With boiling, burning, fiery rum.
There will I quench this horrid thirst!—
With boon companions drink and dwell,
Nor plead for rum, as here I must,
There's liberty to drink in hell."

THE MANIAC DIES.

Thus raved the Maniac, rum had made,—
Then starting from his haunted bed,—
"On, on, ye demons! on," he said,
Then silent sank, his soul had fled!

THE MORAL.

Scoffer, beware! he in that shroud
Was once a temperate drinker too,
And felt as safe—proclaimed as loud
Against extravagance as you.

And yet, ere long, I saw him stand,
Refusing, on the brink of hell,
A pardon from his Saviour's hand,
Then plunging down with fiends to dwell.

From thence, methinks, I hear him say,
"Dash! dash the chalice! break the spell!
Stop while you can, and when you may,—
There's no escape when once in hell."

O, God, thy gracious spirit send,
That we the mocker's snare may fly,
And thus escape that dreadful end,
That death eternal, drunkard's die!

The National Temperance Society and Publication House.

The June number of the "National Temperance Advocate," contains a very encouraging account of the fifth anniversary of this excellent society, which took place in New York City, on the 10th of May last. True Patriotism.

A noble quality is patriotism; of all honors which can be conferred, that of being called a patriot seems most worthy of being sought after. Noble, because amidst the selfishness of all human actions this seems least selfish.

Little sympathy can an individual expect so long as he labors only for self, or perhaps the indirect advancement of his own interest. But when a person devotes a life to the interest of his country, or goes forth risking that life in its defence, how different.

A Lyons fell, and at his fall the heart of a great nation bowed itself in sorrow; he was a sacrifice upon the altar of his country; and if no marble columns marks his resting place, no studied phrase his epitaph, a more enduring monument, a juster epitaph shall exist in the hearts of his countrymen—he was a patriot.

But it shall be only upon the statesman or warrior that we confer this magic name? May not some silent worker in the study room, debarred of the stimulus of the senate hall or the battle field, some teacher of morals or science, earnestly striving to better or enlighten his fellow beings, equally deserve the name and honors of the patriot? Without virtue, enlightenment and liberty, no government is worth its cost; and shall not those by whom these signal virtues can alone be brought out and perfected, at least be granted this name?

Napoleon has been called a patriot.—France during his reign extended her boundaries, increased her commerce and her wealth. But was it patriotism in its true sense? What pen shall be able to record the tales of desolated homes, of widowed wives and orphan children; of pillaged towns and burning cities, that his dear bought victories produced. His so-called patriotism rarely extended beyond his own interest, never beyond his own land. Can we truly say the world is better for his having lived in it? If not, does he deserve the title?

Washington was a true patriot. The interest of his whole country was ever his first object; but never at the expense of the rights of another. But not less in private than in public life was this virtue shown. His sterling integrity, his law-abiding life, his charity, I believe equally deserve the name, as his most lauded public acts, and long after party triumphs, or the memory of conquests have sunk to oblivion, shall these be remembered as deserving the name of true patriotism.

Jefferson on Temperance.

A correspondent writes from Washington. "I have heard my father tell repeatedly the following anecdote of Mr. Jefferson: A gentleman was recommended to Mr. Jefferson for a considerable office with great earnestness. There was competition for the office, but the recommendations of the friends of this gentlemen were more earnest and somewhat more numerous than those of his competitors. They urged that he was a man of integrity, a decided friend of Mr. Jefferson, and fully capable of discharging his duties. Mr. Jefferson was about to give him the office, when a friend of his, well known to him to be such, called upon him, having had information of Mr. Jefferson's intentions in the case. He broached the subject and said plainly that he hoped that appointment would not be made. "Why so?" said Mr. Jefferson "he is recommended to me as a strong political friend, a man of integrity and capacity." "All that sir," said the gentleman, is true, but he is intemperate; he uses intoxicating liquors too freely. Mr. Jefferson replied: "I am glad you have given me this information; the appointment shall not be made. I have long since made up my mind never, knowingly, to appoint any man, to office who uses intoxicating liquors freely." And the appointment was not made."

THE SIX DAYS OF CREATION.—Archbishop Usher computed that the earth was called into being on Sunday, and was completed in its organization the Friday following. Mr. Phillips, the Professor of Geology at Oxford, infers from the rate at which sediment is now deposited in different water, the beds of coal, sandstone, shale and ironstone in South Wales, occupied five hundred years in their formation; and applying the same data on a larger scale, he says: We have the accumulated antiquity, we the base of the granitoid rocks, 96,000,000 years. All these strata, except the very lowest, are replete with fossils, which were of first help to be curious spots of nature, after successive generations are now recognized as vestiges of the innumeral animal and vegetable tribes which covered land and water during the protracted term of preparation for man. How many millions of centuries these strata are almost daily changing, and how many successively changing races and tribes of these animals and vegetables they were now living and moving in.

Editorial Items

There were rumours here of a woman being drowned the other day, while crossing Stoney Lake. We did not learn her name.

The Government apportionment to our Grammar School, for the half year just ended, is $208—a large increase on last year.

The Review is very much excited about the Horticultural Show. Last year he received some $26.45 for printing,—this year almost nothing. Has this anything to do with his remarks?

David Crowley, of Otonabee, received severe internal injuries on Wednesday, while attempting to catch his team that had run away with the reaper in the harvest field. He died on Thursday morning.

The Peat bogs of the Canada Peat Fuel Company L. C. took fire last week, and continued to burn so that the Grand Trunk trains have passed along with difficulty, at one place.

More Whisky Work.—Both Shearer, the accused, and Young, who it is supposed was murdered at Young's Point on Wednesday week, were drunk, Shearer being so drunk that he did not know whether Young went with him from Kearney's. Why do not the authorities punish those who made them mad (drunk), that is if Shearer did murder him, which is very doubtful.

Counterfeit Bills.—In our last issue we referred to the case of John McLeod before the Mayor, for passing counterfeit bills on the Bank of Ontario. To avoid a third meeting with his worship and to prevent the consequent shock to his weak nerves, he skedaddled on Friday night from his boarding house, after all in the house had gone to bed.

On Saturday another counterfeit two on the same bank was detected.

Our readers would do well in taking bills to examine the back as well as the face. The back of the counterfeit bill has not the green tint of the good bill, and on the face of the good bill there is a greenish tint all through, which does not exist in the counterfeit, a very little care will detect the bad bill. It is a great pity that McLeod got off, such men should reap the reward of the deed—Penitentary.

The Young Case.

We give a pretty full report of the evidence in the case against Shearer, from which it may be gathered,—

1st. That Shearer was drunk in Kearneys on the afternoon and evening of the 13th instant.

2nd. That Frank Young, deceased, came there about dark, and also drank some,—both being the worse of liquor, but Shearer the worst. They drank together, but had no quarrel.

3rd. That there was considerable drinking going on, and some little rows.

4th. That Shearer got a bottle, and that he and Young left Kearney's after one o'clock at night.

5th. At 20 minutes, or thereabout, to two, Shearer was in Mr. Whites, and in bed, where he stopped till morning, and in the morning there was no sign of mud or dirt upon him.

6th That he then left, apparently for Mr. Neugent's.

7th. That if Shearer committed the foul deed he must have done it between one and one forty. He must, therefore, have killed Young, got a boat, ninety rods distance, brought it down these ninety rods, and then have taken the body out into the stream and sunk it; then leave the boat back 40 or 50 rods, up stream; and still get back to Mr. Whites, a mile and a half distant, in 40 minutes, and all this while he was drunk, according to all the evidence, while Young was not so drunk as he.

To our mind, some other person is the murderer—and for the sake of justice, it is hoped that he will be found out

It might prove interesting to know who those men in the pines were? and might not they, or one of them, have hit Young in mistake for Shearer, and then bury their foul deed in the river.

Let this matter be searched out. If Shearer is guilty let him suffer, if innocent, to condemn, and let the guilty free, would be a great injustice.

Horticultural Show.

The Horticultural Show was held in the Music Hall on Thursday last. There was not as much competition as expected, but what was shown was very good.

Mr. McLennan, Mr. Cooney, and Mr. Kempt, showed some very fine vegetables, for the season, and the show of flowers by Sheriff Hall, A. W. Kempt, J. Cooney and Mr. Barlee, was very good indeed, altho' not equal to what it would have been if there were a larger number of contributors.

The notice given was perhaps rather short, but we understand that there will be a show the same time as the Agricultural Show in September and October, when an effort will be made to ensure success.

Mr. Cooney received the first prize for Pansies, Early Cabbage, Harvest Apples and Radishes, and second prizes for Balsams, Potatoes, Foliage Plants and Beans.

Mr. Kempt received first prizes for greenhouse plants, foliage plants, antirrhinum, floral basket, raspberries, red currants, white currants, collection of currants, collection of gooseberries, early horn carrot, english onions, spring beans, zinnia, verbenas, and second prizes for floral baskets, black currants, hand bouquet and cucumbers.

Mrs. Edward Beatty received first prizes for dahlias, black currants, and second prizes for gooseberries.

Sheriff Hall received first prizes for balsams, phlox drummondi, petunias, pinks, holly hocks, hand bouquet, cut flowers; red carrots; beets, peas, and second prizes for verbenas and floral design.

Mr. McClelland received first prizes for potatoes, and best collection of potatoes, and for cucumbers.

The entire prize list amounts to $24.50.

Mr. Dumble showed a very great curiosity of a squash, and some tomatoes, but they were too late for entry.

Water Works.

In our last issue we had space merely to give the leading topics discussed at the meeting called by Mr. Romaine, to discuss the propriety of forming a "water works company" for the town.

J. F. Dennistoun, Esq., was the principal advocate of water works, and laboured to show the practicability of procuring water from Hilliard's Hill, upon Mr. Wilson's plans. But his whole arguments and reasoning were no longer nor broader than George street, and perhaps a little on Hunter and Simcoe streets; and for this he is willing to vote $1,800 a year of the peoples' taxes. He proposed, of course, that a company be formed, and that the people on George street take the necessary stock—say $20,000. The balance could be borrowed on the strength of the company from time to time as required; and as the other parts of the town would be favored with water, an additional tax should be levied, and of course an additional sum paid to the company: the terms always to be referred to the Council.

Let us suppose, however, that eight or ten Councillors should become stock holders, or an equal number of stock holders become Councillors: we would like to know whether the company or the Ratepayers would get the best of the bargain. Erelong the $1800 would be $4000 or more, likely, $5000 a year—too often the conscience of Councillors are found minus when their own interests are at stake.

Mr. Dennistoun assured the meeting that his plan had the advantage of "not increasing the debt of the town a cent." All that had to be paid was the annual sum of $1800, or may we not say perhaps $6000. It is true that by this scheme no debentures would be required, nor money borrowed, but surely the annual payment of $1800 a year represents a debt of $30,000, and a possible annual payment of $6000 represents a probable debt of $100,000. The unjust principle of taxing the whole town to provide water works for one street still remains.—We trust nothing like this will be attempted until the whole be submitted to the people, and if they approve of such folly—or madness—shall we call it, then let them bear the result.

Mr. Romaine of course, is in favor of water works, and has been ever since the trial of that patent steam boiler of his, that squirted the water into his furnace and produced steam for him in a way that any little urchin can do when he wishes to put out the fire that he had created for his folly or amusement. Ever since Mr. R. will have no steam fire engine.

We will now examine Mr. Toole's theory. His calculations were based on the cost of two steam fire engines, a lot of hose, tanks, and loss on sale of town debentures. He may have made these calculations on correct principles, but most assuredly he forgot that even if we had "the proposed water works" for George Street, we would still require a steam fire engine, if not two. It is well known that the water works would not supply water more than half a block from George Street. What would then become of the rest of the town,—in case of fire?

It will be answered that we have the river and the creek. But neither of these are available without engines. We have them already, and yet we find them useless—until the engine is brought into play.

There can be no doubt but that an engine (a steam one) would have to be obtained to preserve the property in the outskirts of the town and away from the reach of the proposed water works; and consequently we will be called upon, and justly too, to provide one, at least, for the town. Then if Mr. Toole's reasoning be correct, we will have to pay $1,800 for "water works" and $1650 for steam engines, &c., or $3,400 a year for protection against fire, with a possibility of the water works becoming $6,000 a year, by vote of the Council, perhaps.

Then we have a committee for forming a "water works company," not two of whom own a foot of property on George Street. Why not appoint a committee of property owners—such as Mr. Henthorn, Mr. Morrow, Messrs. Nicholls & Hall, Mr. Cluxton, Mr. Stevenson and Mr. E. Burnham, &c. If these men pray for water works let them have them, but even then let them pay for them, unless they extend them to the whole town.

Another feature of the discussion was lauding and praising Mr. Wilson's plans and rejecting Mr. Kennedy's, yet any disinterested mind will at once see that Mr. Kennedy is just as good authority as Mr. Wilson. They are both gentlemen who have given particular attention to this branch of engineering, and they both differ in their views of the pressure a reservoir on Hilliard's hill would produce, and what are the opinions of other mortals between them.

There is not a doubt but that the friction of pipes, &c. will so waste the pressure as to use up one-half of its effectiveness. If any one thing should damn Mr. Wilson's plans it is the advocacy of Mr. Romaine, with his gas works, patent steam boiler, and other weaknesses staring us in the face.

The Town it appears must get into debt for something. Not a bad idea would be to send some of our citizens to the Asylum a year or two at the public expense.

The next best way to get into debt is to erect a new Town Hall. It would be of some advantage to the town; but the present scheme of water works, if ever erected, will prove useless for the end intended—extinguishing fires—besides being unjust in principle; the last being the great cause of the opposition of a majority of the citizens to the water works, or –

Let us have a railroad to Mud Lake, and the Grand Junction to Belleville. Our present railway system is cutting off our trade yearly. It has driven a large part of our trade to Harwood. The back country can more easily get heavy freight by way of Lindsay, and yet we are discussing the way to turn the Otonabee out of its bed, while we should be devising new ways for regaining our lost trade. Let us have railroad meeting, and see if we cannot have the road extended to Mud Lake, and a thorough system of communication opened with the country to the rear of us.

What about the Haliburton Wooden Railway? Any of these schemes will prove productive of real advantage to the town; besides opening up a large field of labour for the working classes, while water works will be found, if constructed, perfectly useless.

At any rate, let us have the voice of public opinion on these matters. $100,000 spent in extending our railroad, and obtaining better communication, and will only require a little more than the water works.

YOUNG'S POINT TRAGEDY.

In last week's issue we were led astray in regard to the manner of accounting for the death of Young. They were not in a canoe together, as reported to us.

On Tuesday the case was again brought before Jas. Edwards, Esq., and D. Hopkins, Esq. Mr. R. Burnham appearing for Patrick Young, and Mr. W. H. Scott appearing for prisoner.

Shearer, who is accused of the murder, is a man of about — years, and has been somewhat given to spells of drinking. He has none of the look of a murderer about him, and appeared to take the matter quite coolly—not a change on his countenance being visible during the whole investigation.

Thos. White was the first witness called. He knew prisoner, and also Young who is said to have been murdered. Saw Shearer between one and two o'clock on the morning of the 14th instant. Witness resides about a mile from Kearney's tavern.—Shearer remained at my house remainder of the night. He went to bed, slept with one of my boys, Richard, saw him when he came in. He was the worse of liquor, was able to walk up stairs. He appeared to know what he was about. Did not ask him what he had been about. He made no remarks in reference to Young, nor as to what he was doing.- He was dressed in pants and shirt and vest; he had a bottle of whiskey; witness drank part of it next morning. He had no stick. The clock struck two just after I had returned to bed; might have been 10 or 15 minutes from he came in till the clock struck.—Shearer lived with Saml. Nugent, about half a mile South of me; and by my place was about the direct road to his employer's house.

To Mr. Burnham,—There is another way, but the distance in each case is about the same.

Witness knows where it is said the body was found. It is on the way between Kearneys and my house.

Richard White, son of last witness, sworn—Was at home on the night of the 13th instant; was there when Shearer came; he slept with me. I did not hear the clock strike; could not say what he looked like; he caught me by the arm when he came to bed. I said is that you, Tom? He said, if you had been where I was to-night you would not have got out with your life. He said there was going to be a fight in the pines near Kearney's; that as he passed, men in the pines asked him if he could fight such an one, and if he had said he could fight such an one, and another said kill him, the damned heretic. Prisoner said he lost his way out of the pines. He also said there was going to be a fight in the store, in Kearney's, and that Young had kicked Kearney in the abdomen, and that he was almost an hour before he came to again. He (Shearer) then fell asleep; he got up before me, and waked my brother George. He took breakfast with us, but did not talk of Young or of the quarrel in Kearney's; only of wages. Witness did not know where he went to.

To Mr. Scott—The pines are about south of Kearney's; there are 10 acres of them. Witness understood from his words that the fight spoken of in the store was after the fight in the pines. Could smell the whisky off Shearer when he came to our house, but cannot say he was drunk. His clothes were quite clean looking the next morning; did not take any whisky out of the bottle.

George White, brother to last witness, sworn—Was at home on the night of the 13th, but did not see prisoner till next morning; did not say anything but that Kearney had got kicked by Frank Young, and that he lay over for a while; did not say when.

To Mr. Burnham,—Knew Young for 14 years; never knew Young and Kearney to quarrel. The pines are about 40 rods from Kearney's, on the way to our house; there are 10 acres of pines, they are about 1 rod from the river. The body was found further up the river, I believe. The hat was found 90 to 100 rods from Kearney's, below where the body was found.

Jas. Kearney, sworn.—Deceased did kick me on the night of the 13th, but only in fun, we had a scuffle—not in anger.—He kicked me but did not hurt me. Young came to my place about dark; Shearer was there in the evening. Think Young did drink, but I was not attending the bar; do not remember what I said when he kicked me, of course said something, but could not now say what it was. Cannot remember what he said to me.

The hat was found on Friday, on the shore. I was present when hat was found; saw the body brought to shore; saw where it was found; it was angling up the river; it must have been carried or towed to the place. The shore is muddy where the hat was found, and gradually deepens.—The body could not get where it was found unless towed or carried to the place.—There was a canoe on the shore, cannot say that it was examined. It was a log canoe; do not know that Shearer can manage a canoe. I went to town and brought with me, Dennis Savois, Matthew Young and Patrick Cassidy. Did not stop on the way. Cannot say what time got into town; stopped in Mr. Tobin's the remainder of the night; was at the fire; had some drink afterwards; slept with Michael Condon.—Never had any quarrel or difficulty or hard feelings with Young. Do not remember who was in bar at time of kick. Never stated that Young was the cause of separation of me and my wife; never suspected him.

Patrick Young, sworn—Is father of deceased. Saw a board canoe with a paddle on the end of it, on Thursday morning about 6 to 7 o'clock. It was opposite, but farther up than where the body was found. There was also a small log canoe farther down, below where the body was found.

To Mr. Scott—Thought it was some of our own or Kearney's. The hat was found at 6 to 7 o'clock; was close by where it was; suspected the body was towed to the place where it was found. Cannot say Shearer can manage a boat; never saw him in a canoe. The shoulders of deceased had a blue-black mark across them. The body could not be pushed to where it was. The water was about 15 feet deep at the place.

Mrs. Taylor, sworn, but knew nothing whatever about it.

Alex. Ross, sworn—Lives about a mile from Kearney's. Knows prisoner, and also saw Young at the saw mill. Saw prisoner on the 14th in the field of witness. This was the nearest way to his work; he appeared to be the worse of liquor; talked about last time, and said he would stop Nugent's cuts if he did not allow that day to him; said he had stopped a better man's cuts last night. Witness asked who it was; he said no matter.

To Mr. Scott—Expected he was on his way to his work; saw he was the worse of liquor; noticed it at once; have known him for about two years; cannot say that Shearer can manage a boat. He had a bottle with him.

Patrick Young, Jun'r., sworn.—Is brother of the deceased; went to Nugent on Thursday evening to enquire of Shearer about brother. He said I might not fret for Frank was all right, as he had come with him to the Church the night before about ten o'clock, and that perhaps he had gone to the Circus. Said Frank had only pants and vest on at time. The Church is on the way to where he was found. Prisoner said they had been 15 to 16 minutes together; they left about ten he said, and that the prisoner had stopped all night at Mr. White's. Witness saw them bring the body ashore; do not know of any quarrel between them, nor of any dispute between Kearney and deceased. Where father saw the boat was 40 to 50 rods from the usual landing place. Did not see Shearer at the tavern that evening.

Robert Young, brother of deceased sworn.—Went to Shearer's after Patrick came home to enquire about Frank. Prisoner said Frank had come a piece with him, as far as the Church; stated there about 15 to 20 minutes. They had taken a small sup out of the bottle, and that he did not know where Frank went to. On the following day, Friday, asked him again about Frank. He said he did not know anything about him, for he did not remember seeing him except in the evening; witness knew nothing of the boat except what father said. Had gone to Mr. Barry's to enquire after Frank; but no one being there, he went to the spring for a drink, and saw a small canoe; saw no other boat, could not see point unless out round the graveyard.

To Mr. Scott—There was only that log canoe there then. James Kearney's boat and this one were the only ones there could be. It must have been J. Kearney's boat that father saw, and that took the body to where it was found, as there is no other like it round there.

Angus R. McDonald was sworn, but Mr. Scott objected to his evidence on technical grounds. It was not heard, except that the Coronor's jury were unanimous in their verdict.

The magistrate then addressed the prisoner, asking him had he anything to say for himself, and warning him not to say anything that would convict himself, as whatever he said might be used as evidence against him.

Shearer's only reply was, I have nothing to say but that I am innocent.

He was then committed to stand his trial. It may not be out of place to state here that young McKelvey, Kearney's bar-tender, swore, at a former hearing, that Shearer and Young left Kearneys from one to two o'clock.

On Sunday, a body of Prussians crossed the Frontier near Saarbrouck, and penetrated the country several miles.

Found French in considerable force near the town of Gerweiter.

Sharp skirmishing between forces.

French soon retired, leaving ten killed and wounded on the field.

No loss on Prussian side.

This action has demonstrated that the needle gun is superior to the Chasspot Rifle.

London, 25th.—Special correspondent of Tribune writes from Lets, 22nd instant, describing movements of troops at that place on that day.

There were 10,000 soldiers at Forbach, 7,000 at St. Avold, 3,000 at Sarrgemines; also a large cavalry camp at Thursville which protects left of French army.

Paris, 27th.—The Journal de Official publishes another decree, calling out for active duty ninety thousand men of the contingent of 1869. The same paper has an article on the pretended treaty recently published in the London Times, having for its object the acquisition of Luxemburg and Belgium, by France, on condition of France not opposing the union of states on the south with North German confederation after the treaty of Prag in 1866. Several conferences were held at Berlin between Bismarck and the French Ambassador on the subject of the project of an all ance.

Some of his ideas set forth in the Times were then advanced, but the French Government never had any knowledge of project described, and as far as propositions which were discussed at interventions the Emperor rejected them. It can escape no one that this publication on part of Times is designed merely to influence public opinion in England.

Berlin, 27th.—Correspondence prints text of the treaty which the French Emperor offered Bismarck, it waved all opposition to German unification, provided Prussia would assist French acquisition of Luxemburgh, and reduction of Belgium.

SOMEBODY SAYS.

"There is something peculiarly attractive in a horse. His intelligent eye and ear, his lofty carriage, his free and graceful motion, his great strength, his obedient temper, and his indispensable use, all endear him to us. We have to look at his fine proportions, and take in the inspiration of his energy and power, but it is only when the horse is properly cared for—when he is free from disease or unsoundness of any kind that he will exhibit these points of attraction, and without which he is of but little value. A package of "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy," should be in possession of every man who owns a horse, to be used in case of emergency. Don't fail to get it. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hand & Co. is on each package. Northrop & Lyman, Newcastle, Ont. proprietors for Canada. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

WHEREAS, the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough have resolved to expend the sum of $10,000, in constructing, making and repairing the Roads and Bridges within the said County,

And whereas to carry into effect the said recited object, it will be necessary for the said Municipal Council to raise by way of loan the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars in the manner hereinafter mentioned:

And whereas it will require the sum of $900 to be raised annually by special rate, for the payment of said debt or loan and interest, as also hereinafter mentioned:

And whereas the amount of the whole rateable property the said Municipality of the said County of Peterborough, irrespective of any future increase of the same and also irrespective of any income to be derived from the temporary investments of the Sinking Fund hereinafter mentioned, or any part thereof, according to the last revised Assessment Rolls of the said Municipality, is the sum of $2,511,651.

And whereas the existing debt of the said Municipality of the County of Peterborough is Twenty Seven Thousand Dollars for Principal money, and Nine Thousand Eight Hundred and Ten Dollars for Interest, and there is nothing in arrear on account of said Principal or Interest.

And whereas, for paying the interest, and creating an equal yearly Sinking Fund for paying the said principal sum of $10,000 as hereinafter mentioned, it will require an equal annual special rate of nine twenty-fifths of a mill in the dollar, in addition to all rates to be levied in each year.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough—

1. That it shall be lawful for the Warden of the said County to raise by way of loan, from any person, or persons, body, or bodies corporate, who may be willing to advance the same, upon the credit of the Debentures hereinafter mentioned, a sum of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars, and to cause the same to be paid into the hands of the Treasurer of the said County of Peterborough, for the purposes, and with the objects above recited.

2. That it shall be lawful for the said Warden to cause any number of debentures to be made, for such sums of money as may be required, not less than $100 each, and not to exceed in the whole the said sum of $10,000; and that the said Debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Municipal Council, and be signed by the said Warden, and countersigned by the Treasurer of said County

3. That said Debentures shall be made payable in 20 years, at furthest, from the day hereinafter mentioned for this By-law to take effect at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality, and shall have attached to them coupons, for the payment of interest.

4. That the said Debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half-yearly, on the Twenty-First Day of June and the Twenty-first Day of December, in each year, at the Office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

5. That for the purpose of forming a Sinking Fund for the payment of the said Debentures, and the interest at the rate aforesaid, to become due thereon, an equal special rate of nine twenty-fifths of a mill in the dollar, shall, in addition to all other rates be raised, levied and collected in each year upon all the ratable property in the said Municipality, during the continuance of the said Debentures, or any of them.

6. That this By-law shall take effect, and come into operation upon the 19th DAY OF OCTOBER, ONE THOUSAND EIGHT HUNDRED AND SEVENTY.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-law to be taken into consideration by the Municipal Council of the

IMMIGRATION.

To Farmers, Manufacturers and Others in quest of Ordinary or Skilled Labour.

The Immigration Society of Peterborough, desirous of securing immigration to this portion of the Province, and supplying whatever demands there may be for the various descriptions of labour, hereby give notice to all who may be desirous of procuring labour—male or female—and to the various municipalities in the County, that James Edwards, Esq., Clerk of the Town of Peterborough, has been appointed the Registrar of the Society, and that as such Registrar Mr. Edwards will preserve a record of the different descriptions of labour that may be applyed for to him. From the information thus supplied the Society hopes to induce an immigration that will at least equal the demand for labour, if not assist very materially in settling much of the at present unproductive land in the County.

A register of lands for sale or to lease will also be preserved by the Registrar; and those giving information of lands for sale or to lease will have the advantage of having their lands placed prominently in the market, and brought under the especial notice of those who may desire to settle upon improved or partially improved lands.

Emigrants are now on their way from the Old Country, and many have already arrived. In order, therefore, that the efforts of the Society may be productive of benefit to the community, it is essential that information be at once given to Mr. Edwards, verbally or by letter, of the labour required, lands for sale or to lease, &c.

Those making application to the Registrar will be supplied with labourers at the earliest opportunity, and will be promptly notified of their arrival.

Hamilton, Ontario,
MANUFACTURERS OF THE CELEBRATED

LOCKMAN SEWING MACHINE,

Take pleasure in announcing that the popularity of the Sewing Machine manufactured by them is still on the increase. They are now turning them out at the rate of 800 per month, and yet have been compelled within the last two weeks to increase their facilities to a capacity of one thousand per month.

The Lockman Machine, from its capacity to sew the heaviest fabrics with linen thread, as well as the finest cambrics with No. 150 Cotton, is pre-eminently the Farmer's Favorite Family Friend.

It is so exceedingly simple in its parts, and so strongly and durably made, that it does not require a mechanical genius for its management.

The manufacturers challenge the world to produce its equal, and yet its price is from Forty to Fifty per cent. Lower than that of any other first-class Shuttle Lock-stitch Sewing Machine.

EVERY MACHINE IS WARRANTED.

MADOC, County of Hastings,
Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th, 1869.

This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ancles, which gradually during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on up to my hips, and I became so weak that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two years, while this weakness was coming on me, and afterwards, I sought medical advice, employing, at different times, three doctors, and medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, but of no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoshonees Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had begun to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshonees Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was not a private one, but known to all my neighbors and friends and to any one afflicted as I was, I have only to say try the Shoshonees Remedy; I believe it will cure you,

MARY ANN DOUGHTY.

Sworn to before me at Madoc, County of Hastings, this ninth day of February, 1869.

A. F. WOOD, J. P. &c.

I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshonees Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.

Taking a Pledge.

A man not noted for temperate habits, was induced by the Rev. John Abbot to sign a pledge in "his own way," which he did in these words:

"I pledge myself to drink no more intoxicating drinks for one year."

Few believed he could keep it; but near the end of the year he again appeared at a temperance meeting, without having once touched a drop.

"Are you going to sign again?" asked Mr. Abbot.

"Yes, if I can sign it in my own way," replied he. And accordingly he wrote:

"I sign this pledge for nine hundred and ninety years; and if I live till that time, I intend to take out a life lease."

A few days after he called upon the tavern-keeper, who welcomed him back to his old haunt.

"O landlord," said he, as if in pain "I have such a lump on my side."

"That's because you've stopped drinking," said the landlord. "You won't live long, if you keep on."

"Will drink take the lump away?"

"Yes; and if you don't drink, you will soon have a lump on the other side. Come, let's drink together." And he poured out two glasses of whisky.

"I guess I won't drink," said the former inebriate "especially if keeping the pledge will bring another lump, for this is not so very hard to bear after all." And with this he drew the lump—a roll of Greenbacks—from his side pocket, and walked off, leaving the landlord to his own reflections.

Sometime.

It is a sweet song, warbled to and fro among the topmost boughs of the heart, and filling the whole air with such joy and gladness as the songs of birds do when the summer morning escapes out of darkness, and day is born on the mountains. We have all our possessions in the future which we call "sometime." Beautiful flowers and singing birds are there, only our hands seldom grasp the one, our ears the other. But, oh, reader, be of good cheer, for all the good there is a golden "sometime," when the hills and valleys of time are all passed; when the wear and fever, the disappointment and sorrow of life are over, then there is the place and the rest appointed of God. Oh, homestead, over whose roof fall no shadow or even clouds; and over whose threshold the voice of sorrow is never heard; built upon the eternal hills, and standing with thy spires and pinnacles of celestial beauty among the palm trees of the city on high, those who love God shall rest under thy shadows, where there is no more sorrow nor pain, nor the sound of weeping "sometime."—Frontier.

A HIPPOPOTAMUS IN THE SEINE.—La Liberte mentions that a curious spectacle, followed by a panic, which has happily had no injurious consequences, attracted a considerable crowd on Thursday night to the banks of the Seine and the bridges near the Jardin des Plantes. In consequence of the long drought the reservoirs and basins of the Jardin des Plantes contain only a little stagnant water, quite insufficient for the needs of some of its guests. It therefore has become necessary to allow the hippopotamus to bathe every day in the Seine. A car drawn by two horses conducts the amphibious beast to the river bank, and with a strong chain attached to his neck, he is allowed to enjoy his pastime without being able to evade the watchfulness of his keepers. On Thursday, however, the hippopotamus, strengthened no doubt by his daily exercise, succeeded, by a vigorous effort, in breaking one of the rings of his chain, and gained his liberty, frightening all the bathers in the vicinity, who hurried back to the shore. The playful African then paid a visit to a passenger steamer which was just starting, and whose crew received him with loud shouts, but without taking notice of them he left the steamer and went to a small washing-barge which he lifted up and shook, to the great terror of the women on board. He finished his "promenade" by an excursion to the "Etablissement de Bains" at the Pont d'Austerlitz, which was deserted in the twinkling of an eye. Meanwhile, some 50 boats had been sent in pursuit. Many of his keepers even took to the water as he had done, but they could get no hold on his slippery hide, and when one of them managed to climb upon him he disengaged himself by taking a dive. At last, after more than an hour's labor, they succeeded in seizing the end of the chain, which was made fast to a strong line, and the hippopotamus was soon restored to his usual domicile.

TO PARENTS.—Naturalists tell us that the leaves of a certain tree are very offensive to venomous serpents. A traveller relates that seeing a bird exhibit great alarm and distress, without any obvious cause, he watched its motions and saw it repeatedly fly to such a tree, pluck a leaf from its branches, and, returning, deposit it carefully in its nest. After having thus wrought for a while the mother bird perched on a branch overlooking her nest, and there watched the progress of a large serpent which her vigilant eye had discovered ascending the tree. Coiling itself around the tree, it slowly ascended until with glistening eye and open mouth its head was lifted above the edge of the nest. As it came in contact with the leaves with which the bird had covered her young, the snake dropped as quickly from the tree as though its head had been shattered by a bullet. Dear reader, are you a parent, Guard carefully the children of your love from the approach of man's worst material enemy, the product of the fermenting vat and still—that most deadly of all serpents—for it has charmed, poisoned, maddened, and finally crushed, in its unrelenting folds, millions of our race.—Dr. Jewett.

The jury in the inquest held on Wednesday evening at Washington on the body of M. Prevost-Paradol, returned a verdict that he shot himself while labouring under temporary aberration of mind. The body will be conveyed to France on the Lafayette, the same steamer that brought the Minister out. M. Berthemy, the late Minister, has been telegraphed to remain at Washington until a successor is appointed, which is to be done at once.

The London Daily Telegraph infers that the recall of Mr. Motley is an indication that the United States intend to interfere in European affairs; and in connection with this an Antwerp despatch states that the Admiral of the American fleet in European waters has orders to concentrate his vessels and wait the course of events.

Woodstock was visited by a terrific storm on the 21st instant. For several hours the sky was lit up with lightning, and about 10 p.m., rain fell with great force. A barn was burned in the neighborhood, and in Woodstock a Mrs. Morrison was killed while in bed, and her husband, who was also in bed, was badly injured.

On Wednesday evening one of the hands of the steamer Champion, while assisting in taking some ice on board at Kingston, fell into the water and was drowned.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and amongst all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures! Those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as may be the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Dyspepsia, Bilious Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Select Poetry.

I'm not a Marrying Man.

I love the girls—God bless their souls!
They are so good, so sweet, so kind,
I cannot help but love them all—
A better friend they'll never find.
I'll serve them all the best I can;
But I am not a marrying man.

'Tis very true, I'm getting old—
Yes, twenty-two I'll never see;
I'm sure I ought to have a wife,
Or some loved one to dote on me.
Some one, no doubt, would take my hand;
But I am not a marrying man.

I scarce can eat my meals without
A lady at the table's head,
To put the sugar in the tea,
And dish preserves, and pass the bread.
Without her, sugar tastes like bran;
But then I'm not a marrying man.

I need some one to darn my socks,
And sew the butt.ns on my shirt,
And now and then to brush my hair,
And free my coat from dust or dirt.
She'd call me dear—oh! 'twould be grand;
But then I'm not a marrying man.

At night, when all my friends are gone,
I mope around, and close my door;
I sit beside my fire alone,
And sigh and moan, and walk the floor—
I need some one to help me plan;
But then I'm not a marrying man.

I need a wife for company's sake,
To keep me from wicked throngs;
To cheer me up when I'm cast down;
To speak kind words, and sing sweet songs;
To love and kiss me now and then;
But then I'm not a marrying man.

I know one lady whom I love,
And she would make a loving wife;
She'll make the man who wins her heart
As happy as a lord through life.
I'd ask her for her heart and hand;
But then I'm not a merrying man.

Another thing—she don't love me;
That's always been my awful luck.
If she'd love me, I'd call her mine,
I'd call her pet names—"dear" and "duck";
I'd change my course, and join the van;
But then I'm not a marrying man.

Literature.

The Unsympathizing Husband.

One of the first duties of a husband is to sympathize with his wife. While the two are so closely and intimately connected with each other, they do not move within the same sphere; they have surroundings very different. The wife has duties and cares which are peculiarly hers, and they are as engrossing and exhaustive as his. He has the responsibilities, the anxieties, the perplexities of business; she has not less weighty charge of the household. Many a man seems to regard these household duties of the wife as not to be compared for a moment with those which engross his attention. He expects, if business has perplexed or made him anxious, to have his wife's sympathy when he comes home at night, but never imagines that during the day anything could have occurred to trouble him. He returns from his workshop or counting room soured, perhaps by some bad bargain, annoyed by a stupid workman or unreasonable employer, morose from some ill-spoken word, and expects to be received with smiles: it matters not how surly may be his looks, his wife must be in press, in countenance, in word, all sweetness and amiability. He may have no pleasant word, may take his place moodily at the table, but his wife's words must be affectionate, and his wife's look full of gladness. What he thinks, has she to trouble her? And this when the poor wife has through a long and weary day been toiling with family work and vexations, care till her head is aching, and foot, and hand, and heart sore with the worry. The tea is dispatched silently, very likely with sombre complaints over the trials he has during the day, or the badness of times; and then the evening papers are taken in hand and poured over until the very advertisements are devoured, or the reader's face is bowed upon the crumbled page in sleep. Or, if he be not weary enough for that, he seizes his hat and rushes to the reading-room, or more probably to the lounging-place where such as he congregate; there, with a fragment of cigar and desultory talk upon his lips, he lingers till the noise of the closing shutters warns him to leave. He goes at last home again, because he can go nowhere else. Meanwhile the wife has with heavy heart and tired step got the little ones into bed, and, as best she could, has worn away the long hours of the evening in silence and loneliness. Should a thought of his selfishness or injustice cross the mind of the husband, he responds with ready self-complacency, "I require relaxation and must see my friends." The night is witness of the same or greater lack of sympathy. Perhaps the babe is not well and is restless. But that is not his business. It matters not that the poor pale wife has had the child in her arms through the long day—a days work with a sick babe, one of the weariest of mortal toils—he must not be disturbed. I have known such a husband to provide a distant sleeping apartment, that he might not be disturbed, and lie snorting in leaden unconsciousness while a frail wife, with swollen eyes, and limbs that, almost refused to obey an iron will, was walking to and fro with his child.

In the morning he expects to find his breakfast ready on the moment of his call, the coffee clear, if his temper is not, and his wife smiling and pleasant, though he is dull or bearish. Perhaps he never notices the pale face or swollen eyelids, the result of last night's watching, partly to keep his slumbers undisturbed, lest his impatience be added to the sick child's drying. If he does notice them, it is only to wonder at delicacy of our women,—"they can stand but little"—"if she only had my work to do!" Probably, however, he does not notice them. He goes soon to his business, without a word of sympathy or interest, and leaves her to another lonely day and its thousand great and petty trials, as if he had nothing whatever to do with them.

Now this is all wrong. No manly husband should be guilty of it. He has no right thus to seperate himself from the labors and responsibilities of his wife. If he does not actually relieve them by his help, he can at least sympathize with her and aid her by kind words and pleasant looks. Many a sad wife would feel more than compensated for all the toils of a vexatious day by a word which showed that her husband understood her cares and felt with her in them. And I apprehend in many an instance the help would be beyond mere words: the sympathetic husband would not be deterred by the lazy and selfish excuse—"It is a woman's work," but would uplift part of the burden, and possibly take his turn in watching, and give or provide relief from household drudgery. At all events, a husband that loves somewhat after the Bible rule, thoughtfully considers and warmly sympathizes with his wife in all her cares.—From Life at Home.

Elopements.

Elopements are very often unjustly condemned; for there are occasions when they are perfectly justifiable. Parental rule in its strictness sometimes becomes tyrannical and arbitrary, and opposition to the wishes of their children is frequently more the result of prejudice than of reason; exercising power, in many instances, when it is detrimental to their happiness, and is crushing their fondest hopes.

The sacred bond of marriage is too lightly regarded in this advancing era; it is generally considered as an alliance of policy or worldly honor, rather than as concerning the happiness of the individuals. These views are participated in by a great many parents of our day.

They are eager that their daughters should make advantageous matches, with men of wealth, and fame, regardless of their character and dispositions, or of the existence of mutual reciprocal love. Hence so many ill-matched couples, so much dissension and discord in the marriage circle, and so many disruptions of a tie that should be life-long. It is then from this point that we are led to believe that elopements become, in many cases, a necessary evil. We often see a daughter who is truly and purely beloved, and who herself loves in return, and desires *to seal her love at the altar, meet with op*position from her parents, because the young man of her choice has not ascended Fame's ladder, or does not count his thousands, while in every other respect he is entirely worthy, moral, and honorable. With an untarnished name.

If, then, after appeals to the reason and conscience of parents, they still are obdurate, the daughter is right in setting at defiance a wrongly exercised authority, by following the fortunes of him who, she feels, and knows, can only make her happy.

There are elopements, we know, that are unjustifiable, and end in ruin; but this is no reason why they should be universally condemned.

If persons would always have right views of the holy marriage bond—views apart from aggrandizement and worldly honor—views based upon virtue and the happiness of their children—there would be no need of exercising this dire resort.—EDNA, in the New Orleans Sunday Times.

Marriages.

Marriages are generally happy when they take place from pure love, between two persons who are already thoroughly acquainted with each other, and who are quite content with each other as they then are.

First, love must be the motive. Marriages of convenience, as they are called, almost always turn out to be anything but convenient, and on the contrary, exceeding inconvenient.

If people marry for money, even if the money be obtained—which is by no means always the case—the husband or wife who is taken with it is, of course and necessarily, regarded merely as an incumbrance, to be endured for the sake of the more highly prized pecuniary acquisition. Then, if it chance that the coveted money be not received, or that it be subsequently lost, the situation is still more deplorable, for the incumbrance alone remains, without the compensation calculated upon for its endurance, and becomes all the more unendurable.

If people marry for what is called position, they marry for something which cannot be obtained in that way. A sound title to position can only be got by merit; never by matrimony.

Secondly, happy marriages can only take place between people who are well acquainted, and who are satisfied with each other as they are.

Young persons who are so blinded by love that their judgment is rendered torpid, who are unable to perceive each other's faults, and who marry, in real form, an imaginary character, are soon and sadly undeceived by the experience of married life; and such matches are most miserable.

So of those who marry, not because they are satisfied with each other as they now are, but who are quite confident of their ability to change the character of the person they wed. Such hopes prove delusive. Do not be deceived by the idea that you can remould a character already cast, in consequence of assuming the matrimonial relation. The probability is, that the objection*able or disagreeable qualities which you al*ready perceive will increase, and not diminish, after marriage; while the possibility of discovering new ones always exists.

A DEATH IN BATTLE.—The battle of Aliwal was fought on the 28th of January, 1846. At one time, the Sikh cavalry had well nigh captured Sir Harry Smith himself, who was obliged to shift his position in consequence. At this moment an officer on his staff was struck down by a fragment of shell, which shattered his right thigh and hip joint in a hideous manner. Some men of his troop, seeing him fall, obtained leave to run to his assistance, and in a few minutes he was on a stretcher, and being carried to the rear. The men were devoted to him, and they carried him through that fearful field of slaughter with as much care as if conveying a baby in its cradle. When within a short distance of the staff surgeon's tent, they came upon a private of the—th regiment—lying desperately wounded. The poor fellow looked up piteously and touched his cap, as he recognised his officer in agony on the stretcher. Capt. C——— called to his men to halt, and to raise him up slightly; leaning over, he soon saw the nature of the soldier's wound, which was far less dangerous than his own. "Let me out," he said, "I can't move; you lift me out; that 'll do, gently—yes, that's broken too, (as they touched his spine). "So—now carry him to the doctors; they can do nothing for me, not too late for him yet—just a little more or so—facing the enemy—that's it." "But, sir—" remonstrated one of the men. "He quick with him, then come back; I'm not likely to have left thie," he added, with a slight smile. The men did as ordered, and depositing the wounded trooper, they returned to Captain C——. He had not indeed left that, he lay facing the enemy still, and the playful smile with which he had addressed to them his last words, lingered yet on his face; but his troubles were over; victory or defeat were now alike to him, and he had left the field of strife for the peaceful world where dwell the spirits of the just made perfect. The instances of men hopelessly wounded refusing to monopolize the doctor are by no means rare; and if the battle-field is sometimes the scene of outrages at which humanity shudders; it occasionally provides us with instances of unsurpassed heroism with self-sacrifice.

The French Ram Rochambeau.

(From the New York Herald.)

The most important vessel of war that will be used in the European conflict is now owned by France, having been purchased by the Emperor Napoleon in June, 1867, and formerly known as the Dunderberg, but now registered in the marine of France as the Rochambeau. This famous ram was built in New York by Mr. Wm. H. Webb. The Dunderberg, now Rochambeau, was launched in the summer of 1865, after she had been in process of construction three years. She is an immense iron-plated ram, displacing 7,000 tons of water. She is built of the best timber fore and aft, though some mendacious writers have had the audacity to make contrary assertions. She is 328 feet long, has 74 feet breadth of beam amidships, and is 30 feet in the hold. She has a larger available deck surface than any war vessel ever constructed. Her lines are original with Mr. Webb, and the principles upon which she is built are bold and progressive, but have been successful and brilliantly triumphant. She has no dead rise—that is she is flat-bottomed—and her bilges rise almost perpendicularly from the bottom. Forward she is sharp, and has an invulnerable iron ram twenty-five feet long, sharp pointed and so curved on the upper surface as to be the type of a ship's ram. It is this ram that is one of the destructive powers of the Rochambeau. In the naval battle of Lissa the victory was won with this weapon; and that and other engagements have unmistakably shown that in the Ships Cruising the enemy down is more important than repeated broadside.—It was computed by Admiral Goldsborough that the shock sustained by impact with the Rochambeau would be equal to the impression made by a cannon ball weighing 1000 tons and moving at the velocity of 1,600 feet a second, provided the Rochambeau were steaming ten knots an hour. If the Rochambeau had this great feature forward, she had another aft, equally important, but which the French have destroyed—her overhang. This overhang was placed there by her builders to protect her screw and rudder from the terrible seas and the assaults of an antagonist. In her passage to Europe the Rochambeau demonstrated the value of this appendage, and it is not clear that the French authorities have not been guilty of a piece of folly in making the alterations. Upon the spar deck is a casemate 200 feet long, eight and a half feet high, and sixty wide, protected on top by iron plate plating; on the side by forged iron plating nine inches thick, inclined to the deck at an angle of sixty degrees and backed by three feet of solid wood. This inclination of the casement sides renders it absolutely impossible for any projectile to make an indentation. A ball would glance and go tumbling and hissing through the air. Compared vessels, it is needless to say, are superior to monitors and all the worthless inventions of Ericsson, Coles and others, and this fact was demonstrated in the late war. The Rochambeau carries four 12-inch guns, purchased in this country, two of which were placed on board by Mr. Webb. She completes her battery with fourteen 15-inch shell guns of the Dahlgren pattern. Her battery weighs 300 tons and her plating 1,100 tons, making a heavy superimposed burden of 1,400 tons. Her screw has a diameter of 20 feet; her shaft one of 20 inches. Her engines are two of 5,000 horse power each, and she can carry 1,500 tons of coal, using but seventy a day. Her ice room, engine room, quarter and cabin are superb and were fitted up at a great expense. The Rochambeau sailed from this port on the 19th of July, 1867, and entered Cherbourg harbour August 3rd, making her remarkable passage in fourteen days. She exhibited great speed, logging fifteen knots during the run, she has frequently made sixteen since her ownership in France. She is buoyant in a seaway, steers easily, can turn with remarkable rapidity and she gracefully upon the water, moving at the slightest application of power. She can concentrate the heaviest battery afloat in the world, can annihilate an antagonist with her ram yet be secure from the hostile movement of an entire squadron.

Penalty of Self-Indulgence.

The higher the civilized condition of society, the more apt the men to suffer impaired vigor from overfeeding, because victuals are multiplied, are made more tempting—because men have more leisure, and eating becomes a luxury as well as a necessity—because people are less addicted to work, get less fresh air, and live less in sunlight.

Every day we see men of good morals, of position in society, of estimable qualities, who are inferior or unhappy for no other reason than that they are not wise in eating. We are sometimes to say to another clergyman:

"Are you not confident of being often tempted of the devil?"

"Yes, sir; but why do you ask?"

"We have seen him so often around you at meal-times, in the shape of beef, puddings, and such like, and we have noticed that you are a long way too familiar with him."

There is many an irritable man, full-blooded, florid in face and quarrelsome, who would become peaceful and content if all meat rations were knocked off.

Another fountain of ill-health is found in the improper indulgence of man's passions. We do not allude to those debaucheries which the word of God marks as the Ways of Death. Those unhallowed lusts drown men in perdition, or consume them as in fire.

But, thousands are living in proper social relations without a thought of evil, who are, notwithstanding, from want of proper knowledge, over-indulgent, and by reason of excess, they are enfeebled, despondent, run down. Blanch and waxy-faced men abound, whose whole life is unstrung, and gradually sacrificed to the pleasures of passion, which are not only vicious because they are indulged in legal relations. The delicacy of the theme makes teachers averse to speaking publicly of it, and thousands are sinking into consumption and debility and paralysis, because men have not the courage to tell them that, like a cask of wine hid away in the cellar worm-pierced, they are leaking to death.

Wasteful indulgence in eating and drinking, wasteful indulgence in pleasure, and lust, and wastefulness of the brain by overwork and under sleep—these three causes lower the working power of society, we should think one full third.—And although practised in the interest of enjoyment, they diminish the real enjoyment of society, we suspect a full half.—H. W. Beecher.

ELOQUENCE.—The power to translate a truth into a language perfectly intelligible to the person to whom you speak. All poetry and prose must be written in the language of the people.

In Queen Victoria's crown there are 1362 brilliant diamonds, 1,222 rose diamonds and 147 table diamonds. 1 large ruby, 17 sapphires, 11 emeralds, 4 small rubies, and 277 pearls—a total of 3,187 precious stones.

An Irishman being a little muddled, was asked what was his religious belief. "It's my religious belafe ye'd be asking about?—It's the same as Widdy Brady's. I owe her twelve shillin's for whisky, an' she believes I'll never pay her—an' faith that's my belafe too."

"Whose pigs are these, my lad?" "Why they belong to that there big sow." "No, I mean who is their master." "Why," again answered the lad, "that little 'un there: he's a baster on a fight, ain't he?"

Editorial Items

Don't forget the Moonlight Excursion to-night, for the benefit of the Band. Bills.

A counterfeit of the Canadian 10 cent piece is out. It is a good counterfeit; so keep a good look out for it.

A general amnesty has been granted by Her Majesty, on the recommendation of the Canadian Government, to all parties connected with the Red River rebellion.

We believe that the volunteers, both officers and men, justly indignant at the treatment to the Red River rebels, are resigning in large numbers throughout the country.

DROWNED.—We regret to learn that Thos. B. Green, son of Mr. Benjamin Green of this town, was drowned off a Tug Boat on Lake Huron, near Bay City, Michigan. He was Steward on the Boat at the time. His body was not found at latest accounts.

CRICKET.—A cricket match will be played in this town on Friday next, the 5th instant, between the Maple Leaf Club, of Peterborough, and a cricket club from Lindsay.

The Port Hope Times of the 28th ult. says that a Mr. Charles Walton, aged 52 years, died [illegible] Stroke," on Tuesday [illegible] Hope. A Coroner's Jury brought in a verdict of "Death by Pulmonary Appoplexy," another name for Sun Stroke.

We are glad to announce that Mr. T. Menzies has been appointed Ticket agent in Peterboro, for the Grand Trunk Railway. Parties travelling by this road, by purchasing their tickets before leaving Peterboro, will save themselves a great deal of trouble on their journey.

PARTY SPIRIT.—The Protestants of Canada, and especially the Orange element, are continually being reminded of their bigotry and intolerance by their fellow-citizens of opposite tendencies in religion. But the fearfully brutal and uncalled for attack of the Catholics of N. Y., on the Protestants, on the 12th of July last, shows that their bigotry and intolerance is as strong to-day as it ever was.

GOOD HEALTH:—The August number of the above valuable periodical has been received. Its articles on "pure air" "sleeping apartments" "sunshine" "neglected cellars" "earth closets," deserves to be carefully read at this season of the year. The whole number is replete with instruction and reading matter, on various subjects relating to health, and the best means of retaining it, and of diseases, and the best means of preventing them.

ENTERPRISE.—We learn by the Brantford Courier the mill of Mr. Penman, of Paris, was destroyed by fire, throwing about 60 hands out of employment, and a loss to him of $12,000. The people of Paris at once opened a subscription list, with the intention of presenting him with $4,000,—one gentleman alone subscribing $1,000. The corporation of Paris also purpose granting Mr. Penman a loan of $6,000.

We are glad to announce that the Firemen have taken the matter of the holiday and excursion on hand. They met on Tuesday evening, and appointed a committee to make all the necessary arrangements with the cars, &c. The committee are, Captains O'Donnell and Gibbs, Lieutenants Cobb and Johnston, C. E. Lieut-Col. Poole, Asst E. C. Stapleton; Secretary M. Hall, and H. Robinson. We will give full particulars next week.

In Belmont, on the 22nd ultimo, while some girls were picking berries they found a dead body of a child wrapped in a blanket, under a log. It was a pretty child and well dressed, with ear rings, &c., as if the child of wealthy parents. While one was going for her mother she was overtaken by two persons in a buggy, supposed to be masked. They asked if she had seen a child round there, and she answered in the affirmative, and led them to the body.—When one of them took it by the head and the other by the feet and threw it into the buggy, put whip to the horses and drove off towards Marmora. When discovered, there was a hole in the forehead of the child as of a bullet. The child was about five or six years of age. There are suspicions of foul play in the matter.

IMMIGRANT BOYS.—Miss McPherson has sent us a number of boys from 16 to 19 years of age, who are to be put out at places, some to learn trades, and some to work on farms or anything that may come in the way. We learn that they have been under a course of training in England, that they are mostly teetotallers, some of them having left situations at home because their masters drank [illegible]y of intoxicating liquors." [illegible]are assisting Miss [illegible]hat the boys [illegible]ood example [illegible]d that some 15 will be sent here, and parties requiring lads will do well to apply at once. The ship they came in (the Nestorian) passed Father Point at midnight on Saturday last, and they will probably be here in the end of the week or beginning of next. Information will be given by the President or Secretary of the Immigrant Committee, or by J. Edwards Town Clerk.

Ashburnham.

The Council met. All the members present.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The rate for the current year was determined upon, and a By-law passed for levying and collecting it.

The propriety of granting a bonus of $10,000 to any R. R. Company that will build a Railroad from the Village to Mud Lake, provided the Station be placed in the Village, was discussed, and laid over for consideration of next meeting.

The rate for the Village for this year is only four and a half mills on the dollar.

Who Governs Us?

From a return to the House of Commons of Canada, we find that McDonald-Cartier paid the sum of $1,680 each to the two priests—Vicar-General Thibault and Bishop Taché—as travelling expenses to Fort Garry during 1869. The sum paid to Bishop Taché is only on account.

When the troubles arose in the North-west, John A. telegraphed to Rome for Taché, and he obeyed immediately. This was a fine opportunity to show to the world that Canadian statesmen were powerless without the aid of the Roman Catholic clergy.

[illegible]er that McDonald & Cartier, [illegible]dous zeal, have determined on converting the entire Indian community of the North-west; for whatever purpose could they be sending Bishops to that district? They surely were not sent to settle by their magic power the disorderly half-breeds? If they were, they failed in their mission. John A. might as well have allowed Bishop Taché to remain at the Economical Council.

The entire population of Manitoba is about 10,000, about equal to the population of the town and one township of this County. Now, what must be thought of a government that declares itself unfit to compel the subjection of a single small town? But we may be told that the object of the clerical mission was to bestow a peaceable settlement of the North-west difficulty. Then comes a nut to crack for those loud-talking Orangemen who have kept John A. and Cartier in power: Why were Catholic clergymen only sent? Are they the only men John A. McDonald, an Orangeman, could find fit to settle the great rebellion in Manitoba? There can be no doubt but that the whole Dominion is able to maintain the subjection of 10,000 half-breeds; but to use the power of the Dominion would not suit Cartier. He must needs prove to the Protestants of Ontario that even yet the influence of the Roman clergy is necessary to settle secular affairs, and John A. had to be humiliated to become the instrument of Cartier in the matter. Canada had to be degraded to the position of a petty state in the dark ages, when legates were sent to arrange everything according to the will of the supreme pontiff.

How long will these men be permitted to outrage the feelings of the people of Ontario, by thus declaring to the world their own imbecility? and how long will Canadians permit their rulers to make a laughing stock of them; in that they have sent such incapables to manage the affairs of a country whose inhabitants claim to be free from the influence of the power that in the past spread darkness, superstition and hatred everywhere. Bishop Taché has visited Ottawa lately; who knows but that he was again sent for, and that his travelling expenses will again have to be paid? A nice state of things really; while one, only one, Methodist minister would not even be allowed to enter Manitoba with the Volunteers. How long will this continue? what do Messrs. Perry and Grover think of the men whom they have all along supported in power?

What do the electors of these Ridings think of the men they have sent to represent them in Parliament? Are the people of Ontario to continue this state of things much longer; or will they not rather say to these men, mismanage your own business, you have long enough mismanaged ours; stay at home and attend to some business for what nature fitted you; you are no statesmen.

What Next?

Mr. Robert Romaine sent to Montreal for Mr. Laidlaw, a founder and machinist, a simple moulder of gas pipes, and water pipes, to get his opinion on the Elevations around Peterborough. Mr. Laidlaw liked the appearance of the town—nice little town. The hills too were very neat, pleased Mr. Laidlaw very much. He believed if water was pumped up on to Hilliard's hill it would run down, for he knew, as did Mr. Romaine, that water runs best down hill, unless there be steam power behind it.

Mr. Laidlaw also informed the people and Mr. Romaine, that a pipe of 12 inches diameter would convey more water than one 8 or 10 inches, that is, provided both were open at both ends. This is of course astonishing to the natives, and no doubt some of our wise-acres will be testing the wisdom of Mr. Laidlaw's philosophy; but then we suppose he is right—he came a long way to tell us the fact.

But Mr. Laidlaw is a business man in the pipe line, and gave the Council to understand that he would supply them all necessary pipes for cash. He understands no doubt the way to make pipes, and good ones too; but he knows very little more than other mortals about Elevators or fire-pressure, or heights necessary to supply fire-pressure.

Mr. Laidlaw also informed Mr. Romaine and all present that there was water in the Otonabee River. This information was thankfully received by all present, although not a few thought that they found out this last Spring. But then it's never too late to learn more than we have known.

The meeting broke up after this last piece of information, believing that good practical printers can have water on the brain, as well as in the Otonabee River—and this is worth knowing too.

The town should feel proud of its two citizens, the "practical printer." and the "Editor," who sacrifice their time and talents wholly for the benefit of the Corporation. No selfish motive has ever actuated either of them; but with a single eye to the interests of the citizens, they have never sought pecuniary reward for their labours. They condescended to accept a bonus from the Gas Company, as well as the possibly lucrative offices of President and Secretary, much against their own feelings and wishes. They never thought of such a thing when they proposed gas. As we said before they had each a single eye to the interest of the town. A small incident occurred a few weeks ago which also shows the disinterested, self-sacrificing character of these public spirited men. The Horticultural Society did not annoy the "Practical Printer" with as much printing as usual, and they showed their appreciation of that favour by administering in the next Review, a little puff, calculated to infuse energy into the Society, and make the public think that this institution is in a highly flourishing condition.

These gentlemen, every person must see by this time, we repeat, have no selfish motives in urging the people of Peterboro to "go in" for Water Works; for neither of them own a foot of land on George Street, and it is only for George Street the Water Works are to be constructed. There is no doubt, of course, that the people in the other streets in the town are very self sacrificing also, when they allow the proposition to tax them for the protection of George Street, while their own property will be exposed, to be made without their rising up in their might, and scaring [illegible] of their wits. But then [illegible]ople in the town are only ordinary people, and their self-sacrifice is not to be mentioned alongside that of these two far-sighted and public-spirited men. We believe the only thing these gentlemen fear in this business is that if the Water Works company is formed, owing to their having done so much for it, they will be compelled to accept offices in the company and direct the business of the concern.

Was it not with pride and pleasure, then, that the people of Peterboro read the announcement in last week's Review that Mr. Romaine sent for Mr. Laidlaw, to come to this town and inspect her Water Works? Let us henceforth feel safe and pay our taxes without grumbling, seeing that Mr. R. has been appointed guardian of the interest of Peterboro.—Enough.

Horrible Murder in New York.

Mr. Benjamin Nathan, a wealthy Jewish gentleman, was murdered in his own house, last Friday morning. The circumstances are somewhat peculiar. Mr. Nathan's two sons and also a servant girl slept in the house on Thursday night. The doors were fastened in the morning just as they had been left the night before, showing that they had not been forced. No noise was heard by any of those in the house, and the murdered man was found, in a pool of blood, by one of his sons at six o'clock on Friday morning. He was found lying across the doorway between his bedroom and an adjoining room. His head and face were all clotted with blood. He had evidently struggled hard with the assassin, who it appears used as a weapon a piece of iron about 18 inches long.

Various speculations are indulged in as to who or what the murderer is; also as to how he obtained access to the house. Some think the assassin must have been secreted in the house on the previous evening; some have the opinion that the murder was done for money; others think the deed was the result of personal hatred. This murder has caused a profound sensation in the great city, not probably equalled by that caused by the celebrated Burdell murder.

The police are actively searching for some clue to the murderer, but without success so far, it is said It is to be hoped that they will be successful in discovering the assassin, and thus afford another proof, to the worker of dark crimes in the dark night, that "murder will out."

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Meanness Extraordinary.

It is an old saying that "great oaks from little acorns grow," and it appears to have been reserved for the little Village of Mather's Corners to show the greatest instance of smallness, meanness, and want of common honesty, ever known in this part of our Dominion. The circumstances of this despicable piece of business are as follows:—

A young man named Joseph Taylor, being the Champion runner of that place, a good deal of effort was put forth to have him defeated. To this end, Wm. Drummond, better known as "Sneaking Bill," engaged his brother, (a younger man of more conceit than judgment) to run him. The race came off on Tuesday, July 19th, and resulted in an easy victory for Taylor.—"Bill," being in a terrible agony on account of the loss of his beloved five dollars, (as he had bet on his brother,) and being unable to rest day or night, at length hit upon the following scheme to get his "dimes" back. He arranged another race with Taylor, by a different person, for the same amount, and after much search he at length found a person (of a kindred spirit) one John Carey, to hold the stake, on condition that they should be given up to him (Bill) whether he won them or not. Accordingly the race was run, lost as before, and the stakes given up to "Sneaky," who, being an arrant coward, was glad to get away with a whole skin. Now, if any person, civilized or savage, can produce a lower, meaner, dirtier, more despicable trick than this we should like to hear from him. If racing is not lawful nor becoming to a christian, sure he, as a member of the church and an elder's son, should not engage in it. If it is not so, then for the sake of humanity and that sense of honor which is cherished even in the breast of the savage, he should stand to his own terms. But enough, only let honest people beware of such men (or rather things in men's shape) who can both cheat a man and steal his money without a blush.

Asking pardon for trespassing so far upon your valuable space,

I remain,

Yours truly,

AN EYEWITNESS.

Miscellaneous Items.

The American Government have received formal notification that passports will be required by all parties entering or leaving France.

A further detachment comprising thirty Canadian Zouaves is now on its return to this city from Rome, and the Roman Catholic Bishop of Montreal is expected here in about a fortnight.—Witness.

The Colorado potato beetle has already made its way eastward as far as Medoc. Some of the larvæ were discovered early last week, and under examination corresponded with the description given of this destructive insect.

The fortress of Quebec is being rapidly dismantled. One cargo of cannon and ammunition has already been despatched. Some Yankees offer to purchase the esplanade and glaciers as a speculation.

In a quarrel among some raftsmen at Point Fortune, recently, one Baptiste Clairmount was killed by a kick from Duncan McGillivray, against whom the coroner's jurs have returned a verdict of manslaughter.

Two hundred targets are being constructed in Montreal in order to afford the Canadian Volunteers increased facilities for rifle practice. The Government took this step, it is said, by the advice of General Lindsay.

DISSATISFACTION.—A number of Volunteers yesterday handed in their uniforms and arms to their respective captains, declaring that they would no longer serve a Government that would have anything to do with pardoning Riel.—Globe.

At the Kingston depot for Red River recruits, the Ontario company numbers 64 men; the Quebec company 32; but arrivals for the latter are dropping in daily. The Ontario company had clothing served out on Friday. No appointments have yet been made, and for the present the two companies are under the command of Col. Patterson, D. A. A. G.

CHANGE OF PROPRIETARY.—The Mont. Gazette of Monday announces its transfer to Messrs. T. & R. White late of Hamilton, who have assumed the position of proprietors and publishers. They announce that the paper will, in a few weeks, be greatly enlarged, and also improved in appearance.

A deputation has been appointed by the Ottawa Board of Trade to wait upon Hon. Mr. Langevin, Minister of Public Works, to urge the erection of a Post Office and Custom House for the capital, and to ascertain if the Government intend to enlarge the Grenville Canal to the same size as is intended for the Caughnawaga Canal.

THE AMNESTY.—From Ottawa we learn that a general amnesty for the insurgents of the North-West has been granted by Her Majesty at the instance of the Canadian Government. Thus it appears that Bishop Taché, Father Richot and Sir Geo. E. Cartier have carried their point, and, to use an Eastern expression, laughed at the beards of the whole English-speaking and Protestant population of the Dominion, and particularly of Ontario and its Orangemen. The murderers of poor Scott will not only go unwhipped of justice, but they will, doubtless, be promoted by French-Canadian influence to places of honor and emolument.

THE CROPS IN KENT.—A correspondent writes us from the township of Harward, giving a very sad account of the crops in that neighbourhood. He says:—"We have had but very few dry days since the first of July, and the oldest inhabitants have never known so much water to fall in the same space of time. There are hundreds of acres of beautiful crops literally covered with water—wheat, barley and hay floating off with the floods—and those which are on higher grounds and standing in "shocks," are growing green. The roads are overflowed, and culverts and small bridges are carried off. All harvest and other field work are at present suspended. Globe.

The rain so far have not done serious damage to either grain or hay in West Northumberland. The Cobourg Sentinel says some of the farmers have already secured a part of their fall wheat, which although not an average crop in quantity is pronounced to be of uncommon good quality. Farmers say that the spring wheat will not be so good a crop as could be expected, not an average crop, but still there will, they say, be no great reason to complain. Oats will be a good crop, above the average it is expected, and the same may be said of barley and peas. Some of the root crops promise well, whilst others it is feared will prove a failure. Potatoes look well, appear very healthy, and so far promises an abundant yield.

THE EUROPEAN WAR.

(Special to the Examiner.)

NEW YORK, 27th.—Baron Davolt, in reply to Fish's note of the 24th, expresses the hope that the two governments will use their high position to obtain, as principal international law, universal acknowledgement of the liberal policy of the U.S. in regard to private property on the high seas.

Prim keeps silence. Republicans are immovable for a republic.

Formal communication from North German Confederation is expected, demonstrating authentically of treaty, &c., reciting other similar overtures from the French Emperor.

SOLDIERS,

I come to take my place at your head, to defend the honor of the soil of our country; you go to combat against one of the best armies of the European countries, but other countries as valiant as this have not been able to resist your valor. It will be the same to-day—the war which commences now will be long and hardly contested. Its theatre will be places hedged with obstacles, and thick with fortresses. Success must end the persevering efforts of the soldiers of Africa, Italy and Mexico.—You will prove once more what the French army is able to accomplish, animated by a sentiment of duty maintained by discipline, and influenced by a love of Country.—Whatever road we may take across our frontier, we will find upon it glorious traces of our fathers, and we will prove ourselves worthy of them.

All France follows you with ardent prayers, and the eyes of the universe are upon you. Upon our success depends the fate of liberty and civilization. Soldiers, let each one do his duty, and the God of battles will be with us.

It is said that the Empress, in returning to St. Cloud, toasted Thiers, under whose administration fortifications of Paris were constructed, whereby France is to-day enabled to send 100,000 more men into the field than she otherwise could have done.

COPENHAGEN, 30th.—French Baltic fleet arrived here yesterday afternoon.

It is believed that the French troops now in Rome, will all be in France by the 10th of August.

LONDON 30th.—Bets are freely offered here that the Prussian army will be in Paris in a fortnight.

A party of French cavalry crossed the frontier yesterday but soon returned without accomplishing anything.

Every able-bodied Prussian between 20 and 30 years of age is now in the ranks.

PARIS, 30th.—Journal official this morning denies the story which recently originated in Germany to the effect that one hundred French soldiers invaded Luxemburg.

LONDON 30th.—French and German accounts of events that have already transpired are utterly irreconcilable.

The Times says Gladstone's special mansion-house meeting on Saturday evening, proves that he recognizes the war, and is ready to meet it.

French squadron is still cruising of Thurso, Scotland.

PARIS, 31st.—Journal Officiel says government have decided that no person of whatever nationality will be permitted to enter or leave France without a passport. This, however, is not applicable to subjects of those states naturally at war with France, they can only travel in the interior with special permission of the Minister of Interior.

The same journal says that the French citizens expelled from Baden were subjected to outrageous treatment. They were conducted to the frontier in chains, and made to pay for places wherein they were locked up to escape violence.

The Duke of Cadore, who is now in Stockholm on a mission from the French Government, will go to Copenhagen on similar business.

Tiberte opposes the suggested occupation of Belgium by Great Britain, claiming that it would disquiet Belgium and wound France, and bring Russia and Austria instantly into war.

BERLIN, Aug. 1st.—Hesitancy about opening hostilities and delay in Imperial declaration of war are here described to consciousness on the part of Napoleon, that war would be long and painful, owing to the superiority of the Needle Gun over the Chassepot, as has already been demonstrated in former encounters between skirmishers.

LONDON 4.30—No news of any battle received. Streets are full of rumours, one of which is that the French fleet arrived before the Elbe, and attacked defenses. It is not generally credited.

The King of Wurtemburg [illegible] quoted as [illegible]: Germany [illegible]ained by the war for 20 years, and [illegible]ovation to America will swell to [illegible] proportions. He thought Napo[illegible] in not pushing promptly into [illegible] would thereby have neutralized the [illegible] of all southern Germany. Such a [illegible]ment is impossible now, because it would expose Paris.

FLORENCE, 1st.—The Nazione states that an alliance to secure the neutrality of England, Austria and Italy has been nearly completed by those powers.

LONDON, 1st.—A special correspondent of the Tribune writes from Saarbrucken, that on Thursday a company of infantry and no lancers entered town this morning. About fifty of the infantry have gone out to reconnoitre. The report that 30 or 40 infantry from Sassalamin, had discomforted a squadron of cavalry and three companies of infantry is confirmed.

From the top of the hill behind Saarbrucken, where our pickets are, we hear the French band playing.

The French shoot any of us who walk along the Forbach road, half a mile out of town, and one has to look out.

If the shooting of the last few days is any indication of the general character of the French and Prussians, we expect to hear that the French, with plenty of time to aim, make very fair shooting, up to a surprisingly great distance, but that at sharp shooting they are very wild.

The Prussians, on the other hand, will not even attempt shooting at long ranges, but at a range suited to their arm—under five hundred yards—are steady and certain marksmen.

The artillery firing of the French to-day was very good.

The same correspondent, writing on Friday, says large French forces are said to be getting immediately behind the hills, but deserters say they have nothing to eat, and appearances confirm their reports. They are half starved and woe begone.

Some infantry entered Prussian territory this morning to dig potatoes, but were driven off.

Common belief now, as to the plan of campaign, is that the three armies will form at points from Saarbrucken southwards, the southernmost to advance on Strasburg, the next on Nancy, and the third march on Metz.

N. Y. 2nd—Special correspondent of the Tribune at Frankford, writes that it is believed it is the intention of the Prussians to enter France.

Latest London opinion is that the French mean something at Strasburg, and that they will either be a double movement against Palatinate and Baden, or that the massing of troops at Metz is to some extent a feint.

German journals are terribly exasperated against England because she still continues to furnish supplies to France.

PARIS, 3rd.—The Journal Official declares that the hard feeling is not against Germany, nor against King William, but against Bismarck.

The journal regrets that the Prussian King submits to the dominion of this violent and unscrupulous minister.

The Figaro announces the death of Gen. Sanjal, commanding a sub-division at Strasburg.

BERLIN, 3rd.—The Prussian government has summoned a levy en masse to defend the coast.

LONDON, 3rd.—A rumour is in circulation to-day to the effect that Weissenbourg, a town on the Palatinate, on the border, has been stormed by the French.

LONDON, 3rd.—The following details of the affair at Saarbrooken have been received:—

Fight began at 11 o'clock yesterday forenoon. The French passed the frontier in force. The Prussians were driven from their position by the sharp artillery firing of the French. The latter remained masters of the position which they won without any serious loss.

The Emperor and Prince Imperial witnessed the conflict, and returned to Metz to dinner.

It is generally admitted by the French, that their hesitancy has sacrificed the advantage, an early start might have overwhelmed Germany; but France is now compelled to act mainly in the defence.

BERLIN, 3rd.—King William, who is now at Mayence, to-day issued a proclamation to the armies of Germany, assuming the commandership.

The United States' Navy.

WASHINGTON, 2nd.—The fact has been stated that the Secretary of Navy is using every effort to repair and build up our navy. To-day he ordered five hundred [illegible] to be equipped for service [illegible] yards, and the work of repairing and remodelling vessels on hand is ordered to be vigorously carried on. The Secretary insists that our navy should have at least 20 first class iron-clad frigates and ships of war built at once. The statement that the President agrees with the Secretary of Navy in every sentiment above expressed, is authorised, and he has determined to some here this week to hold a cabinet meeting on this subject.

Great Britain and the War.

LONDON, 1st.—In the House of Lords today a bill giving Government power to call out militia, was introduced under suspension rules, bill passed; amendments made to Edmundton bill, and it was read a third time.

House of Commons [illegible] Government [illegible] passed a bill [illegible] thousand men to be [illegible] militia [illegible] regulating two million pounds for purposes.

Artillery reported to be in most effective state, and Militia rapidly spreading.

De Israeli rose to make some enquiries. He thought the conditional alliance and re her Saxon acquisition, such guarantee if it still held good would involve England in present quarrel; he wants to know what grounds had been taken by the Government.

He urged that the army be kept up to its greatest strength, and closed with the declaration, that England, while she observed treaties, would maintain the rights and independence of others.

Mr. Gladstone took exceptions to the historical statements of the Right Honorable Gentleman, and gave his version of events down to the present day. He said that the policy of the Government was not one of armed neutrality, but of friendship to both combatants. He declared that the obligations of Vienna treaty ended with the German Empire. Government was now doing everything to conference neutrality, but British power was restricted to British waters.

All legal restrictions had been imposed on the sale of coal.

Debate followed between lesser members, on the state of the army and navy, which lasted until a late hour. No facts of importance brought out.

Trial of prominent Fenians.

True bills have been found against Gen. O'Neil, the Fenian leader, by the Grand Jury of Windsor, Vt.

WINDSOR, 30th.—Captain Monahan was arraigned before the U. S. Circuit Court to-day for violating the neutrality laws, and pleaded guilty.

Gen. O'Neil was then placed in the dock and asked by the court if he had anything to say why the sentence of the court should not be passed upon him. Prisoner pleaded his services in behalf of his adopted country as reason why his sentence should be light. He was then sentenced to State Prison in Windsor for 2 years and fined.

Drown was then arraigned and sentenced to 9 months imprisonment, and fined five dollars.

It appears that Capt. Monahan had no command at the front, and that he was not actually engaged. Sentenced to 6 months, and fined one dollar.

The International Boat Race.

There is immense excitation over the success of the "Cambria."

Result of international boat race causes intense excitement. When the rumor Spread that the Dauntless was the winner, expressions of joy were unbounded. Revulsion was very great when it was learned that the English Yatch was the victor.

Betting on the race was very heavy. Among all classes the number who invested on the American yatch is very large.

There is an impression prevalent that the captain of the "Dauntless" took a less favorable course than the "Cambria."

British residents are in high spirits and boast of the last success of their countrymen.

NEW YORK, 28th.—Commodores James Ashbury, Dixon, Kemp and Arthur B. Cook, of the Yacht Cambria, are at the Brevoort House.

The Cambria weighed anchor yesterday morning, and was towed to the navy yard, where she will be docked and put in order for the approaching contest for the Queen's plate.

Dauntless remained anchored all day and was visited by a large number of people.

A special meeting of the New York Yacht Club is to be held in a few days, when preparations will be made for the reception to be made to Mr. Ashbury. Exactly what form of a reception will take place is not known; but from the course adopted by the Club thus far, it may be assumed that it will be creditable alike to them and the American Yacht men.

The arrival of Sappho is looked for hourly, her arrival made more probable in view of the fact that the breeze which brought the Cambria the last 18 hours, reached the Dauntless 150 miles out, indicating that it may have extended still further East. If it should arrive before noon to-day, she will have beaten the time made by the other Yachts.

Fight with the Blackfoot Indians.

CHICAGO, 28th.—Pembina dates 10th say reliable information received that Blackfoot Indians have taken Fort Carrollton, a Hudson Bay post at Saskatchewan.

Commander McDonald is among the killed.

More Failures.

LONDON, 28th.—Many additional failures yesterday.

Riverton, Hallewell & Crabtree, wool dealers, at Bradford, largely interested in American trade, stopped yesterday.

There were also failures at the Stock Exchange in this city, and one at Cotton Market, Liverpool.

Discovery of Arms.

LONDON, 1st.—Quantity of arms discovered on the estate of Mr. Maguire, M. P. for Cork, owners of which are unknown.

THE FENIANS AT SHERBROOKE.—We learn that the Dominion Government have issued instructions for the disposal, by trial or otherwise, of all prisoners who are at present in confinement in Canada on charge of being Fenians. The prisoner Murphy and others who are present in Sherbrooke jail, are to be brought before a special court, to be held at the above place, by His Honor Mr. Commissioner Coursol, who left this city to-day for Sherbrooke.

A letter received in this city from Fort Abercrombie, states that Wm. Smith, a flat-boatman has arrived there from Fort Garry. He reports that he is very anxious about the amnesty. Grasshopers are doing very little damage to the crops. The French and Indians are watching Riel very closely, and are hourly expecting a message from the commander of the expedition conveying instructions to take Riel prisoner. The Red River at the present time contains an average height of water, and flat-boats are constantly arriving at Pembina, laden with government goods and lumber. At Fort Carry, the priests tell the people that the troops comprising the expedition will be recalled, and the inhabitants of the Territory will be soon be convinced when they see the proclamation of amnesty that both the Imperial and Canadian Governments have approved of the action Riel has taken.

Outrage on Tom Thumb.—A recent attempt was made in Chicago to rob the General of his jewels, of which he has a large collection, the ruffians broke into the the dressing room attached to where he was performing, and ransacked everything they could lay their hands on, and among the articles stolen was a lot of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," with which the General had supplied himself for the cure of coughs, colds, cramps in the stomach, lame back and sides, &c. Sold by all medicine Dealers at 25 cts per bottle.

RUPTURE.—One of my daughters, who had entirely lost her voice was advised by a friend to use FELLOWS COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES, and one hour after taking the first dose, her voice was completely restored.

BRAZILIAN LADIES' BLESSINGS

[Extracts from a letter of a distinguished gentleman in Rio de Janeiro.]

Radway's Ready Relief, Renovating Resolvent, and Regulating Pills.

RIO DE JANEIRO March 24, 1866.

DOCTOR RADWAY & Co.:

DEAR FRIENDS:— * * * My wife blesses these preparations, when she thinks that after three nights and days of suffering of violent pains in the stomach, brought on by overdoses of Quinine, by the use of four drops of "Ready Relief" in some water, she was able to sleep tranquil all night, and the next day she was completely re-established. I have also cured a slave from heart disease with "Ready Relief" and "Pills," and have also cured sore throat, rheumatic pains, toothache, headache, &c. With the "Resolvent" I have cured Erysipelas Skin diseases, &c.

It is my full impression that the "Pills" are the best purgative that can be found, not alone for the facility with which they can be taken, but also as they do not cause griping or make you feel sick.

I have a son of five years old now, who took the "Ready Relief" when 4 months old, as he suffered from some irregularity in the bladder, preventing him from making urine. The following was the treatment: 20 drops of "Relief" in a cup of water, and divide into portions of a tablespoon, which he took every ten minutes which cured him. He has since had colic, which I treated in the same way, and also rub the stomach with it (pure.)

Major Joaqum Vieira do Silva Pinto, proprietor, in the Cidade Leopoldina, can prove that after more than ten years suffering from Paralysis, through the medium of your remedies he obtained that which he had been deprived, and thought at the time that he would never be able to get, and that was the use of his legs.

You can fully believe that there are a great many people in this vast empire who truly confess that they owe their life to the use in time of your precious medicines. You can make use of this as you think proper.

I remain, dear friend,
Your obedient, &c.,
Signed BRAND DE HAMPATO LEITE

HEALTH IS STRENGTH.—To prevent or conquer disease is one of the grandest attainments ever aimed at by man; and Bryant's Pulmonic Wafers will as surely cure coughs, colds, tickling in the throat and pulmonary complaints, as war and pestilence will destroy. Severe colds if not attended to sooner or later lead to incurable consumption, and the strength of the strongest soon fails if neglected. The readiest and best means known for the cure of these complaints is "Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers," which have been thoroughly tried for the last twenty years, and have never been known to fail. Singers and public speakers will also derive great benefit from the use of them. Sold by all medicine dealers, at 25cts. per box.

FISTULA IN ANO is a sinuous ulcer in the neighborhood of the anus and rectum, of a very obstinate character, which will continue for years, undermining the patient's health if not properly treated, constantly discharging more or less of a thin watery fluid, and having the walls of its little fistulous pipes or canals very hard or callous. Dr. J. Briggs' Pilé remedy, remarkable for its superior excellence, should be used for this painful affliction. Many who have tried it, do not hesitate to say that it is superior to anything ever yet used for this disease. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J. Briggs' & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway, N. Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

IMMIGRATION.

To Farmers, Manufacturers and Others in quest of Ordinary or Skilled Labour.

The Immigration Society of Peterborough, desirous of securing immig ation to this portion of the Province, and supplying whatever demands there may be for the various descriptions of labour, hereby give notice to all who may be desirous of procuring labour male or female—and to the various municipalities in the County, that James Edwards, Esq., Clerk of the Town of Peterborough, has been appointed the Registrar of the Society, and that as such Registrar Mr. Edwards will preserve a record of the different descriptions of labour that may be applyed for to him. From the information thus supplied the Society hopes to induce an immigration that will at least equal the demand for labour, if not assist very materially in selling much of the at present unproductive land in the County.

A registrar of lands for sale or to lease will also be preserved by the Registrar; and those giving information of lands for sale or to lease will have the advantage of having their lands placed prominently in the market, and brought under the especial notice of those who may desire to settle upon improved or partially improved lands.

Emigrants are now on their way from the Old Country, and many have already arrived. In order, therefore, that the efforts of the Society may be productive of benefit to the community, it is essential that information be at once given to Mr. Edwards, verbally or by letter, of the labour required, lands for sale or to lease, &c.

Those making application to the Registrar will be supplied with laboorers at the earliest opportunity, and will be promptly notified of their arrival.

3. That said Debentures shall be made payable in 20 years, at furthest, from the day hereinafter mentioned for this By-law to take effect at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality, and shall have attached to them coupons, for the payment of interest.

4. That the said Debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half-yearly, on the Twenty-First Day of June and the Twenty-first Day of December, in each year, at the Office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

5. MANUFACTURERS OF THE CELEBRATED

LOCKMAN SEWING MACHINE,

Take pleasure in announcing that the popularity of the Sewing Machine manufactured by them is still on the increase. They are now turning them out at the rate of 600 per month, and yet have been compelled within the last two weeks to increase their facilities to a capacity of one thousand per month.

The Lockman Machine, from its capacity to sew the heaviest fabrics with linen thread, as well as the finest cambrics with No. 150 Cotton, is pre-eminently the Farmer's Favorite Family Friend.

It is so exceedingly simple in its parts, and so strongly and durably made, that it does not require a mechanical genius for its management.

The manufacturers challenge the world to produce its equal, and yet its price is from Forty to Fifty per cent. Lower than that of any other first-class Shuttle Lock-stitch Sewing Machine.

EVERY MACHINE IS WARRANTED.

MADOC, County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th., 1869.

This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ancles, which gradually during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on up to my hips, and I became so weak that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two years, while this weakness was coming on me, and afterwards, I sought medical advice, employing, at different times, three doctors, and medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, but of no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoshonees Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had begun to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshonees Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was not a private one, but known to all my neighbors and friends; and to any one afflicted as I was, I have only to say try the Shoshonees Remedy; I believe it will cure you,

MARY ANN DOUGHTY.

Sworn to before me at Madoc, County of Hastings, this ninth day of February, 1869.

A. F. WOOD, J. P. &c.

I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshonees Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.

Poetry.

A Neglected Grave.

Deeply there the shadow fall,
Softly sighed the zephyr's swell
And the dark grass slowly waved;
Hither, thither, slowly waved;
But not with the glee of the rolling sea,
For the wind did moan o'er the moss mounds lone
Where deeply the shadow fell.

Lowly swung the willow trees
Waving softly in the breeze,
O'er a wild neglected grave:
Wild, deserted, nameless grave;
And the weeds grew tall, an emerland wall
Upon the low hill all silent and still
'Neath the swinging willow trees.

A dream of a long gone day
Within my vision doth lay,
Of a group of mourning friends;
Weeping, solemn, sad-hearted friends,
All circled around the gap in the ground;
All laden with sighs and tear-dropping eyes,
A dream of a long gone day.

Chance, they laid a parent here—
A child, wife, or sister dear—
Either both, or all in one
She might have been, all in one;
For I'm fain to say, that under this clay
'Tis a woman lies, whose man mourner's eyes
Trouble him not to come here.

Else why no name on the grave?
Else, why should the tall grass wave
With never a flow'r between—
No sign of care to be seen?
But softly—and rest—perchance his own breast
Lies under the clay far off and away—
Else why no name on the grave?

If living—stop, let's depart—
I envy him not his heart—
'Twere not much to plant one flow'r
Upon that grave; one poor flow'r;
If dreamers alone remember the gone
Then trouble not me—a dreamer I'll be
For I've dear ones—there's the smart.

Lost, yesterday, somewhere between sunrise and sunset, two golden hours, each set with sixty diamond minutes. No reward is offered for they are gone forever.

Will asked old ten per cent what he wanted to accumulate so much money for. Says he, "You can't take it with you when you die; and if you did, it would melt."

Honor is a pair of gloves which a worldly man puts on when he goes abroad to hide the color of his hands, and pulls off when he is alone, to get at his object more conveniently.

We live in the midst of blessings till we are utterly insensible of their greatness, and of the source from whence they flow. We speak of our civilization, our arts, our freedom, our laws, and forget entirely how large a share is due to Christianity. Blot Christianity out of man's history and what would his laws have been, what his civilization? —Christianity is mixed up with our very being and our life, there is not a familiar object around which does not wear a different aspect, because the light of Christian love is upon it, not a law which does not owe its truth and gentleness to Christianity, not a custom which cannot be traced in all its holy beautiful parts to the Gospel,

Knowledge is Power.—A gentleman walking in the street observed a large crowd gathered around two dogs. The larger one, a powerful mastiff, had the smaller in his relentless grip. Every effort had been made to loosen his hold, such as slipping his collar, and using the pinching bit tail, but in vain. At length a quiet scholarly-looking gentleman came up, and making his way through the circle, asked to be allowed to separate the combatants. Assent was given amid laughter and jeers, when, drawing a snuff-box from his pocket, he applied a pinch of the titillating powder to the mastiff's nose. The effect was so great on the brute's olfactory senses, that he not only released his hold, but made off as fast as his legs could carry him. The scholar, was greeted with cheers, but replied only: "Gentlemen, I have but given you proof that knowledge is power."

Besetting Sins.—Although mankind are naturally prone to evil, they differ in relation to the particular forms of evil to which they have a proclivity. One individual is more inclined to the commission of a certain sin than is another, and the sin which one is most strongly inclined to commit is his besetting sin. The besetting sins of Christians are those which previous to their conversion they are most disposed to commit. Sin, therefore, indicates a moral weakness. It is caused by such weakness and it causes weakness. Any person is more in danger of yielding to a temptation by which he has been previously overcome; and if he falls he is quite likely to fall by that very kind of temptation. Accordingly 'cent' ful transgressions are reproduced in riper age. "The child is father to the man," in more senses than one.

"Sir," said a lad coming down a wharf in Boston, and addressing a well-known merchant, "Sir, have you any berth for me on your ship? I want to earn something." "What can you do?" asked the gentleman. "I can try my best to do whatever I am put to," answered the boy. "What have you done?" "I have sawed and split all mother's wood for nigh two years." "What have you not done?" asked the gentleman, which was a queer sort of question. "Well sir," answered the boy after a moment's pause, "I have not whispered once in school for a whole year." "That's enough," said the gentleman; "you may ship aboard this vessel, and I hope to see you master of her some day. A boy who can master a wood pile and bridle his tongue must be made of good stuff."

Stick to one Thing.—However much we may deprecate the old time custom of indenturing apprentices, the system in its practical results operated almost always for the lasting good of the apprentices. Generally, it assured to him a good trade and wholesome discipline that fitted him for success in business. At the present time, very many young men undertake to acquire a trade and after a brief trial abandon it, because there are unpleasant duties to be performed and obstacles to be overcome. They consider themselves accountable to no one, and go and come at the bidding of caprice, or an unsettled, uneasy mind. The result of this is to send out into the world young men who have not half learned their trades, unstable in character, who drift from post to pillar, and who succeed in nothing but strolling along the highways of life, melancholy wrecks of men. We would earnestly entreat every young man, after he has chosen his vocation, stick to it; don't leave it because hard blows are to be struck or disagreeable work performed. The men who have worked their way up to wealth and usefulness do not belong to the shiftless and unstable class, but may be reckoned among those who took off their coats, rolled up their sleeves, conquered their prejudices against labor, and manfully bore the heat and burden of the day. Whether upon the worn-out farm where our fathers toiled, diligently striving to bring back the soil to productiveness, or in the machine-shop or factory, or the thousand other business places that invite honest toil and skill, let the motto ever be Perseverance and Industry. A young man with a good trade or honorable profession, as he goes forth into the world, with his mind made up to stick to his profession, is not obliged to ask for many favors. He will hew his way to success, while the unstable and shiftless will grow tired, despair and fail.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Its remarkable cures of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been practical and cured by it. Its nutritious effects, and its wonderful alterative powers, when given in ordinary doses, have rendered it known to the world as the best blood purifier that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a preventive against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral, so complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb) Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in no case injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our people is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed. Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. AYER & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all round the world.

PRICE, $1.00 PER BOTTLE.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its assured character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous

Poetry.

A Year Ago.

The sun across the hill
Is gazing bright and bold,
But the valley with the frost in her lap,
Chaste and chilly cold;

All in her sheets of mist,
From morn to evening lies,
Unconscious of the bold, bright face
Of her lover in the skies!

Spirits of coming flowers
The sense well-nigh deceives;
The rose awaiting to be dressed
In her dainty body of leaves;

The hillock and pink,
For their cups of brown and red,
And the lilly for a holy veil
To lap about her head,

The fisher sings by the sea,
As he mends his broken net,
And all with golden drops of light
Are the rainy shadows set.

In a cloud of whitest dreams,
But a little year ago,
Like a tender Alpine flower
Nestling under the snow,

The lady of my heart
Was with me all day long,
And the tears came out of her happy eyes
To praise the fishers song.

Her song is sweeter now
Than the fisher's by the sea,
And the rose in her dainty body of leaves
Is not so fair as she!

Literature.

THE HEIR'S HEIR.

"Who is that royal creature, Avenel?"

"What! not know Mrs. Banvard, the belle and beauty of the season? Not to know her Harlan, argues yourself unknown."

"From the depths of my social obscurity I have heard of her; nevertheless I had had no idea she was so beautiful. A rich American widow, is she not?"

"Yes. She accompanied her father and his second wife to England last June, and is so well pleased with society and manners here that she intends to remain, permanently, I believe. She is fabulously rich, and, as you see, very beautiful; and has the reputation of also being very amiable and intelligent. If it were not for one drawback, I should advise you to fall in love with her, Harlan?"

"And what is that, pray?"

"The drawback is that in case she marries again, she forfeits all her fortune."

"I never could marry her, Avenel, with or without that proviso?"

"I was not aware that you are engaged."

"I am not engaged. But I am poor, and I would not be guilty of the meanness of even seeming to marry for money. And I surely would not be the means of bringing a splendid woman like her down to my level of penury."

"That last would be rather rough, I confess. But I cannot see any meanness in a man marrying a rich wife, if he can love her well enough. And I don't think she would be very hard to love—do you?"

"I cannot tell, I am sure, never having tried," said Harlan, with great frigidity.

Harlan was very proud.

He inherited pride from his mother, who, having married against the wishes of her family, and been cast off by them on that account, has refused to mention them, even to her son.

"You need ask me no questions about my family, Harlan," she would say, coldly, in reply to his questions; "they are nothing to you. Your fathers name and talents you inherit from him are sufficient to you. And you have, besides, your mother's prayers—your mother, who takes pride in no other name than that of Percival."

During his father's lifetime, Harlan had known "neither poverty nor riches."

Mr. Percival had been a superior architect and had never failed to provide amply for his wife and son.

But he died, and during the five years succeeding that event, it had been rather up-hill work for Harlan to provide for his mother out of his earnings as clerk.

His salary had, however, increased year by year, till, at the time my story begins, he was head clerk in a wholesale house, at a rate of salary that did not, certainly, constitute affluence, but was quite sufficient for his mother's and his own modest needs.

What ill-fortune, Harlan wondered, had brought him to Boulogne, to spend his summer vacation—there to meet Isabel Banvard.

Nobody but himself knew, thank fortune, what a fool he was!

But he knew that he loved that "bright particular star" that shone as far above his reach as Bertram did above the fair Helena.

Well, he could keep his own counsel, at any rate. His mother had proved that she could keep a secret, and it would go hard if he could not.

Harlan stood upon the beach watching, in company with his friend Avenel, the crowd of morning bathers.

Such a sight is generally neither romantic nor highly picturesque, though here and there a bathing costume is sometimes seen that produces the latter effect. Such a one, at least, was Isabel Banvard's this brilliant August morning.

Her glorious black eyes glowed all the darker for the contrast between them and the bright, bird-of-paradise-coloured robe she wore, which also brought into most charming relief her clear, olive complexion and dark bands of rippling hair.

Harlan's heart gave a great leap as he saw her entering the water on the arm of her father; but he frowned, and turned his eyes away, whistling unconcernedly.

"Voilà la dame royale!" said Avenel, "more gorgeous than the lillies of the field."

"I saw her, if you mean Mrs. Banvard," said Harlan, with superior sang froid.—"Look, Avenel, can you see that ship in the distance?"

And he strained his shaded eyes, as though in that ship centered all his hopes.

"Ship! No. What are all the ships on the sea to a glorious woman like that? How can you be so insensible? Just look at her now as she swims!"

It was, indeed, a fine sight, to see that graceful form, in its brilliant bathing-dress, glinting in and out among the waves, like a golden-backed dolphin at play.

Harlan, gazing on the vision, forgot to dissimulate—forgot that his eyes were to be schooled to hide the feelings of his heart.

He forgot everything, till Avenel touched him on the arm.

"Harlan, has she completely bewitched you? I have spoken to you twice, and you have not answered me."

Harlan turned to answer, feeling a blush creep over his usually pale face, and inwardly invoking a malison upon his own tell-tale blood; when, all at once, a fearful cry arose upon the air.

He turned again upon the bathers.

The golden-backed dolphin had disappeared, and there was a great and horrified cry among the English present of "the undertow! the undertow!"

Harlan was an expert swimmer.

In an instant his coat was thrown aside, and he was in the midst of the breakers, dashing away madly towards the object of his love and solicitude.

Once—before he reached the spot where she had disappeared—he caught a glimpse of the bright-yellow dress she wore; then lost it, then caught it again, grasped it, and went with it under the greedy wave.

But he was strong of arm and warm of heart. He soon emerged from the treacherous waters, bearing on one arm, the apparently lifeless form of her he had risked his own life to save.

Two days after this occurrance, Harlan was pacing the moonlit beach, alone. The surf was rolling finely, throwing back the the pallid rays of the Queen of night, and scattering sprays in drops of silver dew. Harlan did not see all this beauty—his face was shadowed by a frown.

"Why did I ever come here?" he asked himself impatiently. "And why, now that I have made a public spectacle of myself, do I not leave? Everybody saw me kiss her, as I brought her out of the water, and the news of my asinine presumption is sure to reach her ears. To-morrow morning, Harlan Percival, you take the boat for home. To-morrow morning, mind—before there is the least possibility of her making her appearance out of doors."

He looked up from his survey of the sands, as he said this, his eyes seeking the direction of her window.

He did not see the window, however; for ther, right before him, wrapped in shawls, and leaning on the arm of an attendant, stood her smiling and blushing self.

"Mr. Percival," said she, holding out her hand, "I have found you at last. But having found you, I am at a loss how to thank you for so inestimable a gift as my life."

The tears shone in her beautiful dark eyes.

Harlan could have kissed them away, willingly, but he assumed great indifference.

"I am not aware, Mrs. Banvard," he said, "that I am entitled to any gratitude. I was simply fortunate enough to be the one to rescue you."

"You were 'fortunate enough' to be the only one to try, as I happen to know," said she, a little embarrassed by his chilling manner. "I insist upon thanking you, and upon claiming, not only your acquaintance, but your friendship."

"My friendship, I fear, Mrs. Bouvard, would not be of much benefit to you. I—"

She took his arm, dismissing her servant, and they walked together on the sands for half an hour.

You will not imagine, if you have the least faith in psychology, that Harlan could feel the thrill of that little hand upon his arm for thirty minutes, and communicate no sense of it to her.

* * * * * * *

"Did you say her name was Banvard?" asked Mrs. Percival.

"Banvard—yes. Do you know the name?" A quick flush over the mothers face.

"Yes," she said, "I used to know it once. But you love her you say?"

"Fool that I am—yes! Don't despise me, mother, that is all I ask!"

"Despise you, Harlan? I only wish there was a woman on earth good enough for you." Something more than a mother's pride lighted up Mrs. Percival's face as she spoke. "Do you think that this woman loves you?" she asked earnestly.

"I do think so, but what of it? I could never ask her to share my poor destiny."

Mrs. Percival was silent for a moment.

By-and-bye she said, suddenly—

"Harlan, I am going to tell you something that I had intended to keep secret for ever. My name was Banvard."

"Mother!"

"Yes; and I believe this friend of yours is the widow of my cousin."

* * * * * * *

"Harlan, you surprise me! Mary Banvard—yes, that is the name in the will. Your mother is my husband's heir in case I marry again."

"If you should marry me, then, Isabel?"

"I should marry the heir's heir, and so keep possession of my property! Quite a speculation, that would be!"

"Refuse me if you will, Isabel, but do not mock me, for I love you utterly."

"And I love you in spite of your absurd pride, Harlan Percival. I have loved you all along."

And she gave him her hand with bewitching frankness.

Need we say that within a month the happy pair were married, and that Mary Banvard had never cause to repent that she accepted for her second husband the HEIR'S HEIR.

Children Educated for Society.

The cultivated of the social principle should be made the subject of special education in the young. They are made for society, and will find it. The choice companion in early life is very liable to the capricious, yet it does much in giving direction to habits and forming character. Here is a most important field for the interposition of parental advice. Send a child into the street from a virtuous home and unadvised, he will soon be sought out and led away to the most vicious and profane. He will be likely to keep the acquaintences thus formed, and the heart of many a parent has wept over the disgrace and the ruin of a son or a daughter, who has fallen through their inattention; who has entered into unprofitable intimacy with a street acquaintance, or perhaps been initiated into a vicious course by a servant in the family.—Send a young man to college who has no knowledge of human character, and no wholesome rules given to guide him in the selection of company, and a similar result will be very likely to reward the parents' negligence, or presumption. Apprentice a boy to an unprincipal master to learn his trade, he pursues a business under such a direction, and will return to his father's house with all the voice of his companions. Send a girl to a boarding school, to be associated and companied as chances may provide for her and parents must not be surprised if they are disappointed in their favorite. Children should be early taught to estimate the true value of society. They will not find all they expect from the world, and will meet with much they do not expect. Hence they are led to cherish a spirit of misanthropy and universal distrust. Again, they cultivate such associations that they are rendered miserable without a continued variety and change of society. Here is a field for the diligent hand of parental culture. A well balanced mind is to a great extent the result of education, of discipline; and the equipoise of its operation depends on the direction of its first impulse. The family is the natural and appropriate sphere for the development, education and maturity of the social principal. The judicious parent who feels the responsibility of his station as a teacher in the family will not lose the opportunity there, where all the elements of society are so fully joined and where an intimate social intercourse is forced by circumstances on all the members.

A Plot to Blow up Gibraltar.

Madrid correspondence to New York Herald.

I have received a letter from one of my Gibraltar correspondents, in which he gives the particulars of an attempt to blow up the garrison of that city. It appears that an elderly man, the party engaged to fire the train, like one of the conspirators in the famous British gunpowder plot, informed one or two of his most intimate friends of the proposed plan so as to keep them out of the way of danger. These had others whom they also warned, and so the secret leaked out and the plot was discovered. The news was spread over the city like wildfire, the greatest consternation prevailed—many families crossed the Spanish lines and went to Compamento to San Roque, expecting every moment to hear an explosion and see the place fall in ruins.

The man that was to have fired the train was immediately put under arrest and all suspicious persons watched. Military piquets doubled their forces, and a thorough examination of all powder magazines and powder chests was at once commenced. Many had been tampered with, and especially a large magazine on the New Mole Parade. This is the principal magazine of the garrison, and on being examined tables were discovered from the outside, that, after passing through the masonry, communicated with the powders. A large quantity of touch-wood and tinder was also found inside the building. All the convicts were kept in their establishment, with extra guards set over them. During the night numerous military and police patrols paraded the city.

Various have been the speculations of the citizens as to the origin of the conspiracy; some have attributed to the Spaniards, others to the Fenians, and not a few to the convicts. The man under arrest refuses to make any declaration, and some persons have considered him half crazy. Be this as it may it is evident that he has confederates in the garrison and among the troops, otherwise the preparations in the magazines could not have been made.

Present Necessities.

The necessity of a vacation in summer and rest of some sort, is recognised by all, save those who think money-getting the chief end object of man's existence. The heated term seems fairly to have set in, and people of all classes are preparing for their usual summer peregrinations. The range of pleasure in this country has become so wide, the means of conveyance have so multiplied, and abound in such numerous conveniencies and luxuries, that staying in during the entire summer season, or limiting one's rustification to the country, or to the agricultural friend's farm house a few miles away, is, to those who can afford better things, a species of self-inflicted penance no longer to be thought of. The custom of annually deserting the city during the hot weather of Summer, although by no means a new one, bears evidence of increasing popularity. Our steam lines of travel have much to render pleasure excursions possible to those who most need the relaxations which such excursions give, and who, because they must toil and save to provide the means for the expense of the trip, are all the more likely to appreciate whatever there may be in it of pleasure or profit.

Great has been the improvement in the views of employers during the last few years, in respect to the necessity of allowing their employees some little time for rest from labors which may weaken and enervate the physical and blunt and stupify the mental powers, there is room for their still further enlargement. The clerk who takes a week's vacation may serve his employer better than if he had taken none, but he who has two or three weeks' rest will accomplish far more work than if he had laboured the whole fifty-two weeks without intermission; this is for the benefit of the employer, but the duty of the workman to himself is still more imperative. Whatever time he may lose—if he must bear the loss—for the sake of necessary rest, he will make up at the other end of life which under ordinary circumstances, a proper degree of rest and recreation will prolong, whatever money he may expend in the proper furtherance of this object, will, in the end, prove to have been judiciously and profitable invested.

Wood Ashes.

Ashes may be sown at any time, even in winter. As they are a mineral they will cling to the soil. They may be applied on meadows (the best place for them) any time between mowing and an advanced growth in the spring; but the nearer the mowing time the better; and if applied immediately after the crop is removed, the best of all. The potash and soda will at once do their work. The other ingredients are more laggard and work more slowly; they, therefore, have their benefit extended. As to the amount to be applied, this is variable—variable with the soil. If the land is old and much run, the probability is that ashes will benefit it, and that they may be applied largely, say 50 to 60, and even more bushels to the acre. We have known the latter figure to work almost a miracle on meadows. Indeed, we have never known ashes applied plentifully fail to have a good effect—the effect generally corresponding with the amount sown. Any land but new land burned over, we think will be benefitted by the application of this mineral fertilizer. The difficulty is, we never apply enough. Five bushels, and even ten, show but little effect. The readily soluble ingredients, which are but a small part, cannot, therefore, be expected to make much difference, and the rest are slow and less evident. The effect of ashes is immediate, and continues for years. We would by no means use chip manure for wheat, unless the soil lacks vegetable or carbonaceous material. Wheat thrives well in a soil where the mineral or inorganic matters prevail. It wants a compact soil which humus does not make. But for fruit trees chip manure is excellent. It comes under the head of leaves, forest mould, and such like material from vegetable decay.—Cultivator.

Top Dressing Meadows.

An agricultural correspondent, Mr. Dr. R. Sperry, of the Chicago Tribune says:—

The best time to top dress the meadow is immediately after the crop of hay is taken off, more especially in a dry season. But then we do not always know the time to do the work. In that case the winter will answer a good purpose. Last winter I top-dressed several acres, hauling out the manure from stables once or twice a week. The result is two to two and a half tons to the acre, against less than half the amount on that not thus treated. Then again, the hay is early. I shall expect a heavy aftermath for soiling during October and November. Ten acres of meadow top dressed will turn more hay than twenty without it. Will owners of small farms please make a note of this?

CHOKED OXEN.—A Pennsylvania subscriber writes to the Country Gentleman that he ruptured the throat of a valuable Devon ox, by trying to push down with a whipstock an apple with which it was choking, and thinks the following a better method: Put a rope around the horns and draw the head up to a tree or some suitably high place; hold the mouth open, fill it with water, [illegible] able vessel, close immediately the mouth and nostrils, and hold firmly till the animal struggles; then take the head suddenly from the nose and mouth, and the concussion of air will move the object.

The Prairie Farmer recommends sowing an acre or two of land to peas as food for hogs late in summer, and before the corn crops matures. When the peas are large enough to eat, turn in the hogs and let them do the harvesting as they list are. Besides supplying food for the hogs, the soil will be in excellent tilth for the reception of the seed of winter wheat.

W. W. Armstrong, Esq., of Belmont, writes to say that the child story of that township was a hoax,—the result of a disordered imagination.

Great Britain is about to add 20,000 men to her army, and £2,000,000 extra are voted for military purposes. Extreme activity is also noticed in the British dock yards.

The madman Thorne, who proposed to jump the Niagara Falls, jumped from an elevator at Buffalo 135 feet high, and received fatal injuries.

A man named Deacon is now in the Kingston gaol on the charge of poisoning his wife. Cause,—more affection for another woman. There are three murderers now in that gaol awaiting trial.

The Emperor of France is 62 years of age; McMahon, Bazaine and Canrobert are over 60. The King of Prussia is 73 years old, and Molkte is 70; Manteufle and Von Roon are over 60 years.

RAILWAY EXTENSION.—We invite attention to posters, calling a public meeting on Tuesday evening next, in the Council Chamber, to discuss the propriety of Railway extension to Mud Lake, and other Railway matters. Let there be a full house.

The French troops have evacuated Rome. The supreme Pontiff objects strongly, but Napoleon pays no attention to his entreaties. We may look for strange things in Southern Europe just as soon as the strife on the Rhine becomes strong.

CRICKET.—A cricket match was played at Keene, on Monday, the 8th of August, between the Maple Leaf Cricket Club of Peterborough, and the Keene Cricket Club. Maple Leaf Club winning by 1 innings and 40 runs.

THE CHURCHMAN'S MAGAZINE for August has been received, and for churchmen at least, it contains a fair share of attractive reading. The churchmen of Canada should be able and willing to support a magazine of their own. The best way to do so, is to subscribe at once for the Churchman's Magazine. Terms $2 a year.

Sir F. Hincks and Wm. McDougall differ in their versions of paying Mr. Beatty, of the York roads, certain accounts and claims. Mr. McDougall says he resisted Mr. Beatty's claims. Sir Francis, on the contrary, says the claims were investigated during Mr. McDougall's term of office, and agreed to. Which is right?

Mr. Wm. Lasher has obtained the contract for building the new school house. The amount to be $5,000. There is some talk of want of fair play in the matter. We believe Mr. Croly put in the lowest tender, but something prevented his complying with all the terms. The next lowest tender amended was accepted. The building is to be completed by the first of February, 1870.

EXCURSION TO NIAGARA FALLS.—The Firemen are making arrangements for an Excursion to the Falls, on this day week, viz: Thursday, 18th instant. We are not yet in a position to give full particulars, as a second effort is being made to get the most favorable terms with the railroads and boat. Tickets as matters stand would be five dollars, but it is hoped to reduce this something. And we understand that Capt. O'Donnell will be in Port Hope to-day to make complete arrangements. If the Citizens go into this and aid the Firemen, it will afford an opportunity of spending a day pleasantly, of getting a sail on Lake Ontario, and of seeing the sights. It is a great pity that tickets cannot be sold for about $3.

Riel and all his co-rebellionists have received a general amnesty. The Canadian Government recommended this to the British Government, and of course it was done. It is no longer unsafe to rise in rebellion, and during the rebellion murder innocent and legal subjects. It only requires a Father Confessor at headquarters to make things quite smooth. John A. McDonald is on a tour for his health.—The affairs of State (?) have ruined his constitution and brought on severe attacks of what may yet prove fatal to the gallant Knight. Sir George Etienne Cartier, in the absence of Sir John, manages the Ship of State his way. Of course, the Manitobans are of his own flesh and blood, and hence cannot be sacrificed like so many cod-fish. It is true they are not Canadians, and it is also true they killed Scott without cause—but still there is French blood in their veins, and that blood cannot be shed for the blood of a mere Canadian from Ontario. Ontario too is refractory, it will not submit to Lower Canada domination. Sir George says it must for a season at least. His rule is to be short, but then it must be according to the haughty Frenchman. Sir John must grin and bear; Sir George is a pardoned rebel, and there must be other pardoned rebels and Sir John must grant it. He is at the mercy of Cartier, and Ontario, must submit, but how long? Let the Electors consider this, and mete out punishment in due season.

Water Works.

On Tuesday evening, the committee appointed to take steps towards forming a water works company, met in the Council Chamber. The meeting was thin, very few on George Street putting in an appearance.

J. F. Dennistoun, Esq., chairman of the committee, presided.

Mr. Carnegie submitted something like a new scheme of works, proposing to put pipes down on Dublin, London, McDonald, Hunter and Simcoe streets, as far as Aylmer street. He said the cost would be over $41,000. He then submitted calculations of a consequent tax on several parties, and also a statement of their insurance, making it appear that at reduced rates of insurance those parties would gain by the water works; but his calculations were all based on the supposition that the whole town should be taxed for the works.

Mr. Dumble thought that if they were going on with the works, they should pass a resolution to that effect, declaring it expedient to construct water works, bring forward a tangible scheme, and lay the whole before the people. There was not, he believed, a great deal of confidence in the Council. The people were satisfied that there was considerable log-rolling there, and they preferred having the matter put to a vote.

The chairman remarked that the meeting was got up for the purpose of endeavouring to form a private company—not to discuss the propriety of the works, as he thought that was, in some degree, admitted by all.

Mr. E. Burnham thought the present movement was premature, and believed if there was money to spare, it could be more profitably spent it in railway extension, to bring the trade to Town, or in building good gravel roads. He believed something would soon be necessary to save Peterboro from decay rather than fire. The Council, he thought, would do better for the Town if they spent $20,000, or what was necessary in getting a road to Mud Lake, to bring the trade of the back country here instead of allowing Lindsay to monopolize it. He did not believe the bugbear story that Fire Ins. companies intended withdrawing their business from Peterborough—the business was too lucrative for that—and if they did they ought to remove from all the towns, for few of them had water works. For his part he was opposed to water works at present.

Mr. Hilliard then made known his proposal of grantiug water to the works for 20 years free.

Mr. Henthorn wanted to know if a penstalk should be put down at every man's block, and if then each person would have to pay for it after paying his share of the taxes. He was for water works, for what good would a railway be if some morning a great conflagration swept the town away.

Mr. Cluxton, who has been agent for insurance companies for over 20 years, explained that there was danger of them withdrawing their business from Peterboro unless something be done to afford protection to property, and from Mr. Carnegie's figures it was evident that a saving would be effected in rates of premiums over the tax for water works.

Mr Stratton thought that as the object was the formation of a company, this should be done by the friends of the proposed scheme. Then a plain statement of cost, plans and other things made out, and laid before the Council, with a statement of what the company would require from the Council. The Council could then submit the whole to the people, and have a vote taken on it. If the people voted $1,-800 or $2,400 or even $5,000 a year for water works the matter would be settled, but if they voted against it, he hoped the Council would not attempt to enter upon the works. A scheme fixed and definite he believed necessary to prevent shuffling the cards too frequently, as already three schemes had been submitted, one at about $20,000, one at $30,000, and now to-night a third at $41,000. The next proposal might be for $80,000. He therefore urged something definite, and let it be carried or rejected.

Mr. Cluxton thought the Council should offer a bonus, then a company would have a definite proposal; otherwise no set of men would enter into such an enterprise.

The Mayor explained that the Council could do nothing more than had been done until the Legislature gave them power, but he thought the friends of the scheme could form their plans and make an offer to the Council and have it tested by the vote of the people in the meantime.

After some considerable remarks and counter-remarks the meeting adjourned for two weeks, to meet again at the same place.

The majority of those present were decidedly of the opinion that the water works scheme is premature.

Progress or No Progress.

As there is to be a public meeting on Tuesday evening next to discuss railway matters, especially in reference to an extension to Mud Lake, we hope that there will be a full meeting, and that by fair discussion and explanations the people of the town will be enabled to judge what will be for the general advantage.

It is admitted by all with whom we converse that something must be done to increase communication with the outside world, as already, by the foolish policy of the railway company and from absence of direct communication with the back country, we are being in some degree isolated. Trade is being diverted from its natural channel; and Peterboro finds herself cut off from the back trade, owing to the land-carriage to Bridgenorth.

There are two projects now possible towards removing the present unhappy stand-still policy.

One is to get the Midland Railway Company to extend their road direct to the back waters, and the other is to induce the Belleville Company to push the grand junction to the town and to the lakes.

In the present state of knowledge we must confess that we do not fully see our way to take sides. We have no very elevated ideas of the Midland Railway company. They have hitherto taken all, and given very little in return that could be retained. On the other side, the Grand Junction is only a paper scheme, and in its infancy; we know not what sort of wire pulling there may be in that direction yet. Still it is before us, and should be considered fairly, perhaps it offers advantages that the Midland does not.

As before remarked, we are committed to neither of them yet, so far as extension is concerned; and we await revelations ere we decide for one or the other.

There can be no doubt but that something must be done to secure to Peterborough the trade that naturally tends this way. It is absurd to talk of sending lumber from Buckhorn and Bobcaygeon by way of Lindsay, when the construction of a road of seven miles length, would ensure its egress this way. A long water-carriage, and a long land carriage, would thus be avoided. The direction of trade would be ensured to us, and, at some day an extension of roads, rail or gravel, towards Haliburton, with a tap of the Bobcaygeon, and Minden road, would leave us master of the whole back country.

The time also appears to have come to make a move in the matter, and we trust that Tuesday evening's meeting will speak out in favor of doing something, and doing it soon.

GRAVEL ROADS.

Then South of us what is being done? The Wallace Point Bridge it is true is being repaired. But the Rosy or Monaghan bridge is of more importance of possible to the Town. The County offered to be at one-half of the expense of repairs and purchase, if the Counties of Northumberland and Durham should be at the other half.

Would it be of sufficient interest to the town to go in with the County in this matter?

Just before harvest one lady from South Monaghan brought $50 to be spent in things necessary for the harvest. Suppose fifty such ladies could be induced to spend their money in Peterboro, instead of Port Hope or elsewhere, in one year our share would be regained, besides making our market the best to sell and buy in.

Let something be done in this matter as soon as possible. The County Council will meet in October and perhaps somebody will take hold and work this up.

Then comes the gravel road towards South Cavan: easily made; the right of way for almost nothing, perhaps free. The distance to Millbrook shortened to 13 miles, instead of 17 or 18 as present, and as soon as made, a sure increase of travel this way from South, and East Cavan.

Let this matter not be lost sight of.

It is true that all these improvements will cost something. They cannot be obtained for nothing, but if encomony, and wisdom, direct the management, a reasonable sum spent will be abundantly repaid in a few years.

Let us have good railway communication, and a good gravel road system, and our population shall be doubled in ten years. There is nothing wears so much as rust. A stand-still policy ruins; a little outlay in the ways referred to, but in moderation will ensure to Peterboro', the position she has always taken—the lead among the towns of this part of Ontario.

A Modest Youth.

It is the acceded privilege of advertisers to take a little latitude in puffing their small wares, but few, if any of our traders take to puffing themselves. Their energies are generally directed to the sale of merchandise. But now-a-days when character, like every other commodity of too many public men, is in the market, may be bartered for filthy lucre, some youths have taken to blowing their own trumpet, and sounding aloud their own character. We refer especially to a paragraph in the last Review from the pen of John Carnegie the younger:

"How hard for real worth to gain its price?
"A man shall make his fortune in a trice,
'If blessed with pliant, though but slender sense,
"Feigned modesty, and real impudence."

Had the poet the Editor of the Review in his minds eye, when he penned the above lines?

The community has been made aware that J. Carnegie Jr. is Editor of the Review newspaper. And as all know, Editors are excessively modest men, J. C. the younger was always modest, of course.

But—Mr. C., alas! (excuse him if you can)
Is now a scribbler who was once a man,

In the last Review we find an item on "The Mutual Insurance Co'y," which reads thusly:

"When we find such men as ——, ——, ——, and J. Carnegie Jr. of Peterboro, &c., &c., taking hold of this project, we are sure the community at large will place every confidence in its future career."

"It tickles through my soul to hear the cock's,
'Sincere encomium on his friend the fox."

Now dear readers is not J. Carnegie Jr. Editor of the Review a modest youth? He will be the life of this company. He no doubt had the Gas Company management before him when he wrote the above paragraph. Perhaps an eye to be Secretary of the Company; it may pay someday to be Secretary. Who knows what may turn up? At any rate if you believe J. Carnegie Jr. he's the man for Galway. He is modest, excessively modest—never praises himself, no never! one good trait in a youth's character. He is a successful business man too—a guarantee of excellent business tact, and of success to the Co'y. Just so.

Mr. Perry, (Mr. Gas Perry) has told several gentlemen that Mr. C's services in the gas line were worth $1,000 of a bonus—for Parliamentary services, &c., &c.—Mr. C. refuses to clear the matter up—well we are satisfied with his character, but not with his temper, we know it is bad. But then John is modest, aye! he is modest, very! With such men as Mr. C. M. P. P. (how did he omit the title?) the Co'y is safe—must prosper.

Now we do not wish our readers to understand that we are opposed to the Mutual Insurance Company now being organized in this County. On the contrary, we are in favor of encouraging it, by ensuring in the Company, if not all, at least a reasonable share of our property, and thus aid in retaining the premiums in our own County.

Our remarks are only anent the modesty of the Editor of the Review, but let him remember the Proverb of Solomon:—"Let another praise thee, and not thine own mouth; a stranger: and not thine own lips." Poor John!

"So weak are human kind by Nature made.
Or to such weakness by this vice betrayed,
Almight Vanity! to thee we owes
His seat of pleasure, and his balm of woes."

THE WAR.

At this moment that terrible destroyer of the human race, War, is raging between France and Prussia with an animosity and determination that has seldom been equalled. Two of the largest armies that have ever stood face to face in Europe are now gathered on the Rhine, ready, at the command of tyrants and blood-thirsty despots, to deluge in blood the plains and hillsides of that beautiful country, and to cause that noble stream to carry marks of their bloody deeds to the distant ocean.

France is solely to blame for the present war. Prussia sought no territory, offered no insult, bore no threatening aspect toward Louis Napoleon. On the contrary, Napoleon the III. sought extension of territory, and this being rejected, he sought quarrel with Prussia on the hollow pretext that a Hohen Zollern Prince was about to be chosen to the crown of Spain.

France and Prussia have amassed their forces, and are now in deadly conflict, but none can predict the end. France is strong in her own eyes because of her former contests and because of the victories won by Frenchmen led by Napoleon the first. Prussia is confident because of her late victories; her triumphs over Austria, the fate of the war having been determined by almost a single battle at Sadowa.

The two powers have large resources, immense armies, and well tried and skillful generals, and ere another week has passed we may have to record the most terrible deeds of bloodshed to gratify the ambition of tyrants who value men only as they administer to their ambition and aggrandizement. The Prussians have been successful up to the present. They have defeated the French under Gen. McMahon, and compelled him to retire from Weissenburg on Metz. The French lost heavily in the engagement, besides the discouragement defeat must be to a people who can fight only while successful.

All France is in a very troubled state. Rebellion is almost as certain as another reverse of arms. Should Napoleon meet a defeat at Metz, we may hear of a strong uprising against the Emperor, followed by abdication. The Emperor is sick, it is said. The young Prince has been sent home, and late rumors are that the Empress is preparing for flight.

The French army is withdrawn from Rome, the Holy Father protesting, but professing to trust in God for protection. He prayed the Empress of the French to send him one ship with which to flee in case of an uprising in the city. What a predicament for his Holiness to be in!

Ausuria is neutral so far, and so are all the other neighboring powers.

England is also neutral, and may remain so unless Belgium be attacked, in which case the war would become European, and perhaps be indefinitely prolonged.

The awful amount of suffering that this war will entail cannot be calculated. Thousands of fellow beings slaughtered, children left fatherless, fathers, mothers, wives, sisters and brothers left in mourning. Homes desolated, the country destroyed, and civilization put back a century, form but a feint outline of the terrible effects of the present struggle.

Ontario Teachers Association

We had the pleasure of attending the late Association meeting in Toronto. There were not as many teachers present as should have been, but on the whole among those who did attend, the most lively interest in Educational matters was manifested.

Those annual gatherings if properly conducted, cannot but exert an influence for good.

In the matter of text books alone there is necessity for some action. The new series have been introduced at an immense cost to the Country, while the publishers are pocketing the profits.

There is now another change in some of the readers; and the publishers talk of an increase in price. Now why should this yearly tinkering of our school books be allowed? There has also been too much spirit of change for the love of it, in the Board of Public Instruction. Important committees were appointed at the Convention to watch these matters and report; as if it may yet come about that the voice of our teachers shall be heard in the publication and price of our books. The books are too costly, and hence the teachers' difficulty in getting them introduced. If the teachers would speak out on this matter, it would soon be remedied.

The new books cost 25 per cent more than equally good books could be obtained for if competition was permitted. Another thing that must be discussed is the system of Licensing teachers. More uniformity is desirable, in fact is imperative; and for this purpose three County Superintendents should form a board for the Counties they represent, and their certificates would then be good for these Counties.

Parties who attend the Normal School should not be examined by their own teachers. Examiners from other institutions should be appointed, or a board of examiners appointed, should examine all candidates for provincial certificates no matter where educated, and then the teacher of ability could go forward and attain the high at positions without playing toady to any institution or its managers.

In the meantime teachers everywhere should unite and make their minds known on these matters, and if their demands be just, in due time they will be realized.

SUDDEN DEATH.—The Village of Ashburnham was cast into general sorrow, on Tuesday morning, on hearing of the sudden death of Mrs. J. Z. Rogers. It is not a year since she came to the Village a bride, young, beautiful and accomplished. And during this short period she endeared herself to all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance. She was in very good health on Saturday, enjoying herself amongst her friends, took ill on Sunday, of accouchement, and died on Monday. Surely in the midst of life we are in death.

It is said that the Gas Company propose lighting some of their gas lamps with oil. Legal disputes prevent laying any more pipes.

Some of the gas lamps on George Street are now lit. Why do they waste their gas during moonlight? but that is their own business. It's of no use to the Citizens at present.

Town Council.

There was a meeting of the Town Council on Monday evening.

A communication from Butle Hudson was received, in reference to laying a platform opposite his new building. And from John Hafley, asking improvements on Waterford Street.

Mr. Toole, as chairman of the committee on gas, reported in favor of putting the lamp posts intended to be at the Catholic Church and at the Old Kirk, on George Street for the present, say till January, when Mr. Romaine promised to remove them.

Mr. Doherty opposed the change of place, and so did Messrs. O'Beirne and Helm. The report was laid over to next meeting of the Council.

The Council agreed to adopt Mr. Rowe's report on the plan for a bridge near Mr. Doherty's carriage shop.

Mr. O'Beirn read a report of the Finance Committee recommending the payment to Mr. Boswell for taking care of the powder magazine.

A report from Mr. Carlile was received and laid over till he might be able to give a more detailed report of expenses in each ward.

A motion of Mr. Rutherford to remove obstruction in the Creek near the dwelling of Mrs. Stewart, was referred to Mr. Carlile to report thereon.

On motion of Mr. Toole, Mr. Lundy was appointed a member of the License Committee of Mr. Dickson, deceased.

On motion of Mr. Toole, it was agreed to spend $100 in grading and repairing Aylmer Street between London and Smith Streets; and $100 on Edinburgh Street, between George and Bethune Streets.

Mr. O'Beirne introduced a By-law to provide for issuing $6,000 debentures for erecting a New School. The By-law was read a second and third time and passed.

The Council adjourned for two weeks.

On Monday evening of last week many of the customers of the Bank of Toronto, waited on A. Smith, Esq., its late manager, and presented him with a very handsome Epergne of silver, upon which was engraved the following:

Trial of Reapers.

On Wednesday last, the trial of Reapers took place on the farm of John Walton, Esq.

Mr. Walton has kindly furnished us with the result of the trial, which was as follows:—

1st. The Tripple Harvester, manufactured by Haggart Brothers, Brampton; agent John W. Howson.

2nd. Wood's Self-Raker, manufactured by Massey & Co., Newcastle; agent H. Owens,

3rd. Ball's Ohio, manufactured by Forsythe, Dundas; Mr. Campbell, agent.

4th. The Hulbert, manufactured by the Rochester works.

The judges were John Walton, Smith; Jos. Redmond, Otonabee; Mr. Garnett, Cavan, and W. Helm, Peterborough.

Mr. Walton informs us that all the machines did their work well, in fact excellent.

THE EUROPEAN WAR.

(Special to the Examiner.)

PARIS 3.—A division of the French army under Gen. Bataille, captured the town of Saarbruck, and took 300 Prussians prisoners. Mitrailleur did wonders.

A ball from a Prussian cannon fell near the Prince Imperial.

The Chassepot carried 1,300 yards, and the Mitrailleur over 2,000 yards.

A combat reported on the Baltic, during which two Prussian gunboats were captured.

The French army is advancing. Rations for 500,000 men leave Paris daily for the French army.

The King of Italy has written to the Pope that he will protect Rome.

NEW YORK, 3.—A London correspondent to the Tribune says an engagement at Saarbrucken was between a small detachment forming the Prussian rearguard, and three divisions of French infantry, supported by 23 guns. The affair was of slight importance.

The mystery of the Prussian plans thus far is not dispelled by the affair at Sarrbrucken.

It is now evident that the war will be long, and a desperate struggle against one million armed combatants determined to defend their own country, and give the French a lesson.

PARIS, 4th.—The heights taken by the French at Saarbrusk form a key to the railway approaches to Trevers; hence the importance of the conquest.

COPENHAGEN, 4th.—Danish Government still struggles hard to preserve neutrality, but the popular excitement is intense, and perhaps ungovernable, the sympathies for France, among all classes, is very marked.

BERLIN 4th.—The officers of the Union Club of this city have accepted a large wager offered by M. Thomas of Paris, that the French will in Berlin on the 15 August.

Prussian reserve of one hundred thousand men is encamped in front of Berlin.

Forage is scarce in the Rhine provinces, and the Prussian houses are suffering severely.

A circular has lately appeared from Senor Sagasta, defending Spain as innocent of the trouble between France and Prussia. The document is well received.

NEW YORK, 4th.—A Berlin despath says another fight has taken place at the town of Gerswoller.

A detachment o. French crossed the line, and took possession of the village.—The Prussians then attacked the French and dislodged them from their position in the village, when they retired with the loss of nine killed.

Cable despatch dated London to-day, says two vessels of the contingent channel squadron sails from Plymouth this evening for a secret rendezvous probably off the Belgian coast.

The Duke concludes that according to the falsehoods Bismarck has already uttered, they fear he has lost all claim to be believed hereafter.

PARIS 5.—A French corps is said to have moved last night on Saarlouis, where a battle was expected.

The rumor of the capture of the town is not confirmed.

It is said that a cavalry skirmish occurred near Lungerding yesterday, in which 15 French defeated one hundred and fifty Prussians.

PARIS, 5th.—At the camp at Chalons, last evening, the Garde Mobile had a great illumination in honor of the capture of Saarbrucken.

There had been previously some insubordination among the guards, but favourable news ended that at once.

PARIS, 5th.—French General Margin made a reconnoitre between Saarbrucken and Saarlois, to observe the movement of the Prussians.

They were found not to be in any force in that neighbourhood.

An advance into France is threatened.

It is probable that Prince Fredrick Charles will push forward and attack Marty.

The moral effect of the defeat at Weissenburg must be wiped out at any cost.

It is understood that McMahon was just returning from a long and serious conference with Napoleon when the unexpected blow was struck, having probably carried away with him the plan of campaign.

Whether this unlooked for event will interfere with that plan or not remains to be seen. But the character of the French army bidsus look for a strong attempt to avenge its defeat.

McMahon moved yesterday towards Weissenburgh. Was two hours march from that place, and his men marched in quick step. He has between 60,000 and 70,000 men. Will be about 100,000 men to-morrow at Weissenburgh.

The loss of Prussians in different engagements are estimated, killed and prisoners, at 10,000. In the first engagement the French were 80,000 to 100,000 strong, while the opposing party were 40,000.—The enemy were so crippled that they could not follow the French.

CARLOWESCHE, 6th.—The army of Baden crossed the French frontier, where it established its head-quarters and seized some boats on the River.

LONDON, 6th.—Advices from the seat of war this morning concur in representing that the corps under McMahon are advancing.

After a brush with the Prussians last evening, McMahon occupied, and now holds a strong position on the Bavarian frontier.

The entire French line is kept in constant communication by under-ground telegraph connection.

PARIS, 6th.—The Liberte publishes a private despatch sent at midnight, from Strasbourgh, reporting that McMahon beat the Prussians yesterday, and the latter evacuated Wessenburg.

Telegraphic communication has been re-established also.

Eleven River gunboats sent in sections, from Tulon, on Tuesday, to Strasburg.

PARIS 6th.—Senate and corps legislatif have been summoned to meet on Thursday the 11th.

A despatch from the Emperor announcing McMahon's defeat and separation from the main army, has caused the utmost consternation. According to the Emperor, however, all may yet be retrieved.

The Prussians have crossed the frontier and are advancing on Paris.

The French speak of a great battle as imminent.

La Liberte bids the people of France to rise en masse and repel invaders.

The despatch from the Emperor is dated 3.30 a. m., Sunday, and says communication with McMahon having been severed, nothing was received from him [illegible] last evening.

It is announced that McMahon's loss was great in the battle, but his retirement was effected in good order. On the left the action began at about one in the morning, but was not serious until several hours of the enemy had concentrated, before which the second corps [illegible] held its ground. Between 6 and 7 in the evening masses of the enemy became more compact, and the [illegible] came rushed on the heights.

To-night all quiet. [illegible] of the position.

La Liberte has the following [illegible] despatch: Prussians [illegible] a short distance. McMahon [illegible] Neidestorn. His head-quarters were at Hagelau, and he has fallen back to St. Auverne. Thus Strasburg is menaced.

PARIS 7th.—A private despatch, said to have been received, announced a corps of Baden troops crossed the Rhine above Basle.

The following despatch has been received from the ground head-quarters, dated Metz, Aug. 7, 8.30 a.m.: "We may hold our position here. It is necessary that Paris and France should consent to great efforts of patriotism. Here we lose neither our coolness nor our confidence, but the trial is hard."

MacMahon, after the battle of Kirchahoffen, retreated at the same time, covering he road to Nancy.

The corps of Gen Frossard, which suffered severely, is taking measures for defence. The Major-General is in the front.

GENERAL HEAD-QUARTERS, METZ, 7 a.m. —The concentration of the troops continues without obstacle.

The battle commenced at one o'clock, and at first appeared of little importance, but soon large masses of troops hidden in the woods began to turn our position. At 5 o'clock the Prussians appeared as if they had been repulsed, and given up the attack, but fresh corps arrived to their assistance. The Prussians from Wergen Fen Frossard were obliged to retire.

To-day, troops which got separated yesterday, are concentrating around Mets.

In the battle near Wretchleiler Marshal MacMahon had the support of five divisions of Gen. Nailley's corps.

After the battle these divisions were unable to join the corps.

Details of this battle still very vague.

It is said many cavalry charges were made, but Prussians had the Mitrailleure "Kleukeotpitzen," which did us much harm.

Cable special to New York Tribune, London 7th, our correspondent at Cherburg writes on Friday.—The transport fleet will comprise not less than 420 vessels, and preparations for its departure will take 8 days.

Government has not more than 22 ships of its own, and takes possession of all trans-atlantic steamers.

Expeditionary corps have been strengthened, and will include 12 battalions of mariners each, with one battery of artillery, and one battalion of turcos, under Gen'ls. Robert and Martin. The main force consists of 40,000 troops of the line from various regiments, Gen. Trochu being commander-in-chief.

It is known here that Danish neutrality is only ostensible and temporary. Danish government cannot withstand the enthusiasm with which Admiral Bovet and his squadron have been received at Copenhagen and knowing the sympathies of the people.

Not many weeks, perhaps not many days, will pass before announcement of alliance, offensive and defensive, between France and Denmark for war. Meanwhile Bovet blockades Baltic ports, and when the whole squadron assembles, will bombard Hamburg, Kiel Stittin and Dantzug.

A service for re-victualling and resupplying the fleet is to be organized at Elsinore by French officers, who left Cherbourg on Wednesday.

The Danish Government is believed to authorize the taking of Elsinore as base of operation, an act more significant than any declaration of alliance.

Before entering the Baltic, Bovet captured two gunboats at the mouth of the Elbe, and bombarded Wilhelmshaven, but only to try the guns of his ironclads.

NEW YORK, 12.30.—Despatch dated London, noon to-day, says news which was received here last night that proposition of want of confidence in the Ministry had been adopted by the Corps Legislatif and the sitting suspended, had just been received in that City.

The statement that Cousin Mantanfan has been called upon to form a new Ministry is undoubtedly correct.

A correspondent in Paris writes on Monday: The proclamation of Marshal D. Hilliers against forming groups in the street is nearly a dead letter.

The entrances from Rue La Paix and Rue De Havre have to be kept barred by strong bodies of national guard to prevent Olivieri Palace from being mobbed.

The Empress says the news from headquarters is reassuring; immediate danger is past, and all the proposed dispositions have been made.

The Figaro receives that twenty-one divisions of French infantry and eight of cavalry have not yet been engaged.

For the defence of Paris, it is assured but 20,000 men are needed. There are 12,000 already in forts and 20,000 arriving from Cherbourg.

Another correspondent says the line regiments that suffered the most severely in attacking with the bayonets, are the King's own Grenadiers and 4th Fusiliers, a regiment of the 11th army corps recruited in the electorate of Brandenburg in Nassau and Frankfort, co-operated with regiments above named, and three for the first time fought as Prussian soldiers. The remainder of the troops engaged were Bavarians of the 2nd Bavarian army corps from Rhenish and from Palatinate itself.

"Tribune's" correspondent telegraphed yesterday that he looked was that no correspondent of any European journals was either of the last great battles. Same correspondent says French diplomacy is serving to enlarge the disasters of the French army, and is making strenuous efforts for English and other's intervention in the Emperor's favor, and to arrest the march of the Prussians, and secure aliase for France.

Economy in Health and Fibule is as important as in business, and we know of no cheaper, better or surer means of preserving health and directing the sick of their infirmities, than through the medium of Dr. Radway's famous medicines. We present a case in point:

CASE 1 236.—Marcus W. Mount, long a sufferer from liver complaints, has paid, he says, at different times, about $250 to physicians, and he thinks as much more for medicines. Is induced to try Radway's Pills, with occasional doses of the Regulating Resolvent, to assist in removing from his system the effects of the mercurial treatment to which he has been subjected. Soon feels the benefit of the change. Takes, in all, five boxes of the Pills and three bottles of the Resolvent, and at the end of the course is "as well as ever he was in his life."

The British Navy.—The question has been often asked whether the Navy of Great Britain, mounting as it does over six thousands guns, and manded by 75,000 sailors, exceeds the navies of France and the United States, or France and Russia, and were it not that we might be considered a little egotistical we should say it did exceed them altogether, but it is useless speculating upon this when there are other questions that do not admit of any doubt, so one after using the "Canadian Pain Destroyer" doubts its being the very best thing for the cure of coughs, colds, sore throats, diptheria, pains in the stomach, sides and back, spinal affections, &c. Sold by all Medicine Dealers at 25 cents per bottle.

Life has few charms for the Dyspeptic, which is not to be wondered at when we take into the account the amount of bodily and mental suffering that this distressing malady generates. The Peruvian Syrup (a protoxide of iron) has cured thousands who were suffering from this disease.

Have You a Cough, Cold, Pain in the Chest, or Bronchitis? In fact, have you the premonitory symptoms of the "insatiate archer," Consumption? If so, know that relief is within your reach in the shape of Dr. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY which, in many cases where hope had fled, has snatched the victim from the yawning grave.

PILES may be caused by anything that will irritate the lower bowels producing a determination of blood to the rectum, as drastic cathartics, from the extensive use of which in past years the disease has become very common, habitual constipation, straining at stool, diseases of the liver, much riding on horseback, tight stays, sedentary habits, high living, heating irritating food, &c. Dr. J. Briggs' Unrivalled Pile Remedy, remarkable for its superior excellence, should be used for this painful affliction. All who have tried it do not hesitate to recommend in the highest terms.

INVERTED TOE-NAIL is a very painful disease generally the result of wearing tight shoes, and is usually accompanied with more or less inflammation, and, at times, ulceration. The great toe is the one usually attacked. At first, there is only a little uneasiness, which ceases when the shoe or boot is removed from the foot; after a time the part becomes tender or inflamed, and the corner or edge of the nail is found pressing deeply into the flesh, while the whole nail is narrow, and much arched across. Ulceration eventually ensues, proud flesh appears, and the pain becomes very severe. For the sloughing off the proud flesh, healing the ulceration, and eventually curing the toe, use Dr. J. Briggs' Modern Curative, according to directions. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J. Briggs' & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway, N. Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

WHEREAS, the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough have resolved to expend the sum of $10,000, in constructing, making and repairing the Roads and Bridges within the said County,

And whereas to carry into effect the said recited object, it will be necessary for the said Municipal Council to raise by way of loan the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars in the manner hereinafter mentioned:

And whereas it will require the sum of $900 to be raised annually by special rate, for the payment of said debt or loan and interest, as also hereinafter mentioned:

And whereas the amount of the whole rateable property the said Municipality of the said County of Peterborough, irrespective of any future increase of the same, and also irrespective of any income to be derived from the temporary investments of the Sinking Fund hereinafter mentioned, or any part thereof, according to the last revised Assessment Rolls of the said Municipality, is the sum of $2,511,651.

And whereas the existing debt of the said Municipality of the County of Peterborough is Twenty Seven Thousand Dollars for Principal money, and Nine Thousand Eight Hundred and Ten Dollars for Interest, and there is nothing in arrear on account of said Principal or Interest.

And whereas, for paying the interest, and creating an equal yearly Sinking Fund for paying the said principal sum of $10,000 as hereinafter mentioned, it will require an equal annual special rate of nine twenty-fifths of a mill in the dollar, in addition to all rates to be levied in each year.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough—

1. That it shall be lawful for the Warden of the said County to raise by way of loan, from any person or persons, body, or bodies corporate, who may be willing to advance the same, upon the credit of the Debentures hereinafter mentioned, a sum of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars, and to cause the same to be paid into the hands of the Treasurer of the said County of Peterborough, for the purposes, and with the objects above recited.

2. That it shall be lawful for the said Warden to cause any number of debentures to be made, for such sums of money as may be required, not less than $100 each, and not to exceed in the whole the said sum of $10,000; and that the said Debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Municipal Council, and be signed by the said Warden, and countersigned by the Treasurer of said County.

3. That said Debentures shall be made payable in 20 years, at farthest, from the day hereinafter mentioned for this By-law to take effect at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality, and shall have attached to them coupons, for the payment of interest.

4. That the said Debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half-yearly, on the Twenty-First Day of June and the Twenty-first Day of December, in each year, at the Office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

5. That for the purpose of forming a Sinking Fund for the payment of the said Debentures, and the interest at the rate aforesaid, to become due there on, an equal special rate of nine twenty-fifths of a mill in the dollar, shall, in addition to all other rates be raised, levied and collected in each year upon all the rateable property in the said Municipality, during the continuance of the said Debentures, or any of them.

6. That this By-law shall take effect, and come into operation upon the 10th DAY OF OCTOBER ONE THOUSAND EIGHT HUNDRED AND SEVENTY.

The Lockman Machine, from its capacity to sew the heaviest fabrics with linen thread, as well as the finest cambrics with No. 150 Cotton, is pre-eminently the Farmer's Favorite Family Friend.

It is so exceedingly simple in its parts, and so strongly and durably made, that it does not require a mechanical genius for its management.

The manufacturers challenge the world to produce its equal, and yet its price is from Forty to Fifty per cent. Lower than that of any other first-class Shuttle Lock-stitch Sewing Machine.

IMMIGRATION.

To Farmers, Manufacturers and Others in quest of Ordinary or Skilled Labour.

The Immigration Society of Peterborough, desirous of securing immigration to this portion of the Province, and supplying whatever demands there may be for the various descriptions of labour, hereby give notice to all who may be desirous of procuring labour—male or female—and to the various municipalities in the County, that James Edwards, Esq., Clerk of the Town of Peterborough, has been appointed the Registrar of the Society, and that as such Registrar Mr Edwards will preserve a record of the different descriptions of labour that may be applied for to him. From the information thus supplied the Society hopes to induce an immediate flow of at least equal to the demand for labour, if not assist very materially in settling much of the at present unproductive land in the County.

A register of lands for sale or to lease will also be preserved by the Registrar, and those giving information of lands for sale or to lease will have the advantage of having their lands placed prominently in the market, and brought under the especial notice of those who may desire to settle upon improved or partially improved lands.

Intending settlers on their way from the old Country, and many have already arrived in order, therefore, that the objects of the Society may be productive of benefit in the proximity, it is essential that information be at once given to Mr Edwards, verbally or by letter, of the kinds of wanted, lands for sale or to lease, &c.

Those making application to the Registrar will be supplied with labourers at the earliest opportunity, and will be promptly informed of their arrival.

MADOC, County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th., 1869.

This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ancles, which gradually during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on up to my hips, and I became so weak that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two years, while this weakness was coming on me, and afterwards, I sought medical advice, employing, at different times, three doctors, and medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, but of no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoshoness Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had begun to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshoness Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was not a private one, but known to all my neighbors and friends; and to any one afflicted as I was, I have only to say try the Shoshoness Remedy; I believe it will cure you,

I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshoness Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.

Select Poetry.

What is a Year?

What is a year? 'Tis but a wave
On life's dark rolling stream,
Which is so quickly gone that we
Account it but a dream.
'Tis but a single earnest throb
Of Time's old iron heart,
Which throbs on now, and strong as when
It first with life did start.

What is a year? 'Tis but a turn
Of Time's old brazen wheel;
Or but a page upon the book
Which Time must shortly seal,
'Tis but a step and we shall walk
Life's weary road no more.

What is a year? 'Tis but a breath
From Time's old nostrils blown,
As rushing onward o'er the earth
We hear his weary moan.
'Tis but a bubble on the wave,
Or dew upon the lawn;
As transient as the midst of morn
Beneath the summer's sun.

What is a year? 'Tis but a type
Of life's oft changing scenes,
Youth's happy morn comes gaily on
With hill and valleys green;
Next Summer's prime succeeds the spring.
Then Autumn with a tear,
Then comes old Winter—Death and all
Must find a level bear.

A Horse and Buggy.

HOW A LIVERY STABLE KEEPER WAS SOLD.

Colonel, an attaché of one of the Pennsylvania railroads, but well known in Buffalo as an inveterate practical joker, happened in Cleveland the other day, and the weather being mild and warm he conceived the happy idea of taking the fair object of his adoration out riding. Donning his best suit, he started post haste for the nearest livery stable. He was a partial stranger in the vicinity, and the livery stable keeper, not knowing him, and imagining possibly, from the state of nervous excitement in which he presented himself, that "something was up," refused to let him take a horse and buggy.

"Sir," remonstrated C——p, "I am good for a dozen horses and buggies."

"Very well, then leave me some security," demanded the suspicious livery man.

"How much do you consider your dare'd rig worth?" angrily asked our friend.

"About $350."

"If I buy it now and pay you $350 in cash, will you agree to buy it back for the same sum when I get through with it?" asked C——p.

"Certainly, sir," politely responded the owner, who thought he saw a chance for a good bargain.

"All right. Here's your money;" and jumping into the vehicle, C——p drove off to the residence of the expectant Angelina.

Of course she was ready, and of course a pleasant drive was enjoyed. Up one and down another of the beautiful laid avenues of Cleveland they rode, breathing the fresh and balmy atmosphere of a glorious spring day, admiring the handsome residence which line the streets, C——p talking sweet nonsense all the while, and Angelina looking as if she felt herself transported to the seventh heaven of delight.

All the afternoon did the happy couple ride and admire the newly developed beauties of nature, when the sinking sun reminded our hero that official duties awaited his attention, and leaving his fair companion at the door of her residence, he drove back to the livery stable.

"Well," said he to the proprietor, "you see I am here again, and I presume you are ready to buy this rig back."

"Yes, sir, I trust I am a man of my word," coolly responded that individual, at the same time handing C——p $350 in greenbacks, which our friend quietly stowed away in an inside pocket, when

"Hold on here," called out the livery man; "you haven't paid for this 'ere horse and buggy!"

"What do you mean!" in turn responded C——p. "Didn't I buy that horse and buggy of you two hours ago?"

"Yes."

"Well, then, what in thunder do you mean by asking me to pay for the use of my own rig!" retorted C——p, as he moved off with well-assumed indignation, while the stable hands and bystanders smiled audibly.

Green Fodder for Cows.

Judge French, referring to the remark of some farmer that 'corn fodder is the meanest thing that can be offered to milch cows,' add a few notes from his own experience, proving exactly the reverse. In Concord we furnish about 2,000 gallons of milk a day for Boston, of quality equal to the best; and farmers, almost without exception, rely upon green corn for their cows in August and September. My next neighbor says he could not keep half his number without it. I kept 8 cows in the yard nearly a month last year, in August and September, and fed them almost wholly on green corn fodder, giving them a little dry hay and no grain; and they gave more milk than when at pasture, and made excellent butter. We reckon sweet corn best; but usually sow the Southern corn, because the seed of the sweet corn is too expensive. I have nearly two acres sown this year, part of which I hope to dry and save for winter use. If there is anything settled in my neighborhood it is that corn fodder is valuable for milch cows. My own experience of 20 years corresponds with the general opinion.

HOW TO FATTEN CHICKENS.—I have a box that holds a bushel, with holes at the bottom, and I put in a half bushel of corn. It is so constructed that a little runs out at a time on to a platform and as fast as they eat it more runs out, until all is eaten. I keep my hens in this way the year round; they have potato peelings from the table and other food, which they eat readily, and we have eggs through the year, except two or three weeks, when they are shedding their feathers. When we want a chicken for the table they are always ready. I let them run in my garden: they do but little injury, and pick up a great many worms and insects.

THE NEW GRAPE-REVOLVER.—On Friday experiments were made at Satory (a field in the neighborhood of Versailles) with the grape revolver, about which so much has been said. Three hundred horses, which were bought at the horse-market for $1 a piece, were placed at the extremity of the plain, and two of the smallest grape-revolvers were fired at them; in three minutes not a horse was alive. The French papers wish the horses had been Prussians.

A farmer says that manure hauled directly from the stall to the field and plowed in, produces a much greater effect on the soil and lasts longer than the semi-decomposed manure of the farm yard. One of our best Seneca Co. farmers, a Vermonter, who makes butter and some cheese from thirty cows, hauls his stable manure as fast as it is made through the winter to his fields, and he hires Irishmen in March to spread it on both plow and grass field.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Purgatives are in one sense of the word positively necessary for everybody. We all require, now and then, a cathartic medicine, and all know what it is to feel the need of relief. But time is money, and few can afford to lose it. Therefore we would say to you, when you want a cathartic, do not waste your time with any but the best. Ayer's Pills are the best. Try them, and you will find that they will do their work promptly and thoroughly. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take, and are the safest medicine that can be used by any one who requires occasional purging.

Those who have tried it, know that it cures them; those who have used it, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does cure it does always — that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its compounders. We have thousands of letters, from all parts of the country, concerning remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use, in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action — remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for such cases, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and restore the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous even where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and removing effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and

An Autumn Melody.

BY WILLIAM ROSS WALLACE.

Autumn's gently, gently spread
Thy wings upon the mountain head;
Gently waft the minstrel-breeze
O'er the parterres of trees.
Gradual may their pipes be pulled
In thy hues of brown and gold;
Slowly let November's pall
On the russet meadows fall:
O! let Nature seem to die
With a glory in her eye,
And good man, busy done,
Gives his claim adieu to sun:
Autumn! gently let thy pall
On creation's coffin fall,

Rainbowed by thy pensive form!
Wave away the early storm!
Let us think not, while we may,
Of the Winter's dreary day,
When the snow's white mantle spread
Brings to mind the sheeted dead;
Rather play the thoughtful tune
Under an unclouded moon;
Rather, lightly tread the roads
To delicate measures in the woods:
Smiling, as thou dost depart,
Bend o'er Nature's failing heart:
Autumn! gently let thy pall
On creation's coffin fall.

Literature.

Daring Deeds of Young Men.

The principal event in the following story was narrated to the writer by an old naval officer of the war of 1812, who can vouch for its truth.

Our hero, Godfrey Blake, was born in New Bedford, and served in the United States Navy almost from his childhood.

His mother died when he was a baby, and his father, who was boatswain on board the sloop-of-war "Spitfire," made a powder monkey of his son as soon as he attained the age of eleven years.

Old Blake, the father, was killed by the explosion of a cannon in the summer of 1812, in Chesapeake Bay, and Godfrey was left an orphan.

But he had learned much of the service in his juvenile capacity; the captain liked and befriended him, and he remained on board the "Spitfire."

War was declared, and the vessel, commissioned from Baltimore, went to sea on a general cruise against English commerce.

Upon the occasion of an engagement with the British brig "Nottingham," which occurred shortly afterwards, little Godfrey Blake, then only fourteen years of age, had an opportunity to display the wonderful nerve and coolness which he possessed in after years. The crew were killed and wounded by bombshells thrown by the enemy upon her deck, and the little fellow had been an eye-witness to the terribly destructive nature of their explosion.

As the vessels neared each other another bomb fell upon the "Spitfire's" poop, and remained there with the fuse smoking.

There was a general scattering of the officers and seamen in its vicinity.

But Godfrey—probably not desiring to see any further devastation from such missiles—ran up to the shell and tried to push it overboard with his foot.

This he was unable to do; so he picked it up in his arms, bore it laboriously to the bulwarks, and threw it overboard.

The shell had only sunk two or three feet beneath the surface of the sea, when it exploded, throwing up fountains of spray, and making the strong ship shiver from peak to kelson.

The same unconcern and irresponsibility to fear which distinguished this act, impressed the captain so terribly that he brevetted the lad a midshipman on the spot, to take the place of another "middy," who had been sent away in charge of a prize.

The "Spitfire defeated her antagonist, and returned to Baltimore, after a most successful cruise, at the end of nine months.

Here Blake was duly commissioned as a midshipman, and was transferred to Captain Porter's gallant "Essex," then about to start on her famous cruise in the South Pacific.

The diligence and industry of the young officer soon brought him under the notice of his commander.

During the fight with the English frigate "Arethusa," the contest was for a long time undecided.

The latter was the largest vessel, and three of her boats attempted to board the "Essex."

A terrible struggle ensued upon the starboard quarter, with pistol, hatchet and cutlass, each crew striving desperately for the mastery.

Porter himself fought like a lion in the press.

At one period of the fray his life was in imminent danger.

He was fencing with the lieutenant having command of the enemy's boats, when a British sailor having disposed of his man, came to the assistance of his superior, and raised his cutlass over Porter's head.

In another instant the fate of the "Essex" would have been sealed. But Godfrey Blake saw his chieftain's danger and blew the new assailant's brains out, his pistol being so close to the fellow's head as to blacken the whole side of it with powder.

The enemy were beaten back into their boats.

The Americans boarded in their turn, and the "Arethusa" was captured.

This was on the coast of Brazil, and after weathering Cape Horn, the "Essex" began that unprecedently long and brilliant cruise among the British merchantmen and whalers of the South Pacific, which has made her more illustrious in the history of naval warfare.

Young Blake was entrusted with the charge of a number of prizes, all of which he managed to carry into friendly ports in safety.

But his first real exhibition of skill and nerve as a commander was upon the occasion of his being placed in charge of the prize "Roebuck."

The "Roebuck" was a splendid East-Indiaman, with an almost priceless cargo, which had been captured by the cutter of the "Essex" in the vicinity of the Fejee Islands, and Godfrey Blake was placed in charge of her, with a crew of ten men.

The first mate and original crew of the "Roebuck"—twelve in number, and all English, with one exception, a brawny Lascar—were confined as prisoners in the hold.

Her voyage to the States was a long and perilous one, but, after obtaining a plentiful supply of fresh water at the islands, the boy-officer gave orders to weigh anchor, and proceeded on his way full of confident spirit.

After weathering a most terrific gale off the Horn, they came out of its mists and dangers, only to encounter a still greater peril in the shape of an English man-of-war, which instantly gave chase.

The "Roebuck," however, proved a better sailer before the wind, and, after a close and exciting chase, evaded her enemy, and was alone upon the sea.

Although the prisoners in the hold had been uniformly well treated, young Blake had ere this detected signs of dissatisfaction among them.

He put his own men on their guard, and warned the prisoners that they should be placed in irons upon their displaying the first symptoms of revolt.

But, late one night, when they were in the hot latitudes, these symptoms became unmistakably apparent.

Blake was pacing the quarter-deck, and pensively gazing upon the beauty of the moonlit sea.

With the exception of the man at the wheel, the watch were lounging amidships.

There was but little wind, and nothing to mar the subdued quiet of the scene.

The midshipman saw one of the men composing the watch get up, and lean lazily over the forecastle bulwarks, but took no notice of it at the time.

Presently he heard a slight splash at the bows of the vessel.

The ship was surrounded by dolphins, disporting in the wave, and at first he thought nothing of the sound, but as he glanced casually along the decks, he noticed that the position of the lookout-man had been taken by the man who had been relieved.

His suspicions were aroused instantly.

And these were by no means diminished when another and keener glance showed him a crouching, sneaky figure, creeping along in the direction of the gunways, toward the place where the remainder of the watch were sleepily reclining upon the deck.

One of the limbs of this dark figure happening to glance out of the shadow into the moonshine, the young officer restrained no longer, but raising his pistol, took steady aim and fired.

There was a yell and a groan, and the body of the Lascar prisoner rolled out of the shadow, bleeding like a sacrifice.

The watch sprang to their feet at the report of the pistol.

"Seize your arms, men!" shouted the officer. "There's mutiny afoot. That black devil there has shot one of the comrades overboard a moment ago!"

The four men composing the remainder of the watch grasped their weapons.

They had no sooner done so than a pistol report from below announced that the prisoners were attacking the Americans in the forecastle.

The main hatch was securely battened down, but the forward hatch had been left open, and it was evidently by this means that the Lascar had obtained access to the deck.

"Follow me, men," cried Blake; "we'll stop any more of them from crawling out of that hole."

He sprang forward, and as he did so, a burly head appeared above the hatch.

It went down very quickly, though, as a bullet struck it in the temple.

Shouts, cries, and the noise of scuffling below indicated that the prisoners were endeavoring [illegible]

This occasioned our hero more anxiety than anything else, as the men in their bunks would doubtless be taken completely by surprise.

"Guard the hatch, lads," said he, "while I go over the bows here, and see how our fellows are faring below."

He reloaded his pistols, clambered lightly over the bulwarks, and stood in the chains in a few seconds.

From this position he could make himself heard by those within.

"Jackson, Cooper!" he sang out anxiously.

"Aye, aye, sir," returned acheery voice.

"How is it with all of you?"

"I'm afraid they've killed poor Thompson sir," replied the voice. "But we've battened up the forecastle door, and they can't come in. They've got nothing but one pistol and a lot of bludgeons"

"If you can come near enough to the chains, I will give you some pistols, Jackson,"

The noise of the prisoners endeavouring to force their way through the battened door was resumed, at the same time the midshipman heard Jackson trying to make his way through the cable-tier.

A hand was thrust out into the chains, and Blake immediately placed his two pistols in its palm.

"Don't waste a shot, Jackson," said he. "You may be able to pink two of them through the chinks of your door."

"Aye, aye, sir."

The hand was withdrawn, and the midshipman drew his cutlass as he regained the deck.

"Ben't no more ugly mugs as has made their 'pearance here, sir," said one of the men at the forward hatch.

As he spoke, a shot echoed from below, followed by a curse and a groan.

"One of my pistol's did that," said the midshipman, jubilantly.

There was another shot and another cry.

"There goes the other."

Comparative silence below succeeded the shots.

"They either give up the attack upon the forecastle, or preparing for an attempt upon some other part of the ship," said Blake.

"Perhaps, sir," suggested the oldest of the prize-crew—a staunch seamen named Jefferys, "they'll try to break into your cabin, grab your weapons, and then come on deck by the stern ports. They can't any other way, for the companion-way is fast shut."

"I think you're right, Jeffrys. One of you wait here to guard the hatch, and the rest of you follow me. We'll await developments upon the quarter deck."

The midshipman proceeded thither, followed by three men, the other remaining at the hatch."

They had not gained the poop, however, before a huge ruffian, cutlass in hand, clambered over the stern, and cut down the man at the wheel.

He was followed quickly by three others.

But the sailors' pistols spoke unerringly, and the boy-officer fleshed his maiden sword by cutting down the fellow who had wounded the helmsman.

The foe upon deck having been effectually disposed of, a voice from below signified that the remainder of the revolting captives wished to surrender.

"Stay precisely where you are, and your lives shall be spared!" sang out the midshipman. "Jeffrys," he added, "look first and get the men in forecastle on deck, and then we will open the companion-way."

The men imprisoned in the forecastle, with the exception of one who had been wounded, were soon upon deck, and secured with ease.

All then surrounded the the companion-way, and one by one the prisoners were ordered up and placed in irons.

Both the helmsman and the man wounded in the forecastle recovered; but, of course, the poor fellow who was thrown into the sea by the Lascar's treacherous attack was never heard of again.

Of the twelve prisoners, seven were found to have been slain.

The remainder were kept secure enough until the "Roebuck" arrived at Baltimore, [illegible] was related with the [illegible] which he had [illegible] richly deserved.

He served the various ships throughout the war, was steadily promoted, and was a first-lieutenant, when he died—[illegible] in the year 1865.

The population of France, according to the census of 1866, was (exclusive of 125,000 soldiers, stationed outside of the empire) 38,067,094, of which 11,893,348 lived in towns, and 26,173,746 in the rural districts. As regarded nationality 534,625 were resident foreigners, the remainder native Frenchmen. The difference of language among the natives of France has been the subject of no official census. It is estimated that about 1,200,000 of the population (Alsace and Lorraine) speak German as their native tongue, 202,000 Flemish, 1,000,000 Welsh, 1,100,000 Breton. As their religious faith the people are divided as follows: Catholics, 37,107,211; Protestants, 846,219; Jews, 49,040; other sects, 24,166; and in Algeria: Catholics, 211,198; Protestants, 2,682; Jews, 35,737; Mohammedans, 2,686,744; other sects, 17,232. The population of the French colonies (not included in the above enumeration) is 3,649,678, and in the population of countries in Asia, Africa, and Oceanica, under the protection of France, is 3,693,575—making a grand total of people living under sway of the French Emperor of 44,535,317.

It is not to watch children with a suspicious eye; to frown at the merry outburst of innocent hilarity; to suppress their joyous laughter, and to mould them into melancholy little models of octogenarian gravity.

And when they have been in fault it is not to punish them simply on account of personal injury that you may have chanced to suffer in consequence of their fault; while disobedience unattended by inconvenience to yourself, passes without a rebuke.

Nor is it to overshadow the little culprit with a flood of angry words, to stun him with a deafening voice; to call him by hard names, which do not express his misdeeds to load him with epithets which would be extravagant, if applied to a fault of ten fold enormity; or to declare with passionate vehemence, that he is the worst child in the world, and destined to the gallows

But it is to watch anxiously for the first risings of sin, and to repress them; to counteract the earliest workings of selfishness, to repress the first beginning of rebellion against rightful authority; to teach an implicit and unquestioning, and cheerful obedience to the will of the parent, as the best preparation for a future [illegible] to the requirements of the civil [illegible] and to the laws of the great Ruler and Father in Heaven

The War.

We give in our telegraphic despatches all the important news from the seat of the war, from which our readers will be able to inform themselves on the present state of affairs in Europe.

Napoleon the Third seems to have brought himself and his young son into trouble, out of which they will not easily rid themselves. Latest accounts declare the Prussians victors in every encounter, and pursuing their victories with a determination that can only be overcome by superior energy and force. The French Emperor does not possess the military talent of his uncle. He is not a leader, but is a drag, on his generals, as the defeats of the campaign hitherto are attributed to carrying out his order. Prussia, too, has an overwhelming army, commanded by experienced generals. No less than 600,000 men are now said to be on French soil, with a reserve of nearly 400,000. To oppose such an army France must exert herself to no common degree.

There are evident signs of dissatisfaction pervading the masses of the French people. The government has been defeated since the war opened. Napoleon must obtain a victory if he ever intends to return to Paris.

Latest news up till going to press shows that Prussia is so far an over-match for France. England is still neutral, and it is hoped nothing will occur to involve her in the struggle. It is perfectly foolish to speculate on results.

Railway Extension Meeting.

According to announcement by bills, a meeting of the citizens was held in the Music Hall on Tuesday evening, to take into consideration the necessity for extension of our railway to Mud Lake.

The Mayor was called to the chair, and Mr. D. W. Dumble requested to act as Secretary. The Mayor briefly explained the object of the meeting.

Mr. Strutzen, as mover in the matter, remarked that he had taken the trouble to go round with the requisition to the Mayor calling the meeting, and in doing so found that there was a general desire on the part of citizens spoken to, to get railway communication towards the back country by Mud Lake. He, for his own part, felt that something ought to be done to secure the trade of the country in the rear, which as matters now stand, goes by way of Lindsay. The people of Victoria county were anxious, of course, to retain it, and were doing what they could to that end, but he thought if we had communication with the lake, that a large share of it would come this way. We also required to move in the matter of the Haliburton scheme, and, if possible secure it too; and the extension to Mud Lake would be so much of the road to Haliburton. We required also to direct our energies to get gravel roads where required, as they too would prove incentives to come to Peterboro. The present movement was merely for discussing projects. There was no offer before the people; and there should be no favourite enquiry. The company that would do the work soonest, cheapest and best ought to be assisted by the Town, and he believed the people were ready to assist such company to a reasonable amount. For the present, the matter was open for discussion, but at a further stage of the meeting, he intended to move for a committee to investigate the matter, and keep it before the public, and report as soon as possible.

Mr. Dumble being called on, made some very appropriate remarks in regard to the lack of public enterprise in our citizens in not having originated any work for the benefit of the town for some years. Neither railroads, nor gravel roads, nor a manufacturing joint-stock company, not even a building to rent at a cheap rate to any one who would commence a venture in manufactures amongst us. He was not aware that the town Council had even a By-law granting an abatement of taxes to encourage such enterprise. He paid just tribute to the enterprise of merchants as private individual speculators, and spoke favorably of the market Peterboro' offered to Country merchants and farmers, but asked, what had been done to improve our advantages? nothing to improve our navigation near the town, as the Locks had been allowed to rot, and our noble river in consequence was almost useless. The railway we had was called a monopoly, and nothing was done to remedy this. Of course he knew the road was well managed, goods safely carried, trains regularly dispatched, and all this, but the charges were continually protested against as extravagant, and all this had been borne. He felt that something should be done to secure us the increasing lumber trade, for he felt that it was increasing at least in outlay on the manufacture, and he felt also that ..... was there so large as investment in that business. There was business in rear of us to keep six or seven steamers on the lakes, and he believed a railway to Mud Lake would ensure us a large share of that trade, and cause the immense future trade of the back country to pass here. He, Mr. D., thought we should be ready to do all we can to develop this trade; and if in public matters we had half the energy of our merchants, or our lumbermen, we would not be as we are. He then referred to parties most likely to build the extension, expressed but little faith in the Midland company, but thought if there was no other company or party to do it, that company should be assisted to do so. He also referred to the foolish outlay of money at Stoney lake locks, while the locks at the town were neglected; and spoke favorably of fostering the trade on the Otonabee river, by encouraging the steamboat traffic, as it did something towards making our railroad authorities civil, if nothing else. He concluded a very excellent speech by by referring again to the immense lumber trade of the back country,—its oak, birch, butternut, &c., &c., and hoped that our representatives—four of them—all ultra loyal to the government, would succeed in obtaining a grant in aid of a railway to Haliburton.

Mr. Cluxton followed. He said he agreed that..... were not doing much lately, and for his part could not see what could be done; everything proposed by the true friends of the town was cried down, and they became disheartened. For years back as soon as anything was proposed by any citizens they were pounced on as if by wolves, so that now few care to venture to do anything for fear. Mr. Cluxton then gave a history of railway matters in connection with Peterboro, and a comparison of rates of freight on the Midland and Grand Trunk roads, over which there was a crossing of arms, especially on account of Mr. C. asserting that the Grand Trunk rates from Montreal to Port Hope were three times the rate from Port Hope here.

He also gave a very desponding picture of the state of Peterboro, which, for the sake of our good town, we feel convinced he will excuse us for not publishing. And concluded by saying that the offer of the Midland Railway to extend the road to Mud Lake for a bonus of $40,000 was still open, and would be entered into if the town took steps in the matter. But for his part he would oppose going by way of Lakefield.

Mr. Dumble replied in a very witty and effective manner, refering to Mr. C's want of hope, and absence of energy in this enterprise.

Mr. Hamilton asked Mr. Cluxton if a measure was introduced into the Council, and sanctioned by the people, would he then be in favor of extending the road to Mud Lake? To which he replied, not by way of Lakefield.

Mr. Blomfield was next called on, and gave a favorable account of the back country, as containing many tracts of good land, the settlement of which he believed necessary to an increase of trade. He believed a railroad the best means of opening the country, and a direct road to Mud Lake, as near to Buckhorn as possible would be preferable, and be of immense advantage. He also referred to the road intended to be opened up, and to the amount of trade consequent on the settlement of the country; and he expressed a wish that something would be done now to aid the enterprise, and also the railway towards Haliburton.

Mayor Scott then spoke, and advocated the necessity existing for doing something immediately. He remarked that Mr. Cluxton took a gloomy view of affairs, and he was of opinion that if nothing be done, Peterborough shall retrograde. He then eloquently brought before the meeting the immense lumber trade back of us, causing an annual outlay of at least $200,000, which we only require to stretch out our hands to receive at least a large share of, as this was the natural channel for it. Lindsay was now monopolising it, and the trade was building that town up, and could we not have a part of it. One merchant in town had assured him (Mr. Scott) that already his trade with the back country amounted to $20,000, and this was but a small portion of that trade, which, it was a matter of importance to Peterboro to try and secure. He said over 60,000,000 feet of lumber were manufactured in our rear, costing half a million dollars annually, and he felt that the greater part of that was laid out on the track of ingress and egress, and which would be secured by Peterboro if the extension should be secured.

Mr. Scott also referred to the offer of the Midland railway company as a bait to blind the town off its guard. As he believed they never intended building the extension, and only went to Lakefield to prevent the Cobourg road doing so. He doubted whether they would build it even now, and pointed out that it was not their interest to do so, as already they got the trade by way of Lindsay; and if they undertook it, it might be 5 or 6 years in completing it. The Midland company never thought of offering to build an extension till they found the town would do something; then they made an offer. But as soon as they found that Cobourg was out of the way, what have they done since? They have been silent.

Mr. Cluxton again referred to the advantages the town received from the Midland railway, and to its good faith, and its readiness now to carry out the extension for a bonus of $40,000.

Mr. Stratton then moved, seconded by Mr. Bradburn,—

"That in the opinion of this meeting, the interests and prosperity of the County and Town of Peterboro are in a great measure dependent upon some speedy railway communication between Chemong lake and the Town of Peterboro, so connecting with the frontier as to induce, as far as possible, the back country and the lumber trade by way of Peterboro; and that a committee, consisting of the following gentlemen, be named to consider this resolution, and devise some feasible scheme in furtherance of the same; to report at a meeting of the ratepayers to be convened by the mayor when such a report shall be ready, viz:—Messrs. Wm. Cluxton, W. A. Scott, Wm. Hall, James Campbell, Elias Burnham, R. Walton, J. Carnegie, M.P.P., A. W. Kempt, J. Moloney, T. G. Haslitt, George Hillard, C. T. Blomfield, D. W. Dumble, A. H. Campbell, John Buruham, D. Sutherland, Chas. Perry, M. P., Peter Connal, R. Romaine, T. Bradburn, Chas. Stapleton, Jas. Stratton, and the members of the Town Council, with power to add to their number. Seven to form a quorum."

Mr. Carnegie remarked that he had come to the meeting determined to be silent, but owing to some subjects foreign to the discussion being introduced, he wished to make a few remarks. If he remembered aright, Mr. Covert's offer was: that if Peterboro' built the extension, he would run it; but afterwards he asked $50,000 of a bonus, and he thought the offer to build the road for $40,000 came from Cobourg. In the matter of the Stoney Lake Locks, he said a petition signed by 1,200 persons asked for the outlay, and hence his advocacy of it. He believed now that the money spent on a railway would be better for the country. He also believed that at the next Session of the Legislature bonuses would be offered to railway enterprizes, but at the time of the grant to Young's Locks no such thing was contemplated. In the matter of the town locks, the people must look to the Dominion members as that grant was made by the House of Commons.

The motion was then put and carried, and the meeting broke up.

There was a very fair attendance of citizens present, but not so large as the importance of the subject demanded.

CORRESPONDENCE.

For the Examiner.

I observe in the Review of the 12th inst. some editorial observations in reference to a recent meeting of the committee on the proposed water works, in which my name is unfairly mentioned, and upon which I would like to make some remarks, as well as some remarks upon the scheme itself. In doing so I will endeavour to avoid the very objectionable manner of the Editor of the Review upon the subject.

Assuming Mr. Romaine and Mr. Carnegie, who, I believe, are the principal, if not the sole originators of this scheme, to be perfectly disinterested in their undertaking, and taking it for granted that in what they are doing they are actuated, as they say they are, solely by the wish to do me and others a benefit, still I cannot avoid asking myself the question, why is it that these two gentlemen take such an interest in my welfare, and why is it that they persist in doing so even against my will, and why is it that they almost abuse me because I cannot see things in the light that they profess to do, and because I will not consent to allow them to manage my business instead of managing it myself:—It is, I understand, the case that there are some men in the world so benevolent and so exceedingly generous that they devote themselves altogether to the good of others, and it may be that this is the case with the two gentlemen in question. But assuming this to be so, is this any reason why I should give up the control of my business into their hands and why I should allow them the privilege of entering upon this great scheme of water works, partly upon the credit of my means; without daring to have any opinion of my own in the matter. I would fain hope it is not. I have been engaged some thirty-seven years in getting together what property I now possess, and I have had some pretty hard work to do so, and so far as I can I mean to keep the control of it in my own hands, believing that it is quite as safe there as it would be under the management of Messrs. ..... and Carnegie. And I think I possess quite as much ability to look after and manage my own affairs as is possessed by the two gentlemen above named.—They must therefore, excuse me if I decline to put that amount of faith in their good judgement and their disinterestedness which they would have me do. If their scheme is so exceedingly meretorious, its success will not depend upon my approval or disapproval, nor upon that of any one else; for "truth is mighty and will prevail." If Messrs. Romaine and Carnegie really have no interest in this matter beyond that which I and others have, all I can say is that their conduct furnishes a strange commentary upon their notices.

I have spent thirty-seven years of my life in Peterboro. I have during that time seen a good many ups and downs in the place, a good many people come and go.—During these many years the town struggled on in spite of many difficulties, and now this day it stands unrivalled among the towns of Canada. Now, it seems to me that those who have stood by the place through all its trials and difficulties, and who have by their good management got together some little means for their future comfort, might, at least, have the credit of possessing some little judgement and common sense, and do not desire to be told by comparative strangers that they are not fit to look after their own affairs, and that these two gentlemen are better able to do so than they are. We never knew until these gentlemen told us that there was no other way to save the town from destruction by fire, save through an elaborate and costly scheme of water works. Hitherto we had supposed that there was water enough in the Otonabee river, flowing right past our doors, and in the creek running through the very centre of the town, to serve all our wants for this purpose; but these gentlemen tell us that we are mistaken, that we must not use the water flowing ready at our hands, but that we must leave all these facilities and go some two miles or so away, spend some forty or fifty thousand dollars to pump water from the same river upon the top of a hill and from thence bring it to the town in pipes; and that if we will only let them do this for us and pay them well for it, the town is safe.—We must go away two miles, at a great expense, to get twelve inches of water, but we must not use that which nature has so bountifully provided for us at our very doors, in quantity without limit. This is a most unreasonable proposition, and is one which does not command itself to the reason of any man of the most ordinary intelligence, and I shall be surprised to find many persons of consideration and reflection to adopt it, unless they are influenced in their decision by other motives than I am. It is true that all persons do not view things in the same light—but surely a scheme so wild and so visionary as this appears to be, cannot command the confidence and support of any considerable number of our townsmen.

If the proposal of these gentlemen really emanates from a patriotic and disinterested motive, as they say it does, why is it that they become so impatient at opposition, and why do they not allow others the privilege of their own judgement upon it.—For my own part, I should suppose that if the scheme was a good one, they would court the greatest investigation—for, as I said before, truth is mighty and will prevail. If the scheme is a bad one, then I don't wonder at their impatience. But however this may be, they may depend upon it that I and others will use our right to examine into it's merits and will decide for ourselves.

A calculation has been made and submitted to us to show that to raise an annual income of $1,800, by way of bonus to this scheme, as applicable to George Street, will cause but a slight increase to our taxes.—But to speak without desiring to give offence as to these figures, I must say that the gentleman making the calculation is mistaken, in making them, so far as the amount relates to the real estate on George Street, that is, confining the water to George Street as proposed. Mr. Carnegie appears to have based his calculations upon the assessment of the whole town, instead of that for George Street; and when we examine these separate amounts, it will be observed that his figures upon his own mode of calculation, only give us the one-fifth of the amount of the increase of our taxes. The assessed value of all the real property of the town, as Mr. Edwards has furnished me is $1,064,880. That for George Street, between Brock and Charlotte Street, is $234,750, a little more than one-fifth of that of the whole town. If, then, we multiply his figures by five, we will have some idea of the amount of increased taxes to be paid, even as they are furnished by one of the parties most interested in the success of the scheme. But the basis of Mr. Carnegie's calculation is not right. He estimates a man's property as he finds it upon the assessment roll.—For instance, that of Mr. Cluxton, simply the shop which he occupies—instead of all his real property upon George Street, which embraces the land and buildings from his own shop inclusive, up to Hunter Street. It is obvious that it is the real estate alone which is ultimately liable for whatever debt may be created by the works in question; and therefore it is nothing less than a fraud to attempt to prove what is not the fact, which is the case when it is attempted to be shown that a man's liability is five times less, saying nothing of the amount of liability of all his real estate, than it really is.

If Mr. Cluxton, then, will multiply the amount of his increased taxes as given by Mr. Carnegie.—viz., $44.32 by 5—he will have some idea of what amount he will really have to pay upon his own shop, without including all the large remainder of his property. And the same remark will apply to all the other real property owners in the street. I do not know whether Mr. Carnegie has made his calculations correctly, even upon the basis of the assessment for the whole town, but for my argument I assume them to be so, and the result is what I have shewn above. How much, then, would real estate owners on George street gain by the proposed water works.

We are told that if we had the water works our insurance would only be half what it is now. But suppose it were so, how much would we gain by the change. But what guaranty have we that this would be the case. The insurance companies have not given us any indication that they will make this reduction, nor will they do so in a legal and binding manner.

Then, again, we are told that unless we have the water works, the insurance companies will withdraw from the town, and will insure here no more. I said at the committee meeting, and I say it again, that this is nothing less than downright nonsense; because to suppose any such thing, will be to suppose that these companies will do the same with every other town in Canada without water works, and how many would then be left them in which to do business. The fact is, this statement is, for effect, and a very poor attempt it is at that. These gentlemen would have us believe that there is no property destroyed by fire in towns where there are water works, and yet we constantly read of great destruction of property in this way in Toronto, Hamilton and Montreal, where they have water works.

At the meeting in question, Mr. Henthorn asked the question,—a very proper one—that suppose the bonus asked were given, would the people on George street have the use of the water for ordinary purposes free of charge, and I believe the question was not answered. Mr. Henthorn said very properly that if such a large bonus were given—sufficient, or nearly so, to complete the works,—surely the people had a right to the free use of the water. But no answer was given, as I heard. People may therefore draw their own inferences.

There are other matters which I would like to refer to, but this communication is already too long, and I must reserve them for a future reference, provided such shall be necessary. In the foregoing observations I have endeavored to avoid giving offence, and I hope I have succeeded.

E. BURNHAM.

Peterboro, Aug. 13, 1870.

SUDDEN DEATH.—On Monday, whilst Matthew Morrison, of the 4th line Smith, was at work in the field in company with two or three others who were relations, (Nephews we believe), he suddenly fell down, and almost instantly expired. Our informant says, he had just been talking about the quality of the grain, comparing different sorts, and grain sowed at different periods and while doing so, stepped forward a few paces and fell. He was never married and lived alone, hence there is no one who can tell whether he had been ill before-hand which is very probable, although he might have expired just as he did, in reasonably good health hitherto.

Riel has issued a proclamation, announcing to the people of Red River, that their political differences has been amicably settled and the British Government had granted all the concessions and rights demanded. Mr. Bannatyne is strongly impressed with admiration for the Napoleonic president and says Riel has succeeded in preserving the rights and liberties of the Red River people, and the people regard him with love and gratitude. General tranquility prevails.

THE EUROPEAN WAR.

(Special to the Examiner.)

NEW YORK 11th.—London special to Tribune, our special dispatch from Paris, Wednesday evening says new Cabinet meant strong measures against Paris, as well as Prussia, but do not be mistaken. Another reverse and the Emperor is gone. Confidence in him is utterly destroyed.

Rumours of fresh battles are flying around Paris, but no official news received, but French are being most rapidly reinforced, and within a few days Paris will be almost denuded of young men. Popular devotion is for country and not for dynasty, but everything looks to-day as if Orleanists or republicans would succeed the empire.

PARIS 11th.—According to Theirs speech he knew a month ago that France was not prepared. Grave faults had been committed, still they must not take a brave man from before the enemy, to answer to an accusation. The Chambers proceeded to vote the restablishment and to make provision for widows and orphans of war. It was communicated that all citizens over 21 years of age, and having resided 1 year, in one place would be furnished with arms.

Count Polnka announced that the armament of Paris would be complete in eight days. He appeared to have full confidence in Marshall Basine, and counted on victory to efface traces of recent reverses.

Glois Biscoine demanded that the nation should make no treaty of peace, so long as the enemy was on French soil.

Minister Margon asked that the amount of loan the government had been authorized to make, be increased from five hundred millions, to a thousand millions, that the bills of Bank of France be a legal tender, and that the bank shall not be obliged to redeem them in gold or silver, but that the paper circulation of the bank be limited to one thousand million, eight hundred millions to be applicable to the use of the Government. That similar privileges be conferred on the bank of Algeria, whose paper circulation be limited to 18,000,000. The minister declared the above financial measure urgent, and it was carried by a vote of 271 to 1.

A forced currency of Bank notes is practically established.

100 franc notes cannot be changed by the shops without paying premium.

The Bank of France still proposes to pay in specie, but gives only silver for notes. The run on the Bank to-day was very severe, and some persons were compelled to wait 5 hours for their turn.

Private letters say that Marshal McMahon's treasure chest, containing 1,500,000 francs in gold, was captured by the Prussians.

LONDON, 11th.—In Corps Legislatiff on Tuesday, when vote was taken on question of sustaining the Ministery, only six voices were with Oliver.

METZ, 11th.—Despatches published in the morning papers says, Prince Imperial is still at that place.

PARIS, 11th.—American bonds and bills are in great demand at Cherbourg. Last night there was great activity in the embarkation of troops for the Baltic. The Austrian Minister here, is authorized to deny the rumor that Italy and Austria are sending troops to save Napoleon.

LONDON, 11th.—Bank of England has reduced rate of discount to 5½.

ST. UTHOART 12th.—In the battle of Woarth the first corps of the Whertemberg contingent lost 6 officers, and 23 men killed, and 257 wounded, and 118 missing.

At Garsweiller, the Whertemberg troops captured 1 mitraillnre, 3 caissons, 1 staff carriage, 225 prisoners, and 8 horses.

LONDON, 12.—The Duke of Chartres has asked permission to take service in the French army. He claims the privilege as a Frenchman who has learned something of the art of war in America and Italy.

The Telegraph is authorized to contradict that the Prince Imperial is in London.

McMahon marched out of Savirne on Sunday night on one side of the town, just as the Prussians were marching in on the other.

At Brussels last night there was enthusiastic demonstration before the Prince and the British Legation.

The Times says the pride of France is wounded and her prestige dimmed. Whatever brought this on her must suffer for it. Victorious or disarmed is Napoleon's alternative on the next battle field.

Prussian accounts say that nothing at Koeningratz could parallel the destruction of life at Woarth.

M. Thiers is reported to have said that the Empire was ended, and a Republic inevitable.

The Paris papers published a letter from Charles Deu Moulint, dated at Nancy, announcing the Emperor's bad generalship. He says McMahon gallantly struggling was beaten for lack of support, though there were a multitude of armed Frenchmen at hand, with which to save him.

ANTWERP, 12th. 10 a.m.—Advice from the seat of war says that a battle is momentarily expected.

NEW YORK, 12th.—The substance of all despatches received in Wall Street, and those received in other quarters, convey the impression that a great battle is expected in the vicinity of Metz.

The passage of the Rhine was undisputed. The Commissariat was utterly inadequate, and soldiers were compelled to eat sour fruit and raw vegetables.

Prussia to-day has Alsace and to-morrow she will have Lorraine.

NEW YORK 13th.—Cable special to Tribune says:—no news is allowed reach here from the front, and constant complaints are expressed.

Wounds made by the Prussian guns are not severe, but the effects of the Mitrailleurs are fearful. Numbers of men had both legs shot off, and still live.

Edmund Abott is a prisoner at Tezian.

All France called to arms, but it appears that there is no arms to give them, and it is contemplated issuing to a part of Garde Mobile old flint muskets. There are only fifteen Chassepots per company at this camp, and the rest are told to look on, while the 15 are taught the use of that arm.

Why the French army remains concentrated before Metz nobody understands.

It is believed the Prussians are already at Nancy, and it is apparent the Empire is rolled up like a scroll.

What Houssag said this morning is true, for twenty years nobody in France has studied war, seriously, everything has been done superficially, while the Prussians are the first in science, and have now proved themselves that they are first in war.

LONDON 13th.—Special correspondent of the Tribune from Paris:—Truth is slowly leaking out, it shows the position of the French army to be worse and worse.

Two days ago, a despatch meant to be reassuring was published stating that Failly has restablished communication with McMahon. It now appears that these communications were destroyed on the field of the last battle of Woerth. McMahons position is in all probability deplorable, driven as he is into barren mountains of Vosges with an army without arms or provisions.

Germans have cut off all communication between Paris and Strasburg.

Casrobert came to Paris yesterday to consult with the Empress, and has now returned to his command.

ST LOUIS 13th.—During the Presidents visit to the Merchants Exchange yesterday, Mayor Cole presented to him on behalf of the Irish Americans citizens a petition for the pardon Gen. O'Neil, and other fenian prisoners. The President said he would give it due consideration.

Reports are circulated to create uneasiness have been circulated. Some persons have dared to express the belief that Strasburg will surrender to the enemy without striking a blow.

The British Navy.—The question has been often asked whether the Navy of Great Britain, mounting as it does over six thousands guns, and manned by 75,000 sailors, exceeds the navies of France and the United States, or France and Russia, and were it not that we might be considered a little egotistical we should say it did exceed them altogether, but it is useless speculating upon this when there are other questions that do not admit of any doubt. no one after using the "Canadian Pain Destroyer" doubts its being the very best thing for the cure of coughs, colds, sore throats, diptheria, pains in the stomach, sides and back, spinal affections, &c. Sold by all Medicine Dealers at 25 cents per bottle.

Have You a Cough, Cold, Pain in the Chest or Bronchitis? In fact, have you the premonitory symptoms of the "insatiate archer," Consumption? If so, know that relief is within your reach by the usage of Dr Wevan's Balsam of Wild Cherry which, in many cases where hope had fled, has snatched the victim from the yawning grave.

BRAZILIAN LADIES' BLESSINGS

[Extracts from a letter of a distinguished gentleman in Rio de Janeiro]

Radway's Ready Relief, Renovating Resolvent, and Regulating Pills.

Rio de Janeiro March 24, 1866.

Doctor Radway & Co.:

Dear Friends:— . . . My wife blesses these preparations, when she thinks that after three nights and days of suffering of violent pains in the stomach, brought on by overdoses of Quinine, by the use of four drops of "Ready Relief" in some water, she was able to sleep tranquil all night, and the next day she was completely re-established. I have also cured a slave from heart disease with "Ready Relief" and "Pills," and have also cured sore throat, rheumatic pains, toothache, headache, &c. With the "Resolvent" I have cured Erysipelas Skin diseases, &c.

It is my full impression that the "Pills" are the best purgative that can be found, not alone for the facility with which they can be taken, but also as they do not cause griping or make you feel sick.

I have a son of five years old now, who took the "Ready Relief" when 4 months old, as he suffered from some irregularity in the bladder, preventing him from making urine. The following was the treatment: 30 drops of "Relief" in a cup of water, and divide into portions of a tablespoon, which he took every ten minutes which cured him. He has since had colic, which I treated in the same way, and also rub the stomach with it (pure.)

Major Joaquim Vieira de Silva Pinto, proprietor, in the Cidade Leopoldina, can prove that after more than ten years suffering from Paralysis, through the medicas of your remedies he obtained that which he had been deprived, and thought at the time that he would never be able to get, and that was the use of his legs.

You can fully believe that there are a great many people in this vast empire who truly confess that th y owe their life to the use in time of your precious medicines. You can make use of this as you think proper.

I remain, dear friend,
Your obedient, &c.,
Signed Baano de Sampayo Leite

ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS A WORD

For every word in the following certificat found untrue, after writing to the parties named: and to the U. S. Consul, at Rio Janerio, the sum of one hundred dollars will be paid.

Rio de Janeiro, Feb. 28th, 1866.

Messrs. Raymundo C. Leite & Bro:

Gentlemen:—While a son of my friend Mr. Francisco de Matteo Pinrenta [a large proprietor in the Cidad de Campos] was staying at my house he was attacked with intermittent fever. Immediately I sent for the very clever Dr. Tonoco, who is thought a good deal of in Campos, but the fever instead of diminishing, turned, continued, and typhoid, the boy (14 years old) could not speak, would not take the broths, and it required a great deal of coaxing to make him swallow the medicines. Dr. Tonoco declared that there was not the slightest hopes of saving the boy's life; that it would be advisable to write to his father and inform him of the state of his son's health. At that moment I thought of the well spoken Dr. Radway & Co's medicaments, and applied them in the following manner: One teaspoon of Relief in a tumbler of water, dividing it three doses a day; frictions with the relief pure on the chest, back and wrists; three of Radway's Pills every day, and well covered so that he might perspire. Second day, half an hour after meals, one desert-spoon of Resolvent and water. In the fourth day he was able to get up from bed to the astonishment of every one who witnessed the merical of Dr. Radway & Co's. medicaments.

I remain, gentlemen, yours very obedient servant

Joaquim Pinto Filcao, Merchant.

THE HORSE.

"Of the great number of animals under the control of man, the horse is unquestionably the most serviceable;" but is it not strange that so many who own horses, and who are dependent on their labor for a living, should neglect to give them that care and attention which their own interest no less than the safety and comfort of the horse demands. The best medicine for horses is "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave remedy;" of this there can be no doubt—it is safe and easily given. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hurd & Co. is on each package. Northrop & Lyman, Newcastle, Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealers.

Bryan's Warner, (The great public remedy,) have now been in use over twenty years, hence it cannot be said that they are on trial. They have been thoroughly tried, and pronounced (on the authority of those whose lives and health they have preserved) to be a cure, harmless and eminently salutary preparation, and if taken in season will invariably cure colds, coughs, sore throat, and all Bronchial affections. One fair trial will convince the most skeptical. Sold by all medicine dealers, at 25cts. per box

The Reciprocity Treaty.—The American Press do not seem to be at all satisfied whether the Reprocity Treaty is beneficial or a detriment to the prosperity of the American Government, but it is gratifying to see that on points the United States press and the Canadians agree, and one is that the "Canadian Pain Destroyer is the best thing for the cure of coughs, colds Frostbites, rheumatism, &c. Sold by al Medicine Dealers at 25 cts. per bottle.

Good Food and Plenty of it, produces the same effect upon a person who has been starved that the Peruvian Syrup, an Iron Tonic, does upon the Weak and Debilitated: it makes them strong and vigorous, changing weakness and suffering into strength and health.

"Their Name is Legion," may be applied to those who die annually of Consumption, although science has of late years sensibly diminished their number. It gratifying to know that the general use of Dr. Wistars' Balsam of Wild Cherry is largely instrumental in attaining this end.

IMMIGRATION.

To Farmers, Manufacturers and Others in quest of Ordinary or Skilled Labour.

The Immigration Society of Peterborough, desirous of securing immigration to this portion of the Province, and supplying whatever demands there may be for the various descriptions of labour, hereby give notice to all who may be desirous of procuring labour—male or female—and to the various municipalities in the County, that James Edwards, Esq., Clerk of the Town of Peterborough, has been appointed the Registrar of the Society, and that as such Registrar Mr. Edwards will preserve a record of the different descriptions of labour that may be applyed for to him. From the information thus supplied the Society hopes to induce an immigration that will at least equal the demand for labour, if not assist very materially in settling much of the at present unproductive land in the County.

A registrar of lands for sale or to lease will also be preserved by the Registrar; and those giving information of lands for sale or to lease will have the advantage of having their lands placed prominently in the market, and brought under the especial notice of those who may desire to settle upon improved or partially improved lands.

Emigrants are now on their way from the Old Country, and many have already arrived. In order, therefore, that the efforts of the Society may be productive of benefit to the community, it is essential that information be at once given to Mr. Edwards, verbally or by letter, of the labour required, lands for sale or to lease, &c.

Those making application to the Registrar will be supplied with labourers at the earliest opportunity, and will be promptly notified of their arrival.

March 10, 1869.

To Messrs. Chamberlain & Sells, Conway P.O County of Lennox, Ontario, Canada.

Madoc, County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th., 1869.

This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ankles, which gradually during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on up to my hips, and I became so weak that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two years, while this weakness was coming on me, and afterwards, I sought medical advice, employing, at different times, three doctors, and medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, but of no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoebonees Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had began to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoebonees Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was not a private one, but known to all my neighbors and friends; and to any one afflicted as I was, I have only to say try the Shoebonees Remedy; I believe it will cure you,

Mary Ann Doughty,

Sworn to before me at Madoc, County of Hastings, this ninth day of February, 1869.

A. F. Wood, J. P. &c.

I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoebonees Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.

Poetry.

Daisy Day.

BY MRS. JOHN G. WHAMS.

Fairest, Daisy Day!
Rarest, Daisy Day!
You have filled,
You have thrilled;
My heart as you willed;
But,
Had I been wary
Tempesting Fairy
Avoided the snare
Of glances so arch—
Or tried to withstand
The thrill of that smile
So dimpled and white—
Your lily-like hand:
Or disdained to see
The wonderful haze
Of your glorious ways,
I might have been free,
And, fair, Daisy Day—
Rare Daisy Day—
Nothing to me.

Ah, light Daisy Day!
Ah, bright Daisy Day!
Dimples that woo and wed,
Lips with rose-leaves overspread;
Orient pearls quaintly seen
Shining whitely strewn,
Have dazed,
Have chained,
And completely crazed,
Poor me:
So, fair Daisy Day!
So, rare Daisy Day!
Having failed,
Having thrilled,
My heart as you willed,
Teach my tongue how to speak—
How to woo—
How to woo
Daisy you.

Prussia.

POPULATION.

The total population of the Kingdom of Prussia according to the census of December 3, 1867, was 24,043,269. This includes the population of the territories lately absorbed by Prussia. The total population of towns and cities was 7,456,350.

FINANCES.

The national debt of Prussia is 442,629,373 thalers, or over $200,000,000. The total revenues are about 170,000,000 thalers, and the total expenditures 160,000,000 thalers.

ARMY.

The German military organization is complete, and, according to a statement of the Prussian Military Gazette, "a million soldiers can at any moment be placed under arms by a single telegraph from Berlin." The Prussian troops, the same authority adds, consists of 328 battalions of infantry, 268 squadrons of cavalry, 11 regiments of artillery with 1,146 guns, and 12 battalions of engineers, making in all 410,000 soldiers. To these should be added the Federal contingents of Saxony, Brunswick, Mecklenburg-Strelitz, and Hesse Darmstadt—in all 53,000 men. But this force of 463,000 only represents the standing army of North Germany. In case of emergency, Prussia can also command the service of the troops of Baden, Wurtemburg and Bavara, and immediately order a reserve consisting of an army of 143,000 men. An additional force of 200,000 men is at her disposal for the occupations of towns and garrisons. Every Prussian subject is enrolled as a soldier as soon as he has completed his 20th year. He serves, unless exempted, three years in the regular army, four in the reserve, and at the end of this term enters the Landweer or militia for nine years. Leaving the Landwehr he finally enrolled in the Landstrum until he is fifty years of age.

The Commander-in-chief of the Army and Navy is the King. The chief of the staff is General de Moltke. The regular army is divided into 11 corps or divisions, with the following commanders. Headquarters. Commanders.

Konigsberg	General de Manteffel
Stettin	Prince Frederick Willam
Berlin	Prince Frederick Charles
Magdeburg	General d'Avlensleben
Posen	" de Steinmetz
Breslau	" de Tumbling
Munster	" de Zastrow
Coblentz	" de Bittenfeld
Schleswig	" de Manstein
Hanover	" de Voihts-Rhetz
Cassel	" de Plouiski

The Commander of the Corps of the Guard is the Prince Augustus of Wurtemberg. There are 29 fortresses in the kingdom, of which five are of the first rank.

NAVY.

Count Von Bismarck has been able to assert that the Prussian navy is now second to none in the Baltic Sea. Since 1860, vessel after vessel has been rapidly launched, until Prussia, which a few years ago was really contemptible on the sea, has now become a formidable naval power. According to the latest returns the fleet of Prussia is composed as follows:

Description.	No. of vessels.	Guns.
Iron-clads	4	49
Frigates and corvettes	9	202
Gunboats	23	51
Yacht	1	2
Paddle corvettes	3	15
Sailing vessels	59	315
Total	99	637

The steam fleet is being increased as rapidly as human efforts will admit of. The largest vessels in the navy are the King William, of 5,938 tons, and the Renown, of 7,500 tons. The former, which is considered the most formidable affoat, was built in England for the Sultan of Turkey, but as he could not pay for it, it was snapped up by the Prussians. The armament consists of twenty-three guns of the heaviest calibre known, manfactured by the famous Krupp steel, at the works in Westphalia. The steam power is 1,150 horse, the crew 600 men. The Renown is less heavily armed, and has only 1,200 horse-power, with an armament of 11 inch guns, six 96 pounders, twelve 72 pounders, and twelve 24 pounders on the upper deck. The crew amounts to 1,000 men, exclusive of officers. This vessel was built in Kell. On the stock at the navy yard in Wilhelmshaven is the heavy iron-clad frigate the Grosser Kurfurst, and the Fredrick the Great, of the same class is building at Kiel. The Hansa, another iron-clad, is nearly completed, at Dantzic, where the steam frigate Ariadne has been commenced, and the steam sloops Albatross and Nanhilus. To be built in 1877 are eleven iron-clads of the largest size, eleven double-banked frigates, seven heavy sloops and three transports.

When I see leaves drop from their trees in the begining of autumn, just such, think I, is the friendship of the world. While the sap of maintenance lasts, my friends swarm in abundance, but, in the winter of my need, they leave me naked. He is a happy man that hath a true friend at his need; but he is more truly happy that hath no need of his friends.

He who has not learned the lesson of resolute self-help has made little progress as a student, has grown little toward real manhood. Half the world refuses to do its own thinking, to toil through the solution of its own knotty problems; hence half the world who will not do this must be subject to the other half who will. They who do the thinking will either directly or indirectly do the governing.

What has become of Napoleon's famous saying 'The empire is peace?'

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this extraordinary medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. In removing the scrofulous disease, whose the system receives saturated with its corruption, have been changed and cured by its use. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were springing up in every part of the body, have been prevented from developing, by the same powerful antidote. Even consumption, which fastens upon the lungs, and which was once considered incurable, has been conquered by this remedy, and thousands, who were apparently in the first stages of this fatal disease, are now living to bless the day when their lives were saved by the use of this antidote.

Scrofula is probably one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, the innocent suffer terrible inheritances of this disease from their parents, and in this way it descends from generation to generation, without exciting a thought of its presence. Again, it seems to be epidemic, and, like the body-cord of the Middle Ages, it passes from one to another, filling the land with victims. In the latter, its terrible forms, scrofulous humors, settle in the lungs or heart, in tumors formed in the liver, or ulcers in the stomach or bowels. Sometimes the entire body becomes affected with running sores, and the victim is literally eaten up with disease. Every portion of the body, from the brain to the bones, is liable to the attacks of this terrible disease, and in every one of these forms it is the most destructive enemy that afflicts humanity. Until the discovery of this antidote, no remedy was known to the medical profession, which could be relied on to cure even the most ordinary cases of scrofula. Hence the usual result of the attempt to cure this disease was failure, and the victim was left to suffer on, and die, a prey to the most excruciating agonies. Under these circumstances, how important that a remedy should be found, which will cure this disease! Such a remedy we have in which, by its thorough purifying and renovating effect, expels every vestige of scrofulous humor from the blood, and thus cures the most inveterate cases of scrofula, when all other remedies have failed. Even when the disease has fastened upon the lungs, and consumption seems inevitable, this remedy will arrest the destroyer, and restore the patient to health and vigor. Invalids, suffering from this fearful malady, should not despair, but should give this remedy a fair trial, and they will be surprised at the rapidity with which they will recover their health. Not only will this remedy cure scrofula, but it will purify the blood, and thus prevent the development of any of the foul diseases to which we are exposed, such as

St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Scald Head, Ringworm, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous Disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Tic, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilitic Poisons and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these inveterate maladies by any antidote. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and renovating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our American pamphlet issued. Leucorrhœa and Sores, when caused by internal ulceration, or corruption of the blood, must quickly yield to it. So also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, Indigestion, whose unhealthy influence upon the blood, and quickly to it. So also Liver are the offspring, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great invigorator of the stomach and system of the aged. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the effects of a disordered Liver, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly

Nature's Worship.

The following is perhaps the most beautiful of the various songs sung by the "Gentle Guest" introduced by Whittier into his "Tent on the Beach:"

The harp at Nature's advent strung
Has never ceased to play;
The song the stars of morning sung
Has never died away.

And prayer is made, and praise is given,
By all things near and far;
The ocean looketh up to heaven,
And mirrors every star.

Its waves are kneeling on the strand,
As kneels the human ka
Their white locks bowing on the sand—
The priesthood of the sea!

They pour their glittering treasures forth,
Their gifts of pearl they bring,
And all the listening hills of earth
Take up the song they sing.

The green earth sends her incense up
From many a mountain shrine;
From folded leaf and dewy cup
She pours her sacred wine.

The mists above the morning rills
Rise white as wings of prayer;
The altar curtains of the hills
Are sunset's purple air.

The winds with hymns of praise are loud,
Or low with sobs of pain,
The thunder-organ of the cloud,
The dropping tears of rain.

With drooping head and branches crossed,
The twilight forest grieves,
Or speaks with tongues of Pentecost
From all its sunlit leaves.

The blue sky is the temple's arch,
Its transept earth and air,
The music of its starry march
The chorus of a prayer.

So Natures keeps the reverent frame
With which her years began,
And all her signs and voices shame
The prayerless heart of man.

Literature.

The Old Man's Story.

I shall never forget the commencement of the temperance reformation. I was a child at the time, of some ten years of age. Our home had every comfort, and my parents idolized their child. Wine was often on the table, and father and mother often gave it to me in the bottom of the morning glass.

One Sunday at church a startling announcement was made to our people. I knew nothing of its purport, but there was much whispering among the men. The pastor said that upon the next evening there would be a meeting and an address upon the evils of intemperance, in the use of alcholic drinks. He expressed himself ignorant of the cause of the meeting and could not say what course would be best to pursue in the matter.

The night came, and groups of people gathered on the tavern steps, and I heard the jest and the laugh, and saw drunken men come reeling out of the bar-room. I urged my father to let me go, but he at first refused. Finally thinking that it would be an innocent gratification of my curiosity, he put on his hat and we passed cross the green to the church. I remember well how the people appeared as they came in, seeming to wonder what kind of an exhibition was to come off.

In the corner was the tavern keeper, and around him a number of friends. The pastor stole in and took a seat behind a pillar under the gallery, as if doubtful of the propriety of being in the church at all.

Two men finally came in and went to the altar and took their seats.

The men were unlike in appearance, one being short, thick set in his build; the other tall and well formed. The younger had the manner and dress of a clergyman, a full round face, and a good natured look, as he leisurely looked around over the audience.

The younger finally arose and stated the object of the meeting, and asked if there was a clergyman present to open it with prayer.

Our pastor kept his seat, and the speaker himself made a short prayer, and then a short address, at the conclusion calling on any one present to make remarks. The pastor arose under the gallery, and attacted the positions of the speaker, using the arguments which I had often heard since, and concluded by denouncing those engaged in the new movement, as meddlesome fanatics, who wanted to break the time honored usages of good society, and injure the business of respectable men. At the conclusion of his remarks, the tavern keeper and his friends got up a cheer and the current of feelings was evidently against the strangers and their new plan.

Whilst the pastor was speaking, the stranger had fixed his dark eye upon him, and leaned forward as if to catch the words.

As the pastor took his seat the old man arose, his tall form towering in his symmetry, and his chest swelling as he inhaled his breath through his thin, dilated nostrils. To me, at this time, there was something awe-inspiring and grand in the appearance of the old man as he stood with his full eye upon the audience, his teeth shut hard and a silence like that of death reigned throughout the church.

He bent his gaze upon the tavern keeper, and that peculiar eye lingered and kindled for half a moment.

The scar grew red upon his forehead and beneath his heavy eyebrows his eye glittered and glowed like a serpent's. The tavern keeper quailed before that searching glance, and I felt relief when the old man withdrew his gaze. For a moment he seemed lost in in thought, and then in a low and tremulous tone commenced. There was a depth in that voice, a thrilling pathos and sweetness which riveted every heart in the house before the first period had been rounded. My father's attention had become fixed on the eye of the speaker with an interest which I had never before seen him exhibit. I can but briefly remember the substance of what the old man said, though the scene is as vivid before me as any that I ever witnessed.

"My friends, I am a stranger in your village and I trust I may call you friends. A new star has risen, and there is hope in the dark night which has spread a pall of gloom over our country." With a thrilling depth of voice the speaker locked his hands together and continued: "Oh, God! thou who lookest with compassion upon the erring of earth's children, I thank thee that a brazen serpent has been lifted on which the drunkard can look and be healed, a beacon has burst out upon the darkness that surrounds him, which shall guide back to honor and heaven the bruised and weary wanderer."

It is strange what power there is in some voices. The speaker's voice was low and measured, but the tear trembled in every tone, and before I knew why, a tear dropped upon my hand, followed by others like rain drops. The old man brushed one or two from his own eyes, and continued:

"Men and Christians! You have just heard that I am a vagrant and fanatic,—I am not. As God knows my own sad heart, I came here to do good. Hear me and be just."

"I am an old man, standing at the end of life's journey. There is deep sorrow in my heart and tears in my eyes. I journeyed over a dark and beaconless ocean, and life's hopes have been wrecked. I am without friends, home or kindred on earth, and look with longing to the rest of the night of death. Without friends' kindred or home. It was not once so."

No one could withstand the touching pathos of the old man. I noticed a tear trembling on the lid of my father's eyes and I no more felt ashamed of my own.

"No, my friends, it was not so once. Away over the dark waves, which have wrecked my hopes, there is the blessed light of happiness and home. I reach again convulsively for the shrines of the household idols that once were mine, now no more."

The old man seemed looking away through fancy upon some bright vision, his lips apart, and his finger extended. I involuntarily turned in the direction where it pointed, dreading to see some shadow invoked by its magic movement.

"I once had a mother, who, with her old heart crushed with sorrow, went down to the grave. I once had a wife, a fair, angel creature as ever smiled in an earthly home. Her eyes as mild as a summer sky, and her heart as true and faithful as ever guarded and cherished a husband's love. Her blue eyes grew dim as the flood of sorrow washed away their bright fulness, and living heart I wrung until every fibre was broken. I once had a noble, brave and beautiful boy, but he was driven out from the ruin of his home, and my old heart yearns to know if he yet lives. I once had a babe, a sweet, tender blossom, but these hands destroyed it, and it lives with one who loveth children."

"Do not be startled, friends, I am not a murderer, in the common acceptation of the term. Yet there is light in the evening sky. A spirit mother rejoices over the return of her prodigal son. The wife smiles upon him who again turns to virtue and honor. The child-angel visits me at nightfall, and I fell the hollowing touch of a tiny palm upon my feverish cheek. My brave boy, if he yet lives, would forgive the sorrowing old man for the blow that ruined him for life and the treatment that drove him to the malign light which led me to ruin. I was a fanatic when I sacrificed my wife, children, happiness and home, to the accursed demon of the bowl. I once adored the gentle being who I injured so deeply."

I was once a drunkard. From respectability and influence, I plunged into degradation and poverty. I dragged my family down with me. For years I saw her cheek grow pale, and her step grow weary. I left her alone amid the tavern. She never complained yet she and the children went hungry for bread."

"One new year's night, I went late to the hut where charity had given us roof. She was yet up, and shivering over the coals. I demanded food, but she burst into tears and said there was none. I fiercely ordered her to get some. She turned her eyes sadly upon me, the tears falling fast over her pale cheek. At this moment the child in the cradle awoke and sent up a famished wail, startling the despairing mother like a serpent's sting."

"We have no food, James—have had none for several days. I have nothing for the baby. My once kind husband, must he starve?"

The sad pleading face and those streaming eyes, and I—yes, I struck her a fierce blow in the face and she fell forward upon the earth. The furies of hell boiled in my bosom, and with greater intensity as I felt I had committed a wrong. I had never struck Mary before, but now some terrible impulse bore me on, and I stooped down as well as I could in my drunken state and clenched both hands in her hair.

"God of mercy, James!" exclaimed my wife as she looked up into my fiendish countenance, you will not kill us, you will not harm Willie, and she sprang to the cradle and grasped him in her embrace. I caught her again by her hair and dragged her to the door, and as I lifted the latch, the wind burst in with a cloud of snow. With the yell of a fiend I dragged her out into the darkness and storm. With a wild ha! ha! I closed the door and turned the button, her pleading moans mingled with wails of the blast, and sharp cry of the baby. But my work was not complete.

"I turned to the little bed where lay my elder son, and snatched him from his slumbers, and against his half-wakened struggles, I opened the door and thrust him out. In agony of fear, he called me by a name I was no longer fit to bear, and locked his fingers into my side pocket. I could not wrench the friensied grasp away, and with the coolness of a devil, as I was, shut the door upon the arm, and with my knife, severed it at the wrist!"

The speaker ceased a moment and buried his face in his hands, as if to shut out some fearful dream, and his deep chest heaved like a storm at sea. My father had arisen from his seat, and was leaning forward, his countenance bloodless, and the large drops standing on his brow. Chills crept back to my young heart, and I wished I was at home. The old man looked up, and I never have since beheld such mortal agony pictured on a human face as there was on his.

"It was morning when I awoke, and the storm had ceased, but the cold was intense. I first secured a drink of water, and then looked into the accustomed place for Mary. As I missed her, a shadowy sense of some horrible nightmare began to dawn upon my wandering mind. I thought I had a terrible dream, but involuntarily opened the outside door with a sudden dread. As the door opened, the snow burst in, followed by the fall of something across the threshold, scattering the snow, and striking the floor with a sharp, bad sound."

"My blood shot like red hot arrows through my veins, and I rabbed my eyes to shut out the sight. It was—it—Oh! God, how horrible! It was my own injured Mary and her baby frozen to ice! The ever true mother had bowed herself over the child to shelter it, and wrapped all her clothing around it, leaving her stark and bare to the storm. She had pressed her hair over the face of the child and the sleet had frozen it to the white cheek. The frost was white on its half open eyes and upon its tiny fingers. I knew not what became of my brave boy.

Again the old man buried his head and wept. My father sobbed like a child. In tones of low and heart-broken pathos, the old man concluded:

"I was arrested, and for long months raved in delirium. I awoke, was sentenced to ten years, but no tortures could h[ave] been like those I endured within my o[wn] bosom. Oh, God, no!—I am not a fanat[ic] I wish to injure no one. But while I li[ve] let me strive to warn others not to enter t[he] path which has been so dark and fearful [to] me. I would see my wife and child[ren] beyond this vale of tears."

The old man sat down, but a spell deep and strong as some wizzard's brea[th] rested upon the audience. Hearts co[uld] have been heard in their beating, and [not] to fall. The old man then asked the peo[ple] to sign a pledge. My father leaped from [his] seat and snatched at it eagerly. I had [not] lowed him, and as he hesitated a mome[nt] with the pen and the ink, a tear fell fr[om] the old man's eye on the paper.

"Sign it, sign it, young man. Ang[els] would sign it. I would write my name [a] thousand times in blood if it would bri[ng] back my loved and lost ones."

My father wrote "Mortumore Hudson." The old man looked, wiped his tearful ey[es] and looked again, his countenance alterat[ed] ly flushed with red and death-like palene[ss] "It is—no it cannot be—yet how ve[ry] strange," muttered the old man, "parde[n] me, sir, but that was the name of my brav[e] boy."

My father trembled and held up his [in]arms, from which the hand had been severe[d] They looked for a moment at each othe[r] eyes, both reeled and gasped—

"My own injured boy!"

"My father!"

They fell upon each other's necks, unt[il] it seemed that their souls would grow an[d] mingle into one. There was weeping [in] that church and I turned bewildered upo[n] the streaming faces around me.

"Let me thank God for this great blessi[ng] which has gladdened my guilt-burdene[d] soul," exclaimed the old man, and kneelin[g] down, he poured out his heart in one of th[e] most melting prayers I ever heard. Th[e] spell was then broken, and all eagerly sign[ed] the pledge, slowly going to their homes as if loth to leave the spot.

The old man is dead, but the lesson h[e] taught his grandchild upon his knee, as hi[s] evening sun went down with a cloud, wil[l] never be forgotten. His fanaticism has lo[st] none of its fire in my manhood's heart.

A Dread Eternity.

Eternity is a solemn word and a solemn world. The soul of man shrinks back with dismay and dread from entering that mysterious abode of spirits. And yet all are on their way to eternity, and must soon enter it and enter it alone. But how little think the gay and pleasure-loving who tread so near its dark shores, how soon they must launch away on that untried ocean!

What is the eternity of God? Existence without beginning or end. Who can comprehend it? Run your thoughts back as far as the utmost stretch of imagination, even millions of ages before creatures were made—God existed, and was as old as he is now, or as he will be when millions of ages more are passed away. From everlasting to everlasting he is God.

What is the eternity of creatures? Existence without end. Such is our inheritance, to live forever and ever. No period of or revolution of unnumbered ages, will diminish aught of the duration which will be still before us. Here we have no abiding place; time is hastening as to eternity; all we do is for eternity; we are forming characters for eternity. The thoughts we indulge, the feelings we cherish, the words we utter, the the works we do, are all drawing features of our moral likeness. How short and uncertain is the period of our probation? how soon will our deathless soul arise to the joys and employment of heaven.

Solomon's Wisdom and Knowledge of Anatomy.

"Or ever the silver cord be loosed, or the golden bowl be broken, or the pitcher, or the wheel be broken at the cistern: then shall the dust return to the earth as it was," etc.—Ecclesiastes xii., 6.

By the "silver cord" is meant the nerves, which, proceeding from the brain, are collected in the medula oblongata, in the rear part of the head, and distributed downwards throughout the system, carrying the vital principle through every part. A blow received at the back part of the head, or any contusion of these delicate silver nerves, is extremely dangerous; a severe contusion or rupture produces instant death. These nerves resemble silver tubes. The "golden bowl" is the skull. The "pitcher at the fountain" is the great aorta, which exactly resembles a pitcher with the handle affixed: this organ empties the blood into the heart, which is the "fountain." The "wheel at the cistern" is the passage through which the blood is sent from the heart to the lungs, "the cistern" where it is purified and sent back to the fountain. The whole blood is sent round from the "fountain" to the "cistern" in this wheel-like manner every seven or eight minutes. How much wisdom did Solomon exhibit in that single verse! What a beautiful text for one of the sublimest sermons! Yet, is there one clergyman in fifty who ever knew the meaning of that verse? Solomon died 975 years before Christ, aged 58 years.—New Age.

Thought.

Next to the good heart and clear heart and clear conscience, is a clear head. Dull thinkers are always led by sharp ones. The keen intellect cuts its way smoothly and rapidly, the dull one wears its life out against the simplest problems.

To perceive accurately and to think correctly, is the sum of all mental training, and I almost said of life itself. But I will not say that. Heart and conscience are more than mere intellect. Yet we cannot tell how much the clear thought, and intellectual vision, sharp and true, may aid even these. Some say that a man never feels till he sees, and when the object disappears the feeling ceases.

So we cannot exaggerate the importance of clear and correct thinking. We should eat, drink, sleep, walk, exercise body and mind, to this end. Just so far as we fail, we make dolts and idiots of ourselves. We cast away our natural armor and defence.

The designing make us dupes; we are overreached by the crafty and trodden under foot by the strong. Very likely there is a low murmur of conscience, too, for falling below its pure ideal. This adds a sharp sting to the shame of conscious dullness.

A mans great power in the natural world, among Nature's forces, air, water, steam, and lightning, is not in his muscles, but in his brain. Any horse can pull harder, lift more, and endure longer than the most perfectly developed man. But a single human brain can control a nation of horses.

It is for us, then, to look out for all this.

If we should share what has not only given Napoleons, Cæsars and Alexanders their power, but the great conquerors of natural forces as well—the Fultons and Morses—let us look out for the brain, see that late suppers and indigestion do not rob it of vitality, that alchol does not harden it, nor want of sleep goad it on to insanity.

There can be no friendship where there is no freedom. "Friendship" loves a free air, and will not be penned in straight and narrow enclosures. It will speak truths, and not do so too; and take no ill when an ill is meant; nay, where it is, it will easily forgive, and forget too, upon small acknowledgements.

The Peterborough Examiner

PETERBOROUGH, AUG. 25, 1870.

The Franco-Prussian War.

The most fearful accounts of battles, of slaughter, and destruction of human beings, still reach us from the scenes of carnage. The Prussians are still carrying all before them, and appear determined to sue only for peace in Paris. Already, the loss of life exceeds anything read of in modern warfare, but the Prussian loss must be the greatest, as they are forced to attack soldiers having the choice of situation, and in strong fortified positions. It is said that the carrying away of the wounded materially hindered the progress of soldiers to the front. The French are lamenting over their losses, and no doubt the number of mourners in the German States is very great. The French have left Metz, and are on their way to Chalons to join McMahon, who is reported at the head of 175,000 men. The Prussians are following hard after, and ere long another terrible and bloody battle will be fought, and France forced to sue for peace, or Prussia repulsed only to renew the carnage.

The loss to the people in the vicinity of these great struggles, where large armies are, must be beyon computation. Napoleon is never mentioned in Paris. There is all likelihood of a change in the Dynasty and of Napoleon leaving for England or America, to pass the remainder of his days.

The fight before Metz exceeded anything before recorded. The French were strongly entrenched in a circle of about three miles with earthworks, and other defences. The Prussians attacked them at every point, and carried the place by sheer bravery and determination. There were about 45,000 Germans in this engagement, and the French had a great deal of artillery.

The Germans carried all the breastworks against a murderous fire of the French, who were always compelled to retire before the Prussians. Nothing but the superior courage of the Germans compelled the French everywhere to return—slowly contesting every inch of the ground, until driven into Metz.

A correspondent says the scene on Tuesday was rarely equalled. Thirty miles of ground was covered with the wounded and dead of both sides. The cannonade and rattle of the Prussian needle gun was terrific. The defeat of the French was total. Their long columns could be seen pouring towards the North to evade Germans pursuers. The King gave personal attention to the wounded of both sides, and some peasants found killing the wounded Germans were instantly hung. Out of 11,000 inhabitants of the neighbourhood, scarcely one remained. The accounts of courage are beyond previous conception, and few know the end of it.

FIRE.

On Monday evening, about 9 o'clock, the wooden building occupied by Messrs. McWilliams & Larmour, as a shoe shop, Mr. Stephens, printer, and Dr. McCullough, was discovered on fire. At first the smoke only could be detected, as the fire seems to have been confined in some way. The fire company was soon on the ground and rendered good service in preventing the extension of the fire to other buildings, and also in saving the new brick building contiguous in course of erection, from suffering much damage.

Almost all in Dr. McCollough's office was destroped. He had no insurance.—Loss about $400.

Mr. Stephens, printer, lost a large quantity of his material. He had an insurance of $400 on his stuff. He will lose about $300.

Messrs. McWilliams & Larmour saved some things in the front part of the store, but all in the back part was destroyed. There was an insurance of $600, in the Queen's. Their entire loss they reckon at $800. Mr. Larmour lost all his household stuff.

The building, owned by Mr. Bradburn, was entirely destroyed, but was insured to the amount of $500 in Commercial Union. His loss is about $1,000.

The frame of the building consumed was one of the oldest in town. It was once used as the Court House, Town Hall, and general preaching place for Peterboro, and stood, we understand, east of the present English Church. As the town increased, and Churches and Court House were erected, the building was removed to George Street, and repaired. The fire may be a loss to the parties interested, and to insurance companies, but its destruction leaves room for the continuation of a splendid block of brick buildings on the Birdsall property. And as soon as Mr. Henthorn extends his block, that part of George Street will equal any part of the town.

Since writing the above we learn that estimated losses are: McWilliams & Larmour $350, Stephens $300, Bradburn $1100 Total insurance, Stephens $400, McWilliams & Larmour $600, Mr. Bradburn $500.

The Fall Show of the East Riding of Peterboro, will be held this year at Norwood on the 10th and 11th of October. We have mentioned this before, but do so most willing again so as to keep it before our readers; we trust too that every farmer in the wealthy East Riding will make it a point to exhibit something. In this way the show will be sure to be successful. Otonabee, Asphodel, Belmont, Dummer and Duro are equal to any County in wealth, intelligence and industry. Their Fall Shows should be proof positive of their industry, and interest in agricultural and other improvements. We expect to see a good exhibition at Norwood.

The Burleigh Road.

This section of the country has had considerable attention paid to it lately. But two weeks past, Mr. Carnegie spent a Sabbath on the road, and made arrangements as to the portions requiring repairs, &c.

At present, Mr. Read is up the road, and intends driving as far as the Monck road, with what object we have not learned, but suppose it is to take a view of the country, and be in a position to report at some future time.

Mr. Henry Rogers is now engaged on the road in repairing it, expending $1000, the grants of the County Council, $500, and of the government, $500. These sums, if judiciously expended, will put the road in at least a passable condition, except the very worst part, namely, that portion of it known as the Burleigh rocks, and as far as Sandersons.

Our business also compelled us to visit the Burleigh road settlement last week, and we are therefore in a position to report, not of course officially to the powers that be, but as an observer, who intended to use the opportunity to the best advantage.

On Thursday last we passed over about 25 miles of the road, and found it not the most comfortable to travel on. This, however, is only what might have been said of it for three or four years past.

The part of the road in Smith is very good, mostly well gravelled, except where there are a few crossways. Therefore, from Town to the Burleigh Bridge, a distance of over twenty miles, a good team or single horse can get along at the rate of 6 or 7 miles an hour. The first 14 miles to Young's Point is very good indeed—the next 6 miles are somewhat rough, but well gravelled and repaired.

At the Bridge, however, there commenced a piece of road unparalleled for roughness; and the weary wight who has to proceed any farther finds to the detriment of bodily comfort, that a road over the Burleigh rocks is a hard road to travel. For two or three miles it is almost eternal rock, whether on the elevation or in the hollows, there is nothing here but rocks—and very rough too. At about 3 miles from the bridge, we found Mr. Henry Rogers and a company of men, under orders from the Crown Land Commissioner, trying to improve the way by spending $1,000. This is the sum granted towards repairing the whole road, not less than 35 miles long.

We, in our simplicity, imagined that a large share of attention would have been given to the hard part of the road, but we were soon undeceived. As Mr. Rogers has express instructions to merely remove obstructions, and put in an odd log in the rotten crossways on the first part of the road, and pass on to the rear and spend most there. Mr. Rogers is a loyal subject of Her Majesty, and a good soldier, and obeys orders. We can attach no blame to him, but really the wisdom of the wiseacre who told him merely to fix the impassable places on the first part of the road and hurry to the back part, may be doubted,—so think the people along the road too.

The first six miles of the road are very [illegible] miles we are so much pleased with, and the rest for [illegible] there are only three or four settlers on them this part must remain rough, unless the government or municipal authorities spend a trifle on the road yearly.

The same may be said of the first four miles, there being only three settlers, we think, from the bridge to Mr. Stone's, but even of the first 15 miles of the road there is more than one half that requires but little repairs.

From Mr. C. McFadden's to Apsley, a distance of 6 or 7 miles, little requires to be done, except on one or two crossways, as this part of the road is as good as could be expected in a new country. And when we consider that no statute labour has been done on the road, and that it is in a very fair sate now after 6 years from its construction, it will be easily seen that no great outlay need be made except on the rocks and crossways.

From Apsley, to what is known as Maxwell's, a distance of about 3 miles, a very few men will suffice to make a very fair road. But Northward from Maxwell's for about 2 miles, one half of the road is very rough, rocky and stoney. After that, for a distance of 5 miles, the length our business led us, the road is good, except that an odd log is rotten on the crossways, and a few stones stick up here and there.

Of about 30 miles of the Burleigh road, the first 11 miles are bad—the remaining 19 or 20 will be easily repaired.

It is not long since the government constructed the back part of the road, and why it should require the largest outlay now is a mystery, unless it be that they are determined to spend their own grant of $500 on their own lands in Cardiff, and only spend $500 granted by the County, on the old part of the road. This looks like their policy.

The whole money would be required on the first part of the road to make it good, but not less than $600 of the $1000 should have been laid out on the first nine miles. We were told that a road to Julien's landing, and thence by water to Lakefield, would be the future plans of the knowing ones; but they should wait till they get some kind of craft on Stoney lake. What are the settlers to do in the meantime? But enough for the roads.

The land along the road is not very inviting, but it must be borne in mind that the road runs through the worst of it. The soil of the first part is clay, and produces very good crops, but unless a man has 200 or 300 acres he has not good land enough for a farm.

From Mr. McFaddene to Carroll's lot the soil is generally a red sandy loam, the sand prevailing in most places. There are several parties doing very well in this district. This year their hay crop is light, owing to the early drought, but a second crop of clover looks promising in many places. The people are pretty contented, and perhaps only a very few of them would be found dissatisfied. Nearly all the settlers agree that there is considerable good land yet to be taken up. The potato crop is excellent, and oats look well, but we saw very little wheat.

Potatoes, hay, oats and turnips are every where looking well. Around Loon Lake we were informed there is good land not located yet, and also some West of the travelled road; but there are no roads into these lands yet, except towards Loon Lake.

The great movement however is towards Cardiff, where all agree there is very fair lands, and in consequence, the settlement increases rapidly. This road will yet be opened up to the English Company's lands, and then it is expected that the Burleigh Road settlement will continue to prosper. We certainly wish those pioneers an abundant reward in return for what they have hitherto suffered, and some of them are already doing well. We might mention some who went in there about 6 years ago, and are now worth $1200 to $1400; while of course others could be cited who have not done so well.

A SABBATH IN THE WOODS.

We were compelled to remain on Sabbath with the Burleigh people, and had the pleasure of hearing the Rev. Mr. Blain, of Springville, preach in the afternoon, to a very attentive audience of about 50 persons, some of whom had travelled 5 miles on foot to service. After the service, the Rev. Gentleman administered the Lord's Supper to 18 individuals, 6 men and 12 women. Even in the woods women seem to be about first at the Sepulchre and the Cross. The people seemed to be devout and attentive.

The Wesleyans have sent in a Mr. Rutledge, who appears to be well received, and is much thought of. Mr. Brian, a student from Knox's College, has been laboring in the settlement during his holidays, but leaves now to resume his studies.

The Episcopalians are also about to erect a church at Apsley; and we understand Mr. E. S. Hall's father in England has subscribed largely to this building, and is engaged in procuring funds for its completion. The school houses are used as preaching places, and the people are not neglected by their christian ministers and friends in more favored localities.

They have four very good schools in operation, and in Cardiff a fifth one is being commenced, and will be in operation by winter; so that even in the education of their children the settlement is not behind. The school houses are better than many in older settlements, and most certainly would put to shame the people of Union section No. 9 of Douro and Otonabee, and equal perhaps others that we could mention.

Dr. Clegg, the present Reeve of this Township, has succeeded in getting his Municipality out of debt, and in getting the present grants for the roads; the outlay of which will improve the means of egress and ingress.

At present, all the settlers are increasing their stock rapidly, so that ere long they will have beef, mutton, wool and butter to dispose of, in considerable quantity. Even now every one has cows, oxen, young cattle, &c., and several are raising sheep, but not largely yet. So that with all the disadvantages of their lands and roads, they, by their industry, are succeeding reasonably well.

We talked with several people who originally came from Ireland, England, and parts of Canada, and who all agree that they are far better off than they could have been in the Old Country, and declare that by no means would they change their position and return to either of those countries. The institution and liberty of Canada are too dear to them.—Here too they have abundance of good food, a quiet home, low taxes, no despotism, a chance to educate their children, [illegible] Burleigh settlement is rough, the people are reasonably satisfied.

During a recent stay of two or three days there were two deaths in the settlement,—Wheeler C. Armstrong, Esq., Crown Land Agent, and a child of Mr. C. McFadden.

Mr. Armstrong died on Saturday last; at ten yesterday his remains were interred in the little Lake cemetery. Mr. McFadden's daughter was buried in the settlement.

Editorial Items

There was a full meeting of the railway committee last night. It meets again on the third of September.

Mr. Perry has just returned from Ottawa, and assures us that instructions have been given to repair the locks this fall.

The Red River expedition is still moving westward; but slowly. The Manitobans are all quiet. Riel really finds it best to obey Bishop Tache, and submit to the Canadian authorities.

No. 1 COMPANY 57th BATT.—This com will re-commence drill on Monday evening next, 29 instant, and every Monday, and Thursday evening following, at 7 o'clock sharp.

The Canadian Farmer for August has been received. This excellent periodical is replete with useful articles on agriculture, Horticulture and other useful information.

Messrs. Copp & Clark have favored us with the August number of the London Society. This periodical maintains its popularity well. London Society and all the periodicals can be obtained from Messrs. Copp & Clark, Toronto; or at Messrs Kidd, and Menzies, Peterboro.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.—This society will hold another show on the 14th of September, and as there are from two to three weeks to it, we hope that all who can, will take such an interest (in time) in this show as to render it successful. If every member does his duty, it must succeed. Let each try what can be done.

Madam Demorest's semi-annual book of instructions on dress, and dress making, called; "what to wear and how to make it," is also on our table. For dress makers, and ladies generally, it will be found very useful It contains complete instructions in every department of ladies and children dress.

LOVELL'S DOMINION AND PROVINCIAL DIRECTORIES.—The time is rapidly approaching when these works will be issued, and as the need of reliable directories has long been felt by the business community of the country, considerable interest is taken in the completion of this stupendous undertaking. To ensure correctness, Mr. Lovell is having the whole of the work revised, and we trust every assistance will be given to Mr. Brough, the agent, to whom the revision of Peterborough is entrusted, in the discharge of his duty. A new and important feature in these works, is the classifications of business and professional men, the advantages of which must be apparent, and from the knowledge we have of our fellow townsmen we have no doubt the list will be alike creditable to the place, and the magnificent work of which it will form a part.

Town Council.

The Council met on Monday evening. Present his Worship the Mayor, and Messrs Toole, Rutherford, Edmison, Stevenson, Doherty, Helm, Lundy, English, Morrow, Smith and O'Beirne.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

A communication was read from the President of the Peterboro Gas company, informing the Council that, owing to arrangements between the company and Mr. Perry, the contractor, the company are unable to connect with several lamps erected by the council, and making their propositions to the council. The communication was received.

A statement from the Town Trust commissioners was read, showing that the sum of $5,550 was required from the Town this year.

An account from Wm. Armstrong, for $30, for 5 weeks board for a man left at his house by Constable Howden on the 19th July last; and also an account from Dr. Kincaid for $11, for attendance and medicine for a Mrs. Williams, were referred to the finance committee.

On motion of Mr. Stevenson, Lt.-Col. Poole was heard in reference to a stand proposed to be erected on the Court house green for the use of the band. He submitted plans and specifications, and asked the Council to assist in its erection. He also thought that the County Council would assist, as it might be used for election purposes.

On motion of Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Rutherford, Mr. Edwards was directed to have a gas lamp erected on a bracket on the Music Hall.

The application of Lt.-Col. Poole was referred to the Finance committee.

On motion of Mr. Smith, seconded by Mr. Morrow, the usual annual grant to the Mechanics' Institute of $50 was made.

On motion of Mr. O'Bierne, seconded by Mr. Smith, the offer of Mr. Scott to assist in repairing the bridge on Sherbrook st., was accepted, and it was agreed to repair the same. Cost not to exceed $200.

On motion of Mr. Doherty, seconded by Mr. Stevenson, Mr. Lundy was instructed to lay a new sidewalk at Mr. James Hall's new building on Hunter street, Mr. G. A. THE EUROPEAN WAR.

(Special to the Examiner.)

BERLIN, 18th.—General Alvensterber advanced yesterday with the 3rd. corps towards Vendon. He encountered severe fighting with divisions of Generals De Clare, Trossard and the Imperial Guard spite of the great superiority of forces, after a severe combat of 12 hours. Losses on both sides very great.

LONDON, 18th.—A telegram from Paris gives the following: On Sunday the French army engaged the Prussians before Metz. The latter suffered heavy losses.—The French retired on Verdon. On Monday the Emperor was at Gravellotte with 60,000 men. Subsequently there occurred an engagement at Longeville and other places.

The French constantly fighting and retreating. A complete victory for the french is near.

London 18—An obstinate struggle has occurred near Mazelle. It is supposed the engagement was general.

Telegram from London says advices from Vendon this morning state a great battle is in progress near Mailletin, between Metz and Verdon.

Despatches from Berlin state that another attempt at peace has been made. The Queen's messenger arrived at Berlin yesterday with proposals of peace from the English cabinet. The Emperor expressed his readiness to treat for peace, and proposals were made through Lord Lyons, King of Prussia and Bismark, which were telegraphed to headquarters. The King replied that if Napoleon wished for peace he must ask for an armistice in the usual way.

Advices from Paris state that Emile Olliver and his wife have fled from France, to Italy.

Prince Napoleon has sent his wife and children to Italy.

PARIS 18th. Different battles around Metz were fought. About 40,000 French troops engaged the Prussians. Prussian loss 2,000, French loss comparatively small.

Marshal Bazaine just received claims of great victory over Prince Frederick Charles

BERLIN, 18th.—Details of a conflict at Pontamousson just received. Marshal Bezaine endeavored to fall back from Metz to Verdon; was attacked at 9 o'clock on Tuesday morning by 5th division and forced to fall about. The Prussians were admirably firm though they sustained the attack of four French Corps, among them were the Imperial Guards. After fighting gallantly for six hours, the Prussian divisions here reinforced. The French retreated upon Metz with a loss of 2,000 prisoners, 2 eagles, and 7 cannon.

General commanding at Chalons was sent with a strong column to frustrate the movements of the Prussians.

BERLIN 18.—A great naval engagement has taken place nerr Rugen. Prussians withdrew without loss.

A despatch from Gen Montifele says—The French in heavy masses issued from Metz, and after an engagement of 3 hours, defeated the enemy's right. Our troops carried the enemy's position by assault splendidly.

Private despatches state that Bazaine declared the enemy repulsed along their whole line.

German reports claim a victory on the ground that the French were prevented from continuing the retreat.

Troy 18th.—This evening as Commodore Vanderbilt was about entering his room at Congress Hall, Saratoga, he felt in an apoplectic fit. Medical aid was immediately summoned, it is supposed excitement of races brought on an attack, and from appearances Commodore lies in a very precautious condition.

LONDON, 18th.—Official despatch from Marshal Bazaine dated four o'clock Wednesday afternoon, says: yesterday late in the afternoon, we gave battle between Ecocourt and Brovill, the enemy were driven back, and we bivouacked in the positions we had taken. I halted in my movements for several hours in order to bring up a full supply of munitions. We had before us Prince Frederick Charles and Gel Steinmitz. The following was given to the public by the Minister:

Verdun, Wednesday—battle still continues on this side of Mac-la-tour, and seems to be going in our favor. Number of wounded have been brought into Briey. A force of 1,200 Prussians is encamped on the plateau between Briey and St. Jean; they send out Couriers who have entered Briey.

Trustworthy parties arrived here from Mas la Tour, speak of heavy engagement there yesterday, with a large portion of the Prussian army, which they say was charge with great vigor by our cavalry and the garde Imperial and where thrown back on Morsville.

It is rumored that Gens. Battaille and Frossard, are badly wounded.

LONDON 19th.—Part of the French army has been forced to fall back on Metz. Position there is regarded as very critical.

The Times in its article on the situation, to-day says:—Road to Paris is open to the Crown Prince, who may leave Fredrick Charles to watch Marshal Bazine.

Hanburg letter says:—The people there are reconciled to the blockade, adopting their business to its requirements.

The Morning Post says—No peace demonstrations are afoot.

N. Y., 20th.—The Tribune's special correspondent writes from Metz on Monday and says:—Bainine effected a grand reconnoisance with one division of La Admiral's corps.

At 2 o'clock a battle commenced on the right, and until 4 it was of no importance, when the 4th army corps forming the 1st line of battle accomplished a measure intended to deceive the Prussians, into the belief that it was retreating. The Prussians fell into the trap, rushed forward and attacked with surprising vigor. The 4th corps at once fell on the enemy's flank, while McMahon attacked the right. Correspondent knows little more, but says in the evening a bulletin placarded says the firing nearly over.

The Prussian lines extended 3 leagues.

Officers who came back late says victory rested with the French; but a Prussian officer who had been taken prisoner told a different story who said—"You might better surrender at discretion; we are more than 100,000 strong. We gave you your own way at first, we believed there was only a division in front, but you know the result."

It is probable that the siege of Metz will begin at once. The siege train at Magdeburg left for the front on Saturday last, and other artillery is to follow.

Strasburg will be besieged exclusively by South Germans. An early surrender is expected,—not so in the case of Metz. Opinions Nationale, announcing the appointment by the Emperor of Prince Napoleon to command the army of Lorraine and Alsace, says woe to the inhabitants should Prussia succeed.

NEW YORK 20.—A special correspondent to the Tribune says, the more we gather of the details of the battle of Woerth, the more clearly does it appear that there was no miracle about the affair.

It would seem that the Imperial Commander was out-manoeuvred by the Crown Prince.

The French were so placed as to require extraordinary fighting to extricate themselves.

PARIS, 21.—"La Figaro" asserts at ht, the Camp at Chalons has been broken up and the troops lately there now are close to the corps of prince Royal. If so the Prussians have around them Bazaine with the forces in and around Metz on the one hand, and McMahon with his corps and the large force which was at Chalons on the other.

A great battle is imminent.

LONDON 21.—Paris now knows that the Prussian Crown Prince is at Vincy Le Francais, and a battle decisive of the war is hourly expected between him and McMahon.

The fortified town of Falasburg on the Vosges, capitulated on Saturday to Wortemburg's army.

The Emperor and Prince Imperial were certainly at Chalons on Saturday last. Soldiers crowded around him clamoring to be led into action.

Sherman was on the field; it was the 3rd and great battle for the road from Metz to Paris. The French were outnumbered and beaten back to the walls of Metz. The slaughter on both sides was horrible. I walked several miles over fields strewn thick with dead men and horses.

NEW YORK 22.—Cable special says that Louis Blanc, in replying to appeals to many friends, publishes a letter reviewing the situation of France, claiming that it is time for the nation to choose between the Emperor and the nation, that nevertheless civil discord would deliver France to her enemies. For himself he delays returning to Paris only for fear that his presence might be signal of revolution, and that republic ought not to be declared at a moment when it must assume responsibilities by the incapability of the Emperor. He advises that France, reassuming control of her destinies, should say to Germany, and to the world, that this is a war between two men and not two nations.

N. Y., 22nd.—Correspondent of the "Tribune" at Chalons, writes on Thursday The Emperor has arrived; McMahon and Canrobert's also here.

In an affair at Longville, on Sunday, the Emperor narrowly escaped being killed or captured; it was a grand reconnoisance on the Prussian side, but it was conducted with incredible daring. The Prussians pushed straight up to the Imperial headquarters, and their presence was first announced by cannon shots. Prussian bullets were whistling past the Emperor's carriage [illegible] he could not so horse back, and nothing but the most precipitate retreat saved him yesterday. Yesterday there was almost panic in the camp; distant cannonading was heard in the forenoon. The Garde Mobile who are imperfectly organized and not half armed, began demanding to be led back to Paris; finally the officers joined in the request, and presently the staff officers announced that their demand had been granted.

Inhabitants at Metz are on short rations of bread. Meat is, however, plentiful.

A correspondent to the "Tribune," at Paris, writes Friday night, that the Emperor, when at Chalons, was hissed and hooted at by soldiers. Numerous letters from Garde Mobile mention this.

We are on the eve of abdication in favor of Louis with Empress as regent.

Nobody believes dynasty can last. Riot at La Villeth occasioned arrest of 86 persons, 19 were liberated. Police have discovered numerous depositions of arms.

Paris is victualled for a 2 months siege, but a siege cannot last a fortnight. There is no exaggeration in saying that there is a risk of being starved. Already Siecle recommends private families to lay in a stock of provisions.

R. R. R. in BRAZIL.

We refer the reader to the following testimony in favor of Dr. Radway's Remedies, from gentlemen of high character in Brazil. Persons doubting the genuineness of the same are requested to write to the parties, also to the U. S. Consul at Rio, as to the correctness of the statements and status of the writers. For every word not true the sum of one hundred dollars will be paid:

Rio de Janeiro, March 22nd, 1866.

Messrs. Raymundo C. Leite & Bro:

Gentlemen:—In answer to your favor of 20th instant, asking my opinion in regard to the efficacy of Dr. Radway & Co's preparations. I am happy to say that I consider the Relief and Pills the best remedies ever known, and to form such an opinion I am obliged to prove it, which I will do willingly, viz: I suffered so much from cold that when I was attacked it pained me so much that I preferred death to such sufferings, I took everything that was recommended, but it was of no use, at last I took 1 of Radway's Pills after which the pains were very moderate, and then I thought that I was cured, but the pains were still more violent (which I attribute to the negligence on my part in not following it up as directed,) that I was obliged to give into my friend's request to take some "Relief" which he gave me in a dose of one tablespoon in a tumbler of water. In the interval of three minutes I felt relieved immediately, and fifteen minutes after the pain ceased. It is three months since I had an attack, and should I feel any symptoms of it I take the "Relief" I will do all in my power to convince the Doctors of the good results of these medicaments, so that they may prescribe them

I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant

Luiz José da Silva, Campos.

GREAT CONDITION MEDICINE.

As a condition medicine for Horses "Darleys Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy" has no equal. Its effects in this respect are astonishishing; many horses that were supposed to be broken down and almost worthless, have by the use of a few packages been restored to a healty and sound condition, all traces of the disease having been completely removed, and have been sold for from $50 to $75 more than they would previously have brought; when you want a horse medicine get Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy, we know you will be perfectly satisfied with the result. Rinember the name, and see that the signature of Hurd & Co. is on each package. Northrop & Lyman, Newcastle, Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealers.

The Reciprocity Treaty.—The American Press do not seem to be at all satisfied whether the Reprocity Treaty is beneficial or a detriment to the prosperity of the American Government, but it is gratifying to see that on points the United States press and the Canadians agree, and one is that the "Canadian Pain Destroyer is the best thing for the cure of coughs, colds Frostbites, rheumatism, &c. Sold by al Medicine Dealers at 25 cts. per bottle.

Canadian Indebtedness.—The present indebtedness of Canada is between 50 and 80 million dollars, a nice round little sum certainly, but she does not owe this without having something to show for it; there is the Welland Canal, the Grand Trunk Railway extending over 700 miles, and last, though not least, is the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," which for the cure of picurisy, pains in the back and side, sprains bruises, sudden colds, frost-bites, &c., has no equal. Sold by all Medicine Dealers at 25 cts per bottle.

Health is Strength.—To prevent or conquer disease is one of the grandest attainments ever aimed at by man; and Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers will as surely cure coughs, colds, tickling in the throat and pulmonary complaints, as war and pestilence will destroy. Severe colds if not attended to sooner or later lead to incurable consumption, and the strength of the strongest soon fails if neglected. The readiest and best means known for the cure of these complaints is "Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers," which have been thoroughly tried for the last twenty years, and have never been known to fail. Singers and public speakers will also derive great benefit from the use of them. Sold by all medicine dealers, at 25cts. per box.

Eminent Men of Science have discovered that electricity and magnetism are developed in the system from the iron in the blood. This accounts for the debility, low spirits, and lack of energy a person feels when this vital element becomes reduced. The Peruvian Syrup, a protoxide of iron, supplies the blood with its iron element, and in the only form in which it is possible for it to enter the circulation.

A True Balsam.—Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry is truly a balsam. It contains the balsamic principle of the Wild Cherry, the balsamic properties of tar and of pine. Its ingredients are all balsamic. Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, and Consumption speedily disappear under its balsamic influence.

LOCKMAN SEWING MACHINE,

Take pleasure in announcing that the popularity of the Sewing Machine manufactured by them is still on the increase. They are now turning them out at the rate of 600 per month, and yet have been compelled within the last two weeks to increase their facilities to a capacity of one thousand per month.

The Lockman Machine, from its capacity to sew the heaviest fabrics with linen thread, as well as the finest cambrics with No. 150 Cotton, is pre-eminently the Farmer's Favorite Family Friend.

It is so exceedingly simple in its parts, and so strongly and durably made, that it does not require a mechanical genius for its management.

The manufacturers challenge the world to produce its equal, and yet its price is from Forty to Fifty per cent. Lower than that of any other first-class Shuttle Lock-stitch Sewing Machine.

EVERY MACHINE IS WARRANTED.

To Messrs. Chamberlain & Sills, Conway P.O County of Lennox, Ontario, Canada.

Madoc, County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th., 1869.

This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ancles, which gradually during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on up to my hips, and I became so weak, that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two years, while this weakness was coming on me, and afterwards, I sought medical advice, employing, at different times, three doctors, and medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, but of no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoshonees Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had begun to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshonees Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was not a private one, but known to all my neighbors and friends; and to any one afflicted as I was, I have only to say try the Shoshonees Remedy; I believe it will cure you,

Mary Ann Doughty.

Sworn to before me at Madoc, County of Hastings, this ninth day of February, 1869.

A. F. Wood, J. P. &c.

I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshonees Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.

Poetry.

License or no License.

Vote yes! and the lava tide of death
Over the cottage, hall and bower,
Shall roll its dark, blood crested wave,
While madness rules the hour.

Vote no! and the white winged angel, Peace,
Shall dwell in a drunkard's home;
And beams of temperance, truth and light,
Dispel the withering gloom.

Vote yes! and the care worn heart will break,
The pale lip hush their prayer;
The wretched drunkard downward darts
To realms of dark despair.

Vote no! and the mother's heart will leap,
The sister's eye be dry,
The poor inebriate clasp his hand,
And raise his voice on high.

Oh! then by the life which God hath given,
By your powers to curse or bless,
By your fears of hell and your hopes of heaven
Let not your voice be yes.

By the cherished heart's most bitter wrong,
By the spirit's deathless woe—
In the name of God, and the name of man,
Let every voice be no.

The Wish and the Prayer.

"Let me die" said a little beggar-girl, lying upon a bed of straw; "let me die; earth is fair and beautiful, but what availeth it to me? I am but a beggar-girl, with no food, no raiment, no shelter, no friends to love and pity me; for, alas, who feels for a beggar,—let me die."

"Let me die," said an orphan boy, languishing upon his bed of rags,—"let me die; everything is beautiful, nature is arrayed in her loveliest green, but it only brings to remembrance the time when I was the happy child of doting parents. Now I am an orphan, with no kind father to provide for me, no mother to bathe my heated brow and alleviate my sufferings, no sister to smooth my pillow and minister to my wants, no brother, nor any one to love,—"let me die." And at last there was found a place,—not in all the length and breadth of the green earth, but in Heaven,—where the weary dove might fold its wings.

"Lay me down and let me die," said the wounded soldier, as his comrades bore him from the field of battle amid the deafening shouts of victory. "I die contented. Oh, my country forever," and he breathed out his life in the arms of victory. And when the dreadful news had reached the ears of a fair-haired girl, far removed from the din and strife of war, she clasped her hands in agony exclaiming. "O, let me die. I wish for life no longer, for he is dead who was dearer to me than life itself—the peaceful rays of the setting sun are even now smiling upon his grave, and the evening breeze singing his funeral requiem,—without him life is a blank,—let me die."

"Let me die," muttered a drunkard, rocking to and fro upon the cold damp floor of his gloomy hovel; "there is nothing in the future worth living for; my health is destroyed; my character,—the brightest jewel ever committed to mortal charge,—is blasted, and my mind is racked with unheard tortures,—let me die."

"Let me die," whispered a dying Christain, casting her eyes upward, "O let me die; I can see the pearly gates, and I long to enter. I can see the streets of gold, the river of crystal, the unfading flowers of Paradise, the angelic host with their golden harps."

And then before his glorious throne,
Who ruleth earth and sky,
Sighed forth, like trembling music's tone,
"Oh, father! let me die."

And even the old clergyman who sat by her bed-side, as he listened to the breathings of that gentle spirit, to the glowing descriptions of the "Celestial City" that fell from her lips, softly murmured, "Now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace."—OMEGA.

THE EFFECTS OF WHISKY.—In all the direful derangements that mark the course of those who still incline to its use under the impression that they derive strength from the fire that always consumes, however deceitfully genial its heat may seem to be, there is none that more unerringly marks its inherent Hades-power than the fact that among its victims, the most active and intelligent—the naturally most useful—are those it injures most. To show a mechanic who turns to alcoholic drinks for physical strength and mental vigor with satisfactory result in the end, is impossible; and yet how many there still are who will even boastingly tell of what they deem the advantage to them of the use of spirituous liquors. As well might the turtle sing songs to the coal on his back, because he paddles along more swiftly while it scorches his shell and stirs his motive powers to sometimes even startling activity. The man who fires his blood and nerves with whisky for the work of to-day not only steals the needed strength of to-morrow, but deadens his powers of recuperation when the time for natural rest shall arrive. There is not a human being in existence, fitted for any work, who can long continue to perform it upon a basis of alcoholic stimulants without finding the truth of the oft-told fact that the apparent necessity grows by what it feeds upon, and leaves the victim daily in greater apparent need of its poisonous exhilaration than on the preceding day. It excites but to weaken and debase both body and mind and is never beneficial outside its proper use in pharmacy.—Daily Democrat.

ALEXANDER did not conquer the whole world by one bold invasion of his mighty armies. Nor can we expect to conquer all difficulties by one effort, strong and resolute though that effort be. "Life is but a strife," a continual, never-ending strife, and we must bring to bear against its great army of doubts, fears and discouragements, patience, perseverance, hope: these, supported by faith, and all wielding that mightiest of weapons, prayer, will triumph in the conflict,—surely, gloriously triumph. "Never give up." Everything can be accomplished by the energy of a resolute will. Ye who will may share the favors of fortune,—ye who will may wear the glory-wreath of fame. Nay, all who will, may be honored, great and good, for "God always helps those who help themselves." Weary and discouraged one, the star of hope is not dimmed that thou canst not see it,—the path to prosperity and happiness from thine eyes, and take courage to thine heart, thou wilt overcome at last,—only never give up. Fallen and degraded one, even to thee is the promise, "my strength is sufficient." Lay hold upon it, cling to it as thy only hope, and it will draw thee onward and upward in the path of purity and peace.

If you enter a saloon where liquor is sold if you enter those places where men meet to gamble, if you associate with those who are the companions of bad men, you have begun to travel the unsafe road. Ten years ago I knew a boy just ready to enter upon life's duties in earnest—a noble boy beloved by all who knew him. He did not resist the temptation to go to those places where men meet to drink and gamble, and when once within those walls, he could not resist the temptation to drink, and what is the consequence? To-day he is a drunkard, only twenty-five years old, and nothing but a wreck of humanity. Had he never entered those saloons he might now have been actively engaged in business, an ornament to society, and a blessing to his friends. As it is, he is an outcast from society despised and forsaken. A gray headed mother weeps over his fall, and a kind father mourns him as one lost forever.

Again, had there been no temptation, he would not have been ruined. As long as the streets of our cities and villages are lined with these dreadful places, so long will the young men in our land continue to fall. The law says no man has a right to sell intoxicating liquors as a beverage.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

they were pain[illegible] cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive [illegible] Often, the wheezing and difficult breathing of [illegible] is made miserable by [illegible], and in the [illegible] is rotting [illegible] or fatal disease, without exciting a sensation of its presence. Again, it seems to lurk in the blood throughout the body, and then, on some occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be currently developed in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Tilt, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous system.

Syphilitic taint and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Ulcerous Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammations of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often are, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup,

PETERBOROUGH, SEPT. 1, 1870.

Editorial Items

A Mr. Forman of the Bank of Nova Scotia, is a defaulter to the tune of $350,000. His peculation or misappropriation, it is said, has been going on for a period of nearly 30 years.

A new Wesleyan Methodist Church has been commenced in Toronto, which will, when finished, equal, if not surpass, any Church built in that City, or in Ontario.

From a list of names published in the Montreal Witness, it appears that no less than 117 persons, in Montreal, have lately renounced their connection with the Roman Catholic Church; through the labours of the Rev. Father Chiniquy.

Mr. Worthington of Montreal, Bookseller &c, has failed, liabilities $140,223,10. Mr. W. makes the cause in part of his failure, certain trials he has had to defend in the United States for seizure of English books, shipped into the United States without paying duties. These trials cost him $18,000. His creditors are mostly English houses.

A Mr. James Hunter of Galt, has gone across the borders, leaving his debts unpaid. Mr. Hunter by industry had accumulated about $17,000 in his business. Elated by this he must needs try gold speculation in New York; but he lost instead of gaining. The bulls and bears of Wall Street ruined him, and he has left his creditors to compute their losses.

RAILWAY ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday last there was a collision on the Midland Railway, about 11 miles from Port Hope. An accommodation and a freight train collided. The Locomotives received considerable damage. It was caused by a wrong order of one of the officials. This is the third accident to trains this season, and it is very lucky that in none of them was any one injured, severely. Mr. Simpson of Bobcaygeon, was hurt somewhat in the last one.

THE GILCHRIST SCHOLARSHIP.—We observe from the Globe that his excellency the Governor General has received a cable telegram, informing him that the Gilchrist Scholarship for 1870, has been awarded to Mr. F. Beverley Robertson, of Dundas. Mr. R. was once a pupil of the Peterboro Grammar School, and latterly has been a pupil of the Dundas Grammar School, Hunter. His friends congratulate him on his success in winning a valuable prize open to the Dominion, and competed for by so many clever young men.

The Monetary Times says English Insurance Companies are becoming alarmed at the frequency of fires, especially in the Province of Quebec, and are sending out commissioners to enquire into these things. In a country where so many dwellings and other buildings are constructed of wood, frequency of fires may be expected from the very nature of the materials; but as our towns and villages become rebuilt, brick will take the place of wood, and thus remove the chances of fire materially. If all the towns in the Dominion are making as rapid progress in the erection of first class buildings as Peterboro, in a few years a fire will be the exception instead of being so common as at present. The wonder is sometimes, that there is not more loss from fires. Agents too are driving their business so keenly, that very doubtful risks are taken, and if companies suffer on this account they themselves are to blame.

The most disasterous fire that has heretofore ravaged any part of Canada, last week raged in the Ottawa district. At least one half of the County of Carleton has been devastated. The loss is roughly estimated at over a million dollars. A large number of farms, and several villages, have been totally laid waste; and what adds to the horrors several persons have lost their lives. Surrounded with flames they were unable to make their escape. Cattle too have perished; and the crops, barns, dwellings, fences and everything in the district through which the fire passed are lost. The unfortunate people who have escaped must be under the necessity of depending on the generosity of Canadians to supply them until they are able to obtain a crop next year. Of course many of them will be able to provide for themselves right away, but a large portion of them will not. In many parts subscriptions are already on foot to aid them, and we doubt not but large sums will be realized. The sooner the matter is taken hold of the better.

FIRE.—On Tuesday afternoon, about 4 o'clock, an alarm of fire was made, and on enquiry it was found to be the Barn, Stables and Dwelling of E. Chamberlen, Esq., in Monaghan, but close to the town. We regret that all the buildings were consumed. The fire is supposed to have originated from a match thrown away in the stable, where it is believed his man had lit his pipe about an hour previously; although the man and Mr. Chamberlen were working about the house, no signs of fire were noticed until the flames showed themselves through the roof of the Barn. The fire company made their way to the place, but there were no means of getting at the water, as the well was in the centre of the fire. The furniture only was partly saved. There was no insurance on anything. The barns full of grain, hay, oats and peas; the stable and harness in it, waggons, sleighs, buggies, and everything usually kept in these buildings, and in the sheds, were lost. The loss therefore will fall on Mr Chamberlen, and will not be under four to five thousand dollars.

THE WAR.

The contest still rages with unbated horror—the Prussians still appearing to have the advantage.

McMahon is supposed to have induced an engagement with Prince Frederick Charles, as the former attempted to move Northward to the assistance of General Bezaine. The battle commenced on Sunday, and continued 48 hours. The result is not yet positively known, but it is thought to be favourable to Prussian arms; as McMahon is represented in a telegram as retreating on Soissonaul, his attempt to relieve Bezaine having failed.

There is a feint hope in Paris that the Crown Prince will not be able to form a junction with Prince Frederick Charles.—But if McMahon is in retreat, the hope is against hope.

Napoleon is with McMahon; their rear is against Belgium, so that in case of defeat he may step over on neutral soil; and the wary way in which they are moving favors this idea. At all events, the result of this battle will be either to raise the hopes of the French or to ensure the terms dictated at Berlin, by Bismark. A few days more will unravel the mystery.

A telegram this morning confirms the report that the French under Marshal McMahon were completely routed yesterday, by the Crown Prince of Prussia, after immense slaughter on both sides.

The Prospects.

It is generally conceded that Canadian crops are about average. They are not likely to be short, nor yet are they as full as in some seasons. The yield in England is set down as about 30 bushels to the acre on an average, and the grain is reported splendid. England will, it is believed, on this account, be able to do without the supply she usually receives from Germany, which is considered one seventh of her imports.

The Monetary Times gives a comparison of the stock held in Montreal this year, as compared with last year as follows:—From 1st January to 1st August of this year, 77,467 more barrels of flour and 440,706 bushels of wheat were received in Montreal than in corresponding period of 1869. Last year, at this date, there were in store in Montreal of wheat, 161,000 bushels; this year there are 495,600 bushels. Of flour stored last year there were 52,000 barrels, now 120,000 barrels are held. This is, no doubt, in part owing to the very early harvest in England, which is full three weeks in advance of the ordinary period, thus checking the demand, but more to the anticipated rise, owing to the war, making holders cautious of sales.

The war in Europe may cause a slight tendency upwards in prices, but the advance will depend in a great measure on the duration of the contest. At present, the Prussians are determined to make short work of it if possible, and present appearances lead to the conclusion that they will succeed. If so, the people will be enabled to return to their wonted avocations, and the work of destruction shall cease. In any case however, immense stores of provision have been and will yet be destroyed in the track of the contending armies.—The country must be laid waste. Even the French have to destroy large stores to enemy. With all the possible restraint a general is able to exercise over a large army, fearful depredations may be committed and property wasted, so that in all probability, if the war should cease tomorrow, its effects must be to keep prices at least from declining. But the best informed are not of the opinion that prices are likely to be anything like what was the case during the Crimean war or even later. These however, are mere speculations, and no one knows what a day may bring forth. Should the Prussians meet a severe repulse, the prospect of a lengthened contest would be increased, and with the hopes of this speculation, if nothing else, would shut up the surplus produce in storehouses, awaiting results, and thus might force prices beyond present expectations. The farmer, at any rate, may expect a very fair return for his labour this season; and if advances are such as to warrant the sale with fair profits, he should not hold back too long, for fear of a sudden collapse. A single defeat of the French forces might enable Prussia to put an end to the war in forty-eight hours; while a reverse to Prussia might extend it indefinitely, and destroy all our calculations.

The Locks.

We understand that a petition against reparing the locks, south of this town, is talked of.

The fears are, that to repair the locks and erect a dam, will so back the water as to injure Mr. Rogers, Mr. Mowry and Mr. Clarke, Ashburnham, and perhaps some one south of the town. The only parties who have anything to fear, are Messrs. Rogers, Mowry and Clarke; and it would be a pity to do anything that might lead to their hurt. They have spent considerable sums on building and improvements, and anything that would back water on their property would cause them no small loss.

It is the opinion, however, of not a few, [illegible] can be so fixed as to enable the boat to come to the head of the Little Lake without causing back water on any one; and even without impeding the spring floods. If this can be done, it would certainly be to the advantage of the town, and we have no doubt but that those concerned will consider the damage likely to accrue from any repairs about to be made. If a dam can be constructed that will not increase the back water in the spring, it should be done; but if there cannot be a certainty of this, there is cause for consideration.

During Sunday night and Monday we had some very fine showers. They were much needed as the fields were almost baked: pasture was not to be found unless in clover fields. Fires too were starting up and doing more or less damage; these rains will stop their career.

Red River.

CHICAGO, 26th.—Letters from Red River Country dated August, 17th, says:—Provisional authorities held council at Fort Garry for the purpose of deciding the question of allowing the Canadian expedition to take possession of the Country; it was decided that resistance would be useless, and Riel's men commenced plundering Fort Garry. Col. Wolsley command was expected about the 20th instant, and it was believed by that time all prominent rebels would be out of the settlement.

THE BRIGADE CAMP.

Lt-Col. Poole has received a District Order from Lt-Col Patterson, A. D. A. G., ordering Northumberland and Durham cavalry, and the 46th and 57th Battalions into Camp, at Cobourg, on the 16th of September, the whole to be under the command of Lt-Col. Patterson, A. D. A. G.

TEMPERANCE PIC-NIC.—The members and friends of the I. O. of good templars of this town, met the temperance friends of Bobcaygeon yesterday, on pic-nic hill, Bridgenorth, and together had what might be termed a union pic-nic. The party, about 200 strong, came from Bobcaygeon on the Victoria, and were met at the Lake by the members of the Peterboro lodge. We understand that there were several recitations. And the Rev. Messrs Tapscot, of Fenelon, Winter, of Bobcaygeon, and others addressed the party, briefly on temperance matters. There were swings, football, quoits and other amusements. About four o'clock all separated. The Bobaygeon party returned by the boat. All appeared to enjoy themselves during their short stay. And it is to be hoped that their meeting and interchange of ideas will tend to strengthen and stimulate them in the work in which they are engaged.

THE TRENT SLIDES.—A despatch from Ottawa says:—The Trent Slides a few years ago were put under the management of the trustees, who collected due and kept the works in repair. Last spring they were damaged by a freshet to the extent of $60,000. The Government taking into consideration the diminution in the quantity of timber fit for being squared, has authorized the trustees to place the work into such a state as necessary to meet present requirements.

We understand that a meeting of Lumber men was held here in the early part of this month, in reference to these slides, when the following resolution was passed:

"Resolved,—That it is expedient, if the means can be obtained, to renew the works to such an extent as will admit of the running of single sticks of square timber and saw logs, the cost of said reconstruction being estimated at under $11,000, and that the funds required be raised as follows: 1st. By the appropriation of the funds now in the hands of the Trust. 2nd. By application of the Provincial Government for aid. 3rd. By assessment on the parties in the habit of using the works. Such assessment to be repaid to them as soon as possible by remission of slide duties upon their timber and saw logs, except so far as is necessary to keep up the work."

There is to be a general meeting of those having timber limits, here on the 1st of November.

Mr Trayes proprietor of the Port Hope "Times" has commenced an evening issue, we have received several numbers. The typography and size of the Daily Times are creditable to Mr. Trayes and we trust that he will receive such encouragement as will secure him pecuniarly against loss in the enterprise.

A Slander Refuted.

SIR,—I regret my rashness in making a charge against your nephew, Mr. Thomas Hay, which has been fully established to be false, and beg now to acknowledge that I was quite unjustified in the course I regret for having been the means of causing your house to be entered as it was, by a constable, upon a warrant which I had procured to be issued. I feel it to be quite impossible to make sufficient amends for my conduct, considering the serious consequences which might have followed upon my doing as I did, had not circumstances which transpired immediately after cleared Mr. Hay from every shadow of suspicion

I will also arrange with your Solicitor any expenses you may have been put to in connection with this most distressing occurrence. I may further add that you have my sanction to make any use of this letter that you may consider justice to Mr. Hay and yourself may require.

I am your obedient servant,

C. E. I. PORTEOUS.

A. C. DUNLOP, ESQ., Peterboro', Ont.
Peterboro', 23 August, 1870.

A GROUNDLESS CHARGE.—The Toronto Leader makes the following statement:—"The Montreal Witness, 'the only religious daily published in Canada,' takes all its telegrams from other Montreal dailies; and in reply I beg to state that you have always subscribed and paid for our regular reports, and that you also receive and pay for all special reports.

Your obed't. servant,

JAMES DAKERS, Secretary.

ACCIDENT ON THE NEW YORK CENTRAL RAILWAY.—A serious smash up occurred on Monday on the New York Central Railway, by which several persons were killed and a great many seriously injured. The occurrence took place at Greenbush, immediately opposite Albany, and was caused by the careless misplacement of a switch. Five carriages of an express train were completely smashed, and it is amazing that any of the passengers in them escaped.—Mr. Hugh Allan, of Montreal, was a passenger in one of the carriages that were destroyed, but we are happy to hear escaped without injury.

The only newspaper account of the accident that has yet reached us is the following from the Rochester Express of Monday:—

ALBANY, August 29th.—The Cincinnati express train, passing through here at 2 o'clock to-day, ran off the track at Greenbush. Of eleven coaches in the train five were terribly smashed. The brakesman, belonging to Rhinebeck, and a woman from Iowa, name unknown, were killed.—A boy had an arm broken. Several other passengers received slight injuries. The accident was caused by a misplaced switch. It is stated that the person in charge of the switch was intoxicated.

We regret to chronicle the demise of G. M. Roche, Esq., Crown Land Agent at Lindsay, which event took place on Saturday evening last, at his residence, after a few days' illness. Mr. Roche was one of the oldest and most respectable inhabitants of this town, and his death, while he was yet comparitively young, will be regretted by a large circle of acquaintances and friends. He was 45 years of age.—Lindsay Warder.

THE EUROPEAN WAR.

(Special to the Examiner.)

Special correspondent of the New York Tribune, at the head-quarters of the Crown Prince, in describing the bombardment of Pfalsburg on the 14th, says:—"I tell no secret when I say that the German attack was made with field artillery, and that a great many of their lighter guns had been brought into position for work. The capture of Pfalsburg is an important matter for the Crown Prince, but not enough to make his army wait for heavy seige guns."

NEW YORK 26th.—Tribunes special correspondent from the Crown Prince's headquarters 17th, says there is no delay in advancing, town after town is occupied.

Crown Prince has advanced through northern Alsace into Loraine. Two other German armies have entered the French territory from Russia and Prussia.

The Tribunes correspondent writes from Paris on Wednesday evening that the loan is a decided failure, compared with the former subscriptions.

McMahons movements are known to Prussians and they do not think them of consequence to delay the advance of the Crown Prince, or prevent detachments of parts of Steinmetz and Prince Frederick Charles forces to strengthen the column moving on Paris.

Prussian front now stretches 30 or 40 miles, main column apparently marching by Bar-le-duc and Vitrey, while left wing has enveloped Chanmont and Brienne, from 25 to 40 miles southward of the line of march of main columns.

French war office privately assert never the less that McMahon and Bazaine are in full communication, and pursuing Prussians.

Worlds London special says, an envoy from Madrid has arrived in Florence to re-open negotiations for offering the Spanish Throne to Prince Thomas o: Genor, son of Duchess of Genoa and Brother-in-law of the prince royal of Italy.

LONDON, 26th.—German Uhlans are the object of prodigious terror at Paris, their arrival is momentarily expected.

Times has the following resume of situations:—King William leaving sufficient force before Metz, joined the Crown ed Prince, who was pushing on to Paris.

Movements of McMahon are beginning now to be intelligible. A fugitive from Weerth, averting Metz, he passed through Vosges to Mossels, to Nancy and to Chalons, where he was reinforced by the Garde and Volunteers. His obvious aim has been to bar the passage and prevent the advance of the Crown Prince on Paris. Appearing to disregard him, the Crown Prince moved on his flank past Chalons and offering McMahon battle, which the latter declined, retreating on Rheimes and leaving the Chalons camp all to the Prussians.

Since that time Rheims itself has been abandoned; the Prussians are even within a short distance of Paris, when perhaps some slight additional resistance may be met.

BERLIN, 25th.—One Corps of the 1st and 2nd armies still confront Bazaine, while remainder of the Prussians have marched on Paris.

PARIS, 26th.—The environs of Metz have been inundated, by order of French authorities.

It is now certain there was no serious fighting yesterday.

Government has received information that the Prussians are no longer at Chalons

The army of Prince Royal has retrograded.

Orders have been given to mount Garde arms to resist raids of Uhlans.

"Liberte" says that at Toul yesterday, the Garde Mobile made a sortie, defeating and killing the greatest part of 2 Prussian [illegible].

CARLSRUE, 26th.—Severe artillery battle took place at Keihl and Strasburg on Wednesday night, lasting until Thursday morning, at 3 o'clock.

Part of the Citadel and Arsenal in Strasburg is destroyed. Many fires occurred in that city on account of vigorous bombardment.

On Tuesday evening bombardment of Strasburg, by Prussians, has been incessant. Prussian advance post, with seige train is within 500 yards of the city walls; walls terribly battered, and several magazines exploded.

BERLIN, 26th.—French stories says that Prussians were checked yesterday between Chalons and Verdun are false.

NEW YORK 26, Aid to German wounded now reaches 835,000.

Cable special to Herald, London 26th. Special correspondent at Barle-duc writes; Bazaine surrounded in Metz by Prussian troops and, it is expected he will be compelled to capitulate, his troops being short of provisions.

Tribune special London 26.—Best information about Bazaine's army, "which an official telegram now proves" is shut up in Metz, muses his strength about 10,000.

Prussian force left at Metz or within supporting distance is computed at 235,000, after deducting 100,000 sent to reinforce Crown Prince.

[illegible] of corps Legislatif today in secret session were misled by the deputies in the purpose of withholding news would no longer be tolerated, that deputies were determined that Gen. Trochen plans be not interfered with by Count Palikao or even by the Emperor.

The married men under 45 who have served and now ordered into army number about 300,000, and the provincial Garde mobile will reach equal number.

London special, last night, says: It is fancied the Crown Prince is marching on Paris with 150,000 men, if so Trochu with at least equal number can defend Paris long enough to give McMahon and Bazaine time to do their work in the rear.

All that is certain is that the struggle near at hand will be a desperate and decisive one. It involves everything. No well informed person now anticipates anything but a long and exhausting war.

LONDON 27th.—Junction of Bazaine with McMahon not yet effected.

PARIS 27.—King and Crown Prince moving on the city by way of Marne and Amber.

LONDON 27th.—On Tuesday evening head quarters of Prussian army at Bar-le-duc advance had reached a point about midway between Chalons and Paris.

March on Paris to be conducted leisurely by Prussians as no further oppositions is anticipated. The fortifications of Paris, unless manned by at least 200,000 men, is worthless; according to French reports. Lyneville is so full with Prussians wounded, that 3000 is left unsheltered in the streets.

Prince Royal of Prussia issued a proclamation to the people of France, wherein he said:—Prussia makes war against the Emperor, and not against the people of France, people have nothing whatever to fear. Prince announces his purpose to instantly restore lines of travel, which have been interrupted or destroyed by army movements, so that labor and commerce may everywhere be resumed.

It is predicted here that terms for peace between France and Prussia will embrace the following points:—Vosge to be future boundary, Bar-le-duc to remain French province, Alsace to be parted between Bavaria and Baden, Wurtemburg being ant Prussia to get nothing.

PARIS, 27.—It is reported government is preparing a note to representatives abroad stating France will prosecute war to last extremity. Peace will not be entertained so long as enemy is on french soil.

It is officially announced Bezaine's loss at Reasonville was 23,000.

Prussia declares its resolution to offer no negotiations to French people until the empire is declared in an end.

Napoleon's incapacity to direct an army is shown by his imitating the tactics of the Prussiads, and ordering his generals to do the same.

A small naval engagement between a French squadron consisting of seven ironclads and two smaller vessels and four German gunboats, has taken place. After a running fire of an hour or so, the gunboats retired to the protection of their shore batteries.

BERLIN, 28th.—There are great rejoicings here. Public procession carrying 4 mitrillure, 23 cannon and 1 eagle, captured from the French, passed through the streets. The Queen came out on the balcony of the palace and received the congratulations of the people.

BERLIN, 28th.—The disposition of the different German armies are as follows:—The 1st army under Steinmetz has 1st, 7th and 8th corps, at Metz; the 2nd army under Prince Frederick Charles, has the 2nd, 3rd, 9th and 10th corps, at Metz; the 3rd army under Crown Prince, has the 5th, 6th and 11th corps, and 2 Bavarian corps marching on Paris; the 4th army under the Crown Prince of Saxony, has the 4th and 14th corps, and the Saxon and Prussian guards; the 5th army under General Werder, has the Wurtemburg and Baden divisions, and is engaged in the siege of Strasburg; the 6th army under the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg Schwerin, is on the Rhine, and the 6th army under Genls. Von Casteiro and Loewenfield is at Berlin. Three of these armies are in reserve.

New York "Tribune's" correspondent writing from Rothel, says:—McMahon's army is here, composed of the 1st, 5th, 7th and 12th corps, and the cavalry of Canrobert's. The Emperor and Prince Imperial are here. We move on Friday to Mezieres.

"Tribune's" correspondent at Frankfort on Thursday says:—Private intelligence confirms official journals, that Bismarck will insist on the restitution by France of all territory forcibly abstracted from Germany, but neither Alsace nor Loraine will be annexed to Prussia. The larger will go to Baden and the rest to Bavaria.

Russia is already protesting,—England also. Palikao's statement, that he had bought 40,000 rifles in England, is but a small part of truth. Several hundred thousand Chassepots are manufactured here for the French government.

There is much anxiety lest Germany should resent this, since the British government has the power of prohibiting such exportations.

The "Daily News" insists it shall exercise this power, and denounces men who imperil the country for private greed. It compares this to the Alabama case, and says no one will believe we are doing the utmost to preserve our neutrality if we allow this trade.

There is no known foundation for the battles reported in French papers, nor have we anything from McMahon later than Thursday evening.

N. Y. 29th.—Private despatch says the reported French victory at Metz, French 50,000 were slain, is false. French accounts says McMahon is not ready for battle. It was Bazaine who gave orders that there should be no retreat in march on Paris. Bazaine pressed through his generals turned back sixty Metz first and taking Paris afterwards.

Reported great battle has taken place between MacMahon and Crown Prince, in which McMahon was defeated.

The Emperor is now at Berthenville, near Chalons. McMahon is near Sursy, the Chlons occupy Malmery.

Prussians appear at Surppiles, 14 miles north of Chalons.

LONDON 28. There are 10,000 peasants and 10,000 [illegible] up in Metz, and typhus fever is raging.

Prussians hold all southern Alsace.

A Berlin telegraph to the London Times says Prussians are advancing on Paris 220,000 strong, they have cut railways at Cons la Garville.

ARLON, LUXEMBURG, 29th.—There has been fighting all day at a Village between Stenay and Vernal; firing steadily all day.

N. Y. 29th, and special to evening telegram, London, 29th.—By despatch just received from special correspondent at Mendy, we have news of a great and bloody battle begun on the morning of the 28th Sunday, in immediate neighborhood of Meazeon. The battle is not understood.

MADRID 28th.—A member of the council of Regency has taken part in the Carlist movements. Carlists [illegible] Pampluna and Alava. [illegible] Bayon.

French authorities arrested him at the moment of his attempt to cross the frontier. Carlist Gen. Diaz had, with some officers, 150 men, a quantity of guns and ammunition, been brought further under guard.

PARIS, midnight, 29th.—It is believed here to night that a [illegible] battle has been going on all day, as according to all accounts McMahon must have reached the troops of Prince Frederick Charles to-day. [illegible] forces have been concentrating for two days to Reject Vouziers [illegible]

Prince Royal apparently made a halt; he has arrested his course at Ch[illegible]one, owing to his ignorance of McMahon's intentions.

N.Y. 30.—A few Frenchmen gathered last night in Union square and were soon joined by a procession of Irishmen carrying the Marseillaise. Rev. O'Leary, a Catholic clergyman made an address.

N. Y. 30th.—Worlds London correspondent telegraphs repetition of warning already given that there is imminent peril of Russian intervention at no distant time in this war.

The Belgium army has been put on a war footing by vote of August 12th, and ordered to front.

Arming of Garde Civite goes on rapidly.

Two special Queen's messengers reached London yesterday with despatches for foreign office from Brussels.

LONDON, 30th.—It was reported several days ago that Prince Fredrick Charles would return and go in pursuit of McMahon.

The Times says that on the 27th inst., five detatchments routed six detachments of French cavalry near Buzancy.

LONDON, 1 30 p. m. Following news from French war office just received; nearly 900,000 men are now in triangle formed by the lines running from Rheims to Rentil and Venziers.

Bazaine is not shut up; he has 120,000 men; McMahon has 180,000; they are stealing two marches on the Prince Royal, who is a day ahead of Prince Fredrick Charles.

CARLSRUE 30.—"Gazette" of this city has the following,—Last evening Bishop undertook to bring about some sort of truce, and obtained 24 hours cessation of bombardment. As Major Lechyinsky escorted the bishop back to Strasburg, his flag was riddled with bullets.

Bombardment continues with guns of the largest calibre. Surrender of city is merely a matter of time.

BRUSSELS, 12.30, p. m.—Belgian troops are hastening to the frontier from all quarters.

A great battle between the French and Prussians is apparently imminent, and the services of Belgian troops will no doubt be necessary to protect the country from invasion.

N. Y. 30.—Private despatches, dated London 11.30, says Paris despatches say there has been more or less fighting for 48 hours with serious losses on both sides.

LONDON, 30th.—Tribune correspondent passing through Paris yesterday was allowed to visit the fortifications. In the inner line comparatively few guns are mounted. The outer fortresses are connected by lines of earthworks. Much wood is felled on that side, and very little on the Bois de Bologne. I am convinced the government does not mean to stand a siege, but the people do. Nothing is so so striking as the general gloom of the people.

Great damage has been done to Strasburg. The principal streets are in ruins, and a shell fell on a Catholic girls school, killing 7 and wounding 4 others.

After an offer of an armistice was refused, and flag of truce fired on, the bombardment was renewed with increased vigor. Fall of the city is imminent.

Same correspondent telegraphs from Carlsruhe, on Tuesday night says inhabitants just escaped from Strasburg, report dreadful suffering, most of the people spending nights in cellars.

General Ulrich says he will not surrender until heaps of ashes and the inhabitants beseech him to make terms. The besieging forces are increasing, while their losses are trifling.

Special correspondent from Prris says that the Government promises 200,000 National Guards shall be armed and equipped in five days. There are now not more than 30,000 uniformed in the city, 25,000 regulars and about 20,000 mobile and 100 cannon at St. Maur.

Guardd Mobile camp has just been broken up, and the troops gone to join McMahon.

Crown Prince of saxony is pushing forward with 110,000 men, and the Crown Prince with 13,000.

N. Y. 31.—Private London despatches say French advices report that McMahon, by his tactics, succeeded in separating the forces of his opponent, and that he will give battle, probably to-day, with good hopes of success.

PARIS 30, midnight.—The following official news just promulgated by Minister of Interior: March of Prussians on Paris seems arrested. McMahon continues his movement; there has been no serious engagement; Chalons is evacuated entirely by Prussians; railroad trains go freely now as far as Rheims. National guards of Seine, Marne and Aisore are organizing to offer serious resistance.

Two Uhlans of the royal guard last night brought in 2 staff officers of General McMahon's.

N. Y., 31st.—Private London despatch says McMahon is now endeavoring to retreat on Soissonaul, having failed in his attempt to relieve Bazaine at Metz.

Telegrams from Paris this morning are exultant in the statement that the Crown Prince is 30 hours behind calculations of the Prussian staff, and that he will not arrive at the right moment to effect a junction with Prince Frederick Charles.

A person who left Strasburg on Friday last, says one part of the town has suffered very much, but the garrison is supplied with plenty of provisions and munitions of war, and citizens are determined to resist to the last.

BERLIN, 31st.—Prussians are sending street locomotives to aid in piecing heavy guns before Strasburg.

LONDON, 31st.—The "Standard" reviewing the situation, says Prussians are strong around Rheims, while numerous masses of men have gone to motherland. It is impossible whether the report that the King is marching on Paris with heavy force or not is true.

PARIS, 31st.—The French position on the heights between Vouziers and Attegay, which was held by a body of Turcos, was taken by storm yesterday by two squadrons of Hussars, who dismounted for the purpose.

PARIS, 31st.—A person from Mentrive affirms that a battle occurred on Saturday. Our informant saw Prussians retreating. There were a great number of stragglers.

BRUSSELS, 31st.—11 a. m. Marshall Bazaine is still cooped up. German army has been ordered to camp as far as possible from the last battle field, owing to sickening exhalations.

CATTLE DISEASE.—We are sorry to learn that the new cattle disease which has been the source of so much uneasiness and trouble in the Western part of Canada has made its appearance in this neighborhood. Quite a large number of farms have been already located. The symptoms seem to be a sort of scab appearing about the head. This gradually spreads up the leg and over the shoulders and neck, producing great debility. One farmer informs us that his [illegible] cattle were so badly affected that it was found [illegible] to keep them feet, so as his own w[illegible] getting rapidly into the same condition. It behoves all owners of cattle to watch them carefully, and at the first appearance of disease apply the proper remedies. We may add that the veterinary surgeons of Toronto recommend that the sores should be covered with equal parts of black petroleum oil and tar.—Lindsay Warder

MR. MILLAR,

Dear Sir; I have tried Workman's Patent Harrow and find it superior to anything of the kind I have seen yet, for several reasons. 1st, It will do double the amount of work with the same draft of an ordinary harrow. 2nd, It is strong and durable. 3rd, The teeth bolted on to the side of the bulk with two bolts, and the plain clasp, is a great improvement on it; steel teeth are preferable to iron. 5th, You can hitch to either end, which of course is a great advantage to the teeth. 6th, It is well adapted for clearing itself on stony or muddy ground.

Yours respectfully,

MADOC, County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th., 1869

This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ancles, which gradually during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on up to my hips, and I became so weak that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two years, while this weakness was coming on me, and afterwards, I sought medical advice, employing, at different times, three doctors, and medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, but of no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoshoneas Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had begun to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshoneas Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was not a private one, but known to all my neighbors and friends; and to any one afflicted as I was, I have only to say try the Shoshoneas remedy; I believe it will cure you,

MARY ANN DOUGHTY.

Sworn to before me at Madoc, County of Hastings, this ninth day of February, 1869.

A. F. WOOD, J. P. &c.

I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshoneas Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.

The Reveille.

FROM THE GERMAN.

Hark! I hear the tramp of thousands,
And of armed men the hum;
Let a nation's hosts have gathered
Round the quick alarming drum—
Saying "Come,
Freedom, come,
Ere your heritage be wasted," said the quick alarming drum,

"Let me of my heart take counsel;
War is not of life the sum!
Who shall stay and reap the harvest,
When the autumn days shall come?
But the drum
Echoed "Come!
Death shall reap the bravest harvest," said the solemn sounding drum.

"But when won the coming battle,
What of profit springs therefrom?
What if conquests—subjugation—
Even greater ills become?
But the drum
Answered "Come!
You must do the sum to prove it," said the promptly answering drum.

"What if 'mid the cannon's thunder,
Whistling shells and bursting bomb—
When my brothers fall around me,
Should my heart grow cold and numb—
But the drum
Answered "Come!
Better be in death united, than in life a recreant"—"Come."

Thus they answered—hoping—fearing—
Some in faith, in doubting some,
Till a trumpet voice proclaiming,
Said, "My chosen people, come!
When the drum,
Lo! was dumb,
For the great heart of the nation, throbbing, answered—"Lord we come!"

The Bold Little Bully.

The New York Tribune thinks England is a bold little bully, yet it expresses its opinion in a manner not at all uncomplimentary. Here is what it says:—

"What a bold little bully England can be on occasion! The two great military power of Europe are just about fighting, each battalion putting nearly a million of men in the field, when Britain seizes them both by the throat, and demands a more satisfactory explanation of the secret treaty. Apparently she has a mind, with her 60,000 troops, to give them both a good whipping. It is rather an absurd attitude; but in reality England would be a formidable enemy in a struggle like this. She has the strongest navy the world ever saw, and the prowess of her seamen is proverbial. Her standing army is small; but with her excellent volunteer system she has a vast reserve of men trained in the mechanism of the military art, upon whose patriotism, in case of emergency, she could call with confidence. Moreover, the English people are beginning to suspect that Napoleon's next movement, if he should be victorious over Prussia, would be against Great Britain. He has fought with three of the great powers which humiliated his uncle; perhaps Frenchmen will want him to complete the avenging of Waterloo by fighting with the fourth. We do not say this is probable, but Englishmen are beginning to think about it."

As affairs now stand there is not much danger of France avenging Waterloo by fighting England, for some time to come. She has more on her hands at present than she can well attend to; and it is not improbable that, instead of making war on England she will be looking around for a national head before many weeks are over, just as Spain has been looking for a national head for the last two years.

The Tribune, though it acknowledges that England is a mighty power on both land and sea, under-estimates the actual strength of the Empire. The British Islands are but the centre of power. The people who are proud to claim Victoria as their Queen are to be found in every quarter of the globe. The Emperor of China is the only monarch on earth who has a large number of subjects. It is estimated that there are 1,000,000,000 people in the world, and of this number 160,000,000, or nearly one sixth of the whole, are subjects of England's Queen. In case the Motherland were threatened If the combined powers of Europe, millions of men from America, Australia and the far-off isles of the ocean, would rally around the standard of the Empire. Situated as she is—"a precious gem set in the silver sea"—and having a navy which is more than a match for the combined fleets of the world, England has no necessity for immense standing armies as continental powers are compelled to maintain. But she has the raw material in the one hundred and sixty millions of people over whom her flag floats; and, were her existence as a nation threatened, she could place such an army in the field as the world has never yet seen.

The "Moniteur" gives the following account of the death of Gen. Douay, at the battle of Weissenbourg: The general was from the beginning, in the thickest of the fight. When he saw the day was lost, after he had done all that he could to retrieve it—when not even a battalion was left him—he called his aids, one by one, gave them orders and sent them away. As soon as the last one was gone, the General spurring his horse, rode some distance to the front, dismounted, and taking a pistol from the holster, shot the animal. Then turning around, he slowly walked toward the enemy. His soldiers vainly tried to stop him. Amid the terrible firing he deliberately walked on. The retreating soldiers, aroused by the spectacle, turned again upon the enemy, but fell in heaps around their General, who still pressed forward. Another tremendous discharge from the enemy, and General Douay, almost alone, fell dead.

Recruiting for the Pope.—From what appears in "La Minerve," there must be active recruiting for the Pope's army going on in Canada at present. In one place we read that it is thought needful to notify young men who intend to joine the Papal Zouaves, that a detachment will leave Montreal on Thursday next, the 18th inst., and those who wish to form part of it would do well to apply at once to the proper quarter. Another paragraph states that Canon Moreau, almoner to the Canadian Papal Zouaves is returning unexpectedly to Canada at the express desire of the Papal authorities, in order to obtain further recruits among the Canadian youth; and "La Minerve, a Government organ, wishes him all success in this undertaking. Doubtless our Government Military School, supported by taxation, will furnish the necessary aid.

The Montreal Telegraph Company have extended their wires from Clinton through to Blyth and Windsor to Teeswater. The two former offices are now in operation, and it is expected that the Teeswater office will be open in a few days.

The Taxes of Cobourg for the present year have been placed at the rate of 4s 8d to the £.

It is proposed that the city of P. ne should be fortified.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills;

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, and was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them: those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or worthlessness of its compounding. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint, and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Work To Do.

Awake! sluggish soul, arise and be doing,
Life's precious moments are passing away,
Swift are the years to eternity flowing,
Soon will be ended the hours of life's day.
And while upon us the sunlight is beaming
We must castes good seed if a harvest we'd reap,
And in this life there is no time for dreaming,
Up! thoughtless liker, awake from thy sleep.

We should help erring ones, who beset by temptation
Have yielded, and far from the right path have gone,
Who once knew no sorrow nor want, nor privation,
But now from their lives every bright hour is flown.
There are many sad hearts to whom life's dark and dreary,
Children of toil, who are longing for rest,
And we through life's journey should never grow weary
Of kindness bestowed on the poor and oppressed.

There is plenty to do for self and for neighbor,
But short is time, soon the day will be o'er,
Soon will the night come when no one can labor—
Soon will life's sorrows and cares be no more—
Soon will the heart with the dim past be blended;
But if through life we toil faithfully on,
We'll hear the sweet words when life's last hour is ended,
"Rest, faithful soul, thy life's work is done."

The Reclaimed;
OR
The Prayers of Innocence.
BY E. B. ENGLE.

The only one the house, a little child, knelt by her bedside praying alone. Perhaps the experiences of ten years had laid their weight upon her young heart—she certainly was not older—and were it not for the impression which sorrow always leaves upon its victims, she would have passed for a younger child. It was not a large house, for there were but three rooms in it, and beside herself it had but one occupant. He was away, she knew not whither, only that her tears told her he was where he ought not to be. She had fixed their frugal supper hours ago, and had waited anxiously and hopefully for the sound of her father's returning footsteps; but night crept on apace and he came not to cheer the solitude or relieve the anxiety of his waiting child. Tears had been falling from the bright blue eyes, dimming their lustre, and sobs had burst from the roseate lips, telling her heart's agony; and now in the middle of the night, the little Christain knelt, as her sainted mother had taught her to do, and prayed for the absent one: "Dear God, bless my poor dear father; make him good and holy as my dear dead mother was; keep him from drinking the wicked brandy any more, and make him love his little Mary as he used to."

This was the burden of her prayer. But how can we tell the expression of her weeping eyes and little hands raised imploringly to heaven in the earnestness of her petition. Her golden hair fell loosely down upon her shoulders, and it was a picture which made glad the angels who beheld it. They had seen the picture before, and the merciful Lord had seen it, and heard the earnest petition of the blameless one. Charles Rouson had been prosperous and well to-do. He had begun life with bright prospects, and with a loving wife and interesting children. His home was one of the brightest of earth. But sickness and death came and robbed him of his heart's jewels—of all but one—and left him desolate and disconsolate Truly he loved Mary the one left him by a wise Providence; but his devotion to his wife had been so entire and absorbing—she had become so truly a part of his own existence—that when she was taken from him, life seemed a dismal dungeon and he would see no "silver lining" to the clouds which mantled his life's sky. Despondency took possession of him, and to drown the poignancy of his grief, he resorted to the wine-cup as many an unfortunate one has done before him, deluded with false hopes. Once begun in this way, he soon went to excess. At first, the piteous appeals of his child, and the advice and warning of friends who loved him, seemed to have some restraining effect; but at length his friends gave up his case as hopeless, and ceased their striving with him wrapping themselves in the mantle of their own fancied perfection and invincible power to resist temptation, and resigned him to his fate.

There was but one who remained fast and firm, staunch and true to the work of his reformation, and that was his heaven-eyed, sunny-crowned Mary. She never faltered in her prayers or her entreaties. She heeded no repulse, and was discouraged by nodelay; but with the simple faith of childhood, she kept her eye fixed steadily on the boon she so fondly deserved—the reformation of the one she held most dear on earth. On this particular night, Charles Rouson had lingered as usual at the dram-shop, and becoming intoxicated he was oblivious to his home, his waiting child, and every thing but his thirst for liquor. This thirst it seemed impossible to quench. His money was all gone, and alas! he had reached too that other certain stage in the drunkards life when his credit at the bar was also gone. Yet he implored the landlord for more drink With his tongue thick and his eyes rolling in an idiotic stare, he begged in vain for one more glass to satisfy his craving thirst. His pleadings at last made the virtuous landlord angry, and with a terrible oath he answered the poor inebriate that if he would not be still he would kick him into the street.

This was the first time in his mad career that Charles Rouson had ever received such a threat, and bewildered and stupified as he was, his native pride and self-respect began to be aroused. The bar-room was almost full of men, some of them his acquaintances, and to be rebuffed in this manner, and before them, made the degradation doubly poignant.

He staggered to his feet and sought a chair; but ere his faltering arm could raise it high enough for the object at which he aimed, infuriated dram-seller hurled a decanter with such unherring precision that it felled the besotted man to the floor. He applied kich after kick to his prostrate body. "Get out with your villainous car. case, I tell you, and off to your pauper hovel and your crying brat; and never put your foot inside this door again, or by—I'll kill you!"

This brutal speech sobered the drunken man almost as magic, and with a bound which surprised the lookers on and made them stand back, he rushed upon his assailant and strangled him till he cried, "Help men, for the love of God! the fiend is murdering me!"

The infuriated man loosened his grasp and broke forth:

"Oh yes, Bill Jackson, you thought I was killing you, because you knew you richly deserved murdering, not only at my hands, but from hundreds of others. You sold me drink, and encouraged me to drink; you said it would not hurt me—that it would drive sorrow far from me, and make me forget my grief for the dear treasures that used to make my life so bright and happy. You are the one who, when I said my temperament was one which could no stand much drink, told me there was no danger; that I should get used to it as you had done; and you lured me on and on, from one stage to another, until you got all my money, and nearly all I could turn into money, and now, when I have nothing and am poor and degraded, and low and sunken into the gutters, where you have dragged me, you spurn me from your house, you kick and beat me, and, worse than all, you call my child, whom, with all my degeration and sin, I love better than my own life—you call my child a bawling brat Curse you, Bill Jackson, for the ruin you wrought! But I will go from your house. I will go home to my poor child, and may the good God whom I so grievously offended, give me the strength to resist the temptation ever to enter your house or any other liquor shop again as long as I have breath."

The penitent man was assisted to his home by some of his companions and upon entering the house, there they saw that frail child still kneleing on the bare floor by her little bed. She had fallen asleep in that position, after praying long and earnest for absent father. But she awoke at their coming, and with a startled cry she ran to her father and asked what was the matter. With her own hands she dressed his wound, and pressing her to his breast he would try not to drink any more.

"Oh, dear papa," she cried, I thought God would answer my prayer. I have prayed so much for you, and mamma used to teach me that my prayers would be heard and answered when God thought it was best. Oh, won't mamma be happy up in heaven to hear that you won't drink any more. And little brother Jamie; and I know God will bless you, dear father, and make you strong."

"May he bless you, sweet child, and make me ever worthy of such a priceless gem. Oh! what a sinner I have been. May God be merciful to me!"

There was little sleep in that home that night. Charles Rouson was thoroughly aroused from the stupor into which he had been plunged so long, and he marveled that he had ever fallen so low. He had been snatched as a brand from the burning, but not by his own efforts. The grace of God, so wearidly invoked in his behalf by his praying child, had at last come to his rescue. He saw how near the gulf of destruction he had approached; and in his hour of penitence, he resolved no longer to rely on his own strength, but to seek the aid of Divine grace to help him battle with sorrow and adversity; for he had seen that "vain was the help of men;" and that human nature, unsustained and unrenewed by grace, was the vertest weakness.

The happy days passed into months, and months into years, and we behold the reclaimed one a respected and honored member of society. The beautiful little home he used to own and which he had sacrificed in his insane passion for drink, he had purchased; and Mary, the same devoted daughter to whose prayers he owed his salvation, now developed into a beautiful and gifted young lady of seventeen, trained the flowered vines around their happy dwelling, and with her, and care, and coolness made it a home which angels seem to watch over with peculiar guardianship; and in prayers she never forgets to say: "My God, I thank thee that he who was nigh unto everlasting destruction is, by thy mercy, restored, and he who was lost is found."

Dr. Jewets Lectures.

The undersigned, who is devoting his time mainly to writing during the extreme heat and short evenings, will, if his life and health be spared, soon resume his labor as a public teacher or lecturer in connection with the general cause of temperance, but especially in reference to its physiological aspects, and he would, in advance, have a few words with the friends of the cause who have already made application for his services during the coming lecture season, or who purpose to do so. The experience of the past, especially of the past three years, has fixed in my mind the conviction that a course of instruction of from four to eight lectures, either on consecutive evenings or with intervals of a few days where that is practicable, is the most effective method of labor for me, however it may be with my fellow-laborers. I, therefore, prefer to labor in that way, and am prepared to arrange for such courses of lectures wherever wanted on reasonable terms. Brethern contemplating such an arrangement will do well to make an early application, as they will be able thus to have their choice of seasons, of which they can not be certain when applications have become numerous. Circulars will be sent immediately to those applying, containing practical suggestions in relation to the best methods of proceeding in such cases, with the view to secure a general attendance of citizens not now acting with us in the work of reform, (a very desirable result;) also as to the best methods of raising needed funds, and in general to render a concerted or united effort of the people of any town or village the most effective possible for checking the evil of intemperance, and guarding the youth of such community from its terrible power. The circular will state the special topics usually discussed in my lectures, although I shall not decline the discussion of any topic in connection with the general subject which peculiar circumstances may at the time have made prominent in that community.

Address me at 172 William street, or at my residence, 49 Fourth street, Williamsburg, N. Y. At the latter when an immediate answer is desired, as my family break my seals and in my absence attend to correspondence. CHARLES JEWETT.

GEM FROM DICKENS.—There is nothing—no, nothing—beautiful, that dies and is forgotten. An infant, a prattling child dying in its cradle, will live again in the better thoughts of those who loved it, and play its part, even though its body be burned to ashes or buried in the deepest sea. There is not an angel added to the hosts of heaven but does it work on earth in those who loved it here. Dead! Oh, if the good deeds of human creatures could be traced to their source, how beautiful would even death appear! for how much charity, mercy and purified affection would appear to have their growth in dusty graves!

MARLBOROUGH PIE.—One cup stewed apples, sifted, one cup sugar, one cup cream or milk, one-fourth cup butter, if cream is used, if milk one third, half a gill wine, three well beaten eggs, whites whisked separately, and a little nutmeg; beat sugar, butter and apple together, then add the wine, then milk or cream, nutmeg and yolks, adding the whites the last thing. No upper crust.

A Word to the Wise.

When the dust of [illegible] your own workbox falls upon you, as it [illegible] sooner or later, it will require much hard work to bring out matters even. The art of spending money can no more "come to you" than the art of telegraphing could. You must think well over it and study hard the details.

We want to lay down some principles about our dress which will guide us in the perplexing business. In the first place a great deal is expended by inexperienced shoppers in trimmings, which add very little to the handsome appearance of a dress and yet consume money enormously. I have known a young lady pay two dollars for a few yards of bugle trimming, when two dresses comprised her whole stock in that line, both of them calico. The two dollars, as prices then were, would have bought her two neat calico dresses. The trimming, when was to go on a printed black silk belt then in fashion, lay for months unused. Another dollar from her hard earnings, went for ribbon to make a head-dress, which she would seldom wear after it was done. A young domestic of mine, destitute when she came to me of almost everything, spent her first week's earnings in sham jewellery. The carriage poisoned one ear so badly that it was not healed for five months.

Let a young lady provide herself first with good shoes and overshoes a neat hat and pretty coat, hood and washed in very cold weather, and taken out in warmer spring days, if she can afford but one coat and two at least good street dresses. A fresh bright looking delaine, is always prettier than a shabby, soiled poplin or rusty silk. The latter is only fit for linings. No person of taste will ever make it into a dress, when so many nice fabrics as much cheaper and more beautiful abound in our shops. Make sure of the dress, hat, coat, and shoes first, and then look over your means and see what is left for trimmings. In no case buy the trimmings first. Your dresses can be made to look very handsomely without a particle, except what you can make of the scraps left in cutting them. Almost every young lady of prudence and forethought will find among her rolls pieces that can answer for sleeve lining and often for facings; while very prudent, savings girls will neatly rip apart wash and roll up all good-fitting linings of worn-out dresses. But never a bad fitting lining. It is discomfort enough to wear out the dress over it. Do not be to proud or lazy to piece a lining where a little labor of that kind would save you a dime. With all your skill you will scarcely equal the economy of the beautiful dressed French lady, who would look with amazement at what to her would seem our vulgar American wastefulness. Never fancy that waste is genteel. It is quite the reverse, and considered by the well bred to indicate a very low origin.

Calculate your money with pencil and paper before you spend it. It will be a great saving to you, and will save you the dissatisfaction of knowing that all is gone, and you have "nothing to show for it."

Several nicely made calico dresses, one at least very light, will be a source of satisfaction and comfort all the year round They out but little and everytime they are "done up, come out again as fresh as new. There are many occasions in the country when nothing else is so suitable, but often a nice dress is worn and spoiled because no nice calico that "can be washed without spoiling" is on hand.—American paper.

A Good Temperance Story.

Judge Ray, the temperance lecturer, in one of his efforts, got off the following hit at "moderate drinkers:"

"All those who in youth acquire a habit of drinking whiskey for years, will be total abstainers or drunkards. No one can use whiskey for years with moderation. If there is a man in the audience whose experience disputes this, let him make it known. I will account for it, or acknowledge that I labor under a mistake."

A tall, large man arose, and folding his arms across his breast, said:

"I offer myself as one whose own experience contradicts your statement."

"Are you a moderate drinker?" asked the Judge.

"I am."

"How long have you drank in moderation?"

"Forty years."

"And were you never intoxicated?"

"Never."

"Well," remarked the Judge, scaning his subject closely from head to toe, "yours is a singular case; yet I think it easily accounted for. I am reminded by it of a little story. A colored man with a bottle of whiskey and a loaf of bread sat down on the edge of a clean stream. In breaking the bread he dropped of the crumbs into the water. These were eagerly seized and eaten by the fish. The circumstance suggested to the darkey the idea of dipping the bread into the whiskey and feeding it to them. He tried it. It worked well. Some of the fish ate of it and became drunk, and floated helplessly on the surface. In this way he easily caught a large number. But in the stream was a very large fish very unlike the rest. It partook freely of the bread and whiskey with no perceptable effect. It was shy of the darkey to take it. He resolved to have it at all hazards, that he might learn its name and nature. He procured a net, and after much effort caught it, carried it to a colored neighbor, and asked his opinion in the matter. The latter surveyed the wonder a moment and said:

Sambo, I understand dis case, dis fish is a mullet head, it ain't got any brain!" In other words, added the Judge, "alcohol affects only the brains, and of course those having none may drink without injury."

The storm of laughter which followed drove the "moderate drinker," suddenly from the house.

Down on Him.

On one occasion Lorenzo Dow, while preaching, took the liberty of denouncing a rich man in the community, recently deceased. The result was an arrest, a trial for slander, and imprisonment in the county jail. After Lorenzo got out of his "limbo," he announced that, in spite of this (in my opinion) unjust punishment, he should preach at a given time, a sermon about "another rich man." The populace was greatly excited, and crowded audience greeted his appearance. With great solemnity he opened the Bible and read, "And there was another rich man who died and went——;" then stopped short and seemed suddenly impressed. "Brethren, I shall not mention the place this rich man went to for fear he has some relatives in this congregation who will sue me for defamation of character."

Of all the pangs of which humanity is susceptible, jealously is the worst; for most frequently it is an effect without a cause—a monster engendered in the imagination of its victim; and feeding alike upon its heart and brain, it withers the rose upon the cheek of beauty, dethrones reason from its Judgment seat, and gives the rein to passions; it is the punishment of Tantalus, without his crime. To the jealous mind madness would be a relief, and death a blessing; it takes a monster's pleasure in its torments, and adds to their intensity by the ingenious skill with which it addduces proofs from air-drawn nothings adding fuel to the flame by which it suffers. Jealously is a position against which persuasion and argument are equally vain; the proofs which convince but tend to confirm its fatal error.

Editorial Items.

The Young Men's Christain Association will resume their ordinary weekly meetings on Monday evening next, the 12th inst. A full attendance of members is requested.

LUMBER FOR SALE.—We would call attention to the sale of lumber on the 12th instant, on the School lot, London street. The lumber is dry, and will be sold in quantities to suit purchasers. Remember the day, Monday next, 12th instant.

ALARM OF FIRE.—On Tuesday morning about 4 o'clock, an alarm of fire was given, and several citizens turned out of bed at that early hour to find that a house on Charlotte street, occupied by some French people, had been on fire, but the fire was extinguished. The fog, at the time, was so dense that nothing could be seen at a distance of a few rods. The extent of damage, we believe, was not great.

The Protestant Home Committee acknowledge with thanks, the sum of $20 from St. Andrews Church.—Also the sum of $24, 34 cents less 95 cents discount, sent through by Mr. Wm. Eastland, being proceeds of a collection made in St John's Church on Sunday, the 21st August.

We would again draw the attention of our readers to the Fall Show of the Horticultural Society, which will be held next Wednesday, the 14th inst. In addition to the usual prizes, the Society have offered special prizes to non-members exhibiting Poultry, Ladies work, fine arts, &c. A promenade concert will also be held in the evening, at which the Band of the 57th Battalion will be present.

Mr. Robert Patterson and others, whose name we cannot recollect, intend exhibiting some birds from eggs imported from the best prize takers in England and Ireland. They are of different varieties and it will be well worth a visit to the exhibition to seethem. They are all purebreeds which is more than can be said of the the birds too often shown.

The Committee of the Protestant Home acknowledge with thanks the following donations for August:—Mrs. Wallis, two beadsteads; Mrs. W. G. Thompson, basket of vegetables; Mrs. R. Hamilton, parcel of clothing; Monnal, basket of apples and beets; Mrs. McDonnell, cucumbers; Mr. White, shank of beef; Miss Nicholls, parcel of clothing; Mr. Fairweather, parcel of remnants; from the St. Andrews S. S. pic-nic, basket of bread, butter, tea and sugar; Mrs. Beck, basket of potatoes and tomatoes, corned beef; from a friend, a package of cups and saucers with a stand for the cellar; Mrs. Edwards a bag of apples; fron a friend, a parcel of new pieces of cloth for patching a quilt; from Mrs. Kirkpatrick a table and bookcase.

THE FAIR.—On Tuesday last the usual crowd of lads and lasses from the surrounding country, and a goodly number of more advanced years, found their way to our good town to the fair. There were but few cattle or horses offered for sale.—Prices asked for milch cows ranged from $30 to $50. We are not sure that the latter price was realized. Good cows, however, bring from $35 to $40. The dealers in horse flesh were not numerous, and except in the trading line very few changed hands. Whiskey changed casks rapidly in the evening, and in its altered position showed fight at various whiskey stations. Constables Arnott and Howden had quite a busy time of it, and the lock-up had a few inmates for the night as the result of the day.

The Mayor yesterday morning fined five of these $3, and one, a boy 14 or 15 years, not being able to pay, was sent up for 21 days.

OVER FOND OF A RIDE.—John Fitzgibbon of our sister village, got over much forty rod and imagined he must become a John Gilpin. With this intent he took a horse belonging to Mr. Ferguson of Dummer, out of a tavern shed, and proceeded to carry out his desire, but was caught too soon. Mr. Ferguson took his horse from the youth, on which he threatened to put six holes in him, and presented a pistol at him. Mr. Howden spoiled the fun by coming up when he took the river, swam across, and proceeded through the Rev. M. Burnham's orchard, but was caught and sent to jail for the night, as he was too wet to remain in the lock up.

A number of young men who came to town to enjoy themselves seemed to be spoilin for a baten; and some of them showed signs of their folly by bloody proboscos and faces, cut heads, &c. And not a few were to be seen by the wayside not able to proceed, still happy apparently. A few of them acknowledged the corn, and admitted they had taken a little too much. Not far from that splendid edifice, the Pound, in Ashburnham, one of the imbibers gave up, and his tender spouse had to wait a while for him, and true to woman's nature, she was ready to excuse him in every way. He had been sick and came to town for medicine. His brother had been unwell, he came to see him; and last of all summer complaint had been doing its work, and he had just taken a little as medicine. The animal, however, was not put in the Pound; he still remained stretched on the grass. It is really a shame to see young men making fools of themselves on fair days; and on such days in future we hope the mayor will put on special constables, and make those who kick up such rows as were on Tuesday pay the piper for their madness.

MISSIONARY MEETINGS, DEARNEY OF NORTHUMBERLAND—Peterboro, September 13; Lakefield, Sept. 14; Otonabee, Sept. 15; Westwood, Norwood and Hastings, Sept. 16.

THE WAR.

The unexpected course of events since the commencement of the present war, takes almost all by surprise.

It is scarcely one month since Napoleon declared war on Prussia, and to-day he is a prisoner in the hands of the Prussians. A strange fatality seems to have accompanied every act of the Imperial authority and his generals. Although he is first to declare war, he is not first in invading the country of his enemy, nor had he the number of men, nor yet the efficient and complete preparations that Bismarck had. The French have been overwhelmed in every engagement, and at a fearful sacrifice of men the Prussians have driven the French into their fortresses, or captured them on the field.

McMahon, the bravest of the brave, is dead. His first engagement with the Prussians at Woerth was disastrous. Bazaine, to whom was committed command of the French army, was beaten after days hard fighting at Metz, and was compelled to retreat within the fortress, where he is still forced to remain, although he has made two most daring attempts to get away.

Strasburg is also in a state of siege.—Chalons, the great camp of the French army, has long since been abandoned by the Emperor and Canrobert. McMahon is dead, and nowhere is there an army to oppose the victorious arms of the Germans.

The last great effort to retrieve the waning fortunes of the Emperor were made by McMahon with 120,000 men. He attempted to outflank the Prussians by passing northward along the Belgian frontier, hoping to avoid the Germans, and thus regain connection with Bazaine and raise the siege of Metz. He was disappointed, however, and met by the Crown Prince, Prince Charles and Steinmetz, he was forced to fight at Montmedy. The contest commenced on Sunday week and continued almost without interruption till Wednesday. All that courage, valour, military skill, daring and perseverance could attempt, McMahon tried, but overwhelmed against by numbers he was forced to succumb, but not until dangerously wounded. The Emperor was with him at the time and gave himself up a prisoner of war to the King of Prussia. At the same time 120,000 men became prisoners. McMahon was taken in some way across the Belgian frontier, and is reported dead at Namur. Reports still represent the Crown Prince as marching on Paris.

No sooner is Napoleon a prisoner than the Empress leaves Paris, and a Republic is immediately declared, with Gen. Trochu President. The new government declares its determination to continue the war while a Prusian soldier is in France, but certainly with slim hopes of success. Nothing short of one million well equipped and well trained men need attempt to drive the Prussians out of the country.

Late telegrams lead to the conclusion that Jules Favre, one of the new Government, is with the King of Prussia, perhaps to offer terms of peace. Prussia declared it was not against France she made war, but against Napoleon. They have Napoleon, and if the Republic is willing to lay down arms and make reasonable concessions a pence may not be far distant. If not their city is in danger, under present circumstances it appears to be madness to attempt to defend it, as by doing so would cause its destruction. Another week will reveal the course events are likely to take.

Spain has also declared for a Republic, but we have not received information to enable us to lay any outlines of the events before our readers.

Italy is also in a troubled state, a week may bring almost a revolution there. The troops of the Emperor are not at Rome, Austria does not care what becomes of the Pope. Spain is engaged in her own affairs, and the French Republic has enough to a do to mind its own affairs. The Italians will have Rome for the capital of Italy.

What important events are transpiring in those countries that have so long prevented the progress of liberty, and stamped out every attempt to elevate man!

Few are prepared to predict the end of these revolutions now in progress, and what ere long may follow.

Haliburton Railway.

From a report of a meeting held last week, in the Review, we learn that the provisional directors propose (again) to extend the above road by way of Buckhorn, approaching Chemong Lake at the most convenient point.

They also propose laying down an iron rail from the town to Chemong Lake.

The distance is set down at 60 miles, and the estimated cost, per mile, including rolling stock, $5,000.

To raise the necessary means, bonuses are proposed from Peterboro, $25,000, with an additional $15,000 in the event of the iron rail being laid to the Lake, and $60,000 will be required from the municipalities north of Buckhorn.

It is also proposed to ask government aid to the extent of guaranteeing 3 per cent on half the cost of the road for 20 years, and then to issue bonds for the half cost of construction. That would be equivalent to asking $4,500 a year for 20 years from the government.

Messrs. W. H. Scott, F. Beamish, Geo. Read, W. A. Scott, J. Stevenson and J. Carnegie, Jr., were appointed a committee to confer with the Peterborough Railway Committee, and to take such action as they may deem expedient.

The Provisional Board then elected J. Carnegie, Jr., President., Lieut.-Col. Williams, 1st Vice-President, Mr. C. J. Blomfield, Secretary, and Mr. Jas. Stevenson, Treasurer.

Railway Committee.

At a meeting of the Railway Committee on Friday evening, a committee consisting of Messrs. W. H. Scott, Dumble, Cluxton and Carnegie was appointed to draft a report to be presented to the ratepayers, according to a resolution passed at the meeting held in the Music Hall about two weeks since.

At the meeting it was agreed to submit, that the prospects of the early construction of the Haliburton Railway are such as to warrant the Town in taking active steps to further the project, and they recommend the Town to move in the matter.

The report is also to recommend the Town Council to submit a By-law to the ratepayers, offering to give a bonus of $40,000 in cash or debentures towards the construction of the road providing an iron rail be laid to Chemong Lake: and provided also, that the iron rails be of the guage of the Midland Railway, and that the company afford running rights over them to Chemong Lake to the Midland Railway or to any other Railway that may reach Peterboro from the front; and should any other Railroad require additional accommodation, the Haliburton Company will provide it upon being indemnified therefor; provided also that all trains coming south of Buckhorn shall come through to Peterboro, and all trains proceeding to or through Buckhorn shall start from Peterboro; and that at least a train a day, freight and passenger, be run from Peterboro and Dysart.

The debentures to be paid one half on completion of the purchase of the right of way and grading the road to the Lake, and the other half upon receiving security on the iron for eight miles of the road. That if the by-law be passed it shall depend on the government and others, and having procured sufficient to warrant the company to commence the work; and that the by-law be inoperative unless the work be commenced before the first of July, 1871. The committee also recommend an early offer of a bonus, so as to strengthen the hands of the company in asking for government aid.

We defer making any remarks until the report be submitted, and until we see what action the Town Council will take.

There can be no doubt but that if we get a road 60 miles north of us, for 40,000 or for $60,000, it will be the best spent money, ever spent by the town. It will effectually secure the trade of the north country to the town. It will prevent the extension of the Nipissing road, and it will ensure a large share of the traffic to the extreme north-west of the Ottawa valley, now costing so much for extended land travel.

No time should be lost in securing those things that are so much desired.

LITERARY NOTICES.

New books:—"Health by Good Living," is the title of a work just issued from the press by McClear & Co., Toronto. It is written by W. Hall, M. D., editor of "Hall's Journal of Health," and will be found, to the attentive reader, a valuable guide to good Health. It treats in order of the dietary principles that regulate health in regard to time, quality, quantity, and regularity of taking food, and also of the result of violating the great principles that lead to health, in the proper use of food. The book, if its teachings be attended to, will prove a valuable companion to all who desire to understand the philosophy of good health through careful living and proper food.

It is only one dollar and can be had at Mr. Kidd's book store, Peterboro.

Minden.

INTER-MUTUAL PICNIC.—One of those pleasant reunions of the people of the township of Minden and those of Dysart took place on Saturday last on a pretty islet in the Minden portion of Lake Kushogawigamog. At quite an early hour waggon loads of pleasure seekers, with flags flying, left from around about Minden Village for the boats in waiting at the "foot-of-the-lake," hence for the island. Just so from Haliburton, the little "propeller" of Capt. Wastell left, decorated with flags, for the same rendezvous. From near noon until 6 p. m., the good folks enjoyed themselves after the usual manner of pic-nics.

The extras may be said to be, Roast foul, partridges, ham, hot corn and potatoes, pickles. New apples and melons also among the after dinner delicacies. Mr. Wesley of Haliburton, sang some comic pieces, whilst Mr. Cashmore and Mr. E. Peck gave instrumental music. The whole was under the direction of S. S. Peck, Esq. and Messrs. C. D Carry, W. Garrat, J. L. Young, and of course, ladies too. Such joyful and proper intercourse between rival townships must do good. Indeed all parties separated hoping for another such scene, quickly to come to pass.

The Son of Louis Napoleon is said to be in London.

The flies are injuring the cattle very much in several parts of the country.

THE EUROPEAN WAR.

(Special to the Examiner.)

BELGIUM, August 31.—Fearful battle was fought yesterday and to-day, with the armies of the Crown Prince and Prince Frederick Charles, with the forces of Marshal McMahon. He was attacked from Beaumont and driven back after an obstinate resistance, towards the Belgian frontier. They drove the French from position after position until night closed.—Early this morning the battle was renewed, and continued all day. During the night large numbers of French reinforcements came up, but they failed to turn the scale of victory. Prussians also reinforced largely and attacked in overwhelming numbers.

McMahon retreated to Sedan with the remainder of his forces. The slaughter was immense; impossible to estimate the loss.

It is rumored that that the 6th Leopold Belgian Dragoons charged and captured a body of Prussian infantry this morning.

N. Y. 1—Private despatches from Paris say no news has been received here of any decisive battle, nor is it believed that one has been fought. McMahon simply telegraphs that he has crossed the Muse without being harrassed by the Prussians.

Other accounts say there was a series of heavy fighting by detached portions of Mc Mahons and Crown Prince's armies, with severe losses.

LONDON 1.—There is an unverified rumor that McMahon is crossing the Muse at Stenway, and pushing for Montmedy.

A collision between him and Prince F. Charles is expected.

Garde mobile is hurrying to the defense of Paris.

The Paris public admits the spuriousness of Bazaine's telegraphs.

World's London correspondent telegraphs that serious outbreaks have occurred in various parts of Southern France and Brittany against persons suspected of German sympathies.

Should the French Emperor cross the Belgian frontier, the guards of that country were ordered to demand his sword.

Independence Belge, of Brussels, of yesterday, says, McMahon, while on the heights of Vaux, on Tuesday, advancing to Montmedy, was attacked by Germans and flung back with dreadful carnage. This region of country is now absolutely depopulated.

Bavarians are returning home and disbanding.

Mutiny has occurred among some of the regiments of the Bavarian Landwehr.

N. Y. 1st.—It is reported here that a fresh battle commenced to-day, in the direction of Sedan. McMahon occupies strong position.

N. Y. 2nd.—The Worlds cable reports another tremendous battle yesterday, before Sedan. McMahon with inferior forces is disputing every inch of the ground with desperate valor. Palikao said to day McMahon has not suffered nearly as much as the Germans, and fighting continues several days in the same region. Parisians believe McMahon is able to hold Germans at bay till the army at Lyons, 150,000 strong, can be brought into action.

Tribune's correspondent at Paris writes Wednesday evening and says: Ministers decline to promise that perfects guilty of exasperating the mob against Protestants shall be dismissed. In such matters, the power of the Empress is supreme; she favors religious persecution even in this crisis.

Special correspondent of Tribune writes from Berlin Monday—Prussians within fortnight have surveyed and built a tramway from Remily to Pont a Mousson, and a bridge over Moselle avoiding Metz, saving 20 miles.

Whether battles of Beamont and Carignan were fought the same day or successive days seems doubtful, but the result it not doubtful. McMahon has been caught with his army astride the Muse, attacked by superior forces on both sides, and beaten. He was already attempting to retreat, finding the enemy on his flank, and his communications threatened by Germans, he wasted no time, but attacked wherever he could find the enemy.

Crown Prince of Saxony held the right bank of Muse while 3 Saxon or Bavarian corps advanced on Bescancy.

Battle of Carignan official details of which are wanting—was apparently most important. It was fought under the Emperors eye. McMahon commanded in person. Defeat was followed by a route and apparently a hot Prussian pursuit. McMahon could only fall back on Sedan. Belgian frontier is only a few miles off.

Strong detachments are expected from the Crown Prince near Rheims, to complete the environment of McMahon's remaining forces.

French official accounts represent McMahon retreating either on Sedan or Mezieres.

"Tribune" correspondent telegraphs from Leicestershire, Saturday noon. There was fighting on Monday this morning. There is no reliable French at Rethel, they were driven out. Between there and the enemy severe engagement occurred.

Prussians turned the French right necessitating a retreat on Sedan, during which they again renewed the fight on Tuesday, when they were driven from the fortress.

[illegible] telegraphs to the department of [illegible] that the empire is ended, and that [illegible] is in [illegible] Paris.

LONDON 2nd. Prince Imperial ordered at once with the [illegible] total number of prisoners by the surrender reaches 120,000.

PARIS, 4th.—The story of the capture of the Emperor was freely circulated but not credited, it was reported that a dictatorship would be announced and that a secret meeting was being held.

N. Y., 5th. The Courrier de Estate this morning accepts surrender of Sedan as termination of war and says it will be useless for France to make further resistance.

A speci telegram from Brussels states that 12,000 French troops, with cannons, eagles, and 1,200 horses, had crossed the Belgian frontier and laid down their arms. Demand has been made upon Montauedy, but refused.

Another despatch states the cellars of Strasburg had been inundated by the rising of the Rhine, causing great suffering and destruction of property. The magnificent cathedral is certainly partially destroyed.

Empress Eugenie having received assurances that she will not be treated as a prisoner, has consented to join her husband and son.

Gen. Trochu will at once be made temporary dictator, and the city will be defended to the last.

Paris 5.—An enormous crowd is now about corps legislatif building, and demand "Decheance," which means that the empire has forfeited its existence.

It is reported McMahon is dead.

PARIS, 3 p. m.—It is now impossible to reach the corps legislatif, owing to enormous crowds surrounding the building.

It is reported that the vote on Decheance has been carried by, yeas 187—nays none.

Later, the crowds are beginning to tear down the Imperial arms from the front of shops. There are fears that this may lead to serious trouble, as the National Guards are not inclined to permit any disorders. One hundred thousand citizens are massing to corps legislatif, surrounding the building amid the hurrah of the countless masses which are filling every avenue leading to the hall.

PARIS, 5th.—Mobs continue to tear down signs containing imperial arms and mandates. In some cases people have climbed up highest stories to tear off the Theatres the word Imperial.

WASHINGTON 5th.—The following official despatch has just been received at legation of North Germany:—Emperor Napoleon having declared that his captivity prevents him from negotiating peace, the French government being at Paris, war will be continued.

Paris 5.—Republic has been proclaimed in all large cities. Paris is quiet.

London, 5.—Count Bismarck telegraphs officially to Ledsea, says,—I have spoken with the Emperor about peace, but he has no power, and that all depends on the Regency in Paris. The capture of the Emperor has no influence on the continuation of the war.

Paris 5.—"Journal Official publishes the following: The French people have demanded a republic. It has placed its representatives not in power, but in peril.

The following proclamation has been issued:—Citizens of Paris,—The Republic is proclaimed. A government has been appointed by acclamation. Gen. Trochu is entrusted with full military power. He has been called to presidency of the government.

LONDON, 5th.—Daily News says Jules Favre has already made peace with Prussia.

Times and other morning papers accept revolution with favor, as clear expression of national will.

French army has been ordered to retire on Paris. Prussians have entered Rheims.

N. Y.—"Tribune's" correspondent has had a private interview with Bismarck at Sedan. In reference to his enquiry what were likely to be the conditions of peace, the Count replied, There were three courses open. 1st—We might make Alsace and Loraine a neutral state like Luxemburg or Belgium, extending from former county to Switzerland, and so separating France and Prussia by a group of neutral states, but I confess it appears to me that neutrality of the existing small states is already so difficult to protect, that I do not think it would be worth while to make more neutral states.

2nd. We might take Lorraine and Alsace and hold it as conquest territory, but I am sure that it would not be looked on favorably by majority of my countrymen.

3rd. To take Metz and Strasburg, and to keep them we shall do. Strasburg particularly, is absolutely needful for protection of South Germany, which is at the mercy of French army. Now it would be unfair were we to leave our South German brethern unprotected, after they have fought so bravely, and well, by our side in the campaign. Then again, by holding Strasburg we could always prevent any movement on the Rhine; we should be able not only to march an army on Paris, but to take a French army marching on Meyence or Coblentz in flank and rear, and as we have besieged Strasburg vigorously and when we have got the old German work back, we hold make a Gibraltar of it.

LONDON 7th. English government has agreed not to mediate settlement, but through Lord Lyons and Lord Loftus it has assured the governments of its anxiety at any moment to act as common arbitrator.

Official documents from German authorities at Sedan, state that the Emperor was under fire of Prussian guns several hours.

The [illegible] of Napoleon without any [illegible] on the battle field.

N. Y. 7th.—By the [illegible] from Sedan, the Sedan correspondent [illegible] At 11:30 the Emperor [illegible] Bismarck took possession of the Citadel. Bismarck took possession of the Citadel. Bismarck took possession of the Citadel.

We, the undersigned, have given Workman's Improved Harrow a fair trial, and consider it the very best for work and clearing itself of stones that ever we have witnessed.

I have given Workman's Improved Harrow an impartial trial, and consider it just the Harrow for us Farmers. I have made a number of Harrows and worked with a number, but I must say that Workman's Improved Harrow is the best I have ever seen in use.

We entirely agree with the above.

I consur in the above statement, having seen it tried to my satisfaction.

HUGH DAVIDSON.

Balsam Grove, Peterboro, August 31, 1870.

MR. MILLAR,

Dear Sir: I have tried Workman's Patent Harrow and find it superior to anything of the kind I have seen yet, for several reasons. 1st, It will do double the amount of work with the same draft of an ordinary harrow. 2nd, It is strong and durable. 3rd, The teeth bolted on to the side of the bulk with two bolts, and the plain cusp, is a great improvement on it; steel teeth are preferable to iron. 5th, You can hitch to either end, which of course is a great advantage to the teeth. 6th, It is well adapted for clearing itself on stony or soddy ground.

Yours respectfully,

JOHN WALTON

To MESSRS. CHAMBERLAIN & SELLS, Conway P.O County of Lennox, Ontario, Canada

Madoc, County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th., 1869

This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ancles, which gradually during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on up to my hips, and I became so weak that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two years, while this weakness was coming on me, and afterwards, I sought medical advice, employing, at different times, three doctors, and medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, but of no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoshonees Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had begun to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshonees Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was not a private one, but known to all my neighbors and friends; and to any one afflicted as I was, I have only to say try the Shoshonees Remedy; I believe it will cure you,

MARY ANN DOUGHTY.

Sworn to before me at Madoc, County of Hastings, this ninth day of February, 1869.

A. F. WOOD, J. P. &c.

I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshonees Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.

Poetry.

RUM.

BY R. C. KENT.

Away with the poison'd cup,
Away with the treach'rous bowl,
For in their many depths
Lurks danger to the soul,
Trust not the charms that there abound
But cast the wine-cup to the ground.

Away with the deadly curse,
For death within it lies;
For poor depraved humanity
Make one small sacrifice.
Heed not the charms that dwell around
But cast the wine-cup to the ground.

Away with the fiery foe
Who stalks with giant stride,
Slaying with his right hand
His victims far and wide,
Let not the goblet thus decoy,
That sparkles only to destroy.

Away with the tyrant king,
Nor yet his triumphs swell;
His kingdom is the world—
His throne the court of hell
Weave not for him a lasting wreath
Whose only victory is death.

Don't Give Up, But Try.

A gentleman travelling in the northern part of Ireland, heard the voices of children, and paused to listen.

Finding the sound proceeded from a small building used as a school-house he drew near; and as the door was opened, he entered, and listened to the words the boys were spelling.

One little fellow stood apart, looking sad and dispirited.

"Why does that boy stand there?" asked the gentleman.

"Oh he is good for nothing!" replied the teacher. "There's nothing in him. I can make nothing of him. He is the most stupid boy in school."

The gentleman was surprised at this answer. He saw that the teacher was so stern and rough that the younger and more timid boys were nearly crushed. He said a few words to them, then placing his hands upon the noble brow of the little fellow who stood apart, he said, "one of these days you may be a fine scholar. "Dont give up," but try, my boy, TRY."

The soul of the boy was aroused. His dormant intellect awoke. A new purpose was formed. From that hour he became studious and ambitious to excel. And he did become a fine scholar, and the author of a well-known commentary on the bible; a great and good man, beloved and honored. It was Dr. Adam Clarke. The secret of the success is worth knowing: "Don't give up, but try, my boy."

The Seventh Murder in a Remarkable Family War.

The city was startled on Saturday afternoon by a report that Col. Thomas Dickens had been waylaid and murdered a few miles from the city. The report proved true, and the morning papers of yesterday presented the substantial particulars which are briefly as follows:—After staying all Friday night with John C. Bolton, on Big Creek, six miles northeast of Raleigh, Col. Dickens started for home on horseback very early in the morning. The road lay through and across Hutchie Bottom, a dark and unfrequented expanse of dense forest. He had not been gone long when two shots were heard, and in a few moments his horse ran back to Bolton's store a few of the neighbors were summoned and on proceeding to the road they found Colonel Dickens dead at the road side. He was riddled with buckshot, and had evidently been shot twice with a double-barrel shot-gun—once while on his horse at very short range, and once after he fell to the ground. No clue was found to the identity of the assassin or assassins Col Dickens has usually gone armed, but on this occasion it seems he was unarmed. The event created a profound sensation in the country as well as the city. Sheriff Wright at once despatched some of his faithful deputies to the scene to gather such information as could be had and to take steps accordingly

The family war which has raged between the Dickens and some of the Boultons for some years is part of the history of Shelby County known to every old citizen, but whether Col. Dickens' death had any direct connection with the strifes in which he formerly engaged is barely a matter of conjecture, in which we are not inclined to indulge. It is easy to jump at conclusions, but furnishing proof is not always done with equal facility. The Bible says "he that liveth by the sword shall perish by the sword,"

Since the origin of the Dickens Boulton war the following persons connected directly or indirectly with one party or or another have been killed; First, McMillan, a Kentuckian, killed 1857; next a man named Wilson and a colored servant girl named Nancy in the service of Colonel Dickens, killed eighteen months ago by two desperadoes, as was believed, named Inman and Morgan. These men in turn were tracked to a cave in a remote region of North Alabama, and killed; a year ago, or a little longer, Colonel Dickens killed Wade Bolton in front of Court Square, and was subsequently acquitted; and the death of Colonel Dickens now at the hands of unknown person, makes the seventh consecutive tragedy. It is remarkable that in this bloody catalogue not one person has been convicted in the courts It is reasonable to suppose that money has been freely used to suppress or produce important evidence.

CHESS PIE.—Four eggs, two cups sugar one of cream, two thirds of a cup butter, one table spoonful of flour, flavor with nutmeg. When a delicate brown try with a spoon as for a custard. Mrs SAMUEL P. MAY, of Grimes County, Texas, says: "This is the best pie we ever ate." We have not tried it.

SAGO PUDDING.—One dozen tart apples one and a half cups sago—soak the sago in water till soft: peel and core the apples and place in a dish, fill the apples with sugar a very little cinnamon and nutmeg, pour the sago over and bake until the apples are cooked. Eat with hard sauce.

A correspondent of the Rural New Yorker recommends adding one pint of salt to every pailful of whitewash—He says this makes a covering "as hard as enamel and almost equal to paint.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this extraordinary medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. It combats the cause of Scrofulous disease, where the system is diseased, saturated with corruption, hard tumors purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which are aggravated by the scrofulous contamination in the blood, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or modus.

Scrofula is one of the most destructive enemies we have. Often, this unseen and unfelt guest of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed in and in throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops itself in one of its various forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or liver, or it shows itself in the skin, or foul ulcers [illegible] of the body. Hence the [illegible] seems to travel from [illegible] to part, [illegible] Sarsaparilla is admirable, even when no active symptoms of disease [illegible] with the following remarkable [illegible] relief, and, at last, [illegible] by the use of this SARSAPARILLA-[illegible] Ayer's Pills, Rose or Extract of Sarsaparilla, Ayer's Blood Purifier, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, Ayer's Ague Cure, and other compounds of [illegible] Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Pain, Liver Complaint, Neuralgia, and the various forms of [illegible] constitutional derangement.

The Great Battle Around Sedan.

The special correspondent of the New York Tribune, attached to the head quarters of the King of Prussia, writes a most graphic account of the series of contests that ended with the surrender of the Emperor and Gen. Mac-Mahon's army. The narrative has been telegraphed by cable in full, and appears in the Tribune of the 6th inst.

THE PURSUIT OF M'MAHON.

Up to Thursday evening, August 25, at 8 o'clock, we all thought that we were going to continue our march Pariswards, without turning to the right or left. But on Thursday evening, when the officers of the staff were at dinner, in the refector of the Lyceum at Bar-le-duc, an orderly came in with important news. Two officers jumped up from the table and rode off north in the direction of Clermont. The news that had come was indeed important, namely, that McMahon, who had quitted Chalons and taken up a very strong defensive position at Rheims, was in full march to relieve Bazaine at Metz.

Our route for next morning was therefore changed, and we started off for Clermont-en Argonne, to throw ourselves between McMahon and Steinmetz. After te hous marching, had quarters, and wretchedly cold wet weather, we reached the village of Grand Pre on Monday evening, Aug. 29.

On Tuesday morning I started early from Grand Pre, the King's head-quarters, to see the battle which was expected to take place on a line from the village of Stonne to Stenay, nearly midway, passing through Beaumont. McMahon was believed to be trying to push on to Metz according to his plan of catching Steinmetz between himself and Bazaine. But the Prussians were always just thirty-six hours in advance of McMahon from the time he left Rheims.

I had not gone far on my road to the front before I fell in with the Crown Prince's staff, his Royal Highness riding at the head of his aides-de-camp, in the plain uniform of a Prussian general, with no orders but the star "Pour la Merite," and the iron cross. For that matter, however, and Prussian officer who wears these two is not permitted to display any other. We rode slowly over the hills until we reached an eminence above the valley of the Bar, a small stream, which on the French maps is honoured as a river. On this hill we sat for a terribly long time, and I own I began to think we had come on a wild-goose chase. One well-known English correspondent created a small excitement by calling attention to a French shell, as he called it, bursting on a hill to our right. As this news, had it been true, would have shown that the French were getting between us and Metz, all glasses were instantly levelled at the smoke, which came from a dying camp-fire.

THE BATTLE BEGINS.

But at 12.15 o'clock there was suddenly a puff of white smoke from a hill about two miles in front of us, and before we had fairly time to turn our glasses on the hill a French battery of six guns opened on the Prussian columns advancing in the road below. So ineffectual, however, was their fire, that it was not thought advisable to send up a Prussian battery to reply; especially as we did not wish to let the enemy know what our forces was, and whether we were a corps d'armee or merely an advance guard. After a little more than half an hour's firing, the French batteries ceased to fire, limbered up, and retired down the hill to gain the highroad to Beaumont. Our scouts discovered that the French were in full retreat in the direction of Stonne, where they again took up a position later in the day; and that the cause of their rapid retreat on Stonne was the advance of our right wing, Prince Albert of Saxony in command, between Beaumont and the Muse, threatening to turn the flank of the French left on the ridge of the hill on which lies Stonne. The enemy made a stand, but the attack from the Prussian right was so determined that the French could offer no effectual resistance on this hill; yet they had a very strong position, somewhat resembling that occupied by them on the hill above Gravellote on the memorable 18th of August.

THE ARMY RISKED TO SAVE THE EMPEROR.

They had two mitrailleuses, and fired a dozen rounds or so, with what object it was difficult to discover. They were much too far from our most advanced columns to do the slightest mischief. Possibly they hoped to attract the attention of their own right flank. The Emperor was with them, and they may well enough have been nervous about his safety.

After some time one of the Prussian batteries advanced up the slope and shelled the Stonne road for half an hour, to see if they could get a reply. About 5 o'clock we advanced rapidly from our hill to that of Stonne. The columns climbing the slope, below the village, cheered loudly as the heir to the throne passed them. I was, I own, not very much inclined to cheer, as the Prince had been compelled by the nature of the ground to keep well away from any other point which could give us a good view of the right. In that direction we could hear heavy fighting which we could not see.

A FRENCH DIVISION SURPRISED IN CAMP.

However, when we got on the hill above Stonne, we had a capital view of nearly the whole of the right; and one aide-de-camp coming up with the news we soon learned what was passing there. A whole French division had been surprised near Beaumont in camp, and had fled, leaving all their tents and baggage. When I say "had fled," I mean all fled who could and whom the Prussians were not too quick for. More than 6,000 were made prisoners without striking a blow.

The peasants in the village told us that the Emperor had been there only two hours before the Prussian skirmishers entered it. This was confirmed by some prisoners taken. In the wood on our left, the troops that had been opposed to us had fallen back to the other side of the descent beneath us, and had occupied the sides of a narrow valley leading toward Rancourt. It was most important for the French to defend this valley, as had the Prussians been able to reach down it, they would have turned the French right flank, getting between its position at Mouzon, whither it had fallen back from Beaumont and the road to Sedan.

THE BATTLE OF BEAUMONT.

The French had concealed their skirmishers so well that we on the hill were astonished to hear independent firing suddenly begin as our foremost tirailleurs entered the the low ground and pushed up the Rancourt road. It was necessary for us to act vigorously, for the sun was sinking, and there was hardly an hour more of good light. "It is too late, too late," said one of the Staff to me; "had we got here at 2.30, instead of nearly 5.30, we could have forced that battery, and got down on the valley of the Meuse by Rancourt to Remilly, broken the bridge there, and so caught the French between the river and the troops.

"I wish I could understand clearly," I said, "what the French are trying to do this morning; are they trying still to advance toward Metz, or are they in retreat toward Sedan, having abandoned all hope of relieving Bazaine; in other words, are we fighting their advance guard or their rear guard?"

THE FRENCH ADVANCE BECAME A RETREAT.

"Both, my dear sir," answered this officer, who, though I did not then know it, being a stranger at the Crown Prince's head-quarters, was the Count Von Eulenberg himself. I believe, though no one is certain; for you have probably discovered that it does not do to interfere from ordinary rules what the French are doing. For my part, I believe they were thinking of going on towards Metz when the Barvarians surprised De Failly in camp near Beaumont. Now, of course, they are retreating on Sedan, and what was this morning meant for their advance-guard is now their rear-guard."

Meanwhile the Prussians had put two guns on a rise of ground from which they could shell the French skirmishers in the woods overhanging the valley leading to Rancourt. But soon their own skirmishers got so far forward that the guns had to cease firing for fear of hitting them. The skirmishers kept gaining ground, the French however struggling hard, knowing that they were lost if they let the enemy go down the valley.

BARVARIANS CHARGE ON THE MITRAILLEUSES.

To our right we could see the Barvarians forward of Remilly from Beaumont; but there the valley grew broader, and the French mitrailleuse did much execution, the Barvarians going in with great determination not waiting for the artillery to silence the mitrailleuses, but themselves dashing at the batteries.

It now became so dark that we could see by the flashes of the guns that the Barvarians were steadily advancing up the valley towards Remilly. At 7, and from 7 till 8, the fire from the mitrailleuses was very hot —not single explosions, but one continuous roar.

FRITZ HAVING THE RHEUMATISM RIDES HARD.

Soon after 8, the Crown Prince turned his horse's head, and we rode back to a little village named Vaux. As we came down the hill-side we had a most picture-que view of the regiments encamped about us. The bivouac-fires shone brightly out, the moon not having risen. As we passed through, the men came trooping out, leaving their cooking and their letters to give a cheer for Fritz, who, poor fellow, had the rheumatism, and dreading the night air, took us home at a tremendous rate over wild cross-roads, to the great danger of our horses knees and our own necks.

THE BATTLE OF SEDAN.

WHAT THE FRENCH PRISONERS SAY.

After their defeats on the 30th and 31st ult., the French retreated en masse on Sedan, and encamped around it. From what I learned from the French prisoners—of whom, as you may imagine, there was no lack in our quarter—it seems that they fully believed that the road to Mezieres would always be open to them, and that therefore, in case of another defeat before Sedan, their retreat would be easily accomplished.

A FORCED MARCH.

On the evening of Wednesday, from 5 to 8 o'clock, I was at the Crown Princes quarters at Chemery, a village some 13 miles from Sedan to the south-south-west on the main road. At half-past five we saw that there was a great movement among the troops encamped all around us, and we thought at first that the King was riding through the bivouacs: but soon the 37th regiment came pouring through the village, their band playing "Die wacht am Rhein," as they marched along with a swinging stride. I saw at once by the men's faces that something extraordinary was going on. It was soon plain that the troops were in the lightest possible marching order. All their knapsacks were left behind, and they nothing but cloaks slung around their shoulders, except that one or two bon vivants had retained their camp-kettles. But if the camp-kettles were left behind, the cartouche cases were there—hanging heavily in front of the men's belts, unbalanced, as they ought to be, by the knapsacks. Soon I learned that the whole Prussian corps—those lent from Prince Frederick Charles' army, the Second army and the Crown Prince's—were making a forced march to the left in the direction of Donchery and Mezieres, in order to shut in McMahon's army in the west, and so drive them against the Belgian frontier. I learned from the officers of the Crown Prince's staff that at the same time, while we were watching regiment after regiment passing through Chemery, the Saxons and the Guards, 80,000 strong, on the Prussian right, under Prince Albert of Saxony, were also marching rapidly to close on the doomed French army on the right bank of the Meuse, which they had crossed at Remilly on Tuesday, the 30th, in the direction of La Chapelle, a small village of 930 inhabitants on the road from Sedan to Bouillon in Belgium; and the last before crossing the frontier.

Anything more splendid than the men's marching it would be impossible to imagine. I saw men lame in both feet hobbling along in the ranks, kind comrades less footsore carrying their needle-guns. Those who were actually incapable of putting one foot before another, had pressed peasants' waggons and every available conveyance into service, and were following in the rear, so as to be ready for the great battle, which all felt sure would come off on the morrow. The Barvarians, who, it is generally believed, do not march so well as they fight, were in the centre, between us at Chemery and Sedan, encamped around the woods La Marlee, famous for a great battle in 1641, during the wars of the League. When I had seen the last regiment dash through—for the pace at which they went can really not be called "marching" in the ordinary sense—I rode off about a quarter past eight in the evening for Vendresse where the Kings headquarters were, and where I hoped to find house-room for man and beast, especially the latter, as being far the most important on the eve of a great battle.

When I got within about half a mile of Vendresse, going at a steady trot a sharp "Halt!" rang out through the clear air. I brought my horse to a stand-still, knowing that Prussia sentries are not to be trifled with. As I pulled up twenty yards off, I heard the clicks of their locks as they brought their weapons to full cock and covered me. My reply being satisfactory, I jogged on into soon forgotten sentinels, forced marches, and coming battles, one of us on the straw, the other on the floor.

THE START FOR THE BATTLE FIELD.

At seven Thursday morning my servant came to wake me, saying that the King's horses were harnessing, and that His Majesty would leave in half an hour for the battle field, and as a cannonade had already been heard near Sedan, I jumped up, seized crusts of bread, wine cigars, etc., and crammed them into my holster, taking my breakfast on the way.

Just as I got to my horse, King William drove out in an open carriage with four horses for Chevauge, about three and a half miles south of Sedan. Much against my will, I was compelled to allow the King's staff to precede me on the road to the scene of action, where I arrived myself soon after nine o'clock. It was impossible to ride fast, all the roads being blocked with artillery, ammunition waggons, ambulances, etc. As I rode sharply little grove I took burst Uniec the day ing was out "th In the k knoll on his staff whole valle the German. Louis XIV. st pond the great Frouchevel into goods, hilly forest of Ni the frontier. Right town of Sedan, famous by Vauban, as and the one—the great Marshal. as the place where sedan obs. As we are only about two an miles from the town we could easily gain its principal edifices without the of our field-glasses. On the left was a pretty church, its Gothic spire of sandstone offering a conspicuous target for the Prussian guns, had Gen. Make thought fit to bombard the town. To the right on the south-east of the church, was a large barrack, with the fortifications of the citadel. Beyond it and beyond this to the south-east again, was the old chateau of Sedan, with picturesque, round turreted towers of the sixteenth century, very useless even against four-pounder Krupp field-pieces. This building, I believe, is now arsenal. Beyond this was the citadel—the heart of Sedan, on a rising hill above the Meuse to the south-west, but completely commanded by the hills on both sides the river which runs in front of the citadel.

A GRAVE FRENCH BLUNDER.

The French had flooded the low meadows in the valley before coming to the railway bridge at Bazeilly, in order to stop the Germans from advancing on the town in that direction. With their usual stupidity (for no one can find no other word for it), the French had failed to mind the bridge at Bazeille, and it was of immense service to the Prussians throughout the battle. The Prussians actually threw up earthworks on the iron bridge itself to protect it from the French, who more than once attempted early in the day to storm the bridge, in the hope of breaking the Barvarian communication between the right and left banks of the Meuse. This they were unable to do; and although their cannon-shot had almost demolished the parapet, the bridge itself was never materially damaged.

POSITION OF THE CONTENDING FORCES.

On the projecting spurs of the hill, crowned by the woods of La Marfee of which I have already spoken, the Barvarians had posted two batteries of 6 pounder rifled breech-loading steel Kruppguns, which kept up a duello till the very end of the day with the siege guns of Sedan across the Meuse. Still further to the right flank, or rather to the east (of our line was a circular one a crescent at first, with Sedan in the centre like the star on the Turkish standard), was an undulating plain above the village of Bazeille. Terminating about a mile and a half from Sedan, at the woods near Rubecourt, midway—that is to say, in aline from Bazeille north—there is a ravine watered by a tiny brook which was the scene of the most desperate struggle and of the most frightful slaughter of the whole battle. This stream, whose name I have forgotten, if it ever had one, runs right behind the town of Sedan.

From the woods of Fleigreuse on the north behind the town rises a hill dotted with cottages and fruit-laden orchards, and crowned by the wood of La Givonne which runs down to the valley of which I have just spoken. Between this wood and the town were several French camps; their white shelter tents standing out clear among the dark fruit-trees. In these camps one could see throughout the day huge masses of troops which were never used. Even during the height of the battle, they stood as idle as Fitz John Porter's at the Second Battle of Bull-Run. We imagined they must have been undisciplined Garles Mobiles whom the French General dared not bring out against their enemy.

To the Prussian left of these French camps, separated from them by a wooded ravine, was a long bare hill, something like one of the hills on Long Island. This hill on which was some of the hardest fighting of the day, formed one of the keys of the position of the French army. When once its crests were covered with Prussian artillery, the whole of Sedan was completely at the mercy of the German guns, as they were not only above the town, but the town was almost within musket range of them.

Still further to the left lay the village of Illy, set on fire early in the day by the French shells. South of this the broken railway bridge, blown up by the French to protect their right, was a conspicuous object.

Right above the railway bridge on the line to Mezieres was the wooded hill crowned by the new and most hideous "chateau" as he calls it, of one Monsieur Pave. It was here the Crown Prince and his staff stood during the day, having a rather more extensive but less central view, and therefore less desirable than ours, where stood the King, Count Bismarck, Von Roon; the War Minister, Gen. Moltke, Gens. Sherdian and Forsyth—to say nothing of your correspondent.

THE PRUSSIAN PLAN OF BATTLE.

Having thus endeavoured to give some faint idea of the scene of what is in all probability the decisive battle of the war, I will next give an account of the position of the different corps at the commencement of the action, promising that all the movements were all of the simplest possible nature, the object of the Prussian Generals being merely to close the crescent of troops with which they began into a circle by effecting a junction between the Saxon corps on their right and the Prussian corps on their left. This junction took place about noon near the little village of Olley, on the Bazeille ravine, behind Sedan, of which I have already spoken. Once their terrible circle formed and well soldered together, it grew steadily smaller and smaller, until the fortifications of Sedan itself were entered.

On the extreme right were the Saxons—one corps d'armee, with King William's Guards; also, a corps d'armee in reserve behind them. The Guards had suffered terribly at Gravelotte, where they met the Imperial Guards; and the King would not allow them to be again so cruelly decimated, Justice compels me to state that this arrangement was very far from being pleasing to the Guards themselves, who are ever anxious to be in the forefront of the battle.

The Guards and Saxons, then about 75,000 strong, were all day on the right bank of the Muse, between Rubecourt and La Chapelle, at which latter village Prince Albert of Saxony, who was in command of the two corps which have been formed into a little extra army by themselves, passed the night of Thursday.

The ground from Rubecourt to the Muse was occupied by the first Bavarian Corps. The second Bavarian Corps extended their front from near the Bazeille railway bridge to a point on the highroad from Donchery to Sedan, not far from the little village of Torcy. Below the hill on which the Crown Prince was placed, the ground from Torcy to Illy, through the large village of Floing was held by the first and third Prussian corps belonging to the army of Prince Frederick Charles, and temporarily attached to the army of the Crown Prince.

This was the position of the troops about 9 o'clock on Thursday morning, Sept. 1, and no great advance took place till later than that, for the artillery had to do all the work to do. Still further to the left, near Donchery, there was 20,000 Wurtembergers ready to cut off the French from Mezieres in case of their making a push for that fortress.

The Otonabee Fall Show will be held in Keene on 21st of October.

Riel and O'Donoghue escaped to Pembina ere the troops reached Fort Garry.

The population of the Village of Hastings is 864. The denizens look forward to becoming incorporated.

CORRECTION.—The South Monaghan Fall Show will be held on the 14th of October, not on the 15th, as stated last week by mistake.

Accident.—Timothy McAuliffe, of Ashburnham, [illegible] waggon of Hughson & Campbell, ... Saturday, and received injuries of which he died next morning. He was on his way with others to drive saw logs. The party were joyful at the time of the accident.

Brantford has decided by a vote of 571 to 4 to grant a bonus of $30,500 to the Grand Trunk R. R. Company towards erecting a large work shop in that town. And also $75,000 to assist the Great Western to construch a branch line from Harrisburgh.

ITALY.—Victor Emmanuel is marching on Rome, and the cardinals advise that the papal forces offer no resistance. The fact is resistance would be useless. An effort will be made to guarrantee the future status of the Pope. The Roman states will be annexed to the Kingdom of Italy.

The new iron plated steamer Captain belonging to Great Britain, was lost on the 9th inst., off Cape Finisterre; 500 persons on board were all lost. Capt. Cowper Coles, Lord Northbrook and a son of Mr. Childers, first Lord of the admiralty, went down with the iron clad.

STEAM FIRE ENGINE.—The very largely signed petition of ratepayers in another column leave the Council no excuse. The expressed wish of the people is to have a steam fire engine, good hose and a few water tanks, and the committee to whom the whole is entrusted will no doubt see to the matter in good earnest.

We call the attention of our readers to the entertainment in the Music Hall, on Monday evening next. A. Melville Bell, well known in Britain, and in Canada, as a popular reader of no common ability, and as the author of several excellent works on the principles of Elocution, is to give one of his "evenings with Scottish Authors." We have heard Mr. Bell compared favorably with Vanderhoff, and others of his class, and can promise a treat to all who can make it convenient to attend.

We trust that no time will be lost in procuring a steam fire engine, any one that has attended the fires that have occurred for years will readily admit that another engine is required, and we might add, should their not be a Hook and Ladder company? the services of such a body of men is also needed. Also, an officer whose duty it would be to prevent furniture being removed uselessly.

At the regular monthly meeting of Protection Fire Company No. 1, of Peterboro, held on Tuesday evening, Sept. 6th, 1870, it was moved by Geo. McWilliams, and seconded by G. Hall, and unanimously resolved, That a vote of thanks be tendered to Mr. E. Chamberlain for the sum five dollars. Also it was moved by W. Cumming, and seconded by Lieut. Marshall, and unanimously resolved, That a vote of thanks be tendered to Mr. George Mitchell, jr., for the handsome present of two pictures for the decoration of the Firemen's Hall.

GREAT BRITAIN.—There was an immence meeting of people in Hyde Park on Sunday [illegible] strongest Republican [illegible] announced. Professor [illegible] and denounced the [illegible] Government, and encouraging the King of Prussia to march on Paris. At the name of the Queen the crowd hissed, and three grans were given for the Prince of Wales. During the speeches it was said that England hesitates to acknowledge the French Republic, but it may not be long until the French shall be called upon to acknowledge an English Republic.

The Midland Railway Company sent F. H. Burton, M. P. here last week, to oppose the repairs of the locks. Will our citizens politely tell Mr. Burton, to go to Kingston, and see after Penitentiary matters. It would suit him better than being the cats paw of the railway company. If the company treats Peterboro as it ought, there need be no fear of diverting trade from it. Mr. Burton should get into Penitentary and stay there, we mean as warden, and the sooner the better, for himself, for his constituents, and for the country Peterboro can get along without him. The Railway Company could then send their solicitor.

Thirty Million feet of lumber have been shipped from Cobourg this year. More than was shipped in any year during the days of the Peterboro and Cobourg Railway. Thirty Thousand quarters, or $7,500, harbour dues, are thus lost to Port Hope. And not less than $35,000 freight, lost to the Midland Railway Company, by their insane policy of driving the saw mills away from town. Peterboro has lost the trade of the hands who cut this lumber which in four summer months amount to not less than $250,000, all through the madness and incapacity of the Midland Railway Directors. Assuming the profits at 25 per cent, our Merchants have lost $62,500 a year. When shall we learn wisdom.

More Gas Wanted.

It appears that there is a necessity laid upon us to refer to this painful subject again, and that the more because the managers of the company show a desire to cheat the town out of what was agreed upon.

At the corrupt formation of this, now somewhat notorious, company, the present managers, Messrs. Romaine and Carnegie, through the columns of the Review attempted to argue that there was a great necessity for gas-works in the town, both as a matter of convenience to those who promenade our streets nightly, and for those who attend evening church services.

The readers of the Review were also told that gas-light would prove no small protection against thieves and robbers, as such characters hated light, their deeds being evil.

The company also stipulated with the Town Council that they (the company) would light 20 street lamps for the benefit of those who loved light, and for those street lamps the Council agreed to pay $20 a year each.

They also agreed to light those lamps in whatever positions the Council in their wisdom should place them. The lamps were to be lighted last November, or beginning of December. Now that it is the middle of September, almost a year has gone past, and yet we find that one half of these have not been lighted as was contracted.

Neither the lamp at the Catholic church, the Old Kirk, the Bible Christian, Methodist, Canada Presbyterian Churches, nor at the English Church gate, has been lighted. There were to be two lamps on Charlotte street, one more than at present on Hunter street, one on Simcoe street, and one at the corner of the old burying ground and one at Mr. McNeil's; that is, five lamps of the twenty are lighted. Fifteen of the twenty are not yet lighted, nor is there any attempt made to get the pipes to those of the fifteen lamps that are out of the way a little.

Fraud and deception.—At the last meeting of the Council but one a communication was read from Mr. Romaine, the President of the company, declaring, that owing to a disagreement between Mr. Perry, who originated the gas company, and the President and Secretary, Messrs. R. and C., or the company, they (the company) were not in a position to light the remaining lamps with gas, but they would do so with oil, or pay interest on the cost of the posts not lighted until they should be.

Now here is the gross fraud and deception. Owing to some disagreement, they wrote, thereby leading the council and the community to believe that legal proceedings on the part of Mr. Perry prevented their laying the necessary pipes to the distant posts.

Mr. Perry returned to town last week, and we made enquiriy as to the legal proceedings, and were informed by him that no such steps had been yet taken, that he was exhausting other means first.

Now here are those guardians of the town's interest actually deceiving and misleading the Council in order to save themselves the cost of laying down pipes to the distant posts.

We will not speak of the standing of these men in any religious community, but leave our readers and the citizens generally to draw their own conclusions in reference to their fitness to lead in great religious or moral duties.

Mr. Perry says the only hindrance to laying the pipes now and when he laid what pipes are down, is the money to get the pipe and pay the workmen. Now, why did not the president and secretary of the gas company acknowledge their poverty and ask the Council for aid. The secretary could have got a by-law for the purpose, legalized perhaps.

The five lamps now lighted are all between Mr. Turver's, Mitchell's Corner and Mr. Chambers'—all in about the space of forty rods.

The pipes to lead to the lamps at the Catholic Church would cost more than all at present laid. This is the secret. Yet these honest men take pay for these lamps that cost almost nothing, and neglect to carry out the agreement, to light the distant lamps, because the cost of laying the pipes to those lamps prevent them—not legal proceedings nor any disagreement. The Town Council is bound to demand that all the lamps be lit immediately, according to agreement, and further that no payment be given for any of the lamps until the whole be completed as agreed for.

Twenty dollars a lamp for 20 street lamps is about 8 per cent on the entire capital of the gas company. The nominal capital is $10,000; of this Mr. Perry was to have $2,500 of paid up stock to begin with; and Messrs. Romaine and Carnegie, for their influence in and out of Peterboro, were to have $1,000 each, or there was to be $4,500 of gift stock. The balance, $5,500, it was believed would do the work so Mr. Perry says yet, notwithstanding that the company has thus 8 per cent per annum guaranteed there is but one quarter of the work completed; that is, Messrs. R. & C. (Mr. Perry is kicked out) receive about 32 per cent per annum on the capital expended, or 2¾ per cent per month. What public guardians? If they had got the water works what a haul could have been made.

If this company had been a private one we would not have even mentioned the disgraceful management of the concerns; and if Mr. Perry had not assured us that the proprietor and editor of the Review had obtained $1,000 stock each for bamboozling the town into gas works, and knowing that the town had to pay the piper, we would not have referred to the more than disgraceful conduct of Messrs. Perry, Romaine and Carnegie, in the very origination of the company; but now that the town is being kept out of 15 lamps because the company is unable to raise funds to extend the pipes as originally agreed, it is time such disgraceful concerns should be closed up, or they made to carry out their agreement.

When the gas company again reports we shall ask that they tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. After what has occurred, their sayings must be taken with a little allowance.

Some time since we referred to a Sabbath jaunt up the Burleigh road, just before Mr. Rogers was sent to repair it; and all this in the face of the 4th commandment. This communication to the Town Council on gas must have been written with the ninth commandment stretched out before him; and at the last exhibition of the West Riding Agricultural Society he must have remembered the exhortation "Love your enemies." Perhaps the youth has fallen into bad company. Has he been on his way from Jerusalem to Jericho, and has fallen among thieves?

A CONTRAST.

When Mr. Carnegie went up the Burleigh road he used the Sabbath. When Mr. Read went up the road he went on Monday, and was home again to his family on Sunday. Which kept the commandment? It is true, politically, we do not admire Mr. Read. As a Christian and a gentleman we esteem him,—politically he is deluded. But hereafter we must doubt Mr. Carnegie's piety: that Sabbath is before us. We must doubt his truthfulness: that grave communication is before us. We must doubt his good breeding; he gets into terrible passions. For his politics he hides behind John Sandfield so as to be in the shade.

FIRE.

On Saturday morning about 4 o'clock, Sheriff Hall's wood shed, driving shed and stable were discovered on fire. The alarm was given and the fire company was soon on the ground, and just in time to save his fine dwelling. His horses and one buggy were saved, a cow and every thing in the sheds and stable were burned.

His beautiful garden was greatly destroyed, and his fine ornamental trees that required years of culture and watching are very much injured. The kitchen-part of his dwelling was very much injured, and a portion of his furniture was damaged in trying to remove it, what was together uncalled for.

The whole loss cannot be less than $900 dollars. There is an insurance of $400 in the Royal Insurance company. The damage to his place cannot be restored for years.

There is one thought connected with this fire,—it is supposed to be an incendiary, as Mr. Patterson's dogs made considerable stir, as if disturbed by some one a few minutes before the fire was discovered. Can it be possible that any one amongst us would be guilty of firing neighbors' dwellings in the dead of night; surely not. We lean to the more merciful idea that some one was robbing his hen-roost,—lit a match for light and threw it away, and that this caused the fire. Robbing hen-roosts is bad enough, but arson is worse. For the sake of our good town, and least we should loose confidence in any of our citizens, we suppose the latter the more reasonable view to take.

Yesterday at about one o'clock p.m. the planing and shingle shop of Messrs. Robertson and Martin, in the north of the town, was consumed by fire. There was nothing about the shop saved.

The dwelling of Dr. McCullough, contiguous to the shop, was burned, the furniture and most of the clothing were saved, but in a damaged state.

Mr. John Robson's house across the street was also burned, and also the dwellings of Mr. Robertson and Mrs. Baptie.

Mr. Hewett's dwelling was for some time in danger, but was saved.

Mr. E. Pearse's dwelling suffered also. The sheds attached to it, and to Mr. R Hall's dwelling, were burned, and all the contents. Both Mr. Hall and Mr. Pearse had to remove their furniture and in consequence of the haste and confusion they are much damaged.

Messrs. Robertson and Martin's loss will be over $3,000, covered by a partial insurance of $400. There will also be a loss of $1,000 in ready made work.

Messrs. Nicholls and Hall had an insurance of $800 on the Doctor's dwelling, but this will not cover the loss.

Mr. J. Robson's loss is at least $1,000, we are sorry to learn he has no insurance.

The building in which Mr. Robertson resided, belong to Mr. Alex. Morrow, we did not learn whether there was any insurance on it. The loss will be $800 to $1,000.

The house in which Mrs. Baptie resided belonged to Mr. R. Hope.

Dr. McCullough has a partial insurance of $800 on his Furniture, Clothing, Books, &c. Everything saved is very much damaged.

The whole loss will not be less than $8,000, covered by an insurance of about $2,500.

Four families too are left houseless.

Messrs. Robertson and Martin are the greatest sufferers. Several parties who had work at the shop will also lose more or less.

The only imaginable cause for this destructive fire is a spark from somebody's pipe, or from the furnace. The fire originated about the shingle factory or planing shop.

THE WAR.

The Prussians are at the walls of Paris. The party in power in France are desirous of a peace on as easy terms as possible. Russia and Austria are attempting to obtain an armistice for that purpose, and it is hoped that they will succeed. Napoleon is politically dead. Why should France suffer for his sins?

Rome.—The Italian troops have entered Rome, and the papal Zouaves have been compelled to withdraw. What may happen in that famous city before another week we will not dare predict.

The latest news on all these subjects will be found in our telegraphic despatches.

RAILWAY MEETING.—This meeting on Tuesday night, was well attended. Large property holders such as Messrs. E. Burnham, Dr. Burnham, J. Stevenson, W. Cluxton, J. T. Henthorn, Esq., T. Bradburn and D. W. Dumble,—in fact all the property holders and influental citizens; and all were unanimous in favor of railway extension. The matter will now be referred to the Council, and be brought before the ratepayers soon.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Yesterday evening about six o'clock, Mr. John Rush, veterinary surgeon, died very suddenly. He had been complaining of Neuralgia and during the day, we understand, and in the afternoon took some medicine and went to bed, at six o'clock he was dead. After falling asleep he never awoke.

The minutes of the Town Council, and several other important items of intelligence, had to be left over to next issue.

Horticultural Show.

The show yesterday was very good. The number of articles shown was equal to our expectation.

In the vegetable line the variety and quality equalled any of the former exhibitions.

The show of flowers was perhaps deficient, but this may be accounted for, by the season of the year.

The show of Ladies' work was very nice indeed, some of the work superior.

The variety of apples, pears and grapes was such as to warrant the presumption that in this line, the labors of the cultivator will be fully rewarded.

There were several paintings in oil and crayon, and a number of photographs. Two large colored photographs by Mr. Sproule were deservedly admired, and some small ones by the same gentleman, were also very good.

In the fowl line there were light and dark brahmas, black spanish and hamburghs, shewn by Mr. R. Patterson, and Mr. W. Heather, which were very much admired. they were very fine.

Great praise is due to Messrs. Kempt, Dumble, R. Patterson, W. Patterson, Dunlop, Edwards, and others, in regard to the success of the show. And Mr. Tyrrell, the indefatigable Secretary, contributed largely to its success. We will give prize list next week.

Peterboro, Sept. 12, 1870.

To His Worship the Mayor, and Members of the Council of the Town of Peterboro:

GENTLEMEN:

I beg herewith to forward for your consideration the following large petition of the ratepayers of the town; also the report of the engineer of the Fire Company as to the actual state of the engine at the present time. I beg leave, in connection with this petition, to ask that the report of the chief engineer, in which the same recommendations were made last summer (except the position of tanks and quantity of hose were suggested) be brought again to light. Hoping your honorable body will see the necessity of increased facilities for the protection of property equally with the petitioners, and that action will be taken in the matter immediately.

I remain, &c.,
J. O'DONNELL,
Capt. Fire Co.

To His Worship the Mayor, and Members of the Town Council of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN:

The undersigned petitioners and ratepayers of the town, humbly represent to your honorable body the necessity for a steam fire engine and additional hose, to secure a reasonable protection to every citizen, against the destruction of his property by fire; and we therefore pray your honorable body, at the earliest opportunity, to purchase a steam fire engine and some hose, and also construct two or three water tanks in suitable places if required, so as to secure provision in case of fire.

And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

ENGINEER'S REPORT.

J. O'DONNELL, Esq.,
Capt. Protection Fire Co'y.

According to your request, I have examined the engine, and have to report that it is in very bad order. 1st. The wooden parts that support the walking-beam are rotten at the bottom and very loose. The leather in the suction hose is old and bruised in spots.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Peterboro, Sept. 10, 1870.

THE EUROPEAN WAR.

PARIS, 7th.—Large numbers of soldiers from recent fields of battle are reaching Paris, who affirm that the want of concert among chiefs, were cause of defeats.

N. Y., 8th.—A special gives details of Favre's circular to diplomatic agents of France:—"I am still a friend of peace, he says, but of an honorable peace, which is only a durable peace. The dynasty of Napoleons has fallen, and France arises free. If the King of Prussia, who marches upon us and declared that he warred upon the Emperor and not upon France, means to continue hostilities, our becomes imperious, and a war against humanity rests his head be the responsibility. If this be his decision france accepts it. We will not cede one inch of French territory, nor one stone of the fortresses of France. At disgraceful peace to-day would be a war of extermination to-morrow. We will not make peace to gain time for making war, we will rather make war to gain an enduring peace. We have a resolute army still in the field; we have well provided forts, and a well established circle of fortifications around the capital, and above all we have 300,000 combatants within our walls armed, equipped and determined to hold our ramparts to the last.

If our forts shall be taken, we have our walls; if our walls shall be taken, we have the barricades of Paris; her streets can hold out for months and conquer. If Paris falls, France in arms will avenge her. It is necessary that Europe should fully understand our determination. We have accepted power with no other object; we will not keep power one moment if we do not find all Paris and all France united with us in our indomitable resolution. In a word, we desire peace, but if this disastrous war is forced upon us we will wage it to the bitter end.

WASHINGTON 8th.—French minister has received a despatch from Jules Favre, announcing the establishment of the republic in France, and requesting M. Berthenry to present the fact to the U.S. government. Instructions have been sent to our minister in Paris to recognize the new government.

London 8.—It is rumored here that peace proposals have been laid before the King of Prussia by France.

Distressing accounts are given of the sufferings of the people of Strasburg, but still they refuse to surrender.

Under instructions from U. S. government, Minister Washburn yesterday recognized the new government in France.

Berlin 8.—Part of Loraine now in Prussian hands and all Alsace, probably represents territory to be demanded from France as an indemnity by Prussians. Western frontier will begin at Esch or border of Luxemburg, flanking river Mosselle about 10 miles from its western bank, crossing that stream at Curney.

The Eastern frontier will consist of the present boundaries of the departments of Upper and Lower Rhine. This district comprehends Alsace and Saarburg, Metz, Thionville, Chateau, Salins, Pfalsburg, &c.

Bazaine is still negotiating for the surrender of Metz.

French prisoners in German hands are enthusiastic at the Emperor's deposition.

Every attention and courtesy is shown to the Emperor, who is at Wilphems.

PARIS 8. French consul at Basle telegraphs to the government that the garrison of Strasburg made a successful sortie on Tuesday night, killing 8,000 or 10,000 Prussians and capturing many guns. Prussians attempted to cross on Pontoons and were absolutely annihilated by the mitrailleurs.

PARIS, 8th.—"Journal de Paris," says: notwithstanding it was at first announced that efforts for a mediation had failed, it now seems the project may succeed.

BERLIN, 8th.—King William entered Rheims on Monday.

LONDON, 8th. An immense meeting was held at Newcastle-on-tyne last evening, to express sympathy with France in war against Prussia.

N. Y. 8th.—World's special correspondent telegraphs from London: I have authority for saying the attitude of Russia grows hourly more and more menacing towards Germany. English government has been informed that while Russia is willing to unite with other European powers in arresting the war, she will not consent to any territorial aggrandizement of Germany whatever, and that she cannot hold herself bound by the understanding recently entered into for joint action, should events seem to her to require a decisive step upon her own part. It is also certain that the mobilization of Russian armies has been ordered and is going on rapidly in 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th malay.

PARIS, 9th. Jules Favre declined the service of the Orleans Princes, and begged them to quit the city for fear of complication. It is again reported that diplomatic corps at Paris has gone to King William's head quarters in the interest of peace.

London 9th. "Morning Post" councils Prussia to stop and offer peace to republic on terms that shall reimburse Prussia, and yet leave no rank source of hate among the French; otherwise the "Post" hopes that the French will hold their own.

Authorities at Berlin are confident Russia will withdraw her proposition for conference in view of presidency of Prussia.

BERLIN 9th. After protracted conference among members of south German confederation, it has been decided that French provinces of Alsace and Loraine are to be annexed to Germany, not to Prussia individually.

London 6th. Recent action of diplomatic corps at Paris in favor of peace authoratively denied. The city has just been startled with the report of new iron plated steamer "Captain" has been lost. No details.

PARIS 9th. All accounts agree in stating that the Prussian army is advancing rapidly on this city by forced marches. Advance cavalry of enemy recently [illegible] and within ten miles of fortifications of city. And have cut the Northern railway. The main army of Prussians is now distant only 30 miles from Paris.

Gen. Garibaldi has offered his services to the French Republic.

LONDON 9. It is announced in official circles that France will accept any terms short of dismemberment of territory. In refusing which she is supported by Russia. It is believed the Republic government will consent to pay a large indemnification to dismantle frontier fortresses and largely reduce the standing army. If the Prussians should insist on the cession of Alsace and Loraine, or even Metz and Strasburg, war will assume a most terrible character.

N. Y. 10th.—"World's" Paris correspondent telegraphs as follows:—I am enabled to assure you that in an interview yesterday, held at minister of foreign affairs, with Lord Lyons, Jules Favre asked his lordship if the English would interfere and suggest terms of peace to be offered to Prussia, such as he could be assured that France would accept, Lord Lyons replyed that though England would help to bring war to an end, she had no authority to say that she would undertake to suggest terms of peace to either combattants; Favre said it would be impossible for France to make any such suggestions, and the interview was brought to a close.

PARIS 15th.—In several places near Paris trees have been cut down, so as to impede the progress of the enemy, the Garde Mobile have attacked the Prussians at different points, killing and wounding numbers of them. The Garde Nationale are to do night duty on the ramparts.

From all quarters of France the cry of war comes up, and throughout France the people are agitated for national conflict.

Preparations of Gen. Trochu for a siege goes on with great activity, and enormous supplies of provisions have been received and distributed to every fortress within the past week.

It is said the forts around the capitol are prepared for a 3 months defence.

The impression is that the Prussians will be in sight of Paris on Sunday next, and will have religious services inside of Paris on the Sunday following.

London 10th.—King William has given orders that Napoleon shall be treated as soverign of France. It is denied that Lord Lyons has gone to King William's head-quarters.

The "Standard" correspondent, writing from Paris says: The Parisians cannot successfully besiege the city with 600,000 men. The Paris correspondent of the "News" writes that England having refused to negotiate for an armistice, Austria has undertaken it.

N. Y. 10th.—A London despatch says that 18 of the crew of the iron clad "Captain" were saved.

BERLIN, 10.—More than 25,000 French prisoners were captured in front of Sedan before capitulation. By capitulation 83,000 prisoners fell into our hands, of these 14,000 were wounded, besides prisoners, 400 field pieces, including 70 mitrailleurs, 150 siege guns, and 10,000 horses.

BRUSSELS 10th.—At the present pace, the army of Prince Royal and Bavarians should be in their designated positions around Paris on Wednesday next. From these points they will slowly close in upon the French fortifications. A Prussian force was at campaign this Saturday forenoon.

At the meeting at St. James' Hall, resolutions were adopted denouncing the inconsistency of the Prussian advance on Paris. Prof. Busley spoke, saying the government of England had not recognised the republic of France, but the day was at hand when the French republic would be called to recognize the republic of England.

Paris is cheered this morning by rumor that Russia is insisting on an armistice. Also that the United States has interposed and sent 3 despatches to Berlin. It is said the Prussian advance has been stopped in consequence.

LONDON 12th.—The Standard and other British papers urge English intervention in war as a duty and a right, the neglect of which will involve dishonor.

PARIS 12th.—It is officially announced that Theirs will leave here this evening for London, Vinna and St. Petersburg, on a secret mission.

Prussians were at Melun last night.

PRAGUE 12th.—Berlin telegrams to Palikagu, of this city, says great sensation was created by despatch of American government to its Envoy at Prussian capitol, and pressing hope that there would now be a cessation of war, in view of fact that its aim, the dethronement of Napoleon, had been accomplished. No sooner had the minister communicated the despatch to Von Ticle and Bulberge than it was sent to King William by special courier.

LONDON, 13th.—The telegraphs of Paris correspondent says: American recognition is really but little valued there. It is regarded more as good will of a power without material worth in European matters.

On Sunday a Prussian reconnoitering party encountered a body of French at Chateau Therry. A sharp engagement occurred, and the Prussians were repulsed with considerable loss.

The city of Soissons has refused to surrender in response to a summons of Prussian commander.

ROME, 13th. Immense posters have been placarded on dead walls of this city, proclaiming the universal Italian republic. The document is signed by the republican revolutionary committee.

PARIS 13th.—It is said that the main body of Prussians arrived at a point within 28 miles of Paris yesterday afternoon.

London 13th, 3 p.m.—It is rumored here that Metz has surrendered unconditionally, while no official advices are at hand. News is nevertheless credited at the Prussian embassy.

The papal Zouaves are forming a garrison in the Castle at that place and opened a fire on the Italians, a battle ensued, which lasted an hour, when pontifical forces surrendered. They were taken to Spoleto as prisoners of war.

Several places have been occupied by Italian troops at request of citizens. The 4th corps left Civita Castle late last night, after plundering the castle. This force is now marching on Rome.

London 14th.—A dreadful railroad accident occurred at Larnworth, in the county of Stafford, this morning. The train known as the Irish Mail, which left Holy head, was late last night. The train was thrown off the track by a misplaced switch and the entire train, mostly composed of passenger coaches, was plunged into Trent river. Thus far the bodies of the engineer and four passengers have been recovered. The loss of life has been fearful.

LONDON, 11. If the plans of the Prussians are realized they must have seven army corps before Paris this morning.

It would seem that the French and German fleets are now in sight of each other near Heligoland in the north sea.

The Uhlans were at Nogent Sur Marne on Monday, which is only 5 miles east of the city. Orders have been given by German commanders forbidding the destruction of bridges behind the army under dire penalty. A large body of Prussian engineers is at Champeign, a few miles east of Paris. The German currencies are still before Loisons.

Twenty years experience in using Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers have proved them to be the most effectual remedy for coughs, and affections of the throat, caused by cold, or unusual exertion of the vocal organs; public speakers and singers will find them most beneficial. The entire freedom from all deleterious ingredients renders Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers, or Cough and Voice Lozenges, a safe remedy for the most delicate person, and has caused them to be held in high esteem by all who have used them. Sold by all medicine dealers at 25cts. per box.

The Right of Search.—Probably no question is left so undecided between nations than the right of search, there is no general law laid down, and consequently they have to be governed by precedence which happened long ago; this is not the case with the "Canadian Pain Destroyer." Ancient history does not have to be traced to find out whom it has relieved from the tortures pains of rheumatism, sudden colds, sore throat, burns, &c. Sold by all Medicine Dealers at 25cts. per bottle.

"FIVE MINUTES FOR REPRESENTATIVE." Everybody who has travelled by railroad has heard the above announcement, and has probably suffered from eating too hastily, thereby sowing the seeds of Dyspepsia. It is a comfort to know that the Peruvian Syrup will cure the worst cases of Dyspepsia, as thousands are ready to testify.

WORKMAN'S IMPROVED HARROW!

TESTIMONIALS.

We, the undersigned, have given Workman's Improved Harrow a fair trial, and consider it the very best for work and clearing itself of stones that ever we have witnessed.

WILLIAM TULLY.
GEORGE TULLY.

Otonabee, August 17, 1870.

I have given Workman's Improved Harrow an impartial trial, and consider it just the Harrow for us Farmers. I have made a number of Harrows and worked with a number, but I must say that Workman's Improved Harrow is the best I have ever seen in use.

JAMES JOHNSTON.

We entirely agree with the above.

I have bought one of Workman's Improved Harrows, and as far as I have used it I consider it the best Harrow in use.

MR. MILLAR,

Dear Sir: I have tried Workman's Patent Harrow and find it superior to anything of the kind I have seen yet, for several reasons. 1st, It will do double the amount of work with the same draft of an ordinary harrow. 2nd, It is strong and durable. 3rd, The teeth bolted on to the side of the bulk with two bolts, and the plain clasp, is a great improvement on it; steel teeth are preferable to iron. 5th, You can hitch to either end, which of course is a great advantage to the teeth. 6th, It is well adapted for clearing itself on stony or soddy ground.

Yours respectfully,

JOHN WALTON.

LOCKHART & MILLAR,

Having obtained the Patent for this County,

ARE NOW PREPARED TO MANUFACTURE THE ABOVE HARROW.

A QUESTION.

Why will people keep four or five ill looking sickly horses to do the work that one good horse might perform? If the horse has the heaves, is broken winded, has a cough or cold, or his wind in any way affected; if his appetite is bad, or his digestive organs deranged, has a rough skin or his blood is impure, we would in all cases recommend the use of Dailey's Condition Powders and Arabian Howe Remedy.—It never fails to benefit and almost removes the disease; it is free from anything that can injure and may be used at all times with safety. Try it and you will be satisfied. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hurd & Co., is on each package. Northrop & Lyman Newcastle, Ont., for Canada. Sold by all Medicine dealers.

CAUTION! In our changeable climate, coughs, colds, and diseases of the throat, lungs and chest will always prevail. Cruel consumption will claim its victims. These diseases, if attended to in time can be arrested and cured. The remedy is Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

CAUTION.

CORNWALL BLANKETS.

THE Cornwall Manufacturing Company beg to caution the public against a spurious shoddy imitation of their celebrated BLANKETS, now being imported into this country from England, and got up so as to cheat the public into the belief that they are of Canadian manufacture. The style and general appearance of the Cornwall Blankets have been closely copied, and so have the shape and printing of the tickets, exce t that the words "Cornwall Manufacturing Company" are omitted, and the words "Canadian Manufacture" substituted. Persons desiring a really good and genuine article will have to see that the words "Cornwall Manufacturing Company" are on the ticket of each pair of Blankets.

And whereas to carry into effect the said recited object, it will be necessary for the said Municipal Council to raise by way of loan the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars in the manner hereinafter mentioned:

And whereas it will require the sum of $900 to be raised annually by special rate, for the payment of said debt or loan and interest, as also hereinafter mentioned:

And whereas the amount of the whole rateable property the said Municipality of the County of Peterborough, irrespective of any future increase of the same, and also irrespective of any income to be derived from the temporary investments of the Sinking Fund hereinfter mentioned, or any part thereof, according to the last revised Assessment Rolls of the said Municipality, is the sum of $2,511,651.

And whereas the existing debt of the said Municipality of the County of Peterborough is Twenty Seven Thousand Dollars for Principal money, and Nine Thousand Eight Hundred and Ten Dollars for Interest, and there is nothing in arrear on account of said Principal or Interest.

3. That said Debentures shall be made payable in 20 years, at furthest, from the day hereinafter mentioned for this By-law to take effect at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality, and shall have attached to them coupons, for the payment of interest.

4. That the said Debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half-yearly, on the Twenty-First Day of June and the Twenty-first Day of December, in each year, at the Office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

5. That for the purpose of forming a Sinking Fund for the payment of the said Debentures, and the interest at the rate aforesaid, to become due thereon, an equal special rate of nine twenty-fifths of a mill in the dollar, shall, in addition to all other rates be raised, levied and collected in each year upon all the ratable property in the said Municipality, during the continuance of the said Debentures, or any of them.

MANUFACTURERS OF THE CELEBRATED

LOCKMAN SEWING MACHINE,

Take pleasure in announcing that the popularity of the Sewing Machine manufactured by them is still on the increase. They are now turning them out at the rate of 600 per month, and yet have been compelled within the last two weeks to increase their facilities to a capacity of one thousand per month.

The Lockman Machine, from its capacity to sew the heaviest fabrics with linen thread, as well as the finest cambrics with No. 150 Cotton, is pre-eminently the Farmer's Favorite Family Friend.

It is so exceedingly simple in its parts, and so strongly and durably made, that it does not require a mechanical genius for its management.

The manufacturers challenge the world to produce its equal, and yet its price is from Forty to Fifty per cent. Lower than that of any other first-class Shuttle Lock-stitch Sewing Machine.

EVERY MACHINE IS WARRANTED.

To MESSRS. CHAMBERLAIN & SILLS, Conway P.O County of Lennox, Ontario, Canada.

MADOC, County of Hastings,
Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th., 1869.

This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ancles, which gradually during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on up to my hips, and I became so weak that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two years, while this weakness was coming on me, and afterwards, I sought medical advice, employing, at different times, three doctors, and medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, but of no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoshoness Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had begun to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshoness Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was not a private one, but known to all my neighbors and friends; and to any one afflicted as I was, I have only to say try the Shoshoness Remedy; I believe it will cure you,

MARY ANN DOUGHTY.

Sworn to before me at Madoc, County of Hastings, this ninth day of February, 1869.

A. F. WOOD, J. P. &c.

I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshoness Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.

Dr. J. P. Kennedy, of Chittenango, N. Y., says:—"It has stood the test trial and has not been found wanting. Its astonishing cures of Inflammation of the Lungs and Croup, and the wonderful success in subsiding the torturing pains of Rheumatism, and relieving Nervous Affections, entitle it to a high rank in the list of Remedies for these complaints."

Dr. A. W. Belding, of Knowlesville, N. Y., says:—"I have used it in several cases of Specific Irritation, and for the worst cases of Piles, and sundry other complaints, and find it a superior article, and well worthy the attention of all."

Poetry.

Little People.

A dreary place would be this earth
Were there no little people in it;
The song of life would lose its mirth
Were there no children to begin it.

No little forms, like buds to grow,
And make the admiring heart surrender,
No little hands on breast and brow,
To keep the thrilling love-cords tender.

No babe within our arms to leap,
No little feet to sound slumber reading;
No little kisses in prayer to bend,
Our lips the purest words leading.

What would the mothers do for work,
Were there no pants or jackets tearing?
No tiny dresses to embroider?
No cradle for their watchful darling.

No rosy boys, at wintry morn,
With satchel to the school-house hasting;
No merry shouts at home they rush,
No precious morsels for their tasting;

Tell, grave, grown people at the door,
Tell, grave, grown people at the table;
The men on business all intent,
The dames laughrious as they're able;

The sterner souls would set more stern,
Unfeeling natures more inhuman,
And man to stoic coldness turn,
And woman would be less than woman.

For in that clime toward we reach,
Through Time's mysterious dim unfolding,
The little ones with cherub smile
Are still their father's face beholding.

So said He voice in whom we trust,
When in Judea's realm a preacher,
He made a child confront the proud,
And be in simple guise their teacher.

Life's song, indeed, would less its charm,
Were there no babies to begin it;
A doleful place this world would be,
Were there no little people in it.

Protestant Children in Nunneries.

The citizens of Clinton were thrown into a state of excitement by the Catholic priest of Bloomington receiving a severe kicking and pounding by Mr. Lintner, of Clinton, at whose house the priest had called. The facts are these:—Mr. Lintner is one of the leading citizens of Clinton, worth considerable property, and highly respected. Four years ago he sent his daughter to the convent at Bloomington. He entered into a contract with the Sisters that his daughter's religious faith, then Protestant, should not be molested by means of Catholic instruction. Since then he has had repeated assurances from the Sisters that his daughter was free from Catholic influences, and still a Protestant. The time came for her to graduate, but the fourth year of her attendance at the convent closed, and she was not graduated Why was she not?

A few weeks ago Mr. Lintner found that his daughter had been a member of the Catholic Church nearly two years, and that she had been known in Bloomington for many months as one of the Sisters of Charity. He also learned that the teachers and mothers of the church were making every effort to get her back another year, they holding out the inducement to the father to allow her so to do that she could then graduate with all the honors of the school. But the real plan was to make her a nun, and get her to take the veil, whereby, it is supposed, her share of her fathers property would go to the church. Such news was overwhelming to the family, and Mr. L. wrote to the Sisters and the officers that his daughter could never return, and begged of them never to cross his path, as he should be avenged for the trouble brought upon his family. On Sunday the priest, Father Hinkey, on his way from church called at Mr. Lintner's house, and had commenced talking with the aforesaid daughter. The father immediately came out of doors, went into the parlor and seized the priest, saying, "You scoundrel, get out of this," and thereupon kicked him all the way into the street. He then abandoned him, and Mr. Lintner's son chased him out of the town, stoning him as he went. He left bareheaded, but I understand, borrowed a boy's hat, so that he did not have to go all the way to Bloomington in that predicament.—Chicago Journal.

'Oh! How Romantic!'—The following thrilling extract is taken from an unpublished romance:

'Listen to me, Gasparado. When I first met the Lady Arabella in the brilliant saloon of the Count de Homperano, I was struck with the spiritual lustre of her dove-like eyes, in short, my friend, I loved her although I knew nothing of her birth, fortune or station, 'Twas one moonlight eve, in the garden of the old chateau wen I pressed her to become my own, my cherished bride. She sank from me saying:—

'You knowest not who I am.'

'I care not said I,' passionately.

'Then I do!' she cried in piercing tones. 'I am your unknown washerwoman, and I'd thank you to pay me for the pieces I washed for you last week.'

A Witty rogue, brought before a Parisian tribunal for a drunken riot, one day, assured the Beach that he was not a drunkard, but in his childhood he was bitten by a mad dog, and he had ever since had a horror of water.

That man whose better half told him before their marriage that she was worth $20,000, as he found out after marriage, has forgiven her for the falsehood she told him and "pocketed" the offense!

Two Irishmen were in prison, the one for stealing a cow, and the other for stealing a watch. "Hallo, Mike! what o'clock is it?' said the cow-stealer to the other.. "And sure, Pat, I haven't any timepiece handy, but I think it is most milking time."

A Popular author gives the following advice to wives: "Shou d you find it necessary, as you undoubtedly will, many of you, to chastise your husbands, you should perform this affectionate duty with the soft end of the broom, not with the handle.

A Connecticut schoolmaster asked a lad from Newport, "How many Gods are there?" The boy, after scratching his his head sometime, replied: "I don't know how many you have in Connecticut, but we have none in Rhode Island."

A gentleman, who was remarkable at once for bacchanalian devotion and remarkably large and starting eyes, was one evening the subject of conversation. "I think," said Jerrold: "I always know when he has been in his cups by the state of his saucers.

Dr. Cassin, having heard the famous Thomas Fuller repeat some verses, on a scolding wife, was so delighted with them as to request a copy. "There is no necessity for that," said Fuller, "as you have got the original."

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that when it does cure it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its compositions. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cases are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Pain in the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous to use them in moderate doses. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the glossy and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling of checked, and baldness often, but not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair to scalps where the roots are destroyed, or the glands entirely decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by its application. Instead of loading the hair with a nasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

CONCENTRATION the great principle. The system of infinitesimal doses of medicine diffused in gallons of injurious stimulants exploded. All useless material discarded. The active principle only of the most powerful and efficient remedies known, concentrated in a small, convenient form. HABITUAL CONSTIPATION CURED. All diseases of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels permanently relieved by using Dr. Colby's ANTI-COSTIVE AND TONIC PILLS, Sugar-Coated. Recommended by the Medicine Profession.

GLAD TIDINGS FOR ALL.—Those who have no hair may have it.—Those who have plenty, may preserve and beautify it. Those who are losing it may have its loss arrested. The hair strengthened, beautified, restored, by using HUNT'S EGYPTIAN HAIR GLOSS, cheapest, cleanest, best. Don't rest till you have tried a bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

SUCCESS begets envy. Hence the efforts of certain vendors of Liniment to decry JACOBS' RHEUMATIC LIQUID. Wherever introduced, it drives all others from the market. Pain positively annihilated by its use. We have not room to enumerate the virtues accorded to it by the thousands who have used it. No medicine ever inv

Select Poetry.

From the "Temperance Star," England.

Before the Pledge; or, Delirium's Dream.

SHAME, SORROW AND DESPAIR.

In the shadows that loom, I stand near a tomb;
And darkness descends like a pall in the gloom,
That severs my soul from the light;
For my bosom within holds a demon of sin,
Who keeps me afar from the crown I would win
And presses me down in the night.

Yes, I feel the sad smart of his terrible dart,
As he strikes it again and again in my heart.
And yells as I sink in despair;
There is nothing below can stay the vile flow
Of sin, that is sinking my lost soul in woe,
Nor save from my terrible snare.

Oh! sin, shame and sorrow, where, where can I borrow
Bright hopes to illumine life's desolate morrow
And lighten this dark pall of gloom
That envelopes my soul with a mantle so foul,
That I think, and I feel, as a demon—a ghoul,
—And sin in the shade of the tomb?

Where, where shall I turn from these horrors that burn.
My soul—oh! my soul, where a refuge descern
From sin and its wearisome load?
I dare not let up, I must drink of the cup—
I must drink, I must drain the last dregs of it up
I dare not appeal unto God.

For the demon within, with his terrible grin,
Bids me live on, with the serpent of sin,
Nor trouble my sad soul to save;
For no angel hath on life's desolate path
A power to protect me from alcohol's wrath,
Nor save from the dark yawning grave,

Thus, in shame and affright, I stand in the night
For the serpent of sin keeps my soul from the light,
And bids it despair in the gloom;
And the drink-fiend rends down my hand from the crown
I would grasp, and with laughter is dragging me down
Through darkness of night to the tomb.

GEO. SMITH, Corporal 46th Regt.

AFTER THE PLEDGE; OR, THE VICTORY WON!

THE CHRISTIAN SOLDIER'S FAREWELL.

Farewell, comrades! day is breaking;
Earth's vian shadows pass away;
Now I see the comieg glories
Of a bright eternal day.
Farewell grief, and care, and sorrow;
Tears are over, comrades, now;
Soon I'll wear in Heaven's glory,
Golden crown upon my brow.

Farewell, comrades! no more weeping,—
No more care or sorrow's smart,—
No more bitter pangs of anguish
To annoy the aching heart;
No more dreary days of marching,
Nights of peril now are o'er,
Now the angels wait to greet me,
On yon bright eternal Shore!

Farewell, comrades! peace is coming,
With the robe and crown of gold,
Oh, the glory and the splendour
Of the life I now behold.
Safe from every cruel battle,
Safe from all that would annoy,
Safe,—my ransom'd soul is bounding.
To behold the coming joy!

Oh! the visions sweet of glory;
Bursting now upon my sight,
Hark! I hear an angel calling
Through the eternal halls of night;
Calling as I often hear her
When she kiss'd my youthful brow,
Hark! I hear an angel wisper,
Come and kiss sweet mother now.

Farewell, comrades! she is waiting
Near the gate to welcome me,
Clad in glorious robes of witeness
Oh, how beautiful to see.
Happy angels hover round her,
With the laurel on each brow;
Hark! I hear their songe of glory,—
Mother! mother, kiss me now!

GEO. SMITH, Corporal 46th Regt.

The Great Battle around Sedan.

THE FORCES ENGAGED.

The number of the Prussian troops engaged was estimated by Gen. Moltke at 240,000, and that of the French at 120,000.—We know that McMahon had with him on Tuesday 120,000 men, that is, four corps: his own, that lately commanded by Gen de Failly, now under Gen. Le Brun; that of Felix Douay, brother of Gen. Abel Douay, killed at Weissenburg; and a fourth corps principally composed of Garde Mobile (—name of whose commander has escaped me. McMahon, although wounded, commanded in chief on the French side.

It is almost needless to say that the real commander-in-chief of the Prussians was Von Moltke; with the Crown Prince and Prince Albert of Saxony immediately next in command.

OPENING OF THE BATTLE.

There were a few stray cannon shots fired merely to obtain the range, as soon as it was light; but the real battle did not begin until 6 o'clock, becoming a sharp artillery fight at 9, when the batteries had each got within easy range, and the shells began to do serious mischief. At 11.55 the musketry fire in the valley behind Sedan, which had opened about 11.35, became exceedingly lively—being one continuous rattle, only broken by the loud growling of the mitrailleuses, which played with deadly effect upon the Saxon and Bavarian columns. Gen. Sheridan, by whose side I was standing at the time, told me that he did not remember ever to have heard such a well-sustained fire of small arms. It made itself heard above the roar of the batteries at our feet.

At 12 o'clock precisely the Prussian battery of six guns on the slope above the broken railway bridge over the Meuse, near La Villette, had silenced two batteries of French guns at the foot of the bare hill already mentioned, near the village of Floing. At 12.10 the French infantry, no longer supported by their artillery, were compelled to retire to Floing, and soon afterward the junction between the Saxons and Prussians behind Sedan was announced to us by Gen. Von Roon, eagerly peering through a large telescope, as being safely completed.

THE FRENCH SURROUNDED.

From this moment the result of the battle could be no longer doubtful. The French were completely surrounded and brought to bay. At 12.25 we were all astonished to see clouds of retreating French infantry on the hill between Floing and Sedan, a Prussian battry in front of St. Menges making accurate practice with percussion shells among the receding ranks. The whole hill for a quarter of an hour was literally covered with Frenchmen running rapidly.

ANOTHER FRUITLESS CAVALRY CHARGE.

At 1:30 French cavalry—this time I presume, a regiment of carabiniers—made another dash at the Prussians who on their part, were receiving reinforcement every moment; but the carabiniers met with the same fate as their brethren in iron jackets and were sent to the right-about with heavy loss. The Prussians took advantage of their flight to advance their line about 200 yards nearer the line which the French infantry held.

ANOTHER FRENCH BLUNDER.

This body of adventurous Prussians split into two portions, the two parts leaving a break of a hundred yards in their line. We were not long in perceiving the object of this movement, for a little white puff from the crest behind the skirmishers, followed by a commotion in the dense French masses, show us that these "diables de Prussians" have contrived, heaven only knows how, to get two four-pounders up the steep ground, and have opened fire on the French. Something must at this point have been very much mismanaged with the French infantry for, instead of attacking the Prussians, whom they still out-numbered by at least two to one, they remained in column on the hill, and though seeing their only hope of retrieving the day vanishing before their eyes, still they did not stir. Then the French cavalry tried to do tried, but without the success of "the immortal six hundred," who took the guns on which they charged. The cuirassiers came down once more, this time riding straight for the two field-pieces; but before they came within 200 yards of the guns, the Prussians formed line as if on parade, and waiting till those furious French horsemen had risen to a point not fifty yards away, they fired. The valley seemed to us to empty the saddles of almost the whole of the leading squadron. The dead so strewed the ground as to block the path of the squadron following, and close before them the direct and dangerous road they had meant to follow. Their dash at the guns became a halt.

A LITTLE BALAKLAVA BUSINESS.

RETREAT OF THE FRENCH.

When once this last effort of the French horse had been made and had failed—failed though pushed gallantly so far as men and horses could go—the French infantry fell swiftly back towards Sedan. It fell back because it saw that the chance of its carrying that fiercely-contested hill was gone, and saw also that the Prussians holding the hill were crowning it with guns so that their own line could not much longer be held facing it. In an instant as the French retired, the whole slope of the ground was covered by swarms of Prussian tirailleurs, who seemed to rise out of the ground, and push forward by help of every slight roughness or depression in the surface of the hill. As fast as the French went back these active enemies followed. After the last desperate charge of the French cavalry, Gen. Sheridan remarked to me that he never saw anything so reckless, so utterly foolish, as that last charge. "It was sheer murder."

The Prussians, after the French infantry fell back, advanced rapidly—so rapidly that the retiring squadrons of French cavalry, being too closely pressed, turned suddenly round and charged desperately once again. But it was all of no use. The days of breaking squares are over. The thin blue line soon stopped the Gallic onset.

It struck me as most extraordinary that at this point the French had especially the latter, on the field to cover their infantry, the position was a most important one, and certainly worth straining every nerve to defend. One thing was clear enough, that the French infantry, after once meeting the Prussians, declined to try conclusion with them again, and then the cavalry were seeking to encourage them by their example. About 2 o'clock still other reinforcements came to the Prussians over this long disputed hill between Torcy and Sedan to support the regiments already established there.

NEITHER ARTILLERY NOR MITRAILLEUSES,

HAVOC AMONG THE BAVARIANS.

All the time that this great conflict was going on under Fritz's eyes, another was fought not less severe and as murderous for the Bavarians as the one I have attempted to describe was for the French. If there was a want of mitrailleuses on the hill above Torcy, there was certainly no lack of them in the Bazeille ravine. On that side their was, for more than an hour, one continuous roar of musketry and mitrailleuses. Two Bavarian officers told me that the loss in their regiments was terrific, and that it was the mitrailleuses which made the havoc.

THE FRENCH FALL BACK ON SEDAN.

At 2:05 in the afternoon the French totally abandoned the hill between Torcy and Sedan, and fell back on the faubourg of Cazal, just outside the ramparts of the town. "Now the battle is lost to the French," said General Sheridan, to the delight of the Prussian officers. One would almost have imagined that the French had heard his words—they had hardly been uttered when there came a lull in the firing along the line, or rather circle; as such it had now become.

BELGIAN NEUTRALITY.

Count Bismarck chose that moment to come and have a talk with his English and American friends. I was anxious to know what the Federal Chancellor had done about the neutrality of Belgium, now threatened, and my curiosity was soon gratified. "I have told the Belgian Minister of War," said Count Bismarck, "that so long as the Belgian troops do their utmost to disarm any number of French soldiers who may cross the frontier, I will strictly respect the neutrality of Belgium; but if, on the contrary, the Belgians, either through negligence or inability, do not disarm and capture, every man in French uniform who sets his foot in their country, we shall at once follow the enemy into neutral territory with our troops, considering that the French have been the first to violate the Belgian soil. I have been down to have a look at the Belgian troops near the frontier," added Count Bismarck, "and I confess they do not inspire me with a very high opinion of their martial ardour or discipline. When they have their great coats on, one can see a great deal of paletot but hardly any soldier."

BISMARCK'S FIRST MISTAKE.

I asked his Excellency where he thought the Emperor was: "In Sedan?" "Oh, no!" was the reply; "Napoleon is not very wise, but he is not so foolish as to put himself in Sedan just now." For once in his life, Count Bismarck was wrong.

At 2.45 the King came to the place where I was standing. He remarked that he thought the French were about to try to break out just beneath us, in front of the second Bavarian Corps. At 3.30 Gen. Sheridan told me that Napoleon and Louis were in Sedan.

BRAVERY OF THE BAVARIANS.

At the 3.20 the Bavarians below us not only contrived to get themselves inside the fortifications of Sedan, but to maintain themselves there, working their way forward from house to house. About four o'clock there was a great fight for the possession of the ridge above Bazeille. That carried, Sedan was swept on all sides by the Prussian cannon. The point of advantage was carried at 4.40. When carried there could no longer be a shade of doubt as to the ultimate fate of Sedan.

A FLAG OF TRUCE.

About 5 o'clock there was again a sudden suspension of the cannonade along the whole line. Many were the speculations as to the cause, but nobody seemed to divine the truth. You must judge of our surprise when, five minutes later, we saw a French officer, escorted by two Uhlans, coming at a handsome [illegible] steep bridle-path from Sedan to [illegible] one of the Uhlans carrying a white [illegible] on a faggot-stick as a flag of truce. The messenger turned out to be a French colonel, come to ask for terms of surrender. After a very short consultation between the King and General Von Moltke, the messenger was told by the General that, in a matter so important as the surrender of at last 80,000 men and an important fortress, it was necessary to send an officer of high rank. "You are therefore, said the General, "to return to Sedan, and tell the Governor of the town to report himself immediately to the King of Prussia. If he does not arrive within an hour, our guns will again open fire. You may tell the commandant that there is no use of his trying to obtain any other terms than unconditional surrender." The parlementaire rode back with this message. When he was fairly out of ear-shot his mission was most eagerly canvassed.

At 6:30 there arose a sudden cry among the members of the King's staff—"Der Kaiser ist da!"—and then came a loud hurrah. Soon we began to look anxiously for the arrival of the second flag of truce. In ten minutes more Gen. Reilly rode up with a letter for the King of Prussia.

THE EMPEROR'S SURRENDER.

As soon as the French General was in sight, the slender escort of cuirassiers and dragoons we had with us was drawn up in line, two deep. Behind the King, in front of the escort, was the staff; and ten yards in front of them again, stood His Majesty King Will of Prussia, ready to receive General Reilly. That officer, as we soon learned, was the bearer of an autograph letter from the Emperor Napoleon to King William. The Emperor of the French wrote: "As I cannot die at the head of my army, I lay my sword at the feet of your Majesty." ("Ne pouvant pas mourir a la tete de mon armee, je viens mon epee aux de votre Majeste.")

Why Napoleon III. could not die die, as did thousands of his soldiers, sword in hand, with his face to the foe, is not so clear.

On receipt of this most astounding letter there was a brief consultation between the King, the Crown Prince, who had come over from his hill on the arrival of the flag of truce, Count Bismarck, Gen. Von Moltke and Gen. Von Roon. After a few minutes' conversation the King sat down on a rush-bottomed chair, and wrote a note (on another chair held as a table by two aid-de-camp) to the Emperor, asking him to come next morning to the King of Prussia's headquarters at Vendresse.

SHERIDAN CONGRATULATES BISMARCK.

While the King was writing this note Count Bismarck came up to Generals Sheridan and Forsyth, and myself, and heartily shook our hands. "Let me congratulate you most sincerely, Count," said General Sheridan. "I can only compare the surrender of Napoleon to that of General Lee at Appomattox Court House."

"You cannot but feel a pride, Count Bismarck, in having contributed so largely to the winning of to-day's victory."

"Oh! no, my dear Sir," was the mild answer; I am no strategist, and have nothing to do with the winning of battles. What I am proud of is that the Bavarians, the Saxons, and the Wurtembergers have not only been on our side, but have had so large a share—the largest share—in the glories of the day; that they are with us and not against us. That is my doing. I don't think the French will say now that the South Germans will not fight for our common Fatherland.

I asked His Excellence whether Louis was taken with his papa, and was told that no one knew, and I think that no one much cared where that little man was.

When the king had written his letter, he himself handed it to Gen. Reilly, who stood bareheaded to receive it—the Italian and Crimean medals glittering on his breast in the fading sunlight. Queen Victoria's image and superscription have not often been seen on the uniforms of men surrendering without conditions.

At 7:40, Gen Reilly left for the beleaguered town, escorted by the Uhlans. The duster which had served as a flag of truce was offered to me as a souvenir of that memorable day; but it had a strong resemblance to other dusters and I declined the proffered relic.

A DRINK TO UNITED GERMANY.

Then there was a general demand for something to drink, and Count Bismarck's Aid-de Camp produced two bottles of Belgian beer. One of them His Excellency shared with Gen. Sheridan, Gen. Forsyth, and myself, saying that he drank to the closer union of the three great Teutonic peoples. As soon as General Reilley was gone, I was most anxious to be off to the Belgian frontier, in the hope of getting messages through; but Count Bismarck's Aid-de-Camp assured me that it was physically impossible to go that night, and that I must wait till morning, and even then must be careful not to fall into the hands of stray French soldiers who were known to be dispersed in all directions along the Belgian frontier, and to be little better than bandits. So I slept at the village of Chevagne, a mile behind our post, after a little hunting for quarters, actually getting a bed.

THE IMPERIAL PRISONER.

Next morning early, I started for Belguim. As I rode along I suddenly came first on a knot of Uhlans; then on two lackeys in the green and gold Imperial livery. Directly behind them came his Majesty Napoleon III., in his travelling carriage, on his way to report himself a prisoner at King Williams headquarters at Vandresse, a little dirty village some eight miles from Sedan.

A FIGHT WITH A BEAR.—A terrible encounter between three men and a bear last week at Blanche Lake is described by the Ottawa Free Press. Two brothers named Lee and their father were reaping oats in their field, when a large bear was seen coming through the grain. Seizing their guns, one of the sons shot the animal in the body. The bear finding himself wounded turned and ran for the mountain, and the two men gave chase. They headed him off, and the double barrel gun, which was loaded with buck shot, was fired at him without producing any other effect than enraging him. He started to run again and was again headed off by one of the men leaping over a shrubbery pine, and getting before him in a ravine. The young man then attacked the bear with his gun, and beat him on the head. The brute leaped on him, and soon had him underneath his powerful paws, tearing the daring man's leg with his teeth. The old man ran to his son's assistance with a heavy handspike, and dealt the wounded bear some crushing blows on the nose. The bear then turned on his new assailant, and got the two men under him, tearing them with his great paws and teeth in a dreadful manner; the other boy arrived at this time with a musket and pitchfork, and sent a bullet through the brute's head and tumbled him over; he then took the pitchfork and drove it into the bear full length of the prongs. To his surprise the animal rose to his feet and rushed for him, with the blood and froth flying from his mouth. The young fellow gave himself up for lost, when the ferocious brute fell dead at his feet. The fight lasted from five o'clock in the evening until dark, over two hours, and was one of the most desperate fights we have ever heard of. The two men were taken home, and their wounds dressed, but they will not recover from the effects of the fight for the next two months. The bear when skinned and the carcass taken out, weighing over three hundred pounds, without the head.

SALE OF CORPORATION LANDS.—We invite attention to the sale of lands, south of the town, on Thursday next.

Y. M. C. A.—We invite attention to the Lecture of the Rev. J. R. Jenkins, under the auspices of this society, on Monday evening.

The Ladies' committee of the Protestant Home beg to acknowledge with thanks the sum of $33, being the proceeds of a collection in the Wesleyan Methodist Church, on Sunday, Sept. 11th.

RAILWAY CHANGE OF TIME.—On and after Monday 19th inst., the train leaves Peterboro' for Port Hobe at 20 minutes after 5 o'clock in the morning.

THE TULLY FARM.—We are requested to intimate to the public that the farm of the late Andrew Tully, North Monaghan, is now for sale at the special request of the present occupant, and with the mutual consent of the other heirs, so that offers in writing will be received up to the last day of Sept. 1870.

An Inquest was held on the body of the late Mr. John Rush, and after investigation, a verdict was rendered to the effect, that the cause of his death was congestion of the brain.

HORTICULTURAL.—In another column will be found the prize list. The Show was a good one, and the articles exhibited superior. The Fruit shown by Mr. Edwards and Mr. R. Brown were of the best quality, and Mr. Brown showed no less than twenty-two varieties of apples.

The Poultry were of the best breeds.—Mr Heather Spanish and dark Brahmas were worthy of a prize anywhere.

Mr. W. Patterson's Black Bantams are both rare and superior birds, from eggs imported from England this year.

Mr. R. Patterson exhibited a pair of game Bantams, and Mr. Cluxton some white birds, which the judges considered worthy of the first prize. Mr. R. Patterson had some fine light Brahams, and Mr. M. Hall, some Polands. All these are well bred, and the owners deserve praise for their trouble in introducing so many full bred birds into this section of the Contry.

The Great International Boat Race came off on Thursday at Lachine, the English crew beating the St. John's crew by six boat lengths. The day was not as propitious hoped for, in consequence, the race did not come off till 5.15 p. m. The St. John's crew suffered a little adverse winds, causing them to dip some water, which impeded them a little, but through the whole course the English crew seemed to have the advantage. They made the six miles in 41 minutes and 10 seconds. The St. John's crew could not be one second behind them, but behind enough to lose the race, and to allow the championship of the world, to the Englishmen. It is no dishonor, however, to be beaten by such men, and it is a pleasing thought that only by an English crew, can the Canadian crew be beaten. The rivalry is between the Mother, so to speak, and her children, and if the parents are successful at present, the children have only to wait a while to succeed. Another year may tell a different story.

The Late Fire.

The Peterborough correspondent of the Toronto dailies, must have been misinformed in reference to the late fire, when he telegraphed the loss at $16,000. It may be one half that amount, but not much over that, which, of course is too much if it could have been avoided, or prevented. As to the want of means of extinguishing the fire: the same means exist now that existed for years; why therefore, did not the advocates of expensive Water Works come forward when George Street was burned down? The population and wealth of the town was only very little less then, than at present. At various times, five times the amount of the present loss has been sustained, and yet, until lately no one came boldly forward to advocate Water Works. In our haste to get into needless debt, we should not damage the interests of the town by thoughtlessly overestimating damages, nor should Insurance Companies be prejudiced against Peterborough risks, by advertising in the Toronto papers that we have no means of saving property from fire. We have the same means that have been in use for years.

The late fire, and all past fires, point to the necessity for a Steam Fire Engine to co-operate with the engine we have, and that with additional hose, and a few tanks, would serve the wants of the town, for some years, and we respectfully represent to the committee, to whom is referred the petition about the steam fire engine, immediate action in the matter. When the town increases its population to 10,000 or 15,000, water works will come, until that, let us seek to extend our trade relations in every direction. Let our town be built up and every thing be moving forward, ere we cramp the energies of the place by high taxes for what would not be completed for several years after commenced, perhaps.

Mr. Jas. Perry was lately paraded before the people, as authority on water works, and now, he says that every elevation about the town is useless for fire pressure. Of course this may jar with former opinions with a contract was expected, nevertheless he [illegible] now say so, and he further [illegible] even his quondam [illegible] this.

[illegible] a company were [illegible] works, and after progressing a little, funds should run out, or a disagreement between stock-holders arise. What is to prevent such a company applying to the Town Council for an extension of a year, to complete the works? Might not the half of the town be consumed in that year, and there would be neither water works nor an engine. An engine is wanted at present, and will be if we had [illegible] to-morrow, and it will manifest wisdom on the part of the Council to procure one, with as little delay as possible.

Let the friends of water works abide their time, their scheme will be realized at no distant day, probably, and perhaps on terms far more favorable than any yet offered, and on a scale that will ensure water for fire purposes, to every property holder.

A HINT. In forming a By-law for the regulation of a fire brigade, might it not be well to provide for an officer, next to the owner, would control who dashing about of goods and furniture. No trifling loss is often sustained by a promiscuous crowd entering and removing articles at will. If something were done to direct the good services of the by-standers, a great amount of damage to furniture could be prevented.

Explanation.

An article in our last is [illegible] headed "More Gas Wanted" has given umbrage to Mr. Romaine, president of the Gas Company, and proprietor of the Peterborough Review, and also to Mr. John Carnegie, Jr., Secretary of said company, and at present Editor of the Review.

In consequence they have instituted legal proceedings against us, without informing us in any way, wherein we have erred. We would very much regret if we should find ourselves guilty of publishing an untruth against either of these gentlemen, and for any over harsh language, if pointed out to us we shall willingly make the amende honorable. The history of the Gas Company we do not care to enter into now, other than as it may be necessary for explanation.

Ere the company was formed at all a citizen informed us that an offer of a certain amount of paid up stock was offered him to induce him to aid in organizing a company. This gentleman also informed us that he declined the offer, but on being interrogated as to who would be likely to assist in the project, he pointed Mr. Jas. Perry to Mr. Robert Romaine, as the most likely person.

The above little incident led us to believe that there was likely to be some underhand work, and led us to oppose the formation of a Gas Company just at this juncture.

Soon after the Company succeeded in making their terms with the Council, and a By-law was passed—admitted illegal on the face of it, but providing that all depended on the legislature legalizing the By-law. Mr. Carnegie obtained an act of Parliament legalizing the By law, and thus the company was able to organize and proceed to work.

In the meantime it was whispered around, in some way, that Mr. Perry, the contractor, or quasi contractor, for we believe there are two Mr. Perry's connected, had offered Mr. Romaine $1,000 paid up stock, for his influence in forming the company, and also $1,000 to Mr. Carnegie for his influence to the same end, and in consequence of these rumors our faith in the company waned, if possible.

Messrs. Romaine, Carnegie and Jas. Perry, after a few months, disagreed amongst themselves, and Mr. Perry was left out in the cold, or rejected in someway. He then told all round town, how the company was formed, and what he had promised Messrs. Romaine and Carnegie; of course we knew nothing of the matter in any other way, and believing that the interest of the town required that such things should be made public, we did so, and condemned the underhand work revealed by Mr. Perry. It was also freely related that Mr. Perry had instituted legal proceedings to regain control of his portion of the works, and it was understood generally that owing to these legal proceedings the company were compelled to desist from extending the works, until a settlement should be arranged.

In the Review of 15th July, we also find the following paragraph:

PERSONAL.—Mr. James Perry, Agent for the Contractor for building the Peterboro' Gas Works, having thought proper to set afloat various rumors affecting the course pursued by the President and Secretary of the Company, we are requested to remind their friends and the public, that "one story is good until the other is told." As the fracas between the Contractor and the Company is likely to end in litigation, the gentlemen referred to feel themselves, therefore, precluded from taking any notice whatever of these reports, as their doing so would have a tendency to prejudge the whole case. Feeling confident of the justice of their course in connection with the Gas Company, and of a verdict in their favor from any court and the public when all the fact are known, they can afford "to bide their time."

When this was published it was taken for granted by many in town and by some in the Council, that legal proceedings were instituted.

A few weeks after the following communication from Messrs. Romaine and Carnegie was brought before the Council, which we give verbatim. We were unable to procure it last week, and hence were astray in regard to its contents, which we published from report.

Now it was on this communication, and the above note in the Review, and the fact that there are only 5 lamps lighted, that the article in question was based.

We find, however, from a careful reading of the communication that the charge of Fraud and Deception cannot be drawn from the communication, as we were led to believe, and, therefore, so far as these charges are concerned, we acknowledge our error, and withdraw them, expressing our regret for their use; of course the words, gross fraud and deception, were founded on the same idea that the words "legal proceeding were preventing the Company" from completeing their arrangements for lighting the whole 20 lamps, but as the communication does not contain the words "legal proceedings," it was not right to charge them with fraud or deception in that particular. All of the succeeding article, based on the same presumption, so far as damaging to Messrs Romaine and Carnegie, we most gladly acknowledge, as not to be drawn from the communication; and as it is just and right that they be not charged with anything without good and sufficient reason, we are certainly willing to admit we were astray in the matters referred to in the communication to the Council. Not only so, but if these gentlemen will point out to us any word, or matter not warranted by the communication, or relating to anything we have written as not founded in fact, we are ready to make the amende honorable at any time.

Some time ago no less than a column of abuse was heaped upon us by the then editor of the Review, for which we had abundant cause for legal action against the proprietor of the Review, but we have always felt that newspaper men have room for self-defence in the public prints, of which we availed ourselves; and we will most gladly give both Messrs. Romaine and Carnegie any space they may desire for the same purpose, and that not only in this case, but any time they may feel aggrieved at our comments. It is true that to refuse to do them justice as soon as informed of misrepresention, would deserve to be legally redressed, but to resort to courts of law for every grievance may gratify lawyers, but can no redound to the benefit of either plaintiffs or defendants. We further assert that the article was not founded on any malicious intent against Messrs Romaine and Carnegie, but because we believed the interest of the Town demanded that such things should be made known, and thus prevented in future.

In our remarks anent the 4th commandment, we merely intended to remind the Review of certain articles contained therein against us, and to remind him that Editors should not be too ready to slander their brethren, as he attempted not long since. See Review of 15th of Nov. last.

To the Mayor and Town Council of the Town of Peterboro.

GENTLEMEN,

In consequence of a dispute having arisen between the Peterboro' Gas Co. and Mr. George Perry, the Contractor for the work of the Company, as to the completion of his contract, and inasmuch as the Company have failed to make any satisfactory engagement with Mr. Perry, either for the completion of the contract or its abandonment by him, the Company regret that they are therefore obliged to inform the Council that they do not anticipate being able to lay down the pipes required to light all the lamps erected by the Council this season.

Under these circumstances, the Company, in order to remove every just cause of complaint on the part of the Council, and the interests which they represent, beg to submit for their consideration these propositions, some one of which they trust will be satisfactory to the Council, viz:—

First. The Company will light all the lamps now erected, upon the terms mentioned in the By-law, provided they are allowed to use Coal Oil for such of the lamps as are not in connection with their pipes, until such time as they are in a position to make the connexions, or

Secondly. The Company will light such of the lamps as are now connected, and the others from time to time, as they can judiciously make the connexions at the rate per lamp named in the By-law, less an allowance of eight per cent per annum of interest on the cost of the lamps not lighted in each preceeding quarter until the whole number of twenty lamps be lighted as provided in the By-law; or

Thirdly. If the Council deem it inexpedient to light any of the lamps until the whole twenty are lighted then the Company are prepared to pay the Town quarterly—interest on the cost of the lamps and posts at the rate of eight per cent per annum, until such time as the Company are in a position to light up the whole twenty lamps.

The interest mentioned in either of the second or third propositions, to be reckoned from the time the Company are notified by the Clerk of the division of the Council with regard to them.

In making these propositions, the Company would ask the favorable consideration of the Council for the second proposition, inasmuch that if the first be accepted, the lighting of a number of lamps with Coal Oil will entail a considerable loss upon the Company, while if the last be accepted, the Company will be sufferers to the full extent of the interest paid the Town without any compensating advantage.

Neither may it be out of place for the Company to remind the Council and the public that in no Town in the Province of Ontario has the Gas Company been organized without the substantial assistance of the Municipality either directly by the taking of stock in the Company, or indirectly by the loaning of money or its credit to such Company—except in Peterboro.—And with regard to the contract of lamps, they would state without fear of contradiction, that the price named in the By-law is lower, circumstances considered—than that paid by any other Town in the Province.

The Company mention these things not through any desire to evade the performance of their agreement with the Town, but simply that it may lead the Council and the public to extend to them their forbearance while they are endeavoring to protect their own interests, and the interests of the creditors of the Contractor, in this neighborhood.

I remain,
Mr. Mayor and Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
ROBT. ROMAINE,
President of the Peterboro' Gas Co.
JOHN CARNEGIE,
Secretary of Peterboro' Gas Co.

Sault de Ste. Marie Church.

A small sum in aid of the much needed little Church, now being erected at the Sault de Ste. Marie, was collected in Peterboro', and the following letter from the gentleman acting Secretary and Treasurer of the building fund, in acknowledgement of the receipt of the money, will, it is hoped, be of interest to those in Peterboro' who have contributed to the good work. A few others have also promised their assistance, and when the money has all been collected and sent forward, a list of the contributors and of the names given, will be furnished.

(Letter from Mr. Pilgrim, to the Peterboro collector):—"Mrs. Hamilton has paid me your collection, (amounting to $21,73) in aid of the little church we are struggling to build at this place, and the Building Committee desire me to return very grateful thanks.

There is no doubt we have aimed at what was a little beyond our present strength. Still we have no fear as to the result. If not finished inside this fall, I am sure the Church will be finished very soon after. Only for the rainy weather, our roof would now be going on, and we yet hope to be all closed in by the end of September. If we succeed it will be a pretty little rustic stone Church, strong enough to last for centuries.

Thanking you for your kind aid.

I remain,
Very truly yours,
HENRY PILGRIM,
Sec. & Treas.
S. S. M. Church Building Fund.

P. S. When our roof is on we will print full statement of all receipts and disbursements, but we could not make people below understand the difficulties of building here.

Sault de Ste. Marie, August 29th, 1870.

Lakefield.

The Anniversary services of the Lake field W. M. Sabbath School, were held on Sunday and Monday last. Sermons were preached on Sunday by the Rev. Mr. Andrews, of Omemee. On Monday tea was served on tables erected on the green in the rear of the church, which was well attended, as is usually the case in Lakefield; thereby showing the interest taken in promoting social intercourse among the different denominations. After tea, the children of the school gave a number of select pieces of music and recitations, among those that were well rendered were the following: The Untidy Boy, The Sunbeam, Trust Your Mother, Our Days, and Wear a Smile, a number of others of equal merit were given, but were spoken a little hurriedly, losing the desired effect; but considering the youth of the little orators they did remarkable well. These exercises were followed by speeches from the Rev. Mr. Glover, B. C. Minister, who stated that he owed his conversion, to the wholesome lessons of instruction received at the Sabbath School. The speaker endeavored to impress on parents, the necessity of teaching children by example, as they are shrewd discerners. The Revds. Messrs. Dyall, Baptist, Urquhart, Presbyterian, and Andrews, followed with equally earnest appeals to old and young. The Report of the school shows 144 names on the Roll, with an average of 66. There have been added to the libary during the past year 100 volumes. The proceeds of the tea and collections amounted to $65.—Com.

THE EUROPEAN WAR.

15,000 Prussians are at Joinville.

Prussia is satisfied with the reserved attitude of England as defeating the French hope for armed intervention.—Germany demands cession of Alsace and Loraine.

PARIS 16th.—The city is declared in a state of siege. All non-combatants are to be expelled. It is reported that an American ship has arrived at Toulon with 5,00 American Volunteers and 7,000 rifles.—The forest around the city is now entirely consumed.

MR. MILLAR,

Dear Sir: I have tried Workman's Patent Harrow and find it superior to anything of the kind I have seen yet, for several reasons. 1st, It will do double the amount of work with the same draft of an ordinary harrow 2nd, It is strong and durable, 3rd, The teeth bolted on to the side of the bold with two bolts, and the plain clasp, is a great improvement on it; steel teeth are preferable to iron. 5th, You can hitch to either end, which of course is a great advantage to the teeth 6th, it is well adapted for clearing itself on stony or soddy ground.

Yours respectfully,
JOHN WALTON.

They are now turning them out at the rate of 600 per month, and yet have been compelled within the last two weeks to increase their facilities to a capacity of one thousand per month.

The Lockman Machine, from its capacity to sew the heaviest fabrics with linen thread, as well as the finest cambrics with No. 150 Cotton, is pre-eminently the Farmer's Favorite Family Friend.

It is so exceedingly simple in its parts, and so strongly and durably made, that it does not require a mechanical genius for its management.

The manufacturers challenge the world to produce its equal, and yet its price is from Forty to Fifty per cent. Lower than that of any other first-class Shuttle Lock-stitch Sewing Machine

Poetry.

When You'r Down.

What legions of "friends [illegible] us,
When golden moons [illegible]
How they smile as they [illegible]
So cordial good humour [illegible]
But oh! when the sun of [illegible]
Has set—then how quickly they frown,
And cry out in tones of severity,
"Kick the man, don't you see he is down!

What though, when you knew not a sorrow
Your heart was as open as day,
And your "friends," when they wanted to borrow
You'd oblige, and ne'r ask them to pay'
When though not a soul you e'er slighted,
And you wandered about through the town,
Your "friends" became very near sighted,
And dont seem to see you when down.

When your up you're idly exalted,
And traders all sing out your praise,
When your down you have greatly defaulted,
And they really "don't fancy your ways.
Your style was "up-top" when you'd money,
So sings every sucker and clown,
But now 'tis exceedingly funny,
Things are altered "because you're down.'

Oh give me the heart that forever
Is free from the worlds selfish rout,
And the soul whose high noble endeavour,
Is to raise fallen man from the dust;
And when in adversity's ocean
A victim is likley to drown,
All hail to the friend whose devotion,
Will lift h man up when he's down.

Had Done Enough.

A revolutionary soldier was running for Congress, and his opponent was a young man who had never been to the wars, and it was the custom of the hardship he had endured. Said he—"Fellow citizens: I have fought and bled for my country. I helped to whip the British and the Indians. I have slept on the field of battle, with no other covering than the canopy of heaven. I have walked over the frozen ground till every footstep was marked with blood—"

Just about this time one of the sovereigns who had become greatly interested in his tale of sufferings, walked up in front of the speaker, wiped the tears from his eyes with the extremity of his coat-tail and interrupted with:—"Did you say you had lout the British and the Injues?" "Yes sir."—"Did you say you slept on the ground, while serving your country, without any kiver?" "I did." "Did you say your feet covered the ground you walked over with blood. "Yes," said the speaker exclusingly, "Well, then," said the sovereign as he gave a sigh of tearful emotion, "I guess I'll vote for t'other fellow, for I'll be blamed if you ain't done enough for your country.

Not up in the Classics.—It is no sin not to be well up in classics. 'Liskin Dutton was not. But he loved the American fair. In fact he loved two of them. And they quarreled about him like two Kilkenny puppies. The consequence was, all three were brought into court. 'Liskin, being the cause of the struggle, was thus addressed by his Honor:

"And so those women were fighting about you?"

"I believe so, sir."

"You were the son of Adonis, then?"

"Sir?" inquired 'Liskin, his eyes protruding, and a shade of pallor creeping into his face.

"You are an Adonis," the court repeated.

"Oh no, sir—never as bad as that; but I've been in the penitentiary for stealing horses.

"Mr. Speaker," said a member of the Jamaica Legislature, discussing a bill for the regulation of the timber trade, "I know these timber merchants to be most egregious rascals—I was in the timber business like myself twelve years."

"Wherever I go," said a gentleman remarkable for his state pride, "I am sure to find sensible men from my own State." "No wonder," said the person he was addressing, "for every man of State, who has any sense, leaves it as fast as he can."

A Good Answer.— 'Sir,' said a lad coming down a wharf in Boston, and addressing a well known merchant. 'Sir, have you berth for me on on your ship? I want to earn something.

'What can you do?' asked the gentleman.

'I can try my best to do whatever I am put to,' answered the boy.

'What have you done?'

'I have sawed and split my mother's wood for nigh two years.'

'What have you not done?' asked the gentleman, which was a queer sort of question.

'Well,' sir,' answered the boy after a moments pause, 'I have not whispered once in school for a whole year.'

'That's enough,' said the gentleman you may ship aboard this vessle, and hope to see you master of her some day. A boy who can master a woodpile and bridle his tongue must be made of good stuff.

Every Day Absurdities.—To ask a wine merchant how old his wine is.

To make yourself generally disagreeable and then wonder that nobody visits you unless they gain some palpable advantage by it.

To sit shivering in the cold because you won't have a fire till November.

To judge of people's piety by their attendance at Church.

To keep your clerks on miserable salaries and wonder at their robbing you.

Not to go to bed when you are tired and sleepy, because it is not bed-time.

To make your servants tell lies for you, and afterwards be angry because they tell lies for themselves.

To tell your own secret, and believe other people will keep them.

To fancy a thing is cheap because a low price is asked for it.

To keep a cat or dog on short allowance and complain of it's being a thief.

Strange Incident.—The Auburn News says a strange incident transpired a few days since on the Southern Central. Mrs Elizabeth Pifer, a lady 107 years old and in excellent health, took the cars at Peruvile. It was the first time she had seen a locomotive and cars in her life. A delegation of curious people attended at the depot to see her off. Though a little alarmed at travelling with such a high rate of speed, Mrs. Pifer quickly came to the conclusion that a cushioned seat, twenty miles an hour, and a smooth road, were a little ahead of the stages and corduroy turnpikes of the days of her children. She has not lived in the town of Groton since 1806, and was on a visit to Groton to see a lady acquaintance of 100 year of age.

The Crown Prince of Prussia, Frederic William, who fought Marshall McMahon at Weissenburg, is now in his 39th year. He married the Princess Royal of England, and his eldest son, a young warrior of eleven years holds several commission in the Prussian army.

The Child at Prayer.

'Twas summer's eve—the rosy light
Had faded from the sky,
And stars came twinkling, pure and bright,
Through the blue arch on high;
The western breezes softly stole,
To kiss the sleeping flower,
And nature wore her sweetest smile
To bless the twilight hour.

There sat within a curtained room,
A mother young and fair—
What voice comes softly through the gloom?
'Tis childhood's voice in prayer:
A cherub boy is kneeling now
Beside that mother knee—
She who had taught him when to bow
Before the Deity.

A father on the distant deep,
A sister slumb'ring near,
A babe upon his mother's breast,
And ill at kind mother dear;
For ever living things he loves,
His prayer ascends to Heaven,
And for himself he humbly asks,
Each sin may be forgiven.

And oft after years, when grief
Shall bow his spirits down,
And the world, the cold and bitter world,
Shall meet him with a frown;
Or when allured from virtue's path,
He treads a dang'rous way,
Oh! he will turn to this blest hour,
When first he knelt to pray.

And the kind hand which then was laid
Upon his silken hair;
And the soft voice which taught him first,
His simple words of prayer,
Will come again with thrilling power
To still his pulses wild,
And lure him back in that dark hour
As sinless as a child.

The prayer is o'er, the last fond kiss
By that kind mother given;
But rises not from scene like this
That childish prayer to Heaven?
It does, it does, an angel's wing
Has borne it tone with joy,
And th' earnest blessing which it sought
Comes on the sleeping boy.

Advice To Young Women.

BY DR. LEWIS.

This article is intended for young women, but only for those wanting husbands. Those who have made up their minds to remain single, who "wouldn't marry the best man that ever lived, There!" can pass over this article, as it has no interest for them. Men will shut their eyes if they have the least spark of delicacy, of course; for every word of this is private and confidential.

To be frank with you, the reason, or, rather, the occasion for writing as I now do, was this: About a week ago, a young woman, of twenty-six, (she said twenty-six, so I am sure on that point) came to me about her health, and after the professional conversation was finished, we fell into a general and pleasant chat.

She was delightfully frank, and said, while we were becoming [illegible] and matrimony.

"I wish I w[illegible]

"That is too [illegible] I h[illegible] been admiring yo[illegible] ...operations ever since y[illegible] ...d you spoil it all by showing that you are not grateful for such noble gifts."

"I can't help it; I wish I didn't weigh more than eighty pounds, and wasn't more than four and a half feet high."

"Well, I am shocked; do tell me what makes you wish so."

"To be frank with you, the reason is just this: Men are so fond of saying, "My little wife."

I laughed of course, thinking it was intended as a bright speech; but her flushed face assured me that, instead, she was speaking from the bottom of her heart.

"Goon," I said; 'tell me your thoughts.'

"My thoughts are just these, and I believe they are the thoughts of all unmarried, marriageable women. I long for nothing this side of heaven, as I do to bury all my uncertainties and anxieties in the love of a husband. Eagerly would I make any honorable sacrifice to secure this greatest treasure. But I fear there is nothing left for me but to be pointed at and sneered at as an old maid all the rest of my life. So while I might otherwise be grateful for what you choose to call my queenly proportions, I can only wish I was one of the little women whom men seem to fancy."

I shan't tell you any more of this conversation, and my friend will excuse this much as a text for a little sermon which I wish to preach, assured that only she and I will know to whom this refers.

I wonder if it is improper to speak plainly about what so many are thinking of? I will venture a little.

Now don't take on airs and turn up your noses. My hair is white, and you should permit me to speak as a father. You want husbands. You think of them by day, and dream of them by night. You talk of nothing else. Think on and dream on, even if you never get them; it will make you better and nobler to think about them. On our side of the house we are at it too; and although we may never marry, our hearts will be the nobler and purer for having thought and dreamed of you.

In entering upon this most important and delightful relation, we men must take the initiative. You are perplexed and grieved that so many of us hold back, and wander about homeless bachelors all our lives, leaving you to die old maids. Let me whisper the secret: We are afraid of you. And now I propose that we let my friend explain. He is a splendid fellow, and dying to have a home of his own; but he dare not venture. He declared in my parlor the other day, that he would prefer ten years of happy married life, to fifty years of this miserable nothing and nowhere. But said he:

"Now see here, Mr. Lewis, I am a banker. My salary is $3,000. I can't marry a scrub. I must marry wife with manners, one who knows what's what. My mother and sisters, to say nothing of myself, would break their hearts, if my choice were below their style. Now just tell me how, with such a wife, I could get through on $3,000 a year. Why, her dress alone would cost half of it. My dress would cost at least $500, and that would leave $1,000, to pay all the rest of it. Board could not be got for less than $50 a week, and even with that, you know, we shouldn't get first-class board: and then there are the extras,—the little trips, the presents, the lectures, concerts, operas, etc, one can't live in society without a little of such things. Oh, no; unless I first make up my mind to rob the banks, I couldn't think of matrimony. If I had $5,000 a year I would venture; but with only $3,000! Well. I'm not quite a madman, and so I stay where I can pay my debts."

"My lady friends think I am so much in love with the——Club that I have no time for them; and one of them said to me the other day, when we were discussing the matter:

"'Why, Bob, what you spend in that miserable club would support a wife, easy.'

"'It wouldn't pay for her bonnets,' I replied."

Now, ladies, Bob is getting a little extravagant, and we'll let him retire; and I will preach to you just a little sermon, about an inch long. I dont often preach, but in this case nothing but a sermon will do.

First. You are perfect idiots to go on in this way. Your bodies are the most beautiful of God's creation. In the Continental galleries I always saw groups of people gathered about the pictures of women. It was not passion,—the gazers were just as likely to be women as men; it was because of the wondrous beauty of a woman's body.

Now stand with me at my office window, and see a lady pass. There goes one! Now isn't that a pretty looking object? A big hump, three big lumps, a wilderness of crimps and frills, a hauling up of the dress here and there, an enormous, hideous mass of false hair or bask piled on top of her head, surmounted by a little flat, ornamented with bits of lace, bird's tails, etc., etc. The shop windows tell us, all day long, of the paddings, whalebones, and steel springs which occupy most of the space within that outside ring.

In the name of all the simple, sweet sentiments which cluster about a home, I would ask, How is a man to fall in love with such a piece of compound, double and twisted, touch-me-not artificially, as you are it that wiggling curiosity?

Secondly, What that wasp waist, squeezing your lungs, stomach, liver and other vital organs into one-half their natural size, and with that long tail dragging on the ground, how can any man of sense, who knows that life is made of use, of service, of work,—how can he take such a partner? He must be de-perate indeed, to unite himself for life with such a tortured, half-breathing ornament!

Thirdly, Your bad dress and lack of exercise lead to bad health, and men wisely fear that, instead of a helpmate, they would get an invalid to take care of. This bad health in you, just as in men, makes the mind as well as the body faculed and effeminate. You have no power, no magnetism! I know you giggle freely, and use big adjectives, such as "splendid," "awful," but then this don't deceive us; we see through it all. You are superficial, affected, silly; you have none of that womanly strength and warmth which are so assuring and attractive to men. Why, you have become so childish and weak-minded, that you refuse to wear decent names even, and insist upon baby names. Instead of Helen, Margaret, and Elizabeth, you affect Nellie, Maggie and Lizzie. When your brothers were babies, you called them Bobby, Dickey, and Jonney, but when they grew up to manhood, no more of that silly trash, if you please. But I know a woman of twenty-five years, and she is as big as both of my grandmothers put together, who insist upon being called Kitty, and her real name is Catherine; and although her brain is big enough to conduct affairs of State, she does nothing but giggle, cover her face with her fan, and exclaim, once in four minutes, "Don't, now; you are real mean."

How can a man propose a life-partnership to such a silley goose? My dear girls, you must, if you would get husbands, and decent ones, dress in plain, neat, and becoming garments, and talk sensible, earnest sisters.

You say you don't care, you won't dress to please men, etc. Then I am not talking [illegible] you [illegible] in the beginning, it is [illegible] want husbands, and [illegible] how to get them.

You say that the most sensible men are crazy after these butterflies of fashion. I beg your pardon, it is not so. Occasionally a manof brilliant success may marry a silly, weak woman; but to say, as I have heard women say a hundred times, that the most sensible men choose women without sense is simply absurd. Nineteen times in twenty, sensible men choose sensible women. I grant you that in company they are very likely to chat and toy with these over-dressed and forward creatures; but they don't ask them to go to the altar with them.

Fourthly, Among the young men in the matrimonial market, only a small number are independently rich, and in America such very rarely make good husbands. But the number of of those who are just beginning in life, who are filled with noble ambition, who have a future, is very large. These are worth having. But such will not, they dare not, ask you to join them, while they see you so idle, silly, and so gorgeously attired. Let them see that you are industrious, economical, with habits that secure health and strength; that your life is earnest and real; and that you would be willing to begin at the beginning in life with the man you would consent to marry,—then marriage would become the rule, and not, as now the exception.

Ah! if ever the time shall come when young women have occupations, and can sustain a healthy, dignified attitude toward men, when they shall escape this pitiful dependence, then marriage will become universal, and we shall all be better, happier and nobler.—Congregationalist.

The Jew.

BY REV. EDWIN HALL, D. D.

I pity the Jew. From my very heart I commiserate his sad hopelessness. Like other men he seeks his highest happiness through his present possessions and future inheritance. Yet what can he call his own at the present, or what may he hope for to-morrow?—What does he believe to be in reversion for himself or for his nation?

Man may be happy in the emotions which patriotism inspires, but the Jew is without country and home, and hence without a theme for the exercise of national affections.

In the record of the prophets there may be found promises of national restitution and aggrandisement for the Hebrews, but what avail such a record, so long as the Jews do not appropriate these promises; so long as there is appended the condition that they must accept the Christ whom they reject?

The Jew may not believe that he is become an alien to the inheritance of the true Israel, but he feels all the hopelessness that such infidelity incurs. And if he do not believe it, yet he believes nothing to the contrary. He is without faith and hope.

Yet, again, the Jew is not unstable, not driven about with every wind of doctrine! If Judaism is not true, (and he has lost all hope in its promise of a Messiah,) then no religion is worthy of his confidence.

Late with all its noble aspirations is narrowed down to a meaningless arena of money-getting. Shylock is a representative of the legitimate end of the grasping soul of the Jew, (of man) without God and without hope in the world. Without a country to expand his heart, and without religion to tone and elevate the spirit. I say no religion, for ignoring the claims of Jesus of Nazareth, the Jew has wasted beyond expectations and hope for the advent of the Messiah.

In the name of all the simple, sweet sentiments which cluster about a home, I would ask, How is a man to fall in love with such a piece of compound, double and twisted, touch-me-not artificially, as you are it that wiggling curiosity?

Secondly, What that wasp waist, squeezing your lungs, stomach, liver and other vital organs into one-half their natural size, and with that long tail dragging on the ground, how can any man of sense, who knows that life is made of use, of service, of work,—how can he take such a partner? The Conflict.

A correspondent in the "Northern Independent," speaks thus of the fierce conflict, going on in our midst. In every hamlet, town and city in our land is this terrible conflict waging; and our friends and loved ones are falling one by one, victims of the contest. And were we in the midst of a civil war, the papers all over the land would be filled with accounts of the patriotism of the army that was fighting for the right. The columns of every journal would contain sympathetic notes and addresses to those whose loved ones had been slain in the battle field. Yet, when there is a worse conflict raging all over the land, these journals take no notice of it. One hundred thousand persons fall annually, and no notice is taken of it. Their wives, widows, and orphans, are not deemed worthy of a notice in their columns. Shame, to such would be teachers of public opinion.

We rejoice, however, that we have some papers that devote themselves entirely to the amelioration of this class of victims. Temperance papers are springing up here and there, and we are glad to know that public opinion is surely following in the right channel. And men, women and children are willing to band themselves together for the purpose of giving battle to the great enemy in our midst. Temperance men everywhere are marshaling for the conflict, and Prohibition is the watch-word. Let all the people rejoice and go ahead.

The time for action, thorough, energetic action, has come; and he who would lift up his brother, and restore him to virtue, must work. We must try something besides moral suasion, for the liquor dealer turns a deaf ear to that. And it is but to cast, the pearls before swine, to ask him to desist in his course of drunkard making. But, we must get a prohibitory liquor law, and then enforce it. Legal suasion is the kind that will shut up dram shops.

The Wine-Cup.

THE Presbyterian combats Mr. Bayard Taylor's views of temperance reform as follows:

"Humanitarians who love to sip the glass because they think they can indulge with safety, may do this; but not so the church of God. Its attitude toward one sided and partial reforming societies, whose object is right, should be one of protest against their defect, and yet of sympathy with their aim. Especially while witnessing to voluntary temperance organizations that their platform is defective, and that the grace of God is the only infallible reforming and preventing power, it should guard against exciting their antagonist. It should go down to them, labor with them, and by kindness and sympathy bring them up to its true and powerful position. With its love for the human race, it will not imitate the cynical bearing of Mr. Taylor towards men who are striving to save their fellow creatures from the terrible effects of intoxicating liquors. It will not drive them off, but seek to draw them into itself."

WHAT FILLS THE POOR-HOUSE.—There is no question that at least nine-tenths of all the pauperism in this country is caused directly by intemperance. Investigation clearly shows this to be the fact. The poor-house reveals this truth, and from them you can learn that but for intemperance they would be almost tenantless. If men would give up the use of intoxicating liquors, there is hardly a poor-house or pauper establishment in the country over whose doors might

The Tyne crew have returned to England. The Paris crew intend challenging them next year.

Sir John Young has been raised to the Peerage, with the title of Baron Lisgar from his estate in Ireland.

Kingston has had a fashionable wedding: Dr. O'Sullivan of Peterborough, to Miss Margaret Flanagan. Bishop Horan officiated.

The city of Toronto has just voted $5,000 to the Relief Fund, for the sufferers in the Ottawa district. What has Peterborough done inaid of the sufferers?

Mr. John Creighton of Kingston is to be warden of the Penitentary, and Mr. W. Strange, M. P., Police Magistrate. Surely, Sir J. A. has forgotten his friend of East Durham. What now about my old boss?

THE CAMP.—The Port Hope "Daily Times" says, as far as we could ascertain, the "Pauwell House difficulty" of which we have heard so much within the past few days, was a very ordinary molehill, magnified into a mountain.

PERSONAL.—T. M. Fairbarin, Esq. Barrister &c., has just returned from a lengthened visit to Great Britain, undertaken for pleasure, and for the good of his health. We are glad to see him looking exceedingly well, and his many friends will be pleased to learn that he enjoys excellent health.

The wife of the Rev. W. M. Punshon died in Toronto, in child-birth, on Friday last. This will prove a severe stroke to the surviving husband, who was said to have come to Canada, so as to be in a position to marry her, the laws of England being against a man marrying a deceased wife's sister.

The Ottawa Times says that Sheriff Treadwell has patented a new plan of a wooden railway, which is likely to effect a great saving in their construction. The Times further says, that where wood can be furnished free, the cost of construction will not exceed one-tenth of ordinary railways. The track will be three feet wide and the weight of cars and engine, only one-fourth of those in use on the Grand Trunk Railway.

The teachers of the Baptist Sabbath School, Peterboro', presented Miss Mary Edwards, one of their number, with a beautiful edition of Barnes' notes on the New Testament, on Sabbath last, on the occasion of her being about to visit the Pacific Coast, Oregon, for a season. The earnest prayers of her fellow-teachers are with her, that she may have a safe journey and be happy, in that far off portion of the continent, while she remains.

We have been informed that some fellow's who came across Rice Lake, on Saturday evening, went to Mr. Hettrick's orchard and began taking fruit: Mr. Hettrick attempted to persuade them to leave, and in the altercation one of them, whose name we have not learned, drew a piece of wood and striking Hettrick, broke his arm, which he raised to save his head. Dr. Dean of Keene, was summoned immediately, and set his arm. Our informant says, that although, he suffered severe pain during the night after the hurt, he is now progressing favorably.

KEENE.—As the boat, or steam scow was nearing Keene, on Saturday evening, Miss Sinclair of that village, who was on board, fell overboard. Fortunately, some person had a few minutes before, come up to the scow and got on board, attaching his skiff to the hind part. The skiff was immediately lowered and entered, and the party reached her just in time to save her from drowning. Dr. Dean being on board, gave her every attention, and we understand, she is recovering fast from her sudden and unexpected immersion.

POISON IN THE CABBAGE THIS YEAR.—A correspondent of the Brockville Recorder writes to that paper against the use of cabbage this year, owing to the presence of a very poisonous green worm or grub, that infects them. It is said to eat its way into the centre, without appearing to damage the cabbage in the outside, and its bite, the writer says, is very dangerous. The editor of that paper also endorses the news of his correspondent and says his cabbage are in the same state, and that he has determined not to use them. We have not heard of any such worm in these parts, yet we might as well keep a sharp look out for them. Since writting the above, we see that this worm has appeared in other parts of, Canada.

SUDDEN DEATH.—On Saturday Mr. J. Bestard, a miller, of this town, fell dead on Simcoe street, near Mr. McDonald's Hotel. D. Hopkins, Esq., and some other gentlemen were coming up at the time and attempted to lift him, but seeing he was just dying laid him on his back, thinking that perhaps he might recover, but he died in an instant. He resided on the Gravel road near the toll-gate. He leaves a wife and family, most of whom are grown up. He had been in his usual health up to the time of his sudden death, having left home that morning on business it is said.
